the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations in the complaint and request an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since respondent was served with the complaint in question. Respondent has not filed an answer to date. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Amalia Mendez deLeon, herein referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose address is 2109 E. San Antonio Avenue, #217, El Paso, Texas 79901.

2. On or about July 30, 1984, the respondent imported into the United States at El Paso, Texas, from Mexico, approximately one (1) pound of Mexican limes, which are prohibited articles, in violation of sections 319.27(a) and 319.27-3 of the regulations (7 CFR §§ 319.27(a) and 319.27-3) which prohibit such importation.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts in the findings of fact set forth above, respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ORDER

Respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty of two hundred fifty dollars ($250), which shall be paid within thirty (30) days from the date this Order becomes effective. This civil penalty shall be made payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Sherrie Kopka Kennedy, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400.

This Order shall have the same force and effect as if issued after full hearing and shall be final and effective thirty-five (35) days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

[The Default Decision and Order became final on April 14, 1986.—Ed.]

In re: ALLIED AVIATION SERVICE INTERNATIONAL CORPORATION. P.Q. Docket No. 147. Decided April 21, 1986.

Fronda Woods, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

Decision by William Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

On November 7, 1985, this proceeding was instituted under the Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a and 167) (Act), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.56 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below. The parties have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) any further procedure;

(b) any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) all rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Allied Aviation Service International Corporation, respondent, is a corporation whose address is International Arrivals Building, Room 2129, JFK International Airport, Jamaica, New York 11430.

2. On or about January 24, 1985, at John F. Kennedy International Airport, the respondent, by its employee Maria Jimenez, removed two apples and one orange from El Al Israel Airlines flight number 001.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent has admitted the jurisdictional facts and has agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of the proceeding. Therefore, such order will be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Allied Aviation Service International Corporation is assessed a civil penalty of three hundred seventy-five dollars ($375) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon respondent.

In re: MOVSOVITZ AND SONS OF FLORIDA, INC. P.Q. Docket No. 167. Decided April 21, 1986.

Fronda Woods, for complainant.
Isaac Levy, Jacksonville, Florida, for respondent.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

On December 23, 1985, this proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a, 167), and the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 150aa-150jj) (Acts), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated the Acts and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR §§ 301.75-301.75-8). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, the respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Movsovitz and Sons of Florida, Inc., respondent, is a corporation whose address is 3100 Hilton Street, Jacksonville, Florida 32203.

2. On or about June 7, 1985, at Jacksonville, Florida, the respondent offered to a common carrier, for shipment to Puerto Rico, at least seven boxes of Florida grapefruit, on invoice number 85-000800.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent has admitted the jurisdictional facts and has agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding. Therefore, such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent Movsovitz and Sons of Florida, Inc. is assessed a civil penalty of three hundred seventy-five dollars ($375). The respondent shall send, payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" a certified check or money order, to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day of this order is served upon the respondent.

In re: OGDEN FOOD SERVICE CORPORATION. P.Q. Docket No. 237. Decided April 28, 1986.

Joseph Pembroke, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the regulations governing the handling and disposal of foreign-origin garbage (7 CFR 330.400 and 9 CFR 94.5) by a complaint filed by the Deputy Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the Ogden Food Service Corporation (hereinafter "respondent") at its facility located at Building 146 John F. Kennedy International Airport, Jamaica, New York, violated the regulations and its compliance agreement with the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. This order is entered pursuant to the consent order provisions of the procedures adopted for use in this proceeding.

In its answer to the complaint the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in the complaint and specifically admits that the Administrator has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of a specified order.

The complainant has recommended that the order consented to by respondent be entered in settlement of this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Respondent is a corporation and at all times material herein was doing business under a compliance agreement with PPQ, APHIS, USDA, to handle foreign-origin garbage at JFK International Airport, Jamaica, New York. Respondent's Building #146, Kitchens A & B facility at JFK International Airport, Jamaica, New York, was at all times material herein approved for the handling and disposing of foreign-origin garbage under the regulations (7 CFR 330.400 and 9 CFR 94.5) and has been operating under compliance agreements (Nos. 5 and 6A) with the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Plant Protection and Quarantine.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of the following order in settlement of this proceeding, the order will be entered.

ORDER

1. Compliance Agreements No. 5 and 6A, pertaining to Building #146, Kitchens A & B facility, between respondent and the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, shall be withdrawn on March 14, 1986. However, such withdrawal shall be suspended for the period from March 14, 1986 through September 8, 1986 if respondent implements the procedures set forth in paragraph 2 below. In addition, if the procedures set forth in paragraph 2 below are implemented by respondent, the aforementioned compliance agreements will be automatically reinstated on September 8, 1986. Failure of respondent to act in accordance with the obligations set forth in paragraph 2 below will constitute grounds to revoke the suspension of the aforementioned withdrawal of Compliance Agreements No. 5 and 6A, but not for a period of more than one month.

2. Respondent, as a condition to the suspension of the withdrawal of the Compliance Agreements set forth in paragraph 1 above, agrees to the following continuing obligations at Building #146:

a. Implement a training and orientation program for all of its employees who handle or dispose of foreign-origin garbage. Respondent shall assure that only such trained employees handle foreign-origin garbage. The training shall include a minimum of one year of initial instruction by a PPQ-approved instructor. In addition, such trained employees shall be provided at least one hour of review training annually. The training and orientation program shall inform such employees of the content and purpose of the regulations as well as the provisions of the Compliance Agreements to assure proper handling of foreign-origin garbage in accordance with 7 CFR § 330.400 and 9 CFR § 94.5. The aforementioned training sessions shall emphasize the consequences to U.S. agriculture if foreign-origin plant or animal pests are introduced into the United States. Respondent agrees to maintain records of employee participation in the training program.

b. Promptly notify the PPQ office at JFK International Airport of any breakdown or malfunction of any garbage processing equipment used to process foreign-origin garbage.

c. Provide for the immediate pickup and proper handling and disposal of foreign-origin garbage by another approved facility (or in another manner approved by PPQ) if any of respondent's garbage processing equipment is inoperable or overloaded or if garbage cannot be immediately disposed of.

d. Appoint a "crew supervisor" who will be responsible for all foreign-origin garbage handling operations at Building No. 146. The crew supervisor will assure that all foreign-origin garbage will be handled in accordance with 7 CFR § 330.400 and 9 CFR § 94.5.

e. Designate Mr. Bill Smith, Vice President of Sales and Services, or his successor, as a representative to whom PPQ inspectors may contact concerning any matter set forth herein. In Mr. Smith's absence, PPQ inspectors may contact Mr. Joseph Nappi.

3. The PPQ personnel assigned to JFK International Airport will make the initial determination as to whether the conditions set forth in paragraph 2 have been met by respondent. Such determination will be immediately communicated to respondent's crew supervisor at Building No. 146 and to respondent's Vice President of Sales and Services.

4. Should a dispute arise between respondent and PPQ officials at JFK International Airport regarding respondent's compliance with the provisions of paragraph 2, the dispute may be submitted by either respondent or the PPQ officials to the Assistant to the Deputy Administrator, Animal Plant Inspection Service, Room 656 Federal Building, 6506 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Maryland 20782. The Assistant to the Deputy Administrator will arbitrate any and all such disputes after notice and informal hearing to both parties. The decision of the Assistant to the Deputy Administrator is final.

5. Release from any particular provision of this order shall not have any effect upon any other provision of this order.

6. This order shall not be construed to prevent the institution of action to withdraw approval to process foreign-origin garbage for any other violation of the regulations or a compliance agreement not covered in this order.

7. This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon respondent.

In re: ALOHA AIRLINES. P.Q. Docket No. 151 and 152. Decided April 30, 1986.

Joseph Pembroke, for complainant.
David M.K. Lum, Honolulu, Hawaii, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of August 20, 1903, as amended (Act) (7 U.S.C. §§ 151–164a and § 167), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that, Aloha Airlines, respondent, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 318.13 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) any further procedure;

(b) any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) all rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Aloha Airlines, respondent, is a corporation whose mailing address is P. O. Box 30028, Honolulu, Hawaii 96820.

2. On or about April 6, May 3, and July 1, 1985, respondent moved baggage for transshipment to California.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding, such order will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one thousand two hundred dollars ($1,200) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Joseph P. Pembroke, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon the respondent.

PREFATORY NOTE

It is the purpose of this official publication to make available to the public, in an orderly and accessible form, decisions issued under regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The decisions published herein may be described generally as decisions which are made in proceedings of a quasi-judicial character, and which, under the applicable statutes, can be made by the Secretary of Agriculture, or an officer authorized by law to act in his stead, only after notice and hearing or opportunity for a hearing. These decisions do not include rules and regulations of general applicability which are required to be published in the Federal Register.

The principal statutes concerned are the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.), the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Animal Quarantine and Related Laws (21 U.S.C. 111 et seq.), the Animal Welfare Act (7 U.S.C. 2131 et seq.), the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Grain Standards Act (7 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Horse Protection Act (15 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921 (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.), the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930 (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the Plant Quarantine Act (7 U.S.C. 151 et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 451 et seq.), and the Virus-Serum-Toxin Act of 1913 (21 U.S.C. 151–158).

The decisions published herein are arranged alphabetically by statute and within the statute section by date of issue or date the decision became final after expiration of the appeal period. They may be cited by giving the volume and page, for illustration, 1 A.D. 472 (1942). It is unnecessary to cite the docket or decision number. Prior to 1942 the Secretary's decisions were identified by docket and decision numbers, for example, D–578; S. 1150. Such citation of a case in these volumes generally indicates that the decision is not published in Agriculture Decisions.

Current court decisions involving the regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture are published herein.

COURT DECISION

COUNTY LINE CHEESE COMPANY and MEADOW GOLD DAIRY v. JOHN R. BLOCK, SECRETARY, DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE and ASSOCIATED MILK PRODUCERS, INC. Civil Action No. 85 C 1811. (USDA AMA Docket No. M 49-1.) Decision entered June 11, 1986.

Sydney Berde, St. Paul, Minnesota, for defendant intervenor.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

Memorandum Opinion and Order entered by Ann Claire Williams, Judge.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

County Line Cheese Company and Meadow Gold Dairy, both divisions of Beatrice Foods Company, brought this action under § 8(c)(15)(B) of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, 7 U.S.C. § 608(c)(15)(B) (1980) (the "Act"), seeking review of a final adjudicatory decision by the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States (the "Secretary"). The Secretary, through his Judicial Officer, dismissed plaintiffs' petition for relief from an audit adjustment which costs plaintiffs $328,003.44. Associated Milk Producers, Inc. ("AMPI") has intervened in this action and asks the court to uphold the Secretary's decision. All parties have moved for summary judgment. For the reasons set forth below, the court affirms the Secretary's decision.

In order to understand the issues in this case, it is necessary to make a brief foray into the byzantine labyrinth of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act. As the Supreme Court pointed out in Zuber v. Allen, 396 U.S. 168 (1969), two peculiar characteristics of the milk industry account for a natural instability in the market:

> [The milk industry has a] basic two-price structure that permits a higher return for the same product, depending on its ultimate use, and the cyclical characteristic of production.
> Milk has essentially two end uses: as a fluid staple of daily consumer diet, and as an ingredient in manufactured dairy products such as butter and cheese. Milk used in the consumer market has traditionally commanded a premium > price, even though it is of no higher quality than milk used for manufacture. While cost differences account for part of the discrepancy in price, they do not explain the entire gap. At the same time the milk industry is characterized by periods of seasonal overproduction. The winter months are low in yield and conversely the summer months are fertile. In order to meet fluid demand which is relatively constant, sufficiently large herds must be maintained to supply winter needs. The result is oversupply in the more fruitful months.

Zuber v. Allen, 396 U.S. at 172–73.

The Court went on to show that this oversupply was easily exploited by milk distributors, or "handlers." Milk for fluid consumption is highly perishable; it is thus natural that nearby producers should supply the fluid needs of any given market. However, handlers can manipulate the market to their advantage by acquiring milk for fluid use from geographically distant farmers, even paying a higher price than those farmers could get from their ordinary buyers—cheese manufacturing plants. Once these handlers had saturated their local market with milk from distant producers, local farmers were forced to sell their milk for lower-priced manufacturing purposes. With this scenario combined with the seasonal glut periods natural to the industry, farmers had to increase production, and, the Court observed, "the disequilibrium snowballs." Id. at 173.

The chaos that resulted from these practices was greatly magnified by a further collapse in prices during the Depression. Id. at 174. Congress responded by enacting the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act. One of the goals of the Act is to allocate among all milk producers the benefits of higher-priced fluid use and the burdens of oversupply. The vehicle for achieving this is the regional milk marketing order which provides for minimum prices which each handler must pay producers for their milk. Since producers receive the same price regardless of the milk's ultimate use, competition for the fluid market is eliminated and farmers can maintain their herds so as to supply the region's dairy needs as a whole. Id. at 177–81.

The burden of supplying the fluid market now shifts to the handlers. All handlers pay a uniform minimum price; those who primarily supply fluid needs will therefore reap a windfall; those whose milk will go to manufacturing plants will be overcharged. The Act neutralizes this inequity by authorizing a "producer settlement fund" which is maintained by a Market Administrator. Handlers who distribute primarily fluid (or Class I) products must pay into the fund the difference between the uniform price they paid to producers and the premium Class I price they received on the retail market. Handlers who distribute milk primarily for manufacturing purposes such as cheese (Class II or III) are entitled to draw from the fund the difference between the uniform price they paid the producers and the lower Class II or III price they received. Id. at 174-79. Clearly, there are benefits to participating in this pool, and just as clearly, the Secretary, and through him the Market Administrator, must be able to define and monitor the qualifications that producers and handlers must meet in order to participate.

The Indiana Milk Order at issue in this case requires that in order to qualify as a pool supply plant a supply plant must deliver at least 50 percent of its milk to a pool distributing plant. 7 CFR § 1049.7 (1968). The assessments against the plaintiffs resulted from audit adjustments by the Market Administrator who determined that County Line, a supply plant, and Meadow Gold, a distributing plant, had not met the Indiana Order's requirements for pool status. The series of transactions at issue involved shipments by County Line to Meadow Gold. The milk was not needed at Meadow Gold, so it was sent on to a non-pool manufacturing plant owned by County Line. The Market Administrator disqualified these shipments from the pool since the milk, although it entered Meadow Gold's premises, was not "shipped to" Meadow Gold as the Market Administrator construed that term. For a milk shipment to be "shipped to" a plant, said the Market Administrator, it must be pumped into that plant. By disqualifying these shipments, County Line fell below the Indiana Order's 50 percent requirement and lost its pool status. Meadow Gold was forced to re-classify its shipments from County Line as non-pool milk. Plaintiff's Complaint at 5, 6.

Plaintiffs argue that this court should reverse the Secretary's decision because the Market Administrator's construction of 7 CFR § 1049.7(b) is arbitrary and capricious, with no rational relationship to the purposes of the Act. (See, Lewes Dairy, Inc. v. Freeman, 401 F.2d 308, 317 (3d Cir. 1968), cert. denied, 394 U.S. 929 (1969) for the standard of review which this court must apply). This contention has no merit. The Secretary clearly explained the policy behind the Indiana Order in 33 Fed. Reg. 18,282, 18,288-89 (1968) and 26 Fed. Reg. 67, 69-70 (1961) (both rulemaking decisions are relevant since the 1968 Indiana Order presently in force incorporates by reference the 1961 Decision):

> Pool plant status should not be determined solely on an occasional shipment of milk to the market. . . . Such a method for determining which plants shall be subject to regulation would not provide a workable basis for administering an order for the Indianapolis marketing area. . . .
> Essential to the operation of a marketable pool is the establishment of performance standards to apply uniformly to all plants. . . .
> Performance standards should be such that any plant which has as its major function the supplying of milk to the market would pool its sales and share in the marketwide equalization. On the other hand, plants only casually, or incidentally, associated with the market should not be subject to complete regulation. Neither should they be permitted or required to equalize their sales with all plants in the market. If a milk plant were to be permitted to share on a pro rata basis the Class I utilization of the entire market without being genuinely associated with the market, then the differentials paid by users of Class I milk could be dissipated without accomplishing their intended purpose. If a plant were to be qualified and fully regulated merely by making a token shipment of milk or cream into the market for sale as Class I milk, then any milk plant which found itself in a position where it was selling a smaller share of its milk in Class I than the average for all regulated handlers might make such shipment and receive equalization payments from the pool.

26 Fed. Reg. 67, 69–70 (1961).

This reasoning by the Secretary is clear and rationally related to the purposes of the Act. Plants do not have to associate with the regulated market. But if they do, they must really associate, which means making more than occasional shipments. The Market Administrator was fully justified in construing the Secretary's language that milk must be "shipped to" to mean what it obviously must mean: it must be pumped into the plant, not merely greeted at the door and sent somewhere else. To hold otherwise would destroy the integrity of the Indiana market; if supply plants could join the pool by having less than 50 percent of their shipments "shipped to" pool distributing plants, they could share in the benefits of the pool, withdrawing payments from the producer settlement fund, without sharing the burdens.

Plaintiffs make much of the "absurd" requirement by the Market Administrator that the transactions at issue could have complied with the Indiana Order had County Line pumped its milk into Meadow Gold, pumped it back out, and continued on its way to the County Line manufacturing plant. Such a "sham" transaction, argue plaintiffs somewhat disingenuously, is wasteful and destructive of milk quality. In the court's view, whatever absurdity exists is entirely of plaintiff's own making. As is clear throughout both the 1968 and 1961 Indiana Orders, the Secretary contemplated that milk would not be shipped to a distributing plant unless it was needed there. As such, a requirement that the shipment be pumped into the plant would be an effective way of assuring that such milk properly belonged in the regulatory scheme for that region. While the original rationale behind the Order may have assumed that milk does not get shipped somewhere unless needed there, the Order itself does not mention "need." The Market Administrator cannot be concerned with the motive behind any particular shipment of milk. The court agrees with defendant intervenor AMPI that a milk order cannot be administered on a transactional basis. AMPI's brief at 33. The Order was promulgated with certain goals in mind, but, as with any rulemaking, it is not always possible to anticipate every permutation of behavior which will be governed by the rule. If plaintiffs choose to arrange their affairs so as to bring out a latent absurdity in a rule, they are free to do so. This does not free them from the rule's requirements, of which they were well aware.

If plaintiff's construction of "shipped to" were allowed, County Line would never have to deliver milk to Meadow Gold, yet all of it's milk could be driven past Meadow Gold's gates and then County Line would be entitled to draw from the producer settlement fund. The Market Administrator was justified in disallowing such an assault on the purpose behind the plain meaning of the Act. While his construction does not close the gap between milk shipped and milk needed, it is consistent with the Secretary's goals. It is up to the Secretary, if he sees fit, to modify the Indiana Order so as to prevent the kind of sham transaction which apparently was not foreseen when the 1968 Order was established. It is certainly not appropriate, either on judicial review or in an agency adjudicatory proceeding, to effect a rule change. See Decision and Order of the Judicial Officer 58-63; see also, In re Clover Leaf Dairy Co., 15 Agric. Dec. 339, 353-354 (1956).

Plaintiffs are not required to become part of the regulatory scheme. If they do wish to qualify, however, it is up to them to arrange their affairs so as to comply with the clear guidelines of the Indiana Order. They will not be permitted to exploit a lacuna in the regulatory scheme which already works in their favor and—quite incredibly—demand that the gap be widened so that they can partake of the benefits of the market pool without associating themselves with the market.

The Decision and Order of the Secretary's Judicial Officer is therefore affirmed.

PROCEEDINGS ON PETITIONS

In re: VALLEY FARMS, INC. AMA Docket No. M 4-22. Decided April 15, 1986.

Handler—books and records, disclosure of information—confidentiality of records—pool plant—milk packaged and distributed not reported—denial of relief requested.

Sanford S. Marateck, Shamokin, PA, for petitioner.
Donald Tracy, for respondent.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a proceeding under Section 8c(15)(A) of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq., hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), instituted by petitioner, a partially regulated handler, subject to federal Milk Order No. 4, hereinafter referred to as "the Order" (7 CFR 1004). The amended petition filed herein on June 6, 1985, challenges the Market Administrator's authority to audit and examine all books and records pertaining to all sales and dispositions of milk by petitioner. The Market Administrator seeks to examine such records to verify petitioner's reports and determine petitioner's obligations under this order.

Respondent, Administrator Agricultural Marketing Service, filed an answer on July 8, 1985.

An oral hearing was held on October 30, 1985, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Petitioner was represented by Sanford Marateck, Esq., Shamokin, Pennsylvania. Respondent was represented by Donald A. Tracy, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. At the close of the hearing the time was fixed for the filing of briefs.

PERTINENT STATUTORY AUTHORITY

8d. Books and records; disclosure of information.

(1) All parties to any marketing agreement, and all handlers subject to an order, shall severally, from time to time, upon the request of the Secretary, furnish him with such information as he finds to be necessary to enable him to ascertain and determine the extent to which such agreement or order has been carried out or has effectuated the declared policy of this chapter and with such information as he finds to be necessary to determine whether or not there has been any abuse of the privilege of exemptions from the antitrust laws. Such information shall be furnished in accordance with forms of reports to be prescribed by the Secretary. For the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any report made to the Secretary pursuant to this subsection, or for the purpose of obtaining the information required in any such report, where it has been requested and has not been furnished, the Secretary is authorized to examine such books, papers, records, copies of income-tax reports, accounts, correspondence, contracts, documents, or memoranda, as he deems relevant and which are within the control (1) of any such party to such marketing agreement, or any such handler, from whom such report was requested or (2) of any person having, either directly or indirectly, actual or legal control of or over such party or such handler or (3) of any subsidiary of any such party, handler, or person.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 607 of this title, all information furnished to or acquired by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to this section shall be kept confidential by all officers and employees of the Department of Agriculture and only such information so furnished or acquired as the Secretary deems relevant shall be disclosed by them, and then only in a suit or administrative hearing brought at the direction, or upon the request, of the Secretary of Agriculture, or to which he or any officer of the United States is a party, and involving the marketing agreement or order with reference to which the information so to be disclosed was furnished or acquired. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit (A) the issuance of general statements based upon the reports of a number of parties to a marketing agreement or of handlers subject to an order, which statements do not identify the information furnished by any person, or (B) the publication by direction of the Secretary, of the name of any person violating any marketing agreement or any order, together with a statement of the particular provisions of the marketing agreement or order violated by such person. Any such officer or employee violating the provisions of this section shall upon conviction be subject to a fine of not more than $1,000 or to imprisonment for not more than one year, or to both, and shall be removed from office. 7 USCA 608d

Pertinent Order Provisions

Order No. 4

Milk In The Middle Atlantic Marketing Area

7 CFR 1004.1 et seq. (as of Jan. 1, 1985)

§ 1004.7 Pool plant.

(a) A plant from which during the month a volume not less than 40 percent in the months of September through February, and 30 percent in the months of March through August, of its receipts is disposed of as Class I milk (except filled milk) and a volume not less than 15 percent of such receipts is disposed of as route disposition (other than as filled milk) in the marketing area. . . .

§ 1004.8 Nonpool plant.

"Nonpool plant" means a plant other than a pool plant. The following categories of nonpool plants are further defined:

(a) . . .

(b) . . .

(c) "Partially regulated distributing plant" means a plant which is not a pool plant, from which fluid milk products in consumer-type packages or dispenser units are disposed of as route disposition in the marketing area during the month. . .

§ 1004.9 Handler.

* * * * * * *

(a) Any person in his capacity as the operator of:

(1) A pool plant;

(2) A partially regulated distributing plant;

* * * * * * *

§ 1004.30 Reports of receipts and utilization.

(a) On or before the eighth day after the end of each month each handler with respect to each of his pool plants shall report for the month to the Market Administrator in the detail and on forms prescribed by the Market Administrator as follows:

(1) The quantities of skim milk and butter fat contained in:

(i) Receipts of producer milk (including such handler's own production);

(ii) Receipts of fluid milk products from other pool plants and milk received from a cooperative association for which it is a handler pursuant to § 1004.9(c); and

(iii) Receipts of other source milk;

(2) Inventories of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning and end of the month; and

(3) The utilization of all skim milk and butterfat required to be reported pursuant to this paragraph, showing separately in-area route disposition, except filled milk, and filled milk route disposition in the area;

(b) Each handler who operates a partially regulated distributing plant shall report as required in paragraph (a) of this section, except that receipts of milk from dairy farmers shall be reported in lieu of producer milk; such report shall include a separate statement showing the quantity of reconstituted skim milk in fluid milk products disposed of on routes in the marketing area;

§ 1004.32 Other reports.

(a) Each pool handler shall report to the Market Administrator in detail and on forms prescribed by the Market Administrator as follows:

(1) On or before the 25th day after the end of the month for each pool plant, his producer payroll for such month which shall show for each producer.

(i) His name and address;

(ii) The total pounds of milk received from such producer;

(iii) The average butterfat content of such milk; and

(iv) The net amount of the handler's payment, together with the price paid and the amount and nature of any deduction;

(2) Such other information with respect to receipts and utilization of butterfat and skim milk as the Market Administrator shall prescribe.

(b) . . .

(c) Each handler operating a partially regulated distributing plant who does not elect to make payments pursuant to § 1004.76(b) shall report the same information as required in paragraph (a) of this section with respect to dairy farmers from whom he receives milk.

7 CFR Part 1000—General Provisions, of Federal Marketing Orders

§ 1000.5 Handler responsibility for records and facilities.

Each handler shall maintain and retain records of his operations, and make such records and his facilities available to the Market Administrator. If adequate records of a handler, or of any other persons, that are relevant to the obligation of such handler are not maintained and made available, any skim milk and butterfat required to be reported by such handler for which adequate records are not available shall not be considered accounted for or established as used in a class other than the highest priced class.

(a) Records to be maintained. (1) Each handler shall maintain records of his operations (including, but not limited to, records of purchases, sales, processing, packaging, and disposition) as are necessary to verify whether such handler has any obligation under the order, and if so, the amount of such obligation. . . .

(2) Each handler shall keep such other specific records as the Market Administrator deems necessary to verify or establish such handler's obligation under the order.

(b) Availability of records and facilities. Each handler shall make available all records pertaining to such handler's operations and all facilities the Market Administrator finds are necessary for such Market Administrator to verify the information required to be reported by the order and/or to ascertain such handler's reporting, monetary or other obligation under the order. . . .

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Petitioner, Valley Farms, Inc., is a handler of milk as defined in section 1004.9 of the Order.

2. Petitioner's principal place of business is located at 1860 East Third Street, Williamsport, Pennsylvania, where petitioner operates a milk processing plant.

3. The predecessor of the petitioner, Foodcraft, Inc., conducted a partially regulated plant in Sunbury, Pennsylvania, as early as 1974. In 1979, Petitioner came into being as a result of a merger with Foodcraft, Inc., and continues to process its milk as a partially regulated plant.

4. Petitioner markets fluid products in 23 counties of north central Pennsylvania, but only 3 counties, namely, Dauphin, Perry and Juniata, are regulated under the Order.

5. Auditors for the Market Administrator of Order No. 4 sought to examine all of the books and records of the petitioner. At that time petitioner claims it was a party to a rulemaking proceeding involving proposals to redefine Federal Orders No. 2 and No. 4, to regulate areas in which petitioner markets its milk. Petitioner objected to the request to audit for the reason that petitioner believed that information gathered from a dairy becomes public information after an audit and may be used at the rulemaking hearing to petitioner's detriment. It was petitioner's position that the extension of the Order into its area would increase the petitioner's blend price if the petitioner's entire operation were fully regulated under Order No. 4 and Order No. 2.

6. Petitioner refused to permit the Market Administrator to examine the records he requested until the United States District Court in Pennsylvania ordered petitioner to do so in June 1985. Petitioner had no objection to the examination of its records concerning its sales in the three counties presently regulated under Order No. 4.

7. In 1983 the Secretary of Agriculture conducted a formal rulemaking proceeding to consider amending Orders 4 and 2.

8. The Market Administrator, Order No. 4, took no position on any of the proposals at that proceeding. (Tr. 36)

9. The Secretary did not use or introduce in that proceeding any information traceable in any way to petitioner. (Tr. 36)

10. The general statistical information introduced by the Market Administrator at the rulemaking proceeding is obtained from handlers' reports. (Tr. 40, 41)

11. On the basis of a field survey audit, the Market Administrator discovered that milk packaged by petitioner and distributed in four stores within the marketing area, had not been reported by petitioner. (Tr. 36, 37)

CONCLUSIONS

All contentions of the parties have been considered in the light of the record evidence. The following conclusions are based upon the record evidence and applicable statutory and regulatory provisions enumerated herein.

1. The Act authorizes the Secretary, through his agent the Market Administrator, to examine any records of a handler, such as petitioner, which the Secretary needs to determine the petitioner's obligations under the Order. 7 U.S.C. 608d(1). The Secretary has promulgated regulations to carry out this authority. 7 CFR 1000.5, 1004.30.

2. The Act prohibits the Market Administrator from using specific, identifiable information obtained from a handler in an audit, in a proceeding to amend an Order. 7 U.S.C. 608d(2).

3. The confidentiality of petitioner's records is not violated by the conduct of an audit by the Market Administrator during the pendency of a proceeding to consider amending an order.

4. The relief requested by petitioner should be denied.

DISCUSSION

I

The handler's burden to establish, by way of reports and records, his utilization of milk has been repeatedly affirmed by the Court and Judicial Officer.

> "Thus the system imposes a primary obligation upon all handlers to make complete and accurate reports of their milk purchases and utilization, and a secondary obligation upon such handlers as are disclosed by those reports to be indebted to the Fund to pay the amounts found due. It is obvious that the successful operation of the system depends upon their prompt compliance with these requirements, (1) to make reports from which the administrator obtains the data upon which to base the uniform price and ascertain which handlers shall pay into the Fund and which receive payments therefrom, and (2) to make such payments as are called for by the administrator. . . ." United States v. Turner Dairy Co., 162 F.2d 425, 426 (CA 7, 1947), cert den. 332 U.S. 836 (1947).
> "The emphasized language of Sec. 927.44 of the Order would seem to place the burden of establishing that the skim milk has been "otherwise utilized or disposed of" on the handler. Only the records of the handler or his consignees will show this. Any endeavor to place this burden on the Market Administrator would be unrealistic, if not futile. . . .
> "Nor is there merit in the contention of the plaintiff that the Market Administrator's ruling places a burden of proof on the handler at a non-pool plant. The burden is categorically placed on the pool plant handler, though the records of the non-pool plant must be relied on to sustain the burden of proving that the skim milk did not ultimately enter the marketing area. That ways and means of evading the prohibition of such entry may be resorted to, does not invalidate the requirement. . . ." Newark Milk & Cream Co. v. Benson, (D. N.J. 1959) 19 A.D. 54, 57 aff'd. 287 F.2d 681, (CA 3. 1961)
> "The order requires the handler to make reports to the Market Administrator showing the milk handled and the classes in which it was used, under the terms of the order. All milk is placed in Class One by the Market Administrator unless proof be furnished by the handler of its use in Class Two. Any arbitrary action of the Market Administrator in rejecting proof of proper classification is reviewable. A similar provision in a milk order was approved in United States v. Ridgeland Creamery Co., D.C. 47 F.Supp. 145, loc. cit. 149. The provision as to burden of proof appears to this Court a reasonable and fair method of determining classification of milk. The handler is in possession of all facts and records upon which knowledge as to the use of milk and the grades in which it should be placed, must be based. Why shouldn't the burden be placed in such hands, so that upon the basis of facts showing the use of milk, the handler can furnish the evidence reasonably necessary to the Market Administrator? Under such circumstances, it certainly would be an unusual and awkward regulation to place the burden upon the Market Administrator. Such a provision in the marketing order is a part of the method prescribed by the Administrator for the classification of milk and we find nothing in its terms contrary to the Act." . . . Bailey Farm Dairy Co., et al v. Jones, 61 F. Supp. 209, 225, (E.D. Mo. 1945), aff'd 157 F.2d 87 (CA 8, 1946) cert den. 329 U.S. 788.

"Petitioners have another grievance in that they seek Class III–C for some cream that they contend did not come to the International plant but went directly from the 60th Street Station in the City of New York to Country Club and Costa. The auditors and the Market Administrator allowed as Class III–C the cream for which there were supporting tickets or documents showing the direct movement claimed. The auditor was diligent in searching for such documents. Oral testimony either to the Market Administrator or in this proceeding is not an adequate substitute for the keeping of records from which the classification claimed can be verified. Hogansburg Milk Company, Inc. v. Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, U. S. District Court, N.D. N.Y., March 16, 1946,* affirming In re Hogansburg Milk Company, Inc., 4 A.D. 285 (1945). . . ." In re Dellwood Dairy Co., Inc., et al, 6 A.D. 1107, 1120 (1947).

"Ogden claims first that its reports should have been accepted by the Market Administrator. Section 941.3(b) of the order requires the Market Administrator to "verify" handlers' reports by audit of handler's records. To "verify" means to establish the truth of, or to confirm. It seems obvious that in the absence of supporting records, and in view of the results of the sampling by the Market Administrator Ogden's reported butterfat utilization should not have been accepted . . ." In re Ogden Dairy Company 2 A.D. 494 (1943), aff'd. Ogden Dairy v. Wickard 157 F.2d 445.

II

All Records Of A Regulated Handler Are Subject To Audit

A handler, such as petitioner, must file reports every month detailing, inter alia, its distribution and utilization of milk. 7 CFR 1004.30 and 32. From these reports the Market Administrator makes a preliminary determination of the handler's obligations under the order. (Tr. 42) That determination is then adjusted where necessary based on a subsequent audit. (Tr. 43) In re Hygenic Dairy Company, et al., 9 A.D. 693, 700.

The Market Administrator must determine whether a handler operates a fully or partially regulated pool plant. As explained below, he must be able to see records of all of a handler's operations to do this. (Tr. 34)

One of the key elements of the Order is a producer-settlement or equalization fund ("fund"). (7 CFR § 1004.70) Handlers must account to this fund based on their disposition of milk. (7 CFR §§ 1004.71, 72) Because this fund is used to equalize the obligations of all handlers based on their usage of milk and to compensate producers equitably, any handler's inaccurate reporting impacts throughout the order.

A handler which operates a fully regulated plant must account to the fund for all of its Class I and Class II disposition within and outside the Order area, while a handler operating a partially regulated plant need equalize only its in-area Class I disposition. The Market Administrator determines a handler's status, under the terms of the Order, based on the percentage of its Class I disposition that is within the Order area. If 15 percent or more of a handler's Class I disposition is within the Order area, the handler is fully regulated (provided 30 or 40 percent or more of its volume is disposed of as Class I). (7 CFR § 1004.7).

To make such a percentage calculation, the Market Administrator must know the handler's total receipts and disposition, as well as the quantity of in-area and out-of-area disposition. In addition, all of a handler's other obligations under the Order are predicated on an accurate accounting of its sales and other dispositions.

The Market Administrator must be able to examine a variety of records in order to verify a handler's reports. (Tr. 35) Just as the Internal Revenue Service may need to look at bank records, account ledgers, and many other items to verify a tax return, there are records such as load sheets and accounts receivable that can be used to verify milk reports. The Judicial Officer, in the Hygenic Dairy case, supra at 700, held: "The extent of the auditing necessary to verify reports is largely a matter of discretion with the Market Administrator. . . ."

Petitioner urges (brief pp. 3–4) that since only 6% to 8% of its total sales and only 3 of 23 counties are covered by Order No. 4, all of the books and records, including the general ledger, should not be made subject to review by the auditors of the Federal Market Administrator. Petitioner contends further that this is especially true when it is a party to a proposal to extend the jurisdiction of either Federal Order No. 4 or No. 2 to all of its operations, "for the reason that such an audit would reveal information that could be used in testimony at hearings that would be adverse to the Petitioner and beneficial to the proponents of the extension of the Order." However, petitioner's argument has no merit, and should not deter the necessary administration of the Order.

Whether or not a handler is fully or partially regulated depends on the percentage of its total milk which is distributed within the Order area. The Market Administrator determines this by dividing a handler's total distribution into its in-area distribution. 7 CFR 1004.7(a), 1004.8(c), and 1004.9(a)(2). This cannot be done unless the Market Administrator knows and can verify petitioner's total distribution. Whether a handler is fully or partially regulated depends on all of the information obtained in the audit. The Order provides standards which establish what the Market Administrator must know, e.g., petitioner's total receipts and distribution, while the Act sets out the sort of documentation he may examine.

Petitioner's reliance on the Lehigh Valley and Willow Farmers cases is unavailing. While Lehigh Valley (370 U.S. 76) is a case which dealt with trade barriers and milk pricing; this case involves the Secretary's authority to conduct an audit of a regulated handler's books and records. The Willow case (90 F. Supp. 195) involved the question of the adequacy of the records maintained by the handler, and not a refusal to make records available.

In addition, the audit is necessary to verify a handler's obligation to the pool. (Tr. 34, 42) Petitioner admits that at one point it failed to report all of its in-area sales. (Tr. 30) The Market Administrator's testimony is that the only way to uncover such errors in petitioner's reports is to conduct a complete audit. (Tr. 35, 37) Because a business has many potentially corroborative or conflicting records the Secretary must be able to see all the records, as evidenced by the following exchange:

> Q. How can you verify the information or the reports that you received if you cannot see records relating to all of the sales and receipts of a given handler? (Emphasis added.)
> Mr. SHINE: We can't. (Tr. 35)

III

Confidentiality Of The Petitioner's Records

The Secretary conducted a formal rulemaking proceeding pursuant to the Act (7 U.S.C. § 608c(3)(4)) and the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. §§ 553, 556). Such proceeding is governed by the Rules of Practice set out in 7 CFR § 900.1-18. There is no connection between the Market Administrator's administration and enforcement of the Order's provisions via an audit and a rulemaking proceeding. The Act prohibits all officers and employees of the Department from releasing any information relating to an individaul handler furnished under section 8d(1) in, inter alia, a rulemaking proceeding. Violation of this prohibition is a criminal offense with penalties of up to $1,000 or one year in prison, or both. 7 U.S.C. § 608d(2). Cf: United States v. Levine 129 F.2d 745 (CA 2, 1942).

The Market Administrator provides only general statistical evidence at a rulemaking proceeding. (Tr. 36) These statistics are not "traceable or identifiable in any way by individual handler." (Tr. 36) Moreover, the statistics are compiled from the handler's monthly reports. (Tr. 41)

Because the statistical information submitted at a rulemaking proceeding is not traceable to an individual handler, the pendency of such a proceeding cannot violate the confidentiality of petitioner's records.

ORDER

The relief requested by petitioner is denied.

This decision and order shall be final and effective 35 days after service upon petitioner unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days. (7 CFR 900.64(c), 900.65)

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: MORGAN OUTLAW, AQ Docket No. 241. Decided May 2, 1986.

Interstate movement infectious animal—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Kevin Thiemann, for complainant.
Michael W. Lonsberry, Monticello, AR, for respondent

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Morgan Outlaw, respondent, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 75.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) any further procedure;

(b) any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) all rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Morgan Outlaw, respondent, is an individual whose address is Rt. 1 Box 237, Hamburg, Arkansas 71646.

2. On or about August 4, 1984, the respondent moved one (1) equine infectious anemia reactor horse from Hamburg, Arkansas, to Bastrop, Louisiana.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of the proceeding, such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Kevin B. Thiemann, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, 12th and Independence Avenue, S. W., Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon the respondent.

DEFAULT DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. This complaint alleged that the respondents violated section 78.8 of the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.8). Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondents.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136), respondents were informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed within twenty days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer would constitute a waiver of hearing, as provided in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

Neither respondent filed an answer during the twenty-day period allowed. Respondents' failure to file an answer within the time provided constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Respondents' failure to file answers also constitutes a waiver of hearing under section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Since respondents are deemed to have admitted the material allegations of fact in the complaint, they are adopted and set forth as the Findings of Fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Lance Tarver, respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 1, Box 666, Bossier City, Louisiana 71112.

2. Tommy Coleman, respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 2, Box 180, Marshall, Texas 75671.

3. On or about May 10, 1984, respondents moved three brucellosis-exposed cattle from Bossier City, Louisiana, to Corsicana, Texas, in violation of 9 CFR § 78.8(a)(2), because the cattle were not accompanied by a VS Form 1-27 or an "S" brand permit, as required.

4. On or about June 20, 1984, respondents moved fifteen brucellosis-exposed cattle from Bossier City, Louisiana, to Corsicana, Texas, in violation of 9 CFR § 78.8(a)(2), because the cattle were not accompanied by a VS Form 1-27 or an "S" brand permit, as required.

5. On or about January 27, 1984, respondents moved at least one brucellosis-exposed cow from Bossier City, Louisiana, to Corsicana, Texas, in violation of 9 CFR § 78.8(a)(2), because the cow was not accompanied by a VS Form 1-27 or an "S" brand permit, as required.

6. On or about May 31, 1984, respondent Tommy Coleman moved four brucellosis-exposed cattle from Bossier City, Louisiana, to Corsicana, Texas, in violation of 9 CFR § 78.8(a)(2), because the cattle were not accompanied by a VS Form 1-27 or an "S" brand permit, as required.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondents have failed to file answers to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondents in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By their silence respondents have admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and have waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, respondents have violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following order is therefore issued.

ORDER

1. Respondent Lance Tarver is hereby assessed a civil penalty of one thousand five hundred dollars ($1500), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

2. Respondent Tommy Coleman is hereby assessed a civil penalty of two thousand dollars ($2000), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondents, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

[Default Decision and Order became final on May 6, 1986, for respondent Lance Tarver, and became final on May 19, 1986, for respondent Tommy Coleman.]

In re: JIM DOSS, RONALD O. EHRLICH and DR. PHILLIP SMITH, D.V.M., AQ Docket No. 136. Decided May 9, 1986.

Interstate movement of animals—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Fronda Woods, for complainant.
Stow Witever, Jr., Greeley, CO, for respondent.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION FOR RONALD O. EHRLICH

On December 14, 1984, this proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111, 120 and 122) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. The complaint, alleged, inter alia, that Ronald O. Ehrlich, respondent, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that the proceeding with respect to respondent Ronald O. Ehrlich should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent Ronald O. Ehrlich specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) any further procedure;

(b) any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) all rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Ronald O. Ehrlich, respondent, is an individual whose address is P.O. Box 60, Milliken, Colorado 80543.

2. On or about June 7, 1984, respondent caused to be moved at least one cow from Abilene, Texas to Milliken, Colorado.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent has admitted the jurisdictional facts and has agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of the proceeding. Therefore, such order will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one hundred dollars ($100) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon respondent.

In re: BONNIE LAMBETH, AQ Docket No. 231. Decided May 14, 1986.

Interstate movement of animals—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Jaru Ruley, for complainant.
Damon Young, Texarkana, AR, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that respondent, Bonnie Lambeth, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 75.4 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent, Bonnie Lambeth, specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) any further procedure;

(b) any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) all rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent, Bonnie Lambeth, also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Bonnie Lambeth, respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 2, Box 436, DeQueen, Arkansas 71832.

2. On or about February 15, 1985, the respondent moved interstate an EIA reactor horse from DeQueen, Arkansas, to Idabel, Oklahoma.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of seven hundred fifty dollars ($750.00). The respondent shall make payment by sending a certified check or money order payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250–1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon the respondent.

In re: TEXAS LIVESTOCK MARKETING ASSOCIATION, INC., DUDE HARRISON and A. J. LINDSEY, AQ Docket No. 141. Decided May 20, 1986.

Interstate movement of cattle—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Clement McGovern, for complainant.
Linda Goehman Smith, Fort Smith, TX, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. Section 111 and Section 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Texas Livestock Marketing Association, Inc., A. J. Lindsey and Dude Harrison violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR Section 71.1 et. seq.). The respondents and the complainant have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purpose of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondents admit specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations in the complaint, admit to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waive:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondents also waive any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by them in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent Texas Livestock Marketing Association, Inc., is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Texas and having its principal place at Union Stock Yards, P. O. Box 1227, San Antonio, Texas 78924.

2. Respondents Dude Harrison and A. J. Lindsey are individuals whose address is Union Stock Yards, P. O. Box 1227, San Antonio, Texas 78294.

3. On or about November 7, 1983, respondents moved cattle interstate from San Antonio, Texas, to Plant City, Florida.

4. On or about March 13, 1984, respondents moved cattle interstate from San Antonio, Texas, to Plant City, Florida.

5. On or about May 14, 1984, respondents moved cattle interstate from San Antonio, Texas, to Plant City, Florida.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondents are assessed a civil penalty of six thousand dollars ($6,000.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Clement J. McGovern, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this Decision and Order.

This Decision and Order shall become effective on the day of the service upon the respondents.

Kris Ikejiri, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Johnny Dobson violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR Part 78). Respondent Johnny Dobson and the complainant have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent Johnny Dobson admits specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent Johnny Dobson also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Johnny Dobson, respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 6, Box 503, Sulphur Springs, Texas 75482.

2. On or about January 3, 1985, the respondent moved interstate from Paris, Texas, to Omaha, Nebraska, approximately two cattle.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent Johnny Dobson having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Johnny Dobson is assessed a civil penalty of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this Decision and Order.

This Order shall become effective upon service of the respondent.

Sherrie Kennedy, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended, (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111, 120, and 122) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondents violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR §§ 71.18 and 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, Respondent admits specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, admits the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the Respondents in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Jimmy Hughes, herein referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose address is 206 Robin Way, Mt. Vernon, Texas 75457.

2. On or about May 16, 1985, the respondent moved interstate at least one (1) cow from Giles and Stratton Auction, Inc. in Bossier City, Louisiana, to Paris Livestock Commission Company in Paris, Texas.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Decision and Order will be issued.

ORDER

1. The Respondent, Jimmy Hughes, is assessed a civil penalty of five hundred doliars ($500.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Sherrie Kopka Kennedy, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Bldg., United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

2. This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the Respondent.

Interstate movement of cattle, no documents—Civil Penalty.

Jaru Ruley, for complainant.
Joseph Nelkin, Baltimore, MD, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of civil penalties for violations of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle to prevent the spread of brucellosis (9 CFR §§ 71.18 and 78.1 et seq.). An initial Decision and Order was issued on March 17, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge Victor W. Palmer (ALJ) assessing civil penalties totalling $2,500.

On April 21, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[1] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on June 9, 1986.

Oral argument before the Judicial Officer, which is discretionary (7 CFR § 1.145(d)), was requested by respondent, but is denied inasmuch as the issues are not novel or difficult, the case has been thoroughly briefed, and oral argument would seem to serve no useful purpose.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle because of brucellosis (9 CFR §§ 71.18 and 78.1 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 9 CFR §§ 70.1 et seq. and 7 CFR §§ 1.130 et seq.

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

This proceeding was initiated by a complaint filed on December 23, 1985, by the Acting Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that on two separate occasions the respondent transported cattle interstate from Hagerstown and Smithburg, Maryland, to Codorus, Pennsylvania, in violation of sections 71.18 and 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 71.18 and 78.9(a)). On or about April 10, 1984, the respondent moved at least eleven cattle interstate without a certificate or an owner's or shipper's statement, or other acceptable document, containing prescribed information. Then on or about March 20, 1985, the respondent moved nine cattle interstate without proper identification by either Department-approved backtags or Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service-approved eartags and without being accompanied by a certificate or an owner's or shipper's statement, or other acceptable document, containing prescribed information. In his answer, the respondent failed to deny or otherwise respond to any of the material allegations contained in the complaint, thereby, for the purposes of this proceeding, being deemed to have admitted the allegations and waived a hearing. (See 7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding. (See 7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Gutman Brothers, Ltd., is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Maryland and having its principal office address at 5905 Simmonds Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland 21215.

2. On or about April 10, 1984, the respondent moved at least eleven cattle, over two years of age, interstate from Hagerstown, Maryland, to Codorus, Pennsylvania, in violation of section 71.18 of the regulations (9 CFR § 71.18) in that the cattle were not accompanied interstate by an owner's or shipper's statement, or other acceptable document, containing prescribed information.

3. On or about April 10, 1984, the respondent moved at least eleven cattle, over two years of age, interstate from Hagerstown, Maryland, to Codorus, Pennsylvania, in violation of section 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(a)) in that the cattle were not accompanied interstate by a certificate, as required.

4. On or about March 20, 1985, the respondent moved nine cattle, over two years of age, interstate from Hagerstown and Smithburg, Maryland, to Codorus, Pennsylvania, in violation of section 71.18 of the regulations (9 CFR § 71.18) in that the cattle were not accompanied interstate by an owner's or shipper's statement, or other acceptable document, containing prescribed information.

5. On or about March 20, 1985, the respondent moved nine cattle, over two years of age, interstate from Hagerstown and Smithburg, Maryland, to Codorus, Pennsylvania, in violation of section 71.18 of the regulations (9 CFR § 71.18) in that the cattle were not properly identified by either Department-approved backtags or Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service-approved eartags, as required.

6. On or about March 20, 1985, the respondent moved nine cattle, over two years of age, interstate from Hagerstown and Smithburg, Maryland, to Codorus, Pennsylvania, in violation of section 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(a)) in that the cattle were not accompanied interstate by a certificate, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated sections 71.18 and 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 71.18 and 78.9(a)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139):

> (a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .
> (b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or
> (2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or

(3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

The complaint filed in this case advised respondent that "Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation" (Complaint at 3). In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent enclosed a copy of the rules of practice and expressly advised respondent that failure to "plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation." The letter states:

In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which > to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.

> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

Notwithstanding these explicit directions and warnings, respondent filed an answer which states in its entirety: "In reply to your letter of Dec.20.85 we kindly request an oral hearing in the above matter." Accordingly, the ALJ's entry of a default Decision and Order was clearly warranted. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[2] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[3] The rationale for the Department's position in this respect is stated in In re Daul, 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (Mar. 6, 1986), as follows:

[2] In re Veg-Pro Distributors, 42 Agric. Dec. 273 (1983) (remand order), final decision, 42 Agric. Dec. 1173 (1983) (default decision set aside because service of the complaint by registered and regular mail was returned as undeliverable, and respondent's license under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act had lapsed before service was attempted); In re J. Fleishman & Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 789 (1978) (remand order), final decision, 37 Agric. Dec. 1175 (1978); In re Christ, L.A.W.A. Dec. 764 (1983); In re Rubel, 42 Agric. Dec. 800 (1983) (default order not set aside where respondent acted without an attorney and did not understand the consequences and scope of a suspension order); In re Pastures, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 395, 396–97 (1980) (default order not set aside where respondents misunderstood the nature of the order that would be issued); In re Seal, 39 Agric. Dec. 370, 371 (1980); In re Thomaston Beef & Veal, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 171, 172 (1980) (default order not set aside because of respondents' contentions that they misunderstood the Department's procedural requirements, when there is no basis for the misunderstanding).

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 421 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer (who does not have a law clerk) disposed of 45 cases (including one on remand from the Seventh Circuit that required a 529-page decision to justify an 8-month suspension order and a $10,000 civil penalty for 14 separate livestock violations based on circumstantial evidence). Last month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk. The Department does not have the time or resources to hold a hearing at this late date for this respondent, who did not file a timely answer and did not choose to "set forth any explanation at this time" when his (untimely) answer was filed.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' " [5] If respondent were permitted to raise the defenses which he explained for the first time on appeal to the Judicial Officer, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to raise these defenses at this time.

[5] Cella v. United States, 208 F.2d 783, 789 (7th Cir. 1953), cert. denied, 347 U.S. 1016 (1954), quoting from FCC v. Pottsville Broadcasting Co., 309 U.S. 134, 143 (1940); accord Swift & Co. v. United States, 308 F.2d 849, 851-52 (7th Cir. 1962).

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

ORDER

Respondent, Gutman Brothers, Ltd., is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $2,500 ($500 per violation). This penalty shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Bldg., United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250–1400, within 30 days from the service of this order.

In re: GORDON GIBSON, AQ Docket No. 250. Decided June 17, 1986.

Interstate movement of cattle—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Kris Ikejiri, for complainant.
Lonnie Turner, Ozark, AR, for respondent.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Gordon Gibson violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 71.1 et seq. and § 78.1 et seq.). Gordon Gibson and the complainant agree that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and agree to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, Gordon Gibson admits specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Gordon Gibson also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by him in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Gordon Gibson, respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 1, Box 301, Hartman, Arkansas 72842.

2. On or about October 29, 1984, the respondent moved interstate from Coal Hill, Arkansas, to Moffett, Oklahoma, approximately five cattle.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent Gordon Gibson having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Gordon Gibson is assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00) which shall be payable to, "The Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order and which shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, on or before June 30, 1986.

This Decision and Order shall become effective upon service of the respondent.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

DEFAULT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111, 120, and 122) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint was filed with the Hearing Clerk on June 25, 1985. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated sections 78.9(d)(3) and 75.4(c) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 78.9(d)(3) and 75.4(c)).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent on July 1, 1985. On July 26, 1985, respondent was sent, by regular mail, a notice that his answer had not been received by the Hearing Clerk in the allotted time.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations in the complaint and request an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since respondent was served with the complaint in question. Respondent has not filed an answer to date. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Billy E. Rowan, respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is Route 1, Box 357, New Albany, Mississippi 38652.

2. On or about April 2, 1984, the respondent moved interstate at least one (1) bull from Miller Livestock Company located in DeQuincy, Louisiana, within a Class C state, to Grenada Livestock Exchange located in Grenada, Mississippi, which moved other than in accordance with the applicable regulations because the bull was not accompanied by a certificate or other document, as required by section 78.9(d)(3) of the regulations. (9 CFR § 78.9(d)(3))

3. On or about June 9, 1984, the respondent shipped two (2) equine infectious anemia reactor horses, named Domino and Casey, from the Lipscomb Brothers Horse Sale located in Como, Mississippi, to the White Horse Sale located in Moulton, Alabama, in violation of section 75.4(c) of the regulations (9 CFR § 75.4(c)) because the horses moved interstate other than to an approved slaughtering establishment for immediate slaughter or to a designated diagnostic or research facility, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of facts in the findings of fact set forth above, respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ORDER

Respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty of one thousand dollars [$1,000] ($500 per count), which shall be paid within thirty (30) days from the date this Order becomes effective. This civil penalty shall be made payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Sherrie Kopka Kennedy, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400.

This Order shall have the same force and effect as if issued after full hearing and shall be final and effective thirty-five (35) days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal within 30 days to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

In re: WILLIAM C. FILSINGER, DVM, VA Docket No. 37. Decided May 12, 1986.

Violation of Accreditation Standards—Suspension.

Sherrie Kennedy, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

DEFAULT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the regulations governing the Accreditation of Veterinarians and Suspension or Revocation of such Accreditation (9 CFR § 160.1 et seq.), by a Complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The Complaint was filed with the Hearing Clerk on February 6, 1986. The Complaint alleged that Respondent violated the Standards for Accredited Veterinarians (Standards) (9 CFR § 161.2).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent on February 21, 1986.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, Respondent was informed in the Complaint and the letter of service that an Answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the Complaint, and that failure to file an answer either denying or otherwise responding to the allegations in the Complaint and requesting an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. On March 20, 1986, Respondent was sent, by regular mail, a notice that his Answer had not been received by the Hearing Clerk in the allotted time. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since Respondent was served with the Complaint in question. Respondent has not filed an answer to date. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the Complaint, which are admitted by Respondent's failure to file an Answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Dr. William C. Filsinger, respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is Route 5, Box 335A, Cumberland, Maryland 21502.

2. Respondent is now, and at all times material herein was, a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine and an Accredited Veterinarian in the State of Maryland under the provisions of the regulations of Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 160–162.

3. On or about April 14, 1982, April 26, 1983, and May 8, 1984, respondent brucellosis and tuberculosis tested cattle for Deremer Brothers Dairy located in Keyser, West Virginia in violation of paragraph (d) of the Standards (9 CFR § 161.2(d)) because the testing was not done in accordance with instructions issued to the respondent by the Veterinarian in Charge or the State Animal Health Official, or both, which instructions permit such testing only in States in which a veterinarian is accredited.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts in the findings of fact set forth above, Respondent has violated the Standards for Accredited Veterinarians. Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's veterinarian accreditation is hereby suspended for a period of three (3) months, provided that, if the Respondent performs any actions during such suspension for which veterinary accreditation is required, then Respondent's veterinary accreditation shall be revoked. Before such action is taken, Respondent will be afforded an opportunity for a hearing concerning the matter.

This Order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon Respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

Fed or permitted feeding of untreated garbage to swine—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Kris Ikejiri, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Swine Health Protection Act, as amended (Act) (7 U.S.C. § 3801 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Longino Halley, Sr. violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 166.1 et seq.). Longino Halley, Sr. and the complainant agree that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth and agree to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, Longino Halley, Sr. admits specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Longino Halley, Sr. also waives any action against the United StatesDepartment of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by him in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Longino Halley, Sr., respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is 317 Chicago Boulevard, Lake Village, Arkansas 71653.

2. From on or about January 23, 1985, to May 1, 1986, the respondent operated a facility for the treatmet of garbage to be fed to swine.

3. From on or about January 23, 1985, to May 1, 1986, the respondent fed or permitted the feeding of garbage to swine at his facility in Lake Village, Arkansas.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent Longino Halley, Sr. having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent Longino Halley, Sr. is assessed a civil penalty of two thousand dollars ($2,000.00). However, the civil penalty shall be held in abeyance so long as the,

1. respondent does not operate a facility for the treatment of garbage knowing it is to be fed to swine unless respondent holds a valid permit issued pursuant to the Act; and

2. respondent does not feed or permit the feeding of garbage to swine except in accordance with the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 166.1 et seq.).

And Provided Further, that if it is determined after an opportunity for hearing, as provided in the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.131 et seq.) that any term or provision of the Order has not been, or is not being, complied with, the civil penalty held in abeyance shall be withdrawn and the $2,000.00 shall be due immediately.

This Consent Decision and Order shall become effective on the day of service upon the respondent.

DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: MARLIN U. ZARTMAN, d/b/a GILBERTSVILLE SALES STABLES, AWA Docket No. 292. Decided March 21, 1986.

Failure to maintain adequate program of disease control and veterinary care, evidenced by acceptance of sick animals for sale—Civil Penalty—Cease and desist from accepting sick animals.

Robert Ertman, for complainant.
Dennis L. O'Connell, Gilbertsville, PA, for respondent.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

The complainant alleges that respondent on two occasions, March 17 and 31, 1984, ". . . failed to maintain an adequate program of disease control and veterinary care, as evidenced by the acceptance of sick animals . . . for sale." Complainant's paragraphs 4 and 5.

On March 17, 1984 respondent had six cats found by complainant's inspectors to be exhibiting clear symptoms of mild contagious illness (something akin to a common cold in a human being, with symptoms of a running nose and eyes).

Then, on March 31, 1984 complainant's inspectors found two rabbits, a cat, a guinea pig, and a dog exhibiting symptoms of minor illness, possible injury, and/or disease. The evidence does not establish any serious condition, disease or injury.[1]

These animals constitute a very tiny fraction of the 280 animals at the auction on March 17, and 398 animals on March 31, 1984.

Further, the symptoms of the illness or injury were sufficiently clear to give fair warning to respondent's employees that the animals were not healthy at time they were accepted earlier that day.

Complainant contends that the acceptance of these animals for sale at the auction constitute violation of a duty to maintain an adequate program of disease control and veterinary care at the auction. (9 CFR 3.10(a), 3.34(a), and 3.59(a). These provisions are identical, but apply to dogs and cats (Subpart A), guinea pigs and hamsters (Subpart B), and rabbits (Subpart C), of Part 3 (Standards)). (9 CFR 3.1)

It is concluded that if respondent had maintained an adequate program for disease control and prevention, his employees would not have accepted these animals.

[1] For example, they range from several sick cats (with pnemonities, a running nose and eyes like a common cold in people), a sick dog, a couple sick rabbits and a guinea pig with sores on its back.

The regulations are not fully satisfied by having a veterinarian inspect the animals shortly before sale. The regulations do not limit respondent's duty to avoid sale of sick, diseased, or injured animals, but require respondent to maintain a program to control and prevent disease from existing or spreading.

> "Programs of disease control and prevention, euthanasia, and adequate veterinary care shall be established and maintained under the supervision and assistance of a doctor of veterinary medicine." 9 CFR 3.10(a), 3.34(a) and 3.59(a).

Thus, the violations as charged in the complaint are established here.

Prior to the March 17 and 31, 1984 inspections, this respondent had been charged, inter alia, with similar minor violations. In re Marlin D. Zartman d/b/a, Gilbertsville Sales Stables, 44 Agric. Dec ___ (1985). (See slip opinion attached to respondent's reply brief, of the Decision and Order of the USDA Judicial Officer decision, AWA Docket No. 259, 2/27/85. ("Zartman I"). See also Order Denying Petition for Reconsideration, In re Zartman et al 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (1985) USDA JO decision, AWA Docket No. 259 filed 4/15/85. A copy of the slip opinion also is attached to Respondent's Reply Brief).

Trial of the issues in Zartman I case took place just two months before the March 17 and 31, 1984 inspections made here.

Respondent's counsel contends that the March 17-31 inspections were "retaliatory" in nature, prompted by the apparently successful defense that respondent had raised in Zartman I, supra. In fact, this impression proved to be accurate.

Respondent now claims a variety of investigational irregularities or illegalities by complainant's investigators, in particular reference to the March 31, 1984 investigation. These are irrelevant, immaterial and not of much substance, factually or legally, insofar as the merits are concerned—i.e., whether respondent violated the pertinent law and regulations.

Respondent presents a plausible argument in support of his "retaliatory" theory, but it cannot be used to offset a violation, if one exists. What weight or bearing it may have on the departmental sanction policy is not here argued or briefed.

Assuredly, a program of disease control and prevention need not be "perfect" in the sense that it always prevents a contagiously sick animal from being accepted at, for example, a busy weekly auction sale. Zartman I, supra, slip opinion page 13.

But this is the second such occurrence. Further, these violations happened when respondent and his employees should have been sensitive to the problem, just 60 days after a two day trial of that issue, inter alia.

Therefore, while the incidents of March 17 and 31, 1984 are not flagrant, they are repeated violations.[2]

In additional, respondent again raises here certain legal issues which were raised in Zartman I but not resolved at the time of this trial.

The USDA Judicial Officer disposed of those issues in Zartman I in a manner that is binding here.

> "At the outset, respondent raises a serious question as to whether the Secretary is authorized to promulgate standards applicable to the operator of an auction sale as to the care, treatment, housing, feeding, watering, and sanitation of animals."

Section 12 of the Act provides (7 U.S.C. § 2142):

> The Secretary is authorized to promulgate humane standards and recordkeeping requirements governing the purchase, handling, or sale of animals, in commerce, by dealers, research facilities, and exhibitors at auction sales and by the operators of such auction sales. The Secretary is also authorized to require the licensing of operators of auction sales where any dogs or cats are sold, in commerce, under such conditions as he may prescribe, and upon payment of such fee as prescribed by the Secretary under section 2153 of this title.

If § 12 of the Act is read by itself, no serious question is presented as the Secretary's authority. That is, the authority given to the Secretary to promulgate humane standards governing the "handling" of animals by operators of auction sales would clearly authorize the standards at the issue here.

[2] The complainant might on occasion issue only a warning to licensee, or, in appropriate circumstances, contingent upon the record of that licensee, issue and formal complaint, as was done here.

In addition, the Secretary is authorized by § 12 of the Act to license the operators of auction sales where dogs or cats are sick "under such conditions as he may prescribe." Dogs and cats are sold at respondent's auction, and the Secretary has prescribed that auction operators must comply with the standards for other animals subject to the Act, as well as dogs and cats (9 CFR § 2.100(a)). That is, one of the conditions the Secretary has prescribed is (9 CFR § 2.100(a)).

> (a) Each dealer, exhibitor, operator of auction sales, and research facility shall comply in all respects with the standards set forth in Part 3 of this subchapter setting forth the standards for the humane handling, care, treatment, and transportation of animals . . .

The "standards set forth in Part 3 of this subchapter" are the standards that are involved in this case (9 CFR § 3.1 et seq.). Hence, pursuant to the authority in § 12 of the Act, the Secretary has prescribed broad and exacting standards, applicable to all animals subject to the Act, that must be complied with by auction operators.

The legislative history of the Animal Welfare Act of 1970, which added the provisions as to auction operators, states as to § 12 (H.R. Rep. No. 91-1651, 91st Cong., 2d Sess. 11 (1970))

> Section 13.—This section (i.e., § 12 of the Act) would also authorize the Secretary to license the operators of auction sales, where any dogs or cats are sold and such sales are affecting commerce. In addition, the section would extend the recordkeeping and standards of humane handling under the Act to the purchase, handling, and sale of animals, as defined in the bill, rather than only dogs or cats, at auction sales by dealers, research facilities, exhibitors and by the operators of the auction sales.

Hence it would appear from the literal language of § 12 and its legislative history that § 12 gives the Secretary broad authority to impose on auction operators standards of humane handling of all animals subject to the Act.

The ambiguity in this case arises when § 12 of the Act, quoted above, is read in conjunction with § 13 of the Act, which does not expressly apply to auction operators.[2] Section 13 provides (7 U.S.C. § 2143(a)):

> § 2143. Humane standards for animals transported in commerce
> (a) Authority of Secretary to promulgate standards
> The Secretary shall promulgate standards to govern the humane handling, care, treatment, and transportation of animals by dealers, research facilities, and exhibitors. Such standards shall include minimum requirements with respect to handling, housing, feeding, water sanitation, ventilation, shelter from extremes of weather and temperatures, adequate veterinary care, temperatures, adequate veterinary care, including the appropriate use of anesthetic, analgesic or tranquilizing drugs, when such use would be proper in the opinion of the attending veterinarian of such research facilites, and separation by species when the Secretary finds such separation necessary for the humane handling, care, or treatment of animals. The Secretary shall also promulgate standards to govern the transportation in commerce, and the handling, care, treatment in connection therewith, by intermediate handlers, air carriers, or other carriers, of animals consigned by any dealers, research facility, exhibitor, operator of an auction sale, or other person, or any department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States or of any State or local government, for transportation in commerce. The Secretary shall have authority to promulgate such rules and regulations as he determines necessary to assure humane treatment of animals in the course of their transportation in commerce including requirement such as those with respect to containers, feed, water, rest, venti-

[2] "As noted by complainant, the Department has consistently construed the term "dealer" to include "auction operators." However, to say the least, some ambiguity arises from the fact that § 12 of the Act applies, inter alia, to "dealers" and "operators of such auction sales," whereas § 13 applies expressly to "dealers," but not the operators of auction sales."

lation, temperature, and handling. (Emphasis added.)

In § 13 of the Act, quoted immediately above, it would appear that the word "handling" is used in a manner that does not include "care," "treatment," "housing," "feeding," "watering," "sanitation," "ventilation," "veterinary care," and "shelter from extremes of weather and temperature." To construe the word "handling" in § 13 of the Act as broad enough to include all of such other terms would make the additional terms in § 13 surplusage. "No rule of statutory construction has been more definitely stated or more often repeated than the cardinal rule tht 'significance and effect shall, if possible, be accorded to every word. As early as in Bacon's Abridgment, sect. 2, it was said that "a statute ought, upon the whole, to be so construed that, if it can be prevented, no clause, sentence, or word shall be superfluous, void, or insignificant." ' " [sic] Ex Parte Public Nat'l Bank of NY, 8 U.S. 101, 104 (1928).

Nonetheless, this is remedial legislation "to insure that animals . . . are provided humane care and treatment" (7 U.S.C. § 2131(1)), and it has been the settled and contemporaneous construction of the Act by the administrative officials charged with the responsibility for achieving the congressional purpose that the Secretary has authority to impose on auction operators the standards involved in this proceeding. Although the issue is not free from doubt, I believe that the Secretary acted within his statutory authority." Zartman I, supra pages 3–7 of slip opinion.

The evidence sustains complainant's allegations that respondent on two occasions in March 1984 failed to maintain an adequate program of disease control and prevention as evidenced by the acceptance of contagiously sick animals in violation of regulations.

Nothing here shows a $600.00 civil penalty ($300 each for the March 17 and March 31, 1984 violations) as inappropriate or unwarranted, when consideration is given to the size of the business, the gravity of the violations, the good faith and history of prior violations, by this respondent.

Reliable, substantial and persuasive evidence establish is that respondent violated the regulations and statute as charged in the complaint.

ORDER

Respondent is assessed a civil penalty of $600.00 dollars ($300 for the March 17 and $300 for the March 31, 1984 violations).

Respondent shall pay this civil penalty by certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States, and mailed to the Assistant General Counsel, Marketing Division, Office of the General Counsel (Attention Robert A. Ertman) United States Department of Agriculture, Washington D.C. 20250.

This civil penalty shall be paid within 90 days from the date this Decision and Order becomes final.

Respondent shall cease and desist from accepting animals showing signs or symptoms of illness, disease or injury, in violation of his duty to establish and maintain a program of disease control and prevention.

This Decision and Order will become final without further proceedings thirty five (35) days after service unless appealed within thirty (30) days after service. (7 CFR 1.140(c) & 1.45(a)).

Decision by John Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. §§ 2131-2156, by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act, 9 CFR §§ 1.1-3.142. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding, 7 CFR § 1.138.

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent State University of New York has a mailing address of Office of University Counsel, State University Plaza, Albany, New York 12246.

2. At all material times herein, the respondent operated a research facility subject to and registered under the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent State University of New York shall comply with each and every provision of the Animal Welfare Act, 7 U.S.C. §§ 2131-2156 and the standards and regulations issued thereunder, 9 CFR §§ 1.1-3.142 and shall cease and desist from any violation thereof. In addition to complying with all other requirements of the Act, regulations and standards, respondent shall within ten (10) days of the effective date of this decision bring its animal care facility into compliance with the standards for the proper construction and maintenance of interior surfaces under 9 CFR § 3.2 and the proper storage of food and bedding under 9 CFR § 3.1.

Respondent shall establish and maintain a training program to assure that all individuals involved in the care and handling of animals or the maintenance of respondent's facility are given adequate training in the proper care and handling of animals and the proper maintenance and sanitation of animal care facilities as required by the Act, regulations and standards.

Respondent shall distribute a copy of this decision to all of its personnel who are responsible for the care and handling of research animals and the maintenance and sanitation of animal care facilities subject to the Act. Respondent shall maintain an ongoing information program to insure that such personnel are aware of the provisions of this decision.

Respondent shall, within thirty (30) days after the effective date of this order, send the Area Veterinarian in Charge a written report setting forth the steps it has taken to implement the requirements of this order.

Respondent is assessed a civil penalty of $1,500.00 which shall be paid by a certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 2131 et seq.), by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act (9 CFR § 1.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The respondents Jim and Mary Foster are individuals doing business as Oak Leaf Kennels at Rt. 1, Montgomery City, MO 63361. The respondents, at all times material herein, were dealers within the meaning of the Act. The respondents, at all times material herein, were not licensed under the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondents, their agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

(1) Operating in any capacity for which a license is required under the Animal Welfare Act and the regulations issued thereunder without having applied for and obtained a license as required by the Act and the regulations;

(2) Failing to store food in containers for protection against infestation or contamination as required by 9 CFR § 3.1(c);

(3) Failing to ensure that the indoor building surfaces are impervious to moisture and in condition to be readily sanitized as required by 9 CFR § 3.2(d);

(4) Failing to ensure that dogs are not overcrowded in outside cages as required by 9 CFR § 3.4(b)(2); and

(5) Failing to remove excreta from wood slat floors in outside cages, remove trash accumulations, treat wood in outside cages in order to permit adequate cleaning and sanitation, and adequately clean and sanitize indoor wood cages as required by 9 CFR § 3.7.

Respondents are jointly and severally assessed a civil penalty of $250.00 which shall be paid by a certified check or money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondents.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Jeffrey M. Riley and Joe P. Riley, hereinafter referred to as the respondents, are partners doing business as Lexington Sales Company. Respondents' principal place of business is located at Lexington, Tennessee, and their business mailing address is P. O. Box 393, Lexington, Tennessee 38351.

2. The respondents, at all times material herein, were:

(a) Engaged in the business of conducting and operating the Lexington Sales Company stockyard, a stockyard posted under and subject to the provisions of the Act, herein referred to as the stockyard;

(b) Engaged in the business of a market agency selling livestock on a commission basis at the stockyard;

(c) Engaged in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for their own account; and

(d) Dealers and market agencies within the meaning of those terms as defined in the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act.

(e) Not registered with the Secretary of Agriculture in any capacity subject to the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondents Jeffrey M. Riley and Joe P. Riley, their agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with their activities subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Weighing livestock at other than true and correct weights;

2. Preparing or issuing scale tickets, buyers' invoices, accounts of purchase, or any other documents evidencing the purchase or sale of livestock, which show false or incorrect weights for such livestock;

3. Paying the owners or sellers of livestock on the basis of false or incorrect weights; and

4. Failing to maintain and operate their livestock scale in strict conformity with the requirements of section 201.73-1 (INSTRUCTIONS FOR WEIGHING LIVESTOCK) of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.73-1).

Respondent Jeffrey M. Riley is prohibited from engaging in business and operating subject to the Act as a dealer, market agency or stockyard owner for a period of 90 days, and during such time may not register with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency or a dealer under the Act.

Respondent Joe P. Riley is prohibited from engaging in business and operating subject to the Act as a dealer, market agency or stockyard owner for a period of 60 days and during such time may not register with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency or a dealer under the Act.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served upon respondent by the Hearing Clerk by certified mail. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Lawrence Koebke, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is R.R. 1, Traer, Iowa 50675.

(b) The respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(2) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for his own account.

2. Respondent was notified by certified mail on March 13, 1985, that the $60,000.00 surety bond maintained to secure the performance of his livestock obligations under the Act was being terminated on June 4, 1985. Respondent was further notified on April 22, 1985, that it was necessary for him to file an increased bond in the amount of $65,000.00 and that if he continued his livestock operations under the Act without adequate bond or its equivalent, he would be in violation of section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a)), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations. Notwithstanding such notice, respondent has continued to engage in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account without having and maintaining an adequate bond or its equivalent as required by the Act and the regulations.

3. (a) The respondent, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III of the complaint, in connection with his operations as a dealer subject to the Act, purchased livestock in commerce and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock.

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondent has wilfully violated section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a)), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 201.29, 201.30).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 3 herein, respondent has wilfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b).

ORDER

Respondent Koebke, his agents, employees and assigns, directly or indirectly through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act, as amended and supplemented, and the regulations, without filing and maintaining an adequate bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations; and

2. Failing to pay, when due, for livestock purchases.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of twenty-eight (28) days and thereafter until he complies with the bonding requirements under the Act and the regulations. When respondent demonstrates that he is in full compliance with such bonding requirements, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension after the expiration of the twenty-eight (28) day period.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the sixth day after this decision becomes final. Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice, this decision becomes final without further proceedings 35 days after service as provided in sections 1.142 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.).

Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the financial condition of the corporate respondent named herein does not meet the requirements of the Act and that the respondents wilfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jursidictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Ranchers and Farmers Livestock Auction, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the corporate respondent, is a corporation with its principal place of business located at Burlington, Colorado. Its business mailing address is Box 635, Burlington, Colorado 80807.

2. The corporate respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of conducting and operating the Ranchers and Farmers Livestock Auction, Inc., stockyard, a stockyard posted under and subject to the provisions of the Act, hereinafter referred to as the stockyard;

(b) Engaged in the business of selling livestock on a commission basis at the stockyard, and buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account; and

(c) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock on a commission basis, and as a dealer to buy and sell livestock for its own account.

3. L. Kirby Powell, hereinafter referred to as respondent Powell, is an individual whose business mailing address is Box 635, Burlington, Colorado 80807.

4. Respondent Powell is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) President, manager and a substantial stockholder of the corporate respondent;

(b) Responsible for the direction, management and control of the corporate respondent;

(c) Engaged in the business of conducting and operating the stockyard;

(d) Engaged in the business of selling livestock on a commission basis at the stockyard and buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(e) A market agency and a dealer, within the meaning and subject to the provisions of the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

The corporate respondent, its officers, directors, agents, and employees, successors and assigns, and respondent Powell, his agents and employees, successors and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Operating as a dealer or market agency while their current liabilities exceed its current assets;

2. Failing to deposit in their Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds, within the time prescribed in section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42), amounts equal to the outstanding proceeds receivable due from the sale of consigned livestock;

3. Using funds received as proceeds from the sale of consigned livestock for purposes of their own or for any purpose other than for the payment of the net proceeds to the owners or consignors of such livestock, or for the payment of sums due the respondents as compensation for services rendered or for other lawful marketing charges;

4. Making such use or disposition of funds in their possession or control as will endanger or impair the faithful and prompt accounting therefor and the payment of the portions thereof which may be due the owners or consignors of livestock; and

5. Failing to otherwise maintain their Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds in strict conformity with the provisions of section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42);

Respondent Ranchers and Farmers Livestock Auction, Inc., is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of twenty one (21) days and thereafter until it demonstrates that its current liabilities do not exceed its current assets. When respondent demonstrates that its current liabilities do not exceed its current assets, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating this suspension after the expiration of the twenty one (21) day period of suspension. Respondents have demonstrated that the deficit in their custodial account has now been eliminated.

Respondent Powell is prohibited from operating as a dealer or a market agency subject to the Act, or from being employed by a dealer or market agency subject to the Act, for a period of 21 days.

The provisions of this order shall become effective May 4, 1986.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

In re: CORN STATE MEAT COMPANY, INC.; TERRANCE P. (TERRY) PRINCE, JR.; and JAMES L. WIGGS. P&S Docket No. 6427. Decided May 8, 1986.

Packer—Commercial bribery—Civil penalty.

The Judicial Officer reversed Judge McGrail's civil penalty determination, and increased the civil penalty assessed jointly and severally against respondents from $25,000 to $50,000. The ALJ's cease and desist order was affirmed, as were the findings that respondents engaged in commercial bribery from 1979 to 1981, primarily by splitting their profits on resale with three employees of two firms from which respondents bought meat products. Responsible hearsay is admissible in USDA proceedings. Where there are closely held corporations, the disciplinary order can be made applicable to the officers and stockholders who operated the corporation. Commercial bribery violates the P&S Act. Complainant need only prevail by a preponderance of the evidence. The failure of the individual respondents to testify gives rise to the inference that their testimony would have been adverse to their position.

Proof of injury or likelihood of injury is not required in commercial bribery cases. Severe sanction policy explained. The Bosma decision, requiring the Department to produce evidence that the penalty will not affect the person's ability to continue to do business, is erroneous, but, in any event, that issue is irrelevant here since respondent corporation is already out of business. In addition, commercial bribery is so inimical to the meat packing industry that a civil penalty for commercial bribery adversely affecting the person's ability to continue in business would be in the public interest.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.).* An initial Decision and Order was filed on February 10, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge Edward H. McGrail (ALJ) in which he found that respondents engaged in "commercial bribery" from 1979 to 1981, primarily by splitting their profits on resale with three employees of two firms from which respondents bought meat products. The ALJ ordered respondents to cease and desist from such activities, and respondents were assessed, jointly and severally, a $25,000 civil penalty.

On March 13, 1986, complainant, seeking a $50,000 civil penalty, appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35). On April 4, 1986, respondent Wiggs filed a response in the nature of a cross-appeal, asking that the complaint be dismissed or the penalty suspended. On April 24, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

 The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program) (December 1962–January 1971).

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the ALJ's initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, with changes too minor to itemize, except that the civil penalty is increased to $50,000, and the last two sentences of the discussion of page 28 headed "Sanction" (relating to the $25,000 civil penalty) are deleted. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION (AS MODIFIED)

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), hereinafter the "Act", instituted by a complaint and notice of hearing filed on October 10, 1984, by the Packers and Stockyards Administration hereinafter "the complainant". The complaint alleged that the corporate respondent, under the direction, management and control of the individual respondents, made payments to three employees of two meat packing companies for the purpose of inducing and influencing these employees to negotiate purchase and sale contracts favoring the corporate respondent, such payments being made without the knowledge or consent of the companies by whom they were employed. By reason of these facts, the respondents were alleged to have violated sections 202(a) and 202(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 192(a), 192(b)).

Respondents filed an answer admitting that the individual respondents were owners, officers and managers of the corporate respondent, that the corporate respondent made some payments to the employees named in the complaint but denying that these payments were made for the purpose of inducing and influencing these employees to negotiate purchase and sale contracts favoring the corporate respondent, and further denying that the payments were made without the knowledge or consent of the employers. Respondents alleged they have not knowingly or intentionally violated the Act.

An oral hearing was held before the undersigned on July 16 and 17, 1985, in Sioux City, Iowa. Respondent Corn State and respondent Terrance P. (Terry) Prince, Jr., were represented by Timothy W. Shuminsky, Esquire, Sioux City, Iowa, and respondent James L. Wiggs, was represented by Gary Wenell, Esquire, Sioux City, Iowa. Complainant was represented by Thomas C. Heinz, Esquire, Office of the General Counsel, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. Four witnesses were called to testify by Complainant. Complainant introduced eight exhibits into evidence. Respondents proffered no witnesses or documentary evidence. The parties were granted leave to file simultaneous briefs on or before August 26, 1985. Such briefs have been filed and duly considered.

STATEMENT OF LAW

Sections 202(a) and 202(b) of the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 192(a), 192(b)) provide:

> It shall be unlawful with respect to livestock, meats, meat food products, livestock products in unmanufactured form, poultry, or poultry products for any packer or any live poultry dealer or handler to:
> (a) Engage in or use any unfair, unjustly discriminatory, or deceptive practice or device; or
> (b) Make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any particular person or locality in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever.

RESPONDENT COMPANY, AND RELATED COMPANIES

Prior to any discussion of the record, an understanding of the Respondent company, and related companies is necessary.

Corn State Meat Company, Inc. (Corn State)

At all times material herein was engaged in the business of marketing meats, meat food products, or livestock products in unmanufactured form acting as a wholesale broker, dealer or distributor, and hence was a packer within the meaning of the Act. Its place of business was located at 916 Grandview Boulevard, Sioux City, Iowa 51101. (Answer, paragraphs I., 1.(a) and 1.(b)(1)). It occupied approximately 1,000 feet of space at this location which included a lobby area where the bookkeeper was located, three offices and some closet space. Corn State is no longer engaged in business (Tr. 130).[1]

Respondent Prince was the president, vice-president, an owner, manager, director and controller of Corn State. Respondent Wiggs was secretary, treasurer, an owner, manager, director and controller of Corn State (Answer, paragraphs I., 2.(a)(b), I., 3.(a)(b)).

[1] Reference to exhibits are designated "CX" to indicate those submitted by complainant. No exhibits were offered by respondents. References to the hearing transcript are designated "Tr.".

P. & P. Trading Co., Inc. (P&P)

At all times material here was a brokerage house that brokered meat products between dealers and suppliers (Tr. 35). Respondents Wiggs and Prince were the owners and operators of P&P. As of January 30, 1979, it occupied the same office facilities as did Corn State, 916 Grandview Boulevard, Sioux City, Iowa, 51101 and had the same telephone number (CX 5, p. 5; Tr. 39–41, 130).

Country Products, Ltd. (Country Products)

At all times material here was a brokerage house that brokered meat products between dealers and suppliers. The articles of incorporation show that Respondents Wiggs and Prince, and Lee Schroeder were its directors and stockholders. Mr. Schroeder was its sole employee. It, too, occupied the same office facilities as did Corn State and P&P, 916 Grandview Boulevard, Sioux City, Iowa 51101, and had the same telephone number (CX–6, p. 19; Tr. 40–41, 130, 144, 160).

Farmland Foods, Inc. (Farmland) is a packer presently operating plants in Iowa and Nebraska. It is a cooperative owned by its member ranchers and farmers and maintains its headquarters in Kansas City, Missouri (Tr. 61).

Iowa Beef Processors, Inc. (IBP) is a packer with a multi-plant operation headquartered in Dakota City, Nebraska (Tr. 112–113).

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Mr. Merle Paulsen has been employed by the Marketing and Practices Branch, Packers and Stockyards Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture (P&S) as a marketing specialist and as an auditor for approximately six years. Prior to that he was employed as an auditor by the State of Nebraska, and as an accountant in private industry. His present duties include investigation of trade practice violations under the Packers and Stockyards Act. In the course of his duties he examined the records of Corn State Meat Co., Inc. (Corn State) to determine if that company or any of its employees had committed any such trade practice violations (Tr. 15–16, 127)

His examination of the records of Corn State, which also included records of P&P and Country Products, disclosed checks, general ledger sheets and invoices which contained entries and notes regarding payments made by Corn State to the following individuals:

Robert (Bob) Ingram

Thirteen checks drawn on the account of Corn State between March 14, 1979 and March 6, 1981, were made payable to Robert or Bob Ingram, and endorsed by him. An additional check, number 807, dated October 9, 1979, was made payable to (sic) "R. H. B. for Bob Ingram," in the amount of $2,938.90. It was endorsed by Rufenacht, Bromagen and Hertz, West Point, NE (R.B.H.), a commodity broker, and deposited to its "Customer Segregated Funds Account." Three other checks dated February 12, 1980, April 17, 1980, May 12, 1980 and numbered 1038, 1148, and 1177, respectively, were made payable to the Northwestern National Bank. Two of the checks, numbers 1038 and 1177, were not endorsed while the third of these checks, number 1148, was endorsed by "Ellen Maximona." The majority of the seventeen checks were signed by Respondent Terry Prince and two were signed by Respondent James Wiggs. They totalled $43,012.15 (CX-1; Tr. 17-18, 39, 127-128, 131, 133, 151).

Copies of the general ledger sheets obtained from Corn State, Account No. 74, "Consultant Fees-Brokerage Fees," reflected Robert Ingram as recipient of not only the monies from the thirteen checks endorsed by him, but also of the monies represented by check No. 807 made payable to "R. H. B. for Bob Ingram" and the three checks, nos. 1038, 1148 and 1177, made payable to the Northwestern National Bank (CX-4, p. 1, line 27; p.2, lines 12, 17, 21; Tr. 19-20, 39, 41-43). Each of the checks tabulated by Mr. Paulsen on CX-1, have a corresponding entry on CX-4 by date, name and amount.

Mr. Paulsen testified that he had talked to the bookkeeper at Corn State, Ellen Maximona, who advised him that she cashed all three of the above checks made payable to Northwestern National Bank and turned the money over to Respondents Prince and Wiggs (Tr. 133-134).

Mr. Paulsen also obtained invoices from the records of Corn State showing sales made to it by Farmland during the period January 3, 1979-July 7, 1980 which were handled through P&P and resold by Corn State. It appears that the procedure followed by the companies was to handle the purchases from Farmland through P&P and bill the final purchaser on Corn State invoices (CX-5, p. 97). Although twenty-three transactions were tabulated by Mr. Paulsen, he could not determine whether monies from four of these transactions were actually paid to Robert Ingram.[2] Additionally, the undersigned noted two other transactions amounting to $1,000.00 where it could not be determined whether monies were actually paid to Robert Ingram.[3] Eliminating these six transactions, the total amount of money designated for Robert Ingram by Corn State over this period of approximately one and a half years was $16,181.15 (CX-5, p. 1).

The tabulation for Robert Ingram, CX-5, p. 1, is an index to the transactions which follow on pp. 2-102. For example, CX-5, p. 1, line 1, lists Farmland invoice number 99100 showing a sale to Corn State amounting to $24,090.55. CX-5, p. 2, shows the actual invoice from Farmland, while CX-5, pp. 3-4, show the transaction being handled by P&P, and CX-5, p. 5, shows the final billing by Corn State. It is noted on CX-5, p. 4, that the amount of $500.00 is designated "to Ingram." Similarly, CX-5, p. 1, line 2, lists Farmland invoice number 28030, showing a sale to Corn State amounting to $6,800.00. CX-5, p. 6, shows the actual invoice, while CX-5 pp. 7-8, 10 shows the transaction being handled by P&P, and CX-5, p. 9 shows the eventual billing by Corn State. It is noted on CX-5, pp. 10-11, that $200.00 is designated for "Ingram." Other notations are also found on these invoices, e.g., "4633 Ingram-⅓ of net profit", and "⅓ to Ingram-$3,498.35" (CX-5, pp. 99-100); "Pd. Ing. 1 1d in May" (CX-5, p. 93). In following the above sequence, each line of the tabulation on CX-5 may be traced to the actual invoices and billing on pp. 2-102. Each transaction, with the exceptions of the six transactions, supra, contain notations of the various amounts paid to "Ingram" over this period.[4] It is also noted that the invoices of Corn State and P&P are signed alternately by Respondents Wiggs and Prince (CX-5, pp. 9, 41, 46, 48, 54, 55, 63, 68, 72, 81, 85, 89, 94).

Joseph (Joe) T. Sixta

Five checks drawn on the account of Corn State between August 29, 1980 and December 9, 1980, were made payable to, and endorsed by, Joe Sixta. However, one of these checks, no. 1460, dated October 24, 1980, was endorsed by Joe Sixta "For Deposit of Lee Schroeder Only". A sixth check, number 1245, dated July 5, 1980, was made payable to, and endorsed by, Lee Schroeder. Three additional checks, numbers 1150, 1199, and 1227, dated April 2, 1980, May 27, 1980, and June 10, 1980 respectively, were made payable to the Northwestern National Bank and were also endorsed by Lee Schroeder. Six of the above nine checks were issued by Respondent Prince, and three were issued by Respondent Wiggs. The checks amounted to a total of $4,207.59 (CX-2).

As with Mr. Ingram, supra, Mr. Paulsen testified that each of these checks can be traced to Corn State's general ledger sheets, account number 74, supra (CX-4). Notations on the general ledger sheets show that although check numbers 1150, 1199 and 1227 were made payable to the Northwestern National Bank and endorsed by Lee Schroeder, the recipient of the monies from these three checks, $90.00, $100.00 and $100.00 respectively, was Joe Sixta (CX-4, p. 2, lines 18, 23, 24). The general ledger sheets also show that the monies from check number 1245 in the amount of $250.00, made payable to, and endorsed by, Lee Schroeder, and check number 1460 in the amount of $1,428.82, made payable to Joe Sixta and endorsed for deposit by Lee Schroeder, were paid to Joe Sixta (CX-4, p. 2, line 27, p. 3, line 21).

It is noted here that P&S Investigator Skram, infra, testified that Mr. Lee Schroeder advised him that he cashed the above checks made out to Northwestern National Bank (numbers 1150, 1199, 1227), and the one made payable to himself (number 1245), and gave the cash to Joe Sixta (Tr. 147-148).

Mr. Paulsen obtained copies of invoices from the records of Corn State which show five sales of products to Corn State by IBP, as well as two purchases from Corn State by IBP. The aggregate of monies designated for Joseph Sixta from the transactions amounts to $2,941.88 (CX-6, p. 1).

The tabulation for Joseph Sixta, CX-6, p. 1, is an index to each of the individual invoices found in CX-6, pp. 2-23. For example, CX-6, p. 1, line 1, lists IBP invoice number 44J04003A, showing a sale to Corn State in the amount of $7,998.00. CX-6, p. 2, shows the actual IBP invoice for this transaction, while CX-6, p. 3, shows the Corn State invoice for the resale of these products. A notation on this Corn State invoice shows that a payment of $274.93 was designated for "Sixta". Similarly, CX-6, p. 1, line 2, lists IBP invoice number 40J21008B showing a sale to Corn State in the amount of $23,760.00. CX-6, p. 4 shows the actual IBP invoice for this transaction while CX-6, p. 5, shows the Corn State invoice for the resale of these products. A notation on this Corn State invoice shows that a payment of $272.25 was designated for "Sixta". Additionally, CX-6, p. 1, line 3, lists IBP invoice number 40J28009A which, after deduction of an overbilling, amounted to $23,940.00. CX-6, p. 6, shows the overbilling on actual invoices of IBP and Corn State, while CX-6, p. 7, shows the invoice for the resale of these products by Corn State. A notation on this Corn State invoice shows that $745.88 is designated for "Sixta". The total monies designated for "Sixta" on CX-6, pp. 3, 5, 7, amounts to $1,293.06. The two checks issued by Corn State to Joe Sixta, numbers 1350 and 1395 in the amounts of $200.00 and $1,093.06 (CX-6, pp. 8, 9), respectively, total the exact amount designated for "Sixta" on CX-6, pp. 3, 5, 7, $1,293.06. These checks are also tabulated on CX-2, p. 1 and copies included in CX-2, pp. 6, 7. They are also recorded on Corn State's general ledger sheet, account number 74 (CX-4, p. 3, lines 10, 14). It is noted here that Respondent Wiggs issued check number 1350, and Respondent Prince issued check number 1395. Both checks were endorsed by "Joe Sixta".

Finally, there are two other transactions to be noted which trace payments to Joe Sixta through invoices of IBP, Corn State and checks issued by Corn State. The tabulation, CX-6, p. 1, line 4, lists IBP invoice number 40K11012A showing a sale to Corn State in the amount of $23,940.00. CX-6, p. 10, shows the actual IBP invoice while CX-6, p. 11, shows the Corn State invoice for the resale of these products. A notation on this Corn State invoice shows that a payment of $1,428.82 was designated for "Sixta". CX-6, p. 12, is a copy of a Corn State check, number 1460, issued to Joe Sixta by Respondent Prince in the amount of $1,428.82. This check is endorsed by Joe Sixta "For Deposit of Lee Schroeder Only". This is a copy of the same check noted above, no. 1460, and can also be traced to Corn State's account number 74 (CX-2, p. 8; CX-4, p. 3, line 21).

The second of these transactions is a purchase of products by IBP from Corn State. CX-6, p. 1, line 7, lists IBP purchase order number P.O. 95928-S in the amount of $4,385.55. CX-6, p. 6, is a copy of this purchase order showing the IBP agent for the purchase as "Joseph T. Sixta". In this instance, the sale to IBP was initiated through Country Products, Ltd., by Lee Schroeder (CX-6, p. 22). A notation on the Country Products invoice designated "$90.00—Pd.—consultant fee". Check number 1150 in the amount of $90.00, supra, was issued by Respondent Prince on the account of Corn State and made payable to Northwestern Bank. As noted previously, it was endorsed and cashed by Lee Schroeder and the money turned over to Joe Sixta (CX-6, p. 23; CX-2, p. 1,2). This check is traceable to Corn State's account number 74, wherein the amount of the check dated April 21, 1980, is designated for "Sixta" (CX-4, p. 2, line 18).

Other notations also appear on Corn State and P&P invoices, e.g., Corn State invoice number 4810 contains the notation "figure Sixta" (CX-6, p. 14). P&P's invoice for the same transaction contains the notation "Sixta gets cut—do not [know] how much until profit figured" (CX-6, p. 16).

Donald (Don) D. Erickson

Three checks drawn on the account of Corn State between August 20, 1980 and October 10, 1980, were made payable to the Northwestern National Bank, numbers 1333, 1356 and 1442. The first check, number 1330, was endorsed by "Bobbie Maximona". The remaining two showed no endorsement. The total of the three checks amounted to $2,500.00 and were issued by Respondent Prince (CX-3).

Mr. Paulsen testified that these checks can also be traced to the general ledger sheets, account number 74, supra (CX-4). Although these checks were made out to the Northwestern National Bank, the general ledger sheets show that these monies, $1,000.00, $1,000.00 and $500.00, respectively, were paid to Donald Erickson (CX-4, p. 3, lines 7, 12, 18; Tr. 133-134). Mr. Paulsen further testified that Ellen "Bobbie" Maximona was the office manager and bookkeeper at the Corn State office location.

Mr. Joseph E. Skram has been employed by P&S, USDA, since 1978, first as a Marketing Specialist and for the last four years as a Packer and Poultry Specialist. Prior to 1979, he was a consultant to several meat packers. He participated with Mr. Paulsen in the investigation of this matter. During the course of the investigation he interviewed Mr. Lee Schroeder who advised him he was an employee of Corn State, a director, an organizer and sole employee of Country Products, but that he had no association with P&P. During the course of the interview, Mr. Schroeder identified three Corn State checks made payable to Northwestern National Bank, and endorsed by him, numbers 1150, 1199, 1227, and one Corn State check made payable to, and endorsed by Lee Schroeder, number 1245, as being checks he cashed and later turned the monies from these checks over to Joe Sixta (CX-2, pp. 2-5; Tr. 143-148, 154-160).

Mr. Skram testified that he also interviewed Ms. "Bobbie" Maximona who he identified as the office manager and bookkeeper at the Corn State office location. Ms. Maximona identified Corn State checks made payable to Northwestern National Bank, numbers 1333, 1356 and 1442, as being checks she cashed and later turned the monies over to Respondents Wiggs and Prince. She explained that she probably endorsed check number 1333 because the bank employee did not recognize her as an employee of Corn State, and did not have to endorse the other two checks, numbers 1356 and 1442, because on those dates the teller did recognize her. She further advised Mr. Skram that the ultimate recipient of the monies from these three checks was Donald Erickson and that she noted his name in the general ledger sheet opposite the dates on which the checks were drawn (CX-3, pp. 2-3; CX-4, p. 3, lines 7, 12, 18; Tr. 149-151, 158-159).

During the course of his investigation Mr. Skram also contacted the office of RB&H at West Point, Nebraska, and determined that they had handled some transactions for Robert Ingram (Tr. 152).

Mr. Steven J. Bernard testified he has held the position of Director of Security, IBP, Inc., Dakota City, Nebraska (IBP) since August 2, 1983. In this position he has access to personnel files of all IBP employees. These files show that Joseph Sixta was employed by IBP as manager-in-charge of variety meats and was responsible for the merchandising of all commodities, except sausage, as well as customer relations. Mr. Bernard worked with Mr. Sixta for a short period of time before Mr. Sixta was terminated from IBP (Tr. 86-87, 94, 114).

Over the years, IBP has had a "Conflict of Interest" policy which was substantially the same as the present one, except that the current one is a little more in depth. The current policy was revised on November 11, 1982, and circulated on January 26, 1983. Personnel files of IBP show that Mr. Sixta had signed a copy of IBP's conflict of interest policy statement on March 19, 1979, June 28, 1980, and April 2, 1982. This policy prohibits employees from engaging in any activities which could conflict with their duties to IBP, and specifically ". . . prohibits employees from accepting any gifts, loans or other favors from business contacts," as well as, ". . . any activity which might place an employee of IBP under any obligation, or might improperly influence his business judgment, to an outside firm or person who might reasonably expect at a future date to benefit by that obligation." Violation of such policy could result in appropriate disciplinary action, including discharge (CX-8; Tr. 114, 120-123).

Mr. Bernard, together with two other officials of IBP, the executive vice-president and a vice-president who was also legal counsel, were present on the afternoon of October 3, 1983, when Mr. Sixta was questioned by investigators of the Marketing Practices Branch, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture (P&S), Messrs. Merle Paulsen and Joseph E. Skram, concerning alleged improprieties in Mr. Sixta's dealings with the Respondents. Mr. Paulsen presented certain checks to Mr. Sixta and requested an explanation as to why he had received them. As Mr. Bernard recalled, Mr. Sixta acknowledged his signature as the endorser on the checks but was vague in his recollection as to how he happened to receive the monies represented by the checks (Tr. 95-96, 98-99, 112).

Subsequent to this meeting with the P&S investigators, Mr. Sixta met alone with Mr. Bernard and the other two IBP officials. They advised Mr. Sixta that if such allegations were true IBP could not tolerate them since his actions violated IBP's conflict of interest policy. Mr. Sixta finally admitted that one of the checks for $1,000 was an impropriety on his part and did violate IBP's conflict of interest policy. He acknowledged he had endorsed another check for $600.00 which had been issued by Respondent Terry Prince. However, Mr. Sixta advised them that he did not believe the total amount of money Mr. Paulsen alleged he received, $4,882.00, was quite as much as he actually received. He could not recall whether he had received any cash from the Respondents. At the end of the interview with Mr. Bernard and the other IBP officials, Mr. Sixta was discharged because of his violations of the IBP conflict of interest policy, was taken to his office to clear out his belongings, and left the premises that afternoon. Although discharged, personnel records show that Mr. Sixta was allowed to resign effective October 4, 1983 (Tr. 99-100, 107-108).

Mr. Donald Erickson was described by Mr. Bernard as an Assistant Vice President of IBP in charge of boxed beef sales, and having been employed by IBP since approximately 1972–1973. Following the interviews and the discharge of Mr. Sixta, there was a similar meeting with Mr. Erickson at which Mr. Bernard, the same two IBP officials, and P&S investigators, Messrs. Paulsen and Skram, were present. Mr. Paulsen presented documentation from Corn State records to Mr. Erickson showing three payments Mr. Erickson received from Respondent Terry Prince, two in the amount of $1,000 each, and one in the amount of $500. Mr. Erickson stated that one of the payments for $1,000 was a loan from Respondent Prince. However, he acknowledged that as of the date of the interview, approximately 3 years later, he had not repaid the amount of the loan. As Mr. Bernard recalled, Mr. Erickson showed no further cooperation with the P&S investigators (Tr. 87, 100, 119).

When the two P&S investigators left the room, Mr. Erickson advised Mr. Bernard and the other two IBP officials that he wished to leave the employment of IBP immediately. When pressed for the circumstances surrounding the receipt of payments from Respondents, Mr. Erickson stated that the payments were considerations made to him and he realized he had violated the IBP conflict of interest policy. At this point he advised Mr. Bernard and the other two IBP officials that it would be to his best interest not to discuss the allegations further. Mr. Erickson was discharged from IBP at that meeting; however, his personnel file reflects he was permitted to resign effective October 4, 1983. This file also reflected he signed IBP's conflict of interest policy statement on November 21, 1977, June 28, 1980, and February 3, 1983. The above facts to which Mr. Bernard testified are recorded in a memorandum he drew up on October 10, 1983 (Tr. 87, 100–101, 104, 108, 113, 122–123).

Mr. David L. Poole is the Director of Personnel, Farmland Foods, Inc., Kansas City, Missouri (Farmland), which is engaged in the production and sale of meat products. Mr. Robert Ingram was employed from July 24, 1978 until June 27, 1980, as the sales manager of Farmland's beef products plant at Garden City, Kansas. Mr. Ingram was terminated when the plant closed due to its nonprofitability. Mr. Poole testified that during the period of employment of Mr. Ingram, Farmland always had a conflict of interest policy pertaining to its employees. This policy was set forth in an Employee's Handbook, was updated annually and each time was brought to the attention of its employees. Essentially the policy forbade an employee from engaging in any business which is in competition with the company, and the acceptance of any gifts from any party engaged in dealings of any kind with Farmland, except those of limited value. Until the Packers and Stockyards investigators advised him of the investigation concerning Mr. Ingram, neither he nor the President of the company were aware of Mr. Ingram receiving any monies from outside sources in regard to his position as sales manager. Nor was he aware of any other executives of the company who were. Had it been known, it would certainly have been cause for terminating his employment with Farmland (CX-9; Tr. 47-57, 65-67, 78).

Mr. W. Wayne MacDonald has held the position of Marketing Specialist, Meat Merchandising Branch, P&S, USDA, for the past seven years and prior to that held the position of Meat Grader with the USDA for approximately nine years. He was present during all of the testimony given at the hearing in this matter. Based on the record, he testified the P&S, USDA, considers the violations charged in this matter as serious since they have an anti-competitive effect on the industry and undermine the trust placed in employees buying and selling meat products, as well as consumer trust in the marketing of meats.

Because of this unwholesome effect, P&S, USDA, seeks a cease and desist order, as well as a civil penalty of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) to be assessed jointly and severally against the respondents. P&S, USDA, believes the monetary penalty to be appropriate and necessary as it will be an effective deterrent in precluding such activities in the future, not only to the respondents involved here, but also those in similar positions in the meat industry. In reaching this conclusion Mr. MacDonald acknowledges he had not talked with anyone in the industry regarding respondents' activities, but that it was based on the record in this matter and on his long experience in the meat industry. Nor did he contact other like firms in the industry to determine whether they had been affected by the activities of the respondents (Tr. 166-174-177, 179, 186).

Some of the above evidence was received into the record over objection by respondents based on court rules and judicial proceedings thereunder, e.g., hearsay. However, as stated and ruled on in the record, and as here repeated, administrative agencies are not bound by the strict rules of procedure applicable in court proceedings. The rules of procedure adopted by the USDA for adjudicatory hearings are designed to admit all relevant, probative, and material evidence which responsible persons are accustomed to rely on unless it is unduly repetitious. This has been well established by rulings in administrative hearings before the USDA, and by the courts. In re Corona Livestock Auction, 36 A.D. 1285, 1311 (1977), rev'd on other grounds sub nom. Corona Livestock v. U.S.D.A., 607 F2d 811 (9th Cir. 1979); In re DeJong Packing Co., 36 A.D. 1181, 1222-1223 (1977), aff'd sub nom. DeJong Packing Co. v. U.S.D.A., 618 F2d 1329 (9th Cir. 1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1061 (1980). See also 1 Davidson, Agricultural Law, § 3.22 and cases cited therein at fn. 113. The object in an administrative hearing is to obtain all of the relevant facts free from any of the restrictive rules applicable to judicial proceedings. Moreover, responsible hearsay is admissible in USDA administrative proceedings. In re American Fruit Purveyors, Inc., 30 A.D. 1542, 1574 (1971).

A second preliminary matter which must be addressed here is the argument by counsel for Corn State and respondent Prince that respondents Prince and Wiggs are not "packers" as defined by Section 191 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 191), since from the record it "appears" that they are only employees of Corn State. Accepted by these respondents is the definition of "packer" found in Hedrick v. S. Bonaccurso & Sons, Inc., 466 F. Supp. 1025 (E.D. Pa. 1978), i.e., the company must be closely held ". . . and all officers, jobs, decisions and actions taken are by the same person or persons, . . ." (Shuminsky Brief, pp. 4-5). It is noted here that: 1) respondent's answer admits respondent Prince was the president, vice president, stockholder and manager of Corn State, and that respondent Wiggs was the secretary, treasurer, stockholder and manager of Corn State (Ans. Para I 2(b), 3(b)); 2) respondent Wiggs' Brief acknowledges Terry Prince and James L. Wiggs are Corn State's two owners (Wenell Brief, p. 1) and; 3) unrefuted testimony of record shows respondents Prince and Wiggs as officers and owners (Wiggs-25%, Prince-75%), controlling the operations of Corn State (Tr. 40, 182; see also fn. 4, supra). Thus, this argument is totally without merit. It is noted here that Hendrick also stands for the proposition that the corporate device cannot immunize individual defendants from liability once it is found that they are "persons" and "packers" under the P&S Act. Ibid. at 1031.

There is no doubt from the record established here that respondents Prince and Wiggs not only owned and controlled Corn State but also P&P, and that they, together with Lee Schroeder, were organizers of Country Products. Further, that meat products were purchased in commerce from Farmland and IBP, as well as sold to IBP. There is also no doubt that Messrs. Ingram, Sixta and Erickson were not brokers or consultants, nor did they perform any legitimate services for Corn State for which they would be entitled to a commission or brokerage fee from Corn State, and certainly not a share of the profit on the resale by Corn State of meat products purchased from Farmland and IBP. It is clear from the records obtained from Corn State that payments were made to Messrs. Ingram, Sixta and Erickson by the respondents, such payments being made in the form of checks and cash to Messrs. Ingram and Sixta, and cash to Mr. Erickson—the cash originating in the form of checks issued to Northwestern National Bank and endorsed and cashed by Lee Schroeder or Ms. Maximona, employees of Corn State. All checks were drawn on the account of Corn State and signed alternately by respondents Prince and Wiggs. The checks made out to Northwestern National Bank can be traced to Corn State's account no. 74, "Consultant Fees—Brokerage Fees". This is corroborated by statements made to P&S investigators that these checks were cashed and the money turned over to Joe Sixta (Lee Schroeder); that money from the checks was turned over to respondents Prince and Wiggs and notations were made in the general ledger sheets, account no. 74, that the cash was eventually given to Donald Erickson (Ms. Maximona).

The record further shows that the purchases from Farmland and IBP were hand recorded first on P&P invoices but eventually billed to the ultimate customer on Corn State typed invoices, and that both sets of invoices, together with several from Country Products, were entirely obtained from the records of Corn State. Notations on the handwritten invoice copies of P&P show a pattern of payments made on the basis of a percentage of profits made by Corn State on the resale of meat products purchased from Farmland and IBP (Ingram, Sixta), or a rounded dollar amount still based on the amount of profit on each transaction with either Farmland or IBP. In the case of Robert Ingram, the record shows that he was terminated from Farmland when the plant in which he was employed was closed due to its unprofitable operation. It may well be that Mr. Ingram's activities in his dealings with Corn State may have contributed to the demise of this plant. Mr. Ingram was not interviewed by P&S investigators to determine the reason for payments to him by Corn State. However, when the evidence of payments was presented to officials of Farmland, it was their judgment that had these payments been known to Farmland, Robert Ingram would have been discharged from that company because of violation of its conflict of interest policy. As noted previously, the checks and cash which can be connected with checks issued by Corn State and paid to Robert Ingram, amounted to $43,012.15. However, while Corn State's account no. 74 records the check payments to Robert Ingram, it does not record the amounts designated for Robert Ingram found on the invoices obtained from Corn State (CX-5). Thus, considering the $16,181.15 designated for Robert Ingram on these invoices together with the above total from checks and cash, respondents Prince and Wiggs, through Corn State, paid Robert Ingram a total of $59,193.30 over the period January 31, 1979—March 6, 1981 to suborn his fiduciary obligations to Farmland.

With regard to Joseph Sixta, the record has established that the checks and cash payments which can be traced to him through Corn State's account no. 74 amounted tc $4,207.59. However, in Mr. Sixta's case, the amounts of three of the checks, nos. 1350, 1395, ($200 + $1,093.06 = $1,293.06) and no. 1460 ($1,428.82) are duplications of the amounts designated for "Sixta" on invoices obtained from Corn State's records (CX-6, p. 1) and recorded in Corn State's account no. 74 (CX-4, p. 3, lines 10, 14, 21). Thus, when the amounts of these checks are deducted from the invoice amounts designated for Joseph Sixta, and the $220 difference is added to the total amount of the checks, the overall amount paid by respondents Prince and Wiggs, through Corn State, to suborn Joseph Sixta's fiduciary obligations to IBP during the period April 21, 1980—December 9, 1980, is $4,427.59. As noted from the interviews with Joseph Sixta, he acknowledged endorsing the checks from Corn State when they were presented to him and admitted that at least one of them was an impropriety that did violate IBP's conflict of interest policy. He also acknowledged other payments from Corn State by stating he did not believe he had received as much as the $4,882.00 alleged to have been received by him. Because he had violated IBP's conflict of interest policy he was discharged by that company but officially allowed to resign from IBP.

Finally, with regard to Donald Erickson, the record shows that three payments, totalling $2,500.00, were made to him by Corn State during the period August 20, 1980–October 10, 1980. Although checks for this amount were made out to Northwestern National Bank, interviews by P&S investigators determined that the cash proceeds from these checks were turned over to respondents Prince and Wiggs, and that this cash was eventually turned over to Donald Erickson and recorded in Corn State's account no. 74. As noted from the interviews with Mr. Erickson, he stated that one payment of $1,000 was a loan from respondent Prince but he acknowledged he had not repaid this loan after an approximate three-year period. He also acknowledged that the payments made to him by Corn State were "considerations" which were violations of IBP's conflict of interest policy. As with Mr. Sixta, Mr. Erickson was also discharged on the spot, but officially allowed to resign from IBP.

What is not clearly demonstrated in this record is the purpose of the payments made by Corn State to the individuals employed by Farmland and IBP. It is clear, however, that the receipt of such payments was not known to the employers of the individuals and certainly Farmland and IBP received no benefit from these payments. Had it been known, they would have been discharged in the case of Robert Ingram, and discharged sooner in the cases of Joseph Sixta and Donald Erickson. Therefore, it can be only concluded that these payments by respondents Prince and Wiggs were made sub rosa for an illegitimate purpose, i.e., influencing these individuals to provide favorable concessions in their dealing with Corn State's purchases. Corn State's inducing or bribing these individuals to obtain favorable concessions for Corn State disadvantages other purchasers competing with Corn State and undermines the sale structure of the sellers. Each of the individuals receiving payments from respondents Prince and Wiggs were in charge of sales for their respective products. Each were open to inducement by respondents to provide favorable terms or prices in their sales to Corn State. In some instances involving Messrs. Ingram and Sixta payments were made on the basis of a percentage of the profit Corn State earned on the resale of the meat products purchased from Farmland and IBP. This is corroborated in the record where it is shown that odd amounts of money, down to the last penny, were paid to Robert Ingram (CX-1, p. 1; CX-5, p. 1) and Joseph Sixta (CX-2, p. 1; CX-6, p. 1). Other round dollar amounts, $200, $500, $1,000, although not a specific percentage of profit earned by Corn State on its resales, appear to be a fixed pattern of fees still based on the amount of profit. For example, $500 was designated for Robert Ingram on profits of Corn State sales ranging from $2,288.85 to $8,160.42 (CX-5, p. 1), while amounts ranging from $90 to $250 were paid to Joesph Sixta (CX-2, p. 1; CX-6, p. 1). It is noted here that, although amounts paid to Donald Erickson can be traced to Corn State's account no. 74, "Consultant Fees-Brokerage Fees", there are no invoices of record to which these payments may be connected. However, they were acknowledged by Mr. Erickson as being "considerations" paid to him by Corn State. Such "considerations" caused him to request termination of his employment with IBP because of the further acknowledgement by Mr. Erickson that he had violated IBP's conflict of interest policy.

From the record as a whole it must be concluded that the payments by respondents Prince and Wiggs to the employees of Farmland and IBP can only be considered commercial bribery, i.e., payments made to employees or agents of buyers or seller, without benefit to their employer, and without the employer's knowledge and consent, in order to induce or hold patronage. In re National Beef Packing Company, 36 A.D. 1722, aff'd 605 F.2d 167 (10th Cir. 1979). Such activity has long been established as an unfair trade practice by the USDA under Section 202 of the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 192), as well as under Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (FTC Act) (15 U.S.C. § 45). Both Sections of these Acts were enacted to prevent unfair trade practices in their incipiency because such practices as commercial bribery lack any redeeming value, evince bad business morals, and have a pernicious effect on competition. Anti-competitive practices properly deemed unfair under the FTC Act also reach Section 202 of the P&S Act. National Beef, supra; In re Gol-Pak Corp., 27 A.D. 228, 234 (1968); In re Hygrade Food Products Corporation, 26 A.D. 825, 830–831 (1967); Armour & Co. v. United States, 402 F.2d 712, 722 (7th Cir. 1968); Standard Distributors v. Federal Trade Commission 211 F2d 7, 13 (1954); Fashion Originator's Guild of America v. Federal Trade Commission, 312 U.S. 457, 463, 466 (1941); Federal Trade Commission v. Cement Institute, 333 U.S. 683, 693 (1948).

Further, unfair trade practices are not confined to those where competitive injury has already resulted, but include those where there is reasonable likelihood that the purpose will be achieved. DeJong Packing Co. v. U.S.D.A., 618 F.2d 1329, 1337 (9th Cir. 1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1061 (1980). See Swift & Co. v. United States, 393 F.2d 247, 253 (7th Cir. 1968); Wilson & Co. v. Benson, 286 F.2d 891, 895 (7th Cir. 1961); cf. FTC v. Brown Shoe Co., 384 U.S. 316, 322 (1966). Since Section 202 of the P&S Act is designed to stop unfair trade practices in their incipiency before competitive injury has been suffered, and to reach special mischief and injury in the meat products industry, actual injury need not be shown. National Beef, supra; Swift & Co., supra; Bruhn's Freezer Meats v. U.S.D.A. 438 F.2d 1332, 1336 (8th Cir. 1971); Central Coast Meats, Inc. v. U.S.D.A., 541 F.2d 1325 (9th Cir. 1976); DeJong Packing, supra; Armour & Co., supra. The likelihood of competitive injury is present here since the bribery injures the employer by depriving him of the maximum obtainable profits, Grace v. E. J. Kozin, 538 F.2d 170 (7th Cir. 1976).

Finally, in a recent decision involving Iowa livestock dealers the court stated: "A practice is 'unfair' under § 213(a) if it injures or is likely to injure competition." Farrow v. USDA, 760 F.2d 211, 214 (8th Cir. 1985). See, also, In re World Wide Meats, Inc., 34 A.D. 71 (1975) (Consent); In re Vernon Calhoun Packing Co., Inc., 34 A.D. 1364 (1975) (Consent).

As is usual in cases of alleged activities to restrain commerce, the Government is without the aid of direct testimony that the defendants entered into any agreement. It is compelled to rely on inferences drawn from their course of conduct as a whole. Interstate Circuit v. United States, 306 U.S. 208, 221, 59 S Ct., 467, 472 (1939); National Beef, supra, at 1735. The inference drawn from all of the evidence of record is that respondents made payments to employees of Farmland and IBP to suborn their fiduciary obligations to these employers, and thus have violated Sections 202(a) and (b) of the Act.

The further inference that must be drawn is an adverse one to the respondents who were present during the entire oral hearing in this matter but did not take the stand to testify. It must be concluded that their silence raises the inference that had they testified their testimony would have been adverse to their position. See In re James Grady, et al. 45 A.D. ___ (January 31, 1986) (Slip Opinion, pp. 65-66); In re Apex Meat Company, 44 A.D. ___ (Sept. 5, 1985) (Slip Opinion, pp. 32-33); In re Mattes Livestock Auction Market, Inc. 42 A.D. 81, 101-102, aff'd, 721 F.2d 1125, 1130 (7th Cir. 1983); In re Stamper, 42 A.D. 20 (1983), aff'd, 722 F.2d 1483 (9th Cir. 1984).

SANCTION

Complainant here seeks a cease and desist order, as well as a civil penalty of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) to be assessed jointly and severally. Severe sanctions for violations of the Department's regulations has been an established policy. In re Braxton Worsley, 33 A.D. 1547, 1556-1571 (1974); see also In re Donald Hageman, S&H Hogs, Inc., et al., 42 A.D. 531, 546 (1983) and cases cited therein. Indeed, as Mr. MacDonald testified, the violations charged, and found, are serious because of their anti-competitive effect on the industry and the undermining of the trust placed in employees buying and selling meat products, as well as consumer trust in the marketing of meats. Mr. MacDonald, representing P&S views, believes that such a large monetary sanction is appropriate and necessary as an effective deterrent in precluding such activities in the industry in the future.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Corn State Meat Company, Inc., hereinafter "Corn State," at all times material herein was an Iowa corporation with its principal place of business located at 916 Grandview Boulevard, Sioux City, Iowa 51101.

(b) Corn State at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of marketing meats, meat food products, or livestock products in an unmanufactured form acting as a wholesale broker, dealer or distributor in commerce; and

(2) A packer, within the meaning and subject to the provisions of the Act.

(c) Corn State is no longer engaged in business.

2. (a) Terrance P. (Terry) Prince, Jr., hereinafter referred to as respondent Prince, is an individual who resides at 134 Cook Drive, Sioux City, Iowa 51103.

(b) Respondent Prince at all times material herein was the president and vice-president and an owner, manager, director and controller of Corn State.

3. (a) James L. Wiggs, hereinafter referred to as respondent Wiggs, is an individual who resides at 2839 Summit Street, Sioux City, Iowa 51104.

(b) Respondent Wiggs at all times material herein was the secretary and treasurer and an owner, manager, director and controller of Corn State.

4. P&P Trading Co. was a brokerage house owned by respondents Prince and Wiggs and located in the same offices occupied by Corn State. Country Products, Ltd., also was a brokerage house which shared the same facilities and which was operated by respondents Prince and Wiggs and Lee Schroeder.

5. Farmland Foods, Inc., hereinafter "Farmland", is a packer headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri.

6. Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., hereinafter "IBP", is a packer headquartered in Dakota City, Nebraska.

7. Robert (Bob) Ingram, is an individual who during the period July 24, 1978, until July 27, 1980, was employed by Farmland as sales manager at Garden City, Kansas. Mr. Ingram was responsible for the sale and marketing of beef products produced by the Garden City plant. He personally handled a number of sales accounts.

8. Joseph L. (Joe) Sixta is an individual who was employed by IBP from prior to March 19, 1979 until October 3, 1984, when he was discharged because of violation of IBP's conflict of interest policy. Officially he was allowed to resign on October 4, 1984. He was the manager in charge of variety meats whose responsibilities included pricing, sales and customer relations.

9. Donald (Don) Erickson is an individual who was employed by IBP from approximately 1972-1973 until October 3, 1984, when he was discharged because of violation of IBP's conflict of interest policy. Officially, he was allowed to resign on October 4, 1984. At the time of his discharge he held the position of vice-president for boxed beef sales. He had certain customers he was responsible for on a daily basis.

10. During the period from at least 1979 up to the present, Farmland has had a policy regarding employee conflicts of interest. That policy states in part:

> No employee shall engage, directly, or indirectly, in any business which is in competition in any area or in any activity with his employer corporation, without the written consent of such employer . . .
> No employee shall accept any gift or gifts except those of limited value from any party engaged in dealings of any kind with his employer corporation.
> It shall be the duty of every employee to promptly notify his supervisor of any present or future holdings or transactions which may be in violation of the foregoing policy or policies (CX-9, Tr. 53).

This conflict of interest policy is communicated to new employees when first hired and is brought to the attention of employees annually.

11. During the period from March 19, 1979, up to the present, IBP has had a policy regarding employee conflicts of interest. The January 26, 1983, written version of that policy states in part:

> It is the policy of IBP not only to avoid any practice that might be detrimental to the corporation's interest, but also to avoid actions or practices that might be so construed. Any employee who believes that any practice in which he is engaged, or of which he is aware, may be so construed should immediately report it to his supervisor and to the Legal Division.
> This policy prohibits employees from accepting any gifts, loans, (other than from established lending institutions), or other favors from business contacts. It also prohibits the acceptance of entertainment (during or after business hours), business lunches and dinners, except when specifically believed beneficial to the Company and on the provision that they be reciprocated on the next appropriate occasion. It further prohibits any other activity which might place an employee of IBP under obligation, or might improperly influence his business judgment, to an outside firm or person who might reasonably expect at a future date to benefit by that obligation (CX-8, p. 4).

This conflict of interest policy was communicated periodically to all upper-level IBP employees, and specifically to Mr. Sixta and Mr. Erickson on various occasions between 1979 and 1983. Both men signed compliance statements acknowledging receipt.

12. During the period January 31, 1979, through March 6, 1981, a total of $59,193.30 in checks and cash was paid by respondents Prince and Wiggs to Robert Ingram. On three occasions, payments were first converted to cash by Ellen "Bobbie" Maximona, the Corn State bookkeeper, who then gave the cash to her employers, respondents Prince and Wiggs, and then made notations in Corn State's account number 74 that such cash payments were given to Robert Ingram.

13. During the period April 21, 1980, through December 9, 1980, a total of $4,427.59 in checks and cash was paid by respondents Prince and Wiggs to Joseph Sixta. On four occasions, the payments were channeled through Lee Schroeder, an employee of respondents. Mr. Sixta acknowledged receiving money from respondents.

14. During the period August 20, 1980, through October 10, 1980, respondents Prince and Wiggs made three payments totaling $2,500.00 to or for the benefit of Donald Erickson.

15. Respondents accounted for these payments to or for the benefit of Robert Ingram, Joseph Sixta and Donald Erickson in their account number 74, titled, "Consultant Fees, Brokerage Fees" (CX-4). There is no credible evidence Mr. Ingram, Mr. Sixta or Mr. Erickson rendered consulting, brokerage or any other legitimate services to respondents.

16. The payments made to Ingram were in fact a designated portion of the profits generated by the Corn State resale of products purchased by Corn State from Farmland. In some instances it appears Ingram got ⅓ of the profits. In other instances, the payments apparently were calculated as an arbitrary portion of the profits, usually $500.00 per load.

17. The payments made to Sixta were in fact a designated portion of the profits generated either by the Corn State resale of IBP products or by the Corn State sale of products to IBP. In most instances the payments apparently were calculated as an arbitrary portion of the profits.

18. Robert Ingram violated Farmland's conflict of interest policy by sharing the profits generated by the Corn State resale of meat products purchased from Farmland. If Mr. Ingram had provided paid consulting services to Corn State (and there is no evidence that he did), that also would have violated Farmland's conflict of interest policy. The executive management of Farmland was unaware Ingram was receiving money from Corn State. If management had been so aware, Ingram's receipt of money from Corn State would have been cause to terminate his employment.

19. Joseph Sixta violated IBP'S conflict of interest policy by sharing in the profits generated by the Corn State resale of meat products purchased from IBP and the Corn State sale of products to IBP. On October 3, 1984, when Mr. Sixta admitted to IBP management that he had violated his employer's conflict of interest policy, he was immediately fired.

20. On October 3, 1984, Donald Erickson admitted to IBP management that he had violated IBP's conflict of interest policy by receiving money from Corn State, a customer and a supplier of IBP, in return for unspecified "considerations". His employment was immediately terminated.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

I. The ALJ's Findings and Inferences Are Supported by the Record.

Respondent Wiggs, the only respondent who filed a response to complainant's appeal, argues that the evidence does not support the ALJ's findings of fact [5] because unreliable hearsay was admitted, and there is no evidence that the payments were made for the purposes of bribery. However, as the ALJ correctly noted (slip op. at 18-19), responsible hearsay is freely admitted in our Department's administrative proceedings, and the hearsay admitted here was of the sort upon which responsible persons are accustomed to rely. Furthermore, even without the hearsay evidence, the record contains adequate documentary evidence and admissions to support the ALJ's inference that the payments were made "sub rosa for an illegitimate purpose, i.e., influencing these individuals to provide favorable concessions in their dealing with Corn State's purchases" (slip op. at 24).

In addition, neither respondent Wiggs nor respondent Prince testified in this proceeding, notwithstanding the fact that both individual respondents were present during the entire hearing (Tr. 5, 191-92). Under the settled principle that has been followed in many proceedings before this Department,[6] and which has been Presumably respondent Wiggs is arguing that the Department failed to prove that the commercial bribery involved here was likely to cause injury.

However, W. Wayne MacDonald, a marketing specialist in the Meat Merchandising Branch of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, with 25 years experience in the meat business (Tr. 173), testified as an expert witness that the commercial bribery involved here would have an anti-competitive effect on the industry and would undermine the trust that the two meat suppliers to respondents (Farmland and IBP) had in their employees (Tr. 166–88). Furthermore, as stated above, the record supports the ALJ's inference that the payments to the employees of IBP and Farmland were made for an illegitimate purpose to influence these individuals to provide favorable concessions in their dealing with respondents. Nonetheless, as shown below, in commercial bribery cases the Department does not have to prove injury or likelihood of injury.

Since the broad terms "unfair," "unjustly discriminatory," and "deceptive" used in §§ 202(a) and 312(a) of the Act are not defined, "their meaning must be determined by the facts of each case within the purposes of the Packers and Stockyards Act." [8] The terms are not so vague or uncertain, however, as to be an unconstitutional delegation of legislative authority.[9]

The Secretary "has broad powers under Section 202(a) with regard to trade practices which are 'unfair' in that they conflict with the basic policies of the various antitrust statutes, even though the practices may not actually violate those statutes." [10] "Section 202(a) should be read liberally enough to take care of the types of anti-competitive practices properly deemed 'unfair' by the

The use of adjectival qualifications such as "unjustly" and "undue" "enjoin the Department and courts to apply a rule of reason in determining the lawfulness of a particular practice under Section 202(a) and (b)." [12]

It has been held that in construing these terms, substantial weight must be given to whether the business activities were carried on "in good faith by normally fair methods not 'heretofore regarded as opposed to good morals because characterized by deception, bad faith, fraud or oppression.' " [13]

Specifically, it is well settled that commercial bribery is an unfair, unjustly discriminatory, and deceptive practice which is violative not only of § 202(a) of the Packers and Stockyards Act, but also the Robinson-Patman amendments to the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. § 13(c)), and it is an unfair practice under § 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. § 45).[14] As stated in In re National Beef Packing Co., 36 Agric. Numerous administrative proceedings have been initiated against the practice by the Federal Trade Commission, resulting in orders prohibiting it. 2 CCH Trade Regulation Reporter, ¶ 7,903.

Likewise, the Packers and Stockyards Administration considers the practice an unfair and deceptive one. Consent and default cease and desist orders have been entered against commercial bribery and related practices. See, e.g., In re Dold Packing Co., 33 A.D. 775 (1974); In re Robel Beef Packers, Inc., 31 A.D. 516 (1972); *In re Ed. Commercial bribery is considered unfair and prohibited by the courts and administrative agencies because of its actual and possible effects on competition in the marketplace. An individual or company which makes payments to the employee of another to influence buying > '. . . interposes an obstacle to the competitive opportunity of other traders which is in no way related to any economic advantage possessed by him.' It is the inevitable consequence of commercial bribery, as it is also with other unfair business practices, that competitors will adopt similar tactics to procure business. 'No matter what the character of the competitors' goods, as far as quality is concerned and in the matter of price, such an organization will find it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to sell the goods upon the basis of their quality and price alone, in the presence of the competitor's entertainment policy . . .' 2 Callman The Law of Unfair Competition Trademarks and Monopolies § 49 (3rd ed. 1968).

The erosive effect was succinctly described by a Packers and Stockyards Administration witness:

> It seems to me that the person making the bribe has kind of the inside track on the business and can exclude competitors because of this relationship with the buyer . . . [P]rice and quality will frequently take a lesser place in making the buying decision when there is consideration of a bribe or gift of some sort. (Tr. 105).

Since commercial bribery is inherently unfair, unjustly discriminatory and deceptive, it is not necessary to show in a particular case that the commercial bribery involved caused injury or was likely to cause injury.

The Department has consistently taken the position that in order to prove that any practice is "unfair" under §§ 202(a) (7 U.S.C. § 192(a)) or 312(a) (7 U.S.C. § 213(a)) of the Act, it is not necessary to prove predatory intent, competitive injury, or likelihood of injury; and that it is the Department's duty to stop unlawful practices in their incipiency prior to actual injury.[15]

A contrary view has been expressed in only a few, atypical cases (four from the Ninth Circuit). In Armour & Co. v. United States, 402 F.2d 712, 717-23 (7th Cir. 1968), involving coupon rebates to ultimate consumers on bacon packages, the Seventh Circuit held that the evidence must show either predatory intent or that the coupon practice was likely to result in injury to competition to be in violation of § 202(a).

In Central Coast Meats, Inc. v. USDA, 541 F.2d 1325, 1327 (9th Cir. 1976) (2-1 decision), in which the Department contended that a packer engaged in an "unfair" practice by being a packer and a dealer, the Ninth Circuit questioned the Secretary's argument that "actual injury need not be shown and that § 202(a) may be used to uproot unfair practices in their incipiency." The court held that "the Secretary must show that the conduct in question [packer-dealing] is likely to produce the sort of injury the Act is designed to prevent" (id.).

In Corona Livestock Auction, Inc. v. USDA, 607 F.2d 811, 814 (9th Cir. 1979), in which the Department contended that a unique method of conducting a livestock sale was "unfair" because livestock buyers present at the sale were not permitted to bid on livestock, but could only accept or reject a predetermined price set by the salesman, who rotated the opportunity to accept or reject the price among the potential buyers, the Ninth Circuit repeated that the Central Coast case requires the agency to establish that a particular practice is "likely to produce the sort of injury the Act is designed to prevent."

In DeJong Packing Co. v. USDA, 618 F.2d 1329, 1336-37 (9th Cir.) (2-1 decision), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1061 (1980), in affirming the Department's position that a group boycott of a livestock auction market by meat packers was an "unfair" practice, the Ninth Circuit held that the agency must show a "reasonable likelihood" of an undue restraint of competition.[16]

The Department does not agree with the decisions in the Central Coast, Corona, and Armour cases,[17] and adheres to its consistent policy set forth above.

In Bosma v. USDA, 754 F.2d 804, 808 (9th Cir. 1984), the court quoted its Central Coast Meats, Inc. holding that the Department must show that the challenged conduct "is likely to produce the sort of injury the Act is designed to prevent." The court found that actual harm resulted when an auction operator purchased livestock from consignments for speculation. Id. 808-09. However, notwithstanding its holding that proof of a likelihood of injury was necessary as to that particular type of violation, the court also held in the same case that the failure of the auction operator to inform [16] In Swift & Co. v. United States, 317 F.2d 53, 56 (7th Cir. 1963), the Judicial Officer had held that proof of injury to competition, as required by § 2(a) of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, was unnecessary to establish a violation of § 202(a) of the Packers and Stockyard Act. The court, however, did not decide whether that conclusion is correct "since it found that the point is academic" (id.).

[17] See In re ITT Continental Baking Co., 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Mar. 18, 1985), final order, 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Oct. 24, 1985) (consent cease and desist order and $10,000 civil penalty); Western Iowa Farms Co. v. Sioux City Stock Yards, 38 Agric. consignors that he was the actual purchaser of their livestock was "inherently unfair" because "the market agent had a fiduciary duty to his consignors," and that such failure "may be considered an 'unfair' or 'deceptive' practice absent a more specific showing of actual harm" (754 F.2d at 809). Hence the Ninth Circuit recognized in Bosma that whether a specific showing of actual harm is necessary depends on the type of violation alleged.

Finally, in Farrow v. USDA, 760 F.2d 211, 215 (8th Cir. 1985), involving an agreement by two competitors not to compete for certain cows at an auction market, the court held that "actual injury" need not be proven because the "purpose of the Act is to halt unfair trade practices in their incipiency, before harm has been suffered." The court said that "the Secretary need only establish the likelihood that an arrangement will result in competitive injury to establish a violation" (id. 215).

If the cases requiring proof of a likelihood of injury are to be followed (which we believe is unsound), they should only be followed in the same types of cases in which the holdings were made. Holdings in all cases should be confined and limited to the facts under consideration when the expressions relied upon were made, and should not be extended to cases where the facts are essentially different. "It is a maxim, not to be disregarded, that general expressions, in every opinion, are to be taken in connection with the case in which those expressions are used." Cohens v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 399 (1821). That principle was applied in Humphrey's Executor v. United States, 295 U.S. 602, 626–27 (1935), with respect to the decision in Myers v. United States, 272 U.S. 52 (1926), in which it is said that the numerous expressions in the Myers case beyond the "narrow point actually decided" do not come within the rule of stare decisis (295 U.S. at 626). Again the principle was followed in Osaka Shosen Kaisha Line v. United States, 300 U.S. 98, 102–04 (1937), with respect to the prior decision in Taylor v. United States, 207 U.S. 120, 124–25 (1907).

Many types of practices have been held to be "unfair" under the Packers and Stockyards Act without any proof of predatory intent or likelihood of injury. For example, it is an "unfair" practice for a livestock market agency to engage in business without a bond irrespective of any likelihood of injury. E.g., In re Hoth, 36 Agric. Dec. 1812, 1817–19 (1977). In Hoth, the livestock market agency contended that there was no need for him to have a bond since he bought livestock only for a large packing agency, which was bonded, and he operated only with the packer's funds and paid for all livestock with checks drawn on the packer. There was no real "likelihood" of injury there, but the market agency's practice of operating without his own bond was, nonetheless, held to be an "unfair" practice.

If proof of a likelihood of injury were required in cases involving the failure of a respondent to have the required bond, all, or almost all, of the bonding violation cases would be dismissed. It would be virtually impossible to predict, in advance, that a particular respondent was likely to go broke owing money for livestock. We know from experience that a number of firms will go broke each year and that without the required bond, there will be injury to livestock sellers. But we do not have a crystal ball to enable us to make a finding of fact that the failure of a particular respondent to have a bond is likely to result in injury.

Similarly, careless or deliberate false weighing is an "unfair" practice under the Act irrespective of any proof of predatory intent or likelihood of injury.[18] Anyone who thinks that the likelihood of injury in a false weighing case is obvious is unaware of the intricacies of false weighing violations. For example, a livestock buying station might increase the price to compensate for the short weight, or regular buyers at a livestock auction market, who would know of the short weights, might increase their bids in consideration of the short weights. All false weighing is routinely held to be an "unfair" practice, without proof as to whether there is a likelihood of injury, and in many cases, it would have been difficult, if not impossible, to prove such a likelihood.

Similarly, with respect to custodial account violations, the Department has always taken the position that it is an unfair practice for a livestock auction market to fail to properly maintain a Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds irrespective of any likelihood of injury.[19] And in custodial account violation cases, the Department has never been required to prove a likelihood of injury.[20] For example, in Daniels v. United States, 242 F.2d 39, 40–42 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 354 U.S. 939 (1957), the court held:

> The improper handling and use of the shippers' proceeds is plainly contrary to the Act, 7 U.S.C.A. §§ 205, 208 and 213(a), and of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.40–201.42.) The argument that there is no evidence of any particular shipper not being paid, is not controlling. It is the duty of a regulatory agency to prevent potential injury by stopping unlawful practices in their incipiency. Proof of a particular injury is not required. Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam Co., 316 U.S. 149, 152, 62 S.Ct. 966, 86 L.Ed. 1336; Fashion Originators' Guild of America v. Federal Trade Commission, 312 U.S. 457, 466, 668, 61 S.Ct. 703, 85 L.Ed. 949.

Similarly, in Bowman v. USDA, 363 F.2d 81, 85 (5th Cir. 1966), the court held:

> And the Act is designed to "* * * prevent potential injury by stopping unlawful practices in their incipiency. Proof of a particular injury is not required." Daniels v. United States, 7 Cir., 1957, 242 F.2d 39, 42.

In fact, in most custodial account cases, the Department would be unable to prove a likelihood of injury. Although we know from experience that about 10 to 20 auction markets go broke each year, and that about 3 to 6 of them will not have a bond adequate to cover the total losses, we do not have a crystal ball that would enable us to make a finding of fact that the failure of a particular respondent to maintain his custodial account properly is likely to result in injury.

As stated in Campbell, "The Packers and Stockyards Act Regulatory Program," in 1 Davidson, Agricultural Law 282 (1981) (footnotes omitted):

1974); In re Bowman, 23 Agric. Dec. 1065, 1068–71 (1964); In re Bowman, 23 Agric. Dec. 1074, 1086–87 (1964), aff'd, 363 F.2d 81, 85–86 (5th Cir. 1966).

> The fact that no one suffered from a particular custodial account shortage is no defense, since it is the duty of the Packers and Stockyards agency to prevent potential injury by stopping unlawful practices in their incipiency. However, if the likelihood of injury test as applied in some judicial decisions were applied to custodial account violations, most of the complaints filed alleging custodial account violations would be dismissed. Rarely would it be possible to prove that injury would likely result from a particular custodial account shortage. Usually there would be a reasonable expectation that the time lag between the writing and cashing of the checks would prevent a default. Frequently there would be a line of credit from the bank. Almost always there would be a bond that could be relied on to cover part of any losses.
> The most that could be shown is that if all or many of the market agencies selling livestock generally had custodial account shortages, there would be a likelihood that some of them would result in injury. Accordingly, it is the department's position that where there is a custodial account shortage, there is no need to show injury or likelihood of injury in a particular case. No court has required proof of a likelihood of injury in custodial account violation cases.

Accordingly, even if the cases under the Packers and Stockyards Act requiring proof of predatory intent or likelihood of injury were regarded as sound with respect to the types of violations involved in those cases, there are many other types of violations under the Packers and Stockyards Act where predatory intent or likelihood of injury has never been required.

Commercial bribery is, manifestly, unfair, unjustly discriminatory and deceptive, and is violative of § 202(a) of the Act irrespective of proof of injury or likelihood of injury. But if it were necessary to prove a likelihood of injury, this record would support such a finding.

III. A $50,000 Civil Penalty is Appropriate.

It is the policy of this Department to impose severe sanctions for serious or repeated violations of any of the regulatory programs administered by the Department to serve as an effective deterrent not only to the respondents, but also to other potential violators. This policy has been followed in all of the Department's disciplinary proceedings since the early 1970's.

The basis for the Department's severe sanction policy is set forth at great length in numerous decisions, e.g., In re Worsley, 33 Agric. Dec. 1547, 1556-71 (1974),[21] which is set forth as Appendix A to this decision.[22] The Department's sanction policy is also discussed at length in In re Esposito, 38 Agric. Dec. 613, 624-65 (1979).

The Act authorizes a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 for each violation. The Act provides (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)):

> (b) . . . The Secretary may also assess a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 for each such violation. In determining the amount of the civil penalty to be assessed under this section, the Secretary shall consider the gravity of the offense, the size of the business involved, and the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business.

In view of the size of the business involved here, the many violations, and the fact that commercial bribery is such a serious offense that it would, if not checked, undermine the entire meat marketing system in the United States, a civil penalty greatly in excess of $50,000 would be warranted here. The ALJ, in determining that

Dec. 1151, 1263-64 (1971), and was further developed in numerous other decisions before it was finalized in In re Miller, 33 Agric. a $25,000 civil penalty should be assessed, stated (Initial Decision at 28):

> Indeed, as Mr. MacDonald testified, the violations charged, and found, are serious because of their anti-competitive effect on the industry and the undermining of the trust placed in employees buying and selling meat products, as well as consumer trust in the marketing of meats. Mr. MacDonald, representing P&S views, believes that such a large monetary sanction [$50,000] is appropriate and necessary as an effective deterrent in precluding such activities in the industry in the future. However, sanctions, as well as being a deterrent, must also be realistic. The monetary sanction sought here is not realistic. Therefore, I find that a monetary civil penalty of $25,000, to be assessed jointly and severally, is a more realistic sanction and at the same time will also accomplish the purpose of a sanction, i.e., act as a deterrent to preclude such activities in the industry for the future.

Since respondents committed at least 29 violations, a civil penalty of at least $290,000 would be within the statutory limitations.

In view of the insidious and destructive nature of commercial bribery, it would not be unreasonable to impose a civil penalty to take away the entire gross profit from the transactions involving commercial bribery.[23] Respondents' gross profit on just a portion of the transactions involved here (those where the documents carry notations that Ingram shared in the "profits") totalled $113,141.27 (CX 5, p. 1).

Considering the large profits that can be made from commercial bribery and the difficulty in detecting such violations, I have serious reservations as to whether the $50,000 civil penalty imposed here is nearly enough to serve as an effective deterrent to future violations. But since complainant asks for no more, and the corporate respondent and respondent Prince did not appeal, the civil penalty in this case will be limited to the amount requested by complainant. If complainant requests larger civil penalties in future similar cases, this case will not be regarded as a precedent limiting the amount of future sanctions.

[23] In some cases, taking away the entire gross profit would not result in a large enough civil penalty. For example, in In re Holiday Food Services, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 8, 1986), the respondent corporation (which bribed the buyers of its meat products) purchased its meat from a corporation owned by the same person who was a co-owner of the respondent corporation, and the respondent corporation showed a continuous loss on its transactions, notwithstanding the advantage gained through commercial bribery.

It should be noted that this case and In re Holiday Food Services, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 8, 1986), also decided this day, are the first litigated cases involving commercial bribery committed after the Act was amended to authorize civil penalties. In Holiday Food Services, a $50,000 civil penalty is also being assessed against a defunct corporation and the individual who was its chief executive officer and 50% owner.

Respondent Wiggs suggests that the penalty is too severe since "[l]ittle people [like respondents] don't go around offering to corrupt big people [like IBP and Farmland]" (Appeal Response at 6). Respondent Wiggs suggests that the impetus for the bribes must have come from IBP and Farmland—not respondents. Although there is no evidence as to who initially suggested the unlawful payments, and the individual respondents did not testify, it would not be a mitigating circumstance if the IBP and Farmland officials suggested the profit-sharing scheme. Commercial bribery is destructive of the meat marketing system in the United States irrespective of who originates the fraudulent scheme.

With respect to "the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business" (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)), the Department has always construed the Act as requiring a respondent to introduce evidence that a civil penalty would affect his ability to remain in business, if the respondent wished such factors considered. See, e.g., In re Peterman, 42 Agric. Dec. ___ (slip op. at 1c) (Dec. 12, 1983), aff'd, No. 84-1053 (10th Cir. Aug. 13, 1985) (respondent allegedly unable to pay $20,000 civil penalty should have introduced evidence to that effect at the hearing); In re Trenton Livestock, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1965, 1982 (1982); In re Thomaston Beef & Veal, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 171, 173 (1980). However, in Bosma v. USDA, 754 F.2d 804 (9th Cir. 1984), the court held that the Department has the burden of producing evidence as to the size of the business involved and the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue to do business.

We believe that the Bosma decision is erroneous, in this respect, for the reasons set forth in the Department's petition for rehearing in Bosma, which is set forth as Appendix B to this decision.[24] In any event, however, this case is distinguishable from Bosma.

[24] In re Upton, 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (slip op. at 32) (Oct. 2, 1985); In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (slip op. at 524-26) (Sept. 20, 1985) (final decision on remand) (respondent should have introduced evidence showing that he could not pay a $10,000 civil penalty).

Respondent Corn State Meat Company, Inc., has been out of business for several years, and there is no indication that it will ever be operative again. Hence the civil penalty imposed in this case cannot have any effect on respondents' ability to continue in business.

The Act requires the Secretary to consider the "size of the business involved," i.e., the business involved in the particular proceeding, and the effect of the penalty on the "person's ability to continue in business," i.e., to continue in the business involved in the proceeding. The Act does not require the Secretary to consider whether the penalty will have an effect on some unrelated business venture not involved in the proceeding.

Since respondents will not continue the Corn State Meat Company, Inc., meat business irrespective of any civil penalty in this case, which is the only relevant business to be considered under the Act, it is irrelevant whether a civil penalty will have any effect on respondents' ability to continue some other business. (The record shows that respondent Prince has been a bartender for the last 2 years (Tr. 188), and contains no evidence as to respondent Wiggs' present employment.) Hence the criterion relating to the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business is not applicable here.

Finally, it should be noted that commercial bribery is so inimical to the meat packing industry that it would be in the best interests of the meat packing industry for any person found to have engaged in commercial bribery to discontinue his meat packing business. Accordingly, a civil penalty imposed for commercial bribery that prevented a person from continuing his meat packing business would be in the public interest. As stated in In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (slip op. at 526) (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand) (8-month suspension order and $10,000 civil penalty):

> The statute only requires that the Secretary "consider . . . the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business" (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)). It does not require that the Secretary refrain from imposing a civil penalty that would adversely affect the person's ability to continue in business where, as here, it is in the public interest that the respondent discontinue his livestock activities subject to the Act.

The civil penalty was properly issued jointly and severally against the respondent corporation and the individuals who own, direct and control the corporation. As stated in In re Pastures, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 395, 397 (1980):

Respondents [i.e., the president of the corporation and his wife, who was the sole owner and secretary-treasurer of the corporation] are in error in believing that an order cannot be issued against them as individuals unless they personally caused the corporation's insolvency by embezzlement or [mis]appropriation of funds. Sebastopol Meat Co. v. Sec. of Agr., 440 F.2d 983, 983-986 (9th Cir. 1971); Bruhn's Freezer Meats of Chicago, Inc. v. U.S.D.A., 438 F.2d 1332, 1342-1343 (8th Cir. 1971); In re Thomaston Beef & Veal, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. [171, 173] (Jan. 30, 1980); In re Norwich Veal & Beef, Inc., 37 Agric. Dec. 1202, 1205 (1978); In re Mid-States Livestock, Inc., 36 Agric. Dec. 172, 192-196 (1977), aff'd, 570 F.2d 701 (8th Cir. 1978); and see Hedrick v. S. Bonaccurso & Sons, Inc., 466 F. Supp. 1025, 1030-1031 (E.D. Pa. 1978); Fillippo v. S. Bonaccurso & Sons, Inc., 466 F. Supp. 1008, 1015-1018 (E.D. Pa. 1978).

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Corn State Meat Company, Inc., its officers, directors, agents and employees, successors and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, and respondents Terrance P. (Terry) Prince, Jr., and James L. Wiggs, individually or as owners, officers or directors of any packer subject to the Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Directly or indirectly giving or offering to give, or permitting or causing to be given, money or anything of more than nominal value to, or for the benefit of, an officer, director, agent, employee or representative of any customer or prospective customer as an inducement to influence any such customer or prospective customer to purchase or promote the purchase of meat, meat food products or livestock products from or through respondents; and

2. Soliciting or accepting favored treatment for respondents, or for any customer or prospective customer of respondents, through the offer or the gift of money or anything of more than nominal value to or for the benefit of any officer, director, agent or employee of a supplier of meat, meat food products or livestock products to respondents or to any customer or prospective customer of respondents.

In accordance with section 203(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)), respondent Corn State Meat Company, Inc., respondent Terrance P. (Terry) Prince, Jr., and respondent James L. Wiggs are hereby assessed, jointly and severally, a civil penalty of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000).

The cease and desist provisions of this order shall become effective as to each respondent on the day after service of this order on such respondent.

The civil penalty shall be paid by certified check made payable to the Treasurer of the United States, and mailed to the Assistant General Counsel, Packers and Stockyards Division, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2446-South, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, not later than the 90th day after service of this order on respondents.

In re: HOLIDAY FOOD SERVICES, INC. and NAT ROCKER. P&S Docket No. 6488. Decided May 8, 1986.

Packer—Commercial bribery—Civil penalty.

The Judicial Officer reversed Chief Judge Campbell's civil penalty determination, and increased the civil penalty assessed jointly and severally against respondents from $25,000 to $50,000. The Administrative Law Judge's cease and desist order was affirmed, as were the findings that respondents engaged in commercial bribery from 1977 to 1982 by making payments to buyers for four firms in connection with meat, meat food products, poultry and poultry products sold by respondents to the firms. Commercial bribery violates §§ 202 (a) and (b) of the Act. The civil penalty may be applied against the corporation and the person who was its chief executive officer, a director, and a 50% shareholder of the corporation. Severe sanction policy was explained. The Bosma decision, requiring the Department to produce evidence as to the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue to do business, is erroneous. But Bosma is irrelevant because respondent corporation is out of business. Commercial bribery is so inimical to the meat packing industry that it would be in the public interest to impose a civil penalty that would adversely affect the person's ability to continue in business. Consent orders are given no weight in determining the sanction to be imposed in a litigated case. Any damage resulting from an agency's press release is not considered in determining the sanction to be imposed.

Thomas C. Heinz, for complainant.
Harry G. Melkonian, Los Angeles, California, for respondents.
John A. Campbell, Chief Administrative Law Judge.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.).* An initial Decision and Order was filed on February 14, 1986, by Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. Campbell (ALJ) in which he found that respondents engaged in "commercial bribery" from 1977 to 1982 by making payments to buyers for four firms in connection with meat, meat food products, poultry and poultry products sold by respondents to the firms. The ALJ ordered respondents to cease and desist from such activities, and respondents were assessed, jointly and severally, a $25,000 civil penalty.

On March 1, 1986, complainant, seeking a $50,000 civil penalty, appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35). On March 24, 1986, respondents filed a cross-appeal. On April 9, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

Oral argument before the Judicial Officer, which is discretionary (7 CFR § 1.145(d)), was requested by respondents, but is denied inasmuch as the issues are not difficult, the case has been thoroughly briefed, and oral argument would seem to serve no useful purpose.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the ALJ's findings and conclusions are adopted as the final decision in this case, with changes too minor to itemize, except that the figure $25,000 is changed to $50,000 in the discussion as to the sanction. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

 The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. CHIEF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION (AS MODIFIED)

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et. seq.), hereafter called the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on February 11, 1985, by the Packers and Stockyards Administration. The complaint alleged that the corporate respondent, under the management, direction and control of the individual respondent, made kickback payments to four employees of meat buyers in Hawaii, thereby violating sections 202(a) and 202(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 192(a), 192(b)). Respondents filed an answer denying that the corporate respondent is a packer within the meaning of and subject to the provisions of the Act, and denied that the company made any kickbacks or that Mr. Rocker managed, directed or controlled the corporation. Respondents alleged that payments to the four employees were for lawful purposes. Respondents also alleged various affirmative defenses.

An oral hearing was held October 22 and 23, 1985, in Los Angeles, California. Respondents were represented by Harry G. Melkonian and Patricia M. Wilson of Buchalter, Nemer, Fields, Chrystie & Younger, Los Angeles, California. Complainant was represented by Thomas C. Heinz, Office of General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. At the close of the hearing, the time was set for the filing of briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Holiday Food Services, Inc., hereafter "respondent Holiday", at all times material herein was a California corporation which was formed in 1976 and continued to operate until mid-1983. To date, the corporation has not been dissolved. Respondent Holiday has engaged in the business of marketing meats, meat food products and poultry products, acting as a wholesale broker, dealer or distributor in commerce, and is a packer within the meaning of and subject to the Act (7 U.S.C. § 191(c)). (Transcript of hearing [Tr.] 317-318, 320)

2. The principal executive and principal business offices of respondent Holiday are at 405 Centinela Avenue, Inglewood, California, where they have been located since the formation of the corporation in 1976. With the exception of petty cash records and other minor records, all books and records of respondent Holiday were maintained at the Inglewood, California, offices. All of respondent Holiday's customers were located in the State of Hawaii.

3. Respondent Holiday shares the same offices, directors, and officers with Holiday Meat and Provision Corporation, which is wholly owned by respondent Nat Rocker.

4. Nat Rocker, hereafter "respondent Rocker", is an individual residing at 4991 Amigo, Tarzana, California 91356. At all times material herein, respondent Rocker was the chief executive officer, a director, and a 50% shareholder of respondent Holiday. Ron Vogel is the other owner but has had no responsibilities in the operation of respondent Holiday since 1980 or 1981. Before that time his only responsibility was to serve as accountant for the company.

I

5. During the period from January 1977, through May of 1983, respondent Holiday sold meat, meat food products, poultry and poultry products to Flagship International, Inc., which purchased the products under the trade name "Sky Chefs" in Hawaii.

6. During the period from January 1977, through May 1983, Sky Chefs employed Nick Rodrigues, Sr., in a capacity which included responsibility for purchasing food products on behalf of his employer. During the same period Sky Chefs purchased meat, meat food products, poultry and poultry products from respondent Holiday, respondents also made monthly payments by check to Nick Rodrigues, Sr., from February 1977, through June 1980, as found in complainant's exhibit (Cx) 2. (See also Tr. 110–111). This exhibit correlates Sky Chefs' monthly purchase payments to respondents, with monthly payments by respondents to Mr. Rodrigues. Thirty-four checks in payment to Rodrigues are listed on the exhibit totalling $11,413.49.

From February 1977 through February 1980, in the vast majority of cases, those monthly payments equalled one percent of the cost of products purchased by Sky Chefs from respondent Holiday during the preceding month. (Cx 2, pp. 1–20; Cx 39, pp. 1–32). The check payments to Rodrigues covering the months of February, March, April, May and June of 1980 were equal to or about equal to two percent of the cost of Sky Chefs' purchases from respondent Holiday. (Cx 2, pp. 21–24; Cx 39, pp. 33–37)

7. The record contains copies of 39 checks [1] issued to Rodrigues (Cx 39, pp. 1–38; Cx 3, p. 14) which total $13,475.57. All but two of these checks were signed by respondent Rocker.

[1] Checks which duplicate those contained in Cx 39 (and Cx 40, 41, and 42 infra,) were not counted; e.g. Cx 4, p.8; Cx 5, p.22, etc.

8. For the years 1978 and 1979, respondent Holiday issued two Internal Revenue Service forms numbered 1096 and 1099 to Rodrigues which total $6,711.87.

9. In addition to the check payments as shown in complainant's exhibits 3 and 39, respondents also made payments in cash to Rodrigues during the period Larry Luxenberg served as Honolulu manager for respondent Holiday. Mr. Luxenberg made these payments upon instructions from respondent Rocker and was reimbursed by respondent Holiday. (Tr. 47-51; Cx 37)

10. Mr. Rodrigues' receipt of payments from respondents violated his employer's conflict of interest policy. (Tr. 79-82; Cx 15)

II

11. During the period from January 1977, through May 1982, respondent Holiday sold meat, meat food products, poultry and poultry products to Kauai Resort Hotel in Hawaii. During this period, Kauai Resort Hotel employed Chris Chang as general manager with purchasing responsibilities for food. Mr. Chang was responsible for the purchases from respondent Holiday.

12. In 1977, Mr. Chang began receiving monthly payments by check from respondents. Beginning in 1980 until May of 1982, the payments were made in cash by Larry Luxenberg. (Tr. 16, 51; Cx 37) Monthly sales summations made by complainant's investigator (Cx 16) show in most cases that check payments to Mr. Chang equalled two percent of the sales by respondent Holiday to Kauai Resort Hotel. Thirty-five checks in payment to Mr. Chang are listed on the exhibit totaling $9,302.41.

13. The record contains copies of 27 checks issued to Chang totaling $8,009.42. (Cx 40, pp. 1-26; Cx 17, p.5) All 27 checks were signed by respondent Rocker.

14. For the years 1978 and 1979, respondent Holiday issued two Internal Revenue Service forms (1096 and 1099) to Chang which total $7,566.42 (Cx 26).

III

15. During the period from April 1979, through January 1980, respondent Holiday sold meat, meat food products, poultry and poultry products to Hawaiian Regent Hotel in Hawaii. During this period, the Hawaiian Regent Hotel employed Richard Albanese as executive chef, with responsibilities which included the purchase of food for the hotel. (Tr. 32-33). During the same period respondents made payments to Richard Albanese approximating one to three percent of the hotel's purchases from respondent Holiday. Monthly sales summations made by complainant's investigator (Cx 27) list five checks in payment to Mr. Albanese totaling $3,392.60.

16. The record contains copies of five checks issued to Albanese also totaling $3,392.60. (Cx 42, pp. 1-5). Four of these checks were signed by Nat Rocker.

17. For the year 1979, respondent Holiday issued an Internal Revenue Service form 1099 to Albanese in the amount of $2,608.60.

18. The receipt by Richard Albanese of these payments from respondents violated his employer's employment policies.

IV

19. During the period from April 1977, through March 1979, respondent Holiday sold meat, meat food products, poultry and poultry products to Plantation Gardens, a resort hotel in Hawaii. The hotel employed Mel Wabinga as a chef with responsibilities for purchasing food for the hotel during this period. Monthly sales summations made by complainant's investigator (Cx 33) list 22 checks in payment to Mr. Wabinga totaling $1,771.08.

20. The record contains copies of 29 checks issued to Wabinga totaling $2,314.08 (Cx 41, pp. 1-26; Cx 34, pp. 1,2,3). Twenty-eight of the 29 checks were signed by Nat Rocker.

21. For the years 1978 and 1979, respondent Holiday issued two Internal Revenue Service forms (1096 and 1099) to Wabinga which total $1,831.21. (Cx 35)

22. If Mr. Wabinga's employers had known about these payments at the time they were made, he would have been fired. (Tr. 92)

CONCLUSIONS

All contentions of the parties (including respondents' objections regarding complainant's reply brief) have been considered in the light of the record evidence. By reason of the above findings of fact, I conclude that respondents violated sections 202(a) and 202(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 192(a), (b)). The respondents are ordered to cease and desist and pay a civil penalty of $50,000.00.

VIOLATIONS

Four buyers, Rodrigues, Chang, Albanese, and Wabinga, were identified as having responsibility for the purchase of meat and meat food products for their employers. All four buyers purchased such products from respondent Holiday and received payments from respondents in the form of checks totaling $27,191.67 (Findings 7,13,16,20). In addition, the record identifies two of the buyers (Rodrigues and Chang) as receiving cash payments from respondents. (Tr. 15-16, 47-51, Cx 37)

Two of the four buyers (Wabinga and Chang) testified at the hearing.

Mr. Wabinga described his business relationship with respondent Holiday at Tr. 266–268, as follows:

> Q. All right. Are you familiar with a company called Holiday Food Services?
> A. Yes, I do.
> Q. How did you become familiar with that company?
> A. Well, someone approached me from the Mainland saying that they're new in Hawaii, that they would like to promote Holiday Food in Hawaii.
> Q. And when did that occur?
> A. Pardon?
> Q. When did that occur?
>
> A. Year, or ——
> Q. In the year, approximately.
> A. Year. I think it's in '78 or '79.
> Q. Okay.
> A. And they asked me that they was going to promote the meat, Holiday foods, in Hawaii, that if I was interested to buy some meat. And I said, "It all depends how much it costs, and, you know, freight-wise, and everything."
> Q. For whom were you working at that time?
> A. At the Plantation Gardens.
> Q. And what was your position?
>
> A. Executive Chef.
> Q. Did your responsibilities include the purchase of meat and meat food products?
> A. Yes.
> Q. Did you decide to purchase meat from Holiday Food Services?
> A. Well, I said, "Yeah, I would like to try." You know, as long as the price is within range I would give them a chance to buy the—buy their meat from them.

Q. And how long did you purchase meat from Holiday Foods?

A. About a year or a year and a half.

Q. Did you receive any payments personally from Holiday Food Services during that period?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. In what form? Did you receive cash payments?

A. No, it's a check, a weekly (ph.) check.

Q. How often?

A. All depends if you order your meat from them they'll give you a check. If you don't order from them—let's say if I have enough and I didn't order from them then I wouldn't receive any.

Q. All right. Why did you receive those payments during that period?

A. Well, they told me they'd give me a little something if I did buy it from them.

Q. I'm sorry, sir, I did not hear your answer.

A. Oh. They told me if I buy meat from them it will be a little cheap and I would have payment for them—from them—for buying meat from them.

Q. And who told you that?

A. Larry Luxenberg. Is that his last name?

Q. I believe there was a man named that associated with Holiday Food.

A. What was his name again?

Q. Larry Luxenberg.

A. Yeah, that's the guy; that's the guy that I talked to, Larry Luxenberg.

Respondents challenge the accuracy of Wabinga's testimony as "confused, ambiguous and unclear." (Brief, p. 11) Respondents base this challenge upon Wabinga's identification of Mr. Larry Luxenberg as the individual he spoke to in 1978 about receiving payments from respondent Holiday. (See also Tr. 270-271)

Mr. Luxenberg owned Lux Foods, which operated in Honolulu until the operation was sold to respondents in 1974. Thereafter, in 1980, he became the general manager of respondent Holiday's operation in Honolulu (Tr. 44-47, 280-281).

While the record discloses no formal relationship between Luxenberg and respondents during the period 1974-1980, and while Wabinga might have been confused about his conversation with Luxenberg in 1978, his testimony about his receipt of check payments from respondents is clear and unambiguous, and is corroborated by his receipt of 29 checks from respondents (Finding 20).

Another buyer, Chris Chang testified. (Tr. 12-29). He testified that he received checks in the period 1976-1979, and cash thereafter through 1982 from Larry Luxenberg. Luxenberg's affidavit (Cx 37) and his testimony (Tr. 51) confirm the payment of cash.

Chang also testified that he understood the payments were for his referrals of respondents to other buyers. Chang made no introduction. He just told respondent's salesmen to "mention my name." (Tr. 26).

Mr. Chang's explanation of the reason for payments is not persuasive. The payments were not sporadic as one might expect from a casual reference here and there, but were monthly payments based in large measure on the volume of sales to his employer. (Findings of Fact 6 and 7).

Buyer Albanese and Rodrigues did not testify and could not be reached by complainant's investigator or refused to be interviewed (Tr. 98, 187-188). However, record evidence shows the receipt of payments, cash and checks to Rodrigues, and checks to Albanese, from respondents. (Findings of Fact 5-9, 15-17). Speculation about possible services rendered by these two buyers is not persuasive.

The totality of the facts contained in the record lead to the conclusion that respondents committed unfair trade practices, commonly called "commercial bribery", and thereby violated Sections 202(a) and 202(b) of the Act [2], by the payments to the four buyers named above.

[2] Sec. 202. It shall be unlawful with respect to livestock, meats, meat food products, livestock products in unmanufactured form, poultry, or poultry products for any packer or any live poultry dealer or handler to:

(a) Engage in or use any unfair, unjustly discriminatory, or deceptive practice or device; or

(b) Make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any particular person or locality in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person or locality to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever; or . . . (7 U.S.C. 192(a), (b)).

As complainant correctly urges (main brief pp. 8–9):

> Commercial bribery offends both morality and the law. It is an evil which destroys the integrity of competition, the heart of commerce, by poisoning the judgment of the people who make business decisions. Bribed purchasing agents do not make their decisions based solely on the comparative merits of competing products available in the marketplace. Their distorted judgment inevitably disadvantages competing products untainted by bribes. The only way the disadvantaged can compete is to offer a bigger bribe, since it becomes difficult, if not impossible, to compete on the basis of price, quality or service. Unchecked, the practice can spread through the market, destroying fair competition everywhere.

Past decisions have established commercial bribery to be a violation of the Act. In re National Beef Packing Co., 36 A.D. 1722 (1977), aff'd, 605 F.2d 1167 (CA 10, 1979)); In re Gol-Pak Corporation, 27 A.D. 228 (1968); In re Hygrade Food Products Corporation, 26 A.D. 825 (1967).

NAT ROCKER

It is respondents' position that the testimony of Nat Rocker clearly establishes his innocence from any wrongdoing. (Brief pp. 18–28).

Of great weight in this proceeding is the fact that of the 100 payment checks to the four buyers, 96 were signed by respondent Rocker. (Findings of Fact 7,13,16,20).

Larry Luxenberg testified about the payments to the buyers, and indicated that such payments were ongoing, existing even before his arrival in Hawaii in 1980. His testimony further indicates that he was reimbursed for cash payments, and that his disbursements were on instructions from Los Angeles. (Tr. 47–51). Luxenberg's affidavit (Cx 37) states that he paid cash to various food buyers "per the instructions of Nat Rocker."

In these circumstances, Nat Rocker cannot assert that the actions of Luxenberg or of the other managers in Hawaii were outside the scope of their employment.

Further, Nat Rocker's testimony of his disinterest, lack of control, and neglect of respondent Holiday Foods is hard to believe when contrasted with his success with and attention to Holiday Meat and Provision Corporation, hereinafter called "Holiday Meat." Respondent owns 100% of the stock of the Holiday Meat Corporation, whose current annual volume of business is about 18 million dollars. (Tr. 277-294, 310-335).

Contrary to respondents' position, the record shows a deep involvement by respondent Rocker in the management of respondent Holiday. Aside from respondent Rocker's issuance of checks and instructions to Luxenberg, previously discussed, the record discloses that Rocker, and/or his California office: maintained all the books and records for respondent Holiday (Tr. 48, 68, 327-329); did most of the purchasing (Tr. 322-324); gave detailed and daily instructions to the Honolulu office of respondent Holiday (Tr. 48; Cx 37); and regularly discussed profits and losses with the Hawaii managers. (Tr. 328-33)

Respondent Rocker cannot avoid personal responsibility here. The record demonstrates that he was responsible for the operation of the respondent corporation. In re Pastures, Inc., 39 A.D. 395, and cases cited at 397 (1980).

SANCTION

The respondents' violations are serious and repeated. Section 203(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)) authorizes a civil penalty of $10,000 for each violation of the Act.

In consideration of the gravity of the violations, the size of the business involved, and the effect upon the ability to remain in business, a civil penalty in the amount of $50,000.00 is imposed, in addition to an order to cease and desist.

Respondents' competitors, and the customers involved herein, were injured by respondents' violations. As noted above, the violations were serious and repeated, thus requiring the imposition of a severe sanction.

While complainant was not successful in gathering financial information fromrespondents (Tr. 337-339), the record does reveal the following:

a. Respondent Holiday is defunct, and its dissolution is anticipated. Thus the sanction imposed may possibly be levied solely against respondent Rocker.

b. Respondent Holiday suffered a loss of about $800,000 which is owing to Holiday Meats (Tr. 322).

c. Holiday Meats, wholly owned by respondent Rocker, is a successful enterprise, with a current annual volume of business of 18 million dollars. (Tr. 316, 320)

Accordingly, it would appear that the imposition of a $50,000.00 civil penalty is clearly warranted in light of the nature and seriousness of the violations committed.

Likewise, the amount of the civil penalty, though large enough to deter future violations by respondents and other potential violators, will not adversely affect respondent Rocker's ability to remain in business.

For the foregoing reasons the following order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

For the reasons set forth by the ALJ, respondents' violations are serious and repeated, occurring continuously over a 5-year period.

It is the policy of this Department to impose severe sanctions for serious or repeated violations of any of the regulatory programs administered by the Department to serve as an effective deterrent not only to the respondents, but also to other potential violators. This policy has been followed in all of the Department's disciplinary proceedings since the early 1970's.

The basis for the Department's severe sanction policy is set forth at great length in numerous decisions, e.g., In re Worsley, 33 Agric. Dec. 1547, 1556-71 (1974),[3] which is set forth as Appendix A to this decision.[4] The Department's sanction policy is also discussed at length in In re Esposito, 38 Agric. Dec. 613, 624-65 (1979).

[3] The Department's severe sanction policy did not originate with Worsley, but, rather, was mentioned briefly in the first decision issued by the present Judicial Officer, In re Henner, 30 Agric. Dec. 1151, 1263-64 (1971), and was further developed in numerous other decisions before it was finalized in In re Miller, 33 Agric. Dec. 53, 64-80 (1974), aff'd per curiam, 498 F.2d 1088 (5th Cir. 1974).

Respondents argue that "[t]here is nothing left to deter" since "Holiday Food no longer exists" (Cross-Appeal at 7). But that argument overlooks the fact that the Department's sanction policy is meant to deter other potential violators, as well as the particular respondents involved in a pending proceeding.

Respondents contend that the $25,000 civil penalty assessed by the ALJ is too severe in view of respondents' financial condition (Cross-Appeal at 9-12). The Act authorizes a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 for each violation. The Act provides (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)):

> (b) . . . The Secretary may also assess a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 for each such violation. In determining the amount of the civil penalty to be assessed under this section, the Secretary shall consider the gravity of the offense, the size of the business involved, and the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business.

The Department has always construed the Act as requiring a respondent to introduce evidence that a civil penalty would affect his ability to remain in business, if the respondent wished such factors considered. See, e.g., In re Peterman, 42 Agric. Dec. ____ (slip op. at 1c) (Dec. 12, 1983), aff'd, No. 84-1053 (10th Cir. Aug. 13, 1985) (respondent allegedly unable to pay $20,000 civil penalty should have introduced evidence to that effect at the hearing); In re Trenton Livestock, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1965, 1982 (1982); In re Thomaston Beef & Veal, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 171, 173 (1980). However, in Bosma v. USDA, 754 F.2d 804 (9th Cir. 1984), the court held that the Department has the burden of producing evidence as to the size of the business involved and the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue to do business.

We believe that the Bosma decision is erroneous, in this respect, for the reasons set forth in the Department's petition for rehearing in Bosma, which is set forth as Appendix B to this decision.[5] In any event, however, this case is distinguishable from Bosma.

Respondent Holiday Food Services, Inc., has been out of business for several years, and respondent Rocker contends that he is planning to dissolve that corporate business. Hence the civil penalty imposed in this case cannot have any effect on respondent Rocker's ability to continue the Holiday Food Services business.

[5] In re Upton, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238 (slip op. at 32) (Oct. 2, 1985); In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238 (slip op. at 524-26) (Sept. 20, 1985) (final decision on remand) (respondent should have introduced evidence showing that he could not pay a $10,000 civil penalty).

The Act requires the Secretary to consider the "size of the business involved," i.e., the business involved in the particular proceeding, and the effect of the penalty on the "person's ability to continue in business," i.e., to continue in the business involved in the proceeding. The Act does not require the Secretary to consider whether the penalty will have an effect on some unrelated business venture not involved in the proceeding.

Since respondent Rocker will not continue the Holiday Food Services, Inc., meat business irrespective of any civil penalty in this case, which is the only relevant business to be considered under the Act, it is irrelevant whether a civil penalty will have any effect on respondent Rocker's ability to continue his Holiday Meat & Provision Corporation business.

Furthermore, it should be noted that complainant's investigator repeatedly requested financial information relating to Holiday Food Services, Inc., and Holiday Meat & Provision Corporation, but respondents failed to supply the requested information (with the exception of one tax return) (Tr. 186–87, 337–40). This, again, is a circumstance that distinguishes this case from Bosma.

In addition, even if it were relevant to determine whether a $50,000 civil penalty will affect respondent Rocker's ability to continue his separate business as Holiday Meat & Provision Corporation, he has failed to demonstrate on the record that such a civil penalty would prevent him from continuing to operate that business.[6]

Finally, it should be noted that commercial bribery is so inimical to the meat packing industry that it would be in the best interests

[6] The "Declaration of Nat Rocker" attached to respondents' cross-appeal, relating to the financial condition of his businesses, was not introduced as evidence and, therefore, cannot be considered on appeal. Also, there is no basis for reopening the hearing to receive evidence in this respect since the Department's uniform rules of practice applicable to disciplinary proceedings (7 CFR § 1.146(a)(2)) requires the same type of showing, in this respect, as court rules relating to newly discovered evidence. In re DeJong Packing Co., 36 Agric. Dec. 1319, 1320 (1977) (order denying rehearing), aff'd, 618 F.2d 1329 (9th Cir.) (2–1 decision), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1061 (1980); In re Mountainside Butter & Egg Co., 38 Agric. of the meat packing industry if any person found to have engaged in commercial bribery discontinued his meat packing business. Accordingly, a civil penalty imposed for commercial bribery that prevented a person from continuing his meat packing business would be in the public interest. As stated in In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (slip op. at 526) (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand):

> The statute only requires that the Secretary "consider . . . the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business" (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)). It does not require that the Secretary refrain from imposing a civil penalty that would adversely affect the person's ability to continue in business where, as here, it is in the public interest that the respondent discontinue his livestock activities subject to the Act.

Respondents contend that the evidence is weak as to respondent Rocker's personal involvement in the violations, but the ALJ, who saw and heard the witnesses testify, found it "hard to believe" Nat Rocker's "testimony of his disinterest, lack of control, and neglect of respondent Holiday Foods" (Initial Decision at 17). There is no basis in the record for setting aside his determination in this respect.

In addition, the ALJ correctly held that an order may be issued against an individual, in the circumstances shown here (Initial Decision at 18), citing In re Pastures, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 395, 397 (1980). In Pastures, it is stated (id.):

> Respondents [i.e., the president of the corporation and his wife, who was the sole owner and secretary-treasurer of the corporation] are in error in believing that an order cannot be issued against them as individuals unless they personally caused the corporation's insolvency by embezzlement or [mis]appropriation of funds. Sebastopol Meat Co. v. Sec. of Agr., 440 F.2d 983, 983-986 (9th Cir. 1971); Bruhn's Freezer Meats of Chicago, Inc. v. U.S.D.A., 438 F.2d 1332, 1342-1343 (8th Cir. 1971); In re Thomaston Beef & Veal, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. [171, 173] (Jan. 30, 1980); In re Norwich Veal & Beef, Inc., 37 Agric. Dec. 1202, 1205 (1978); In re Mid-States Livestock, Inc., 36 Agric. Bonaccurso & Sons, Inc.,* 466 F. Supp. 1008, 1015-1018 (E.D. Pa. 1978).

Respondents contend that in a recent case brought against Dubuque Packing Company, in which Dubuque was charged with paying over $80,000 in commercial bribes, a $30,000 civil penalty was assessed (In re Dubuque Packing Co., 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (Dec. 13, 1985)), which is about one-third the amount of the bribes paid, whereas a $50,000 civil penalty in this case would be almost twice as much as the proven bribes paid. However, it is well settled that consent orders "should be given no weight whatsoever in determining the sanction to be imposed in a litigated case" (In re Worsley, 33 Agric. Dec. 1547, 1569 (1974)), Appendix A at 23a. Furthermore, there is no policy of imposing a civil penalty in commercial bribery cases equal to a certain percentage of the amount of the bribes paid. (That is not one of the criteria set forth in the statute). In fact, since this is the first litigated case involving commercial bribery that has been decided by this Department after the Act was amended to authorize civil penalties, there is no prior precedent.[7]

In another case involving commercial bribery, in which the Decision and Order is being filed this day, a $50,000 civil penalty is also being imposed jointly and severally against a defunct corporation and two individuals. In re Corn State Meat Co., 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (May 8, 1986). In Corn State, concern is expressed as to whether a $50,000 civil penalty is adequate to serve as an effective deterrent to commercial bribery (in view of the large profits that can be made from commercial bribery and the difficulty of detection). I have the same concern here. If complainant requests greatly increased sanctions in future similar cases, much larger civil penalties will be imposed.

Respondents contend that they have already suffered damage because of the Department's press release issued in this case, but it is well settled that any damage resulting from an agency press release is not considered in determining the sanction to be imposed in a proceeding.[8]

In Butz v. Glover Livestock Comm'n Co., 411 U.S. 182, 188 (1973), the Court upheld a suspension order under the act notwithstanding the "damaging publicity" issued by the agency. Accord, Miller v. Butz, 498 F.2d 1088, 1089 (5th Cir. 1974) (per curiam); Bowman v. USDA, 363 F.2d 81, 86 (5th Cir. 1966).

Although there is no basis on this record for reducing the amount of the civil penalty to be imposed because of respondents' financial condition, complainant does not object to the payment of the civil penalty over a period of years. Accordingly, the order will provide for payment of the $50,000 civil penalty over a period of 4 years.

No contention is made by respondents that complainant was required to prove actual injury or likelihood of injury in order to prove a violation of § 202(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 192(a)), and the issue cannot be raised at this late date in this case. But since that issue is raised in In re Corn State Meat Co., 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (May 8, 1986), also decided this day, the discussion of that issue in Corn State is set forth as Appendix C to this decision.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Holiday Food Services, Inc., its officers, directors, agents and employees, successors and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, and respondent Nat Rocker, individually or as owner, officer or director of any packer subject to the Act, shall cease and desist from directly or indirectly giving or offering to give, or permitting or causing to be given money or anything of more than nominal value to, or for the benefit of, an officer, director, agent, employee or representative of any customer or prospective customer as an inducement to influence any such person to purchase or promote the purchase of meat, meat food products, poultry or poultry products from or through respondents.

In accordance with section 203(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)), respondents are hereby assessed, jointly and severally, a civil penalty of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000).

The cease and desist provisions of this order shall become effective as to each respondent on the day after service of this order on such respondent.

The civil penalty shall be paid at the rate of $12,500 per year by certified checks made payable to the Treasurer of the United States, and mailed to the Assistant General Counsel, Packers and Stockyards Division, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2446-South, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, with the first check due not later than the 90th day after service of this order on respondents, and the remaining checks due on the same date of the next 3 years thereafter.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a Complaint and Notice of Hearing filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents wilfully violated the Act. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the Complaint and Notice of Hearing and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Ole Salem Packing Co., Inc., hereinafter referred to as the corporate respondent, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Mississippi. Corporate respondent's mailing address is P. O. Box 1018, Picayune, Mississippi 39466.

2. The corporate respondent, at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of buying livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter and preparing meats for sale and shipment in commerce; and

(b) A packer within the meaning of and subject to the provisions of the Act.

3. Gregory H. Mitchell, hereinafter referred to as the individual respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is P. O. Box 1018, Picayune, Mississippi 39466.

4. The individual respondent, at all times material herein, was:

(a) An owner, in combination with his wife, of all the corporate respondent's stock;

(b) President of the corporate respondent; and

(c) Responsible for the direction, management and control of the business activities of the corporate respondent.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Ole Salem Packing Co., Inc., its officers, directors, agents, successors and assigns, and Gregory H. Mitchell, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with their business subject to the Act, shall cease and desist from failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock.

In accordance with section 203(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)), respondents are hereby severally and jointly assessed a civil penalty of One Thousand Eight Hundred Dollars ($1,800.00).

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this order on the respondents.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a Complaint and Notice of Hearing filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the Complaint and Notice of Hearing and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Harry Brody & Sons, Inc., hereinafter referred to as corporate respondent, is a corporation which had its principal place of business at 3451 Frankford Avenue, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. It is no longer in operation.

2. Corporate respondent at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of manufacturing and preparing meat and meat food products for sale and shipment in commerce; and

(b) A packer within the meaning and subject to the provisions of the Act.

3. Herbert S. Small, hereinafter referred to as individual respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is 1209 Stratford Avenue, Melrose Park, Pennsylvania 19126.

4. Individual respondent at all times material herein was:

(a) President of the corporate respondent;

(b) Owner of 100% of the outstanding stock of the corporate respondent;

(c) Responsible for the direction, management and control of the corporate respondent; and

(d) A packer within the meaning and subject to the provisions of the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondents Harry Brody & Sons, Inc., its officers, directors, agents and employees, and Herbert S. Small, directly or through any corporate or any device, in connection with the purchase, sale, or distribution of meat or meat food products, shall cease and desist from directly or indirectly;

1. Invoicing and collecting from the purchasers of livestock carcasses or parts thereof on the basis of inaccurate or incorrect weights;

2. Invoicing and collecting from the purchasers of livestock carcasses or parts thereof on the basis of a weight which includes trim weight without obtaining the purchasers' consent to the inclusion of trim weight in the invoice weight;

3. Attempting to enter into, continuing, cooperating in or carrying out any conspiracy, agreement, arrangement or understanding with any officer, agent, director, or employee of any customer or prospective customer which involves the offering or giving by respondent of any money or gift of more than nominal value to or for the benefit of any such officer, agent, director, or employee of the customer or prospective customer based upon or related to the purchase of livestock, meats or meat food products by such customer or prospective customer from respondent; and

4. Attempting to induce or cause, inducing or causing, accepting or receiving favored treatment or undue preference or advantage related to the purchase, sale, or marketing of meat or meat food products, in commerce, from any customer or prospective customer based on the offering or giving by respondent, its officers, agents, directors, employees, or brokers who represent it, of money or any gift or service of more than nominal value to or for the benefit of any customer, prospective customer, or their officers, agents, directors, or employees.

In accordance with section 203(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C § 193(b)), respondents are jointly and severally assessed a civil penalty in the amount of $20,000.00, which shall be held in abeyance, provided, however, that if respondents violate this order within five (5) years from its effective date, the full amount shall immediately become due and payable.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this order on the respondents.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq., hereinafter "the Act,"), that was instituted by a complaint and notice of hearing filed on May 8, 1985, which alleges that respondent engaged in unfair and deceptive trade practices in connection with its purchases of livestock.

The complaint alleges that during the period January 31, 1983 through December 29, 1983, respondent violated the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 192(a) and 221) and regulations thereunder (9 C.F.R. §§ 201.73-1 and 201.99) when (1) it accounted and paid for livestock purchased on a carcass weight basis that included a tare which exceeded by five pounds the actual weight of the equipment (hooks and rollers) attached to the carcasses when weighed; (2) used hooks and rollers which were not uniform in weight; and (3) did not record the weight of the carcasses to the nearest minimum graduation on its scale.

Respondent filed an answer dated May 24, 1985, admitting the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint, but denying its commission of any violation. Subsequent to the holding of prehearing conferences and prehearing exchanges of proposed exhibits and witness lists, an oral hearing was held before me on December 3-4, 1985. Complainant was represented by Peter V. Train, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, and respondent was represented by Raquel Romero, Weltchek, Prupis & Ritz, Elizabeth, New Jersey.

At the close of the oral hearing, a schedule for the filing of proposed findings of fact, conclusions, and supporting briefs was set. Briefing was completed on March 24, 1986.

Upon consideration of the entire record, briefs, and arguments, I have found that respondent did improperly account and pay for cattle on the basis of improper weighing practices. An order is being entered which directs respondent to cease and desist from such practices, specifies the manner in which respondent shall keep accounts and records in the future, and assesses a civil penalty against respondent of $20,000.00.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Linden Packing Co., Inc., is a corporation which has a principal place of business at 324 Astor Street, Newark, New Jersey 07114.

2. Respondent is, and at all times material herein, was:

(a) engaged in the business of buying livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter; and

(b) a packer within the meaning of and subject to the provisions of the Act.

3. Respondent has been in the meat packing business for over 30 years and its current Vice-President, Jack Rosenberg, is responsible for its day-to-day operations.

4. Respondent, at all times material herein, purchased a portion of its livestock on a carcass weight basis.

5. Respondent, at all times material herein, weighed its livestock purchases after their conversion into carcasses, on a Toledo monorail dial scale which depicted weights in one pound graduations, with odd numbers indicated by lines without numbers and even number indicated by both lines and numbers.

6. Respondent's plant, at all times material herein, employed a gravity dressing system in which carcasses travel on a gravity rail until they reach a washing station where they are cleansed by a pressure hose. They are then weighed on the Toledo monorail dial scale, after which they are moved into a cooler. Respondent considered installing automatic washing equipment which would have washed the carcasses after weighing, but was advised that this was not feasible due to the low water table of the land upon which the plant was built.

7. On February 9, 1968, after giving notice and considering comments by industry members and all interested persons, the Department of Agriculture, promulgated the following regulation (33 F.R. 2760-2763, 9 C.F.R. § 201.99(d)):

> "Settlement and final payment for livestock purchased by a packer on a carcass weight or carcass grade and weight basis shall be on the actual hot weights. The hooks, rollers and gambrels or other similar equipment used at a packing establishment in connection with the weighing of carcasses of the same species of livestock shall be uniform in weight. The tare shall include only the weight of the equipment."

8. Departmental personnel, based upon the advice of the manufacturers of the Toledo monorail dial scale, have determined that it is reasonable to maintain the equipment in such condition that a variance of two ounces either above or below the average weight of a plant's hooks and rollers is the acceptable tolerance for its hooks and rollers to still be considered uniform in weight.

9. On May 19, 1982, Elizabeth Hughes, a marketing specialist for the Packers and Stockyards Administration, went upon respondent's premises and conducted a test of a sample of respondent's hooks and rollers which revealed that forty-two percent of those in the sample varied by more than two ounces from the average weight. She also observed that the tare setting on the scale was 20 pounds; whereas, the average weight of the hooks and rollers attached to carcasses when weighed, on the basis of those she sampled, should have been 14 pounds 12 ounces. She was advised that 5 pounds were added to the tare as a compensating deduction for the water added during the washing operation.

10. On May 20, 1982, a regional supervisor for the Packers and Stockyards Administration, sent respondent a letter by certified mail, return receipt requested, (Complainant's Exhibit 3) advising respondent:

> "Recently a survey was conducted at your plant to determine your firm's compliance with the Packers and Stockyards Act and regulations when buying livestock on a dressed weight basis.
> "During the survey, certain discrepancies were found and discussed with you.
> "You agreed to discontinue deducting five pounds for water when purchasing livestock on a dressed weight basis and to identify and keep captive enough hooks and rollers for your weekly hot dressed weight purchases. These captive hooks must be standardized to plus or minus two ounces from their average weight and the tare on your scale set accordingly.

"It will also be necessary to record the number of livestock bought on a dressed weight basis in Section 5, Item 6, of your annual report.

"Please notify this office of the steps you are taking to implement the above requirements.

"If you have any questions, feel free to call this office at 201-246-0060."

11. Approximately one week subsequent to the May 20, 1982 letter, Ms. Hughes telephoned Mr. Rosenberg and inquired as to his actions to achieve compliance and he then advised that respondent would discountinue purchasing livestock on a dressed weight basis. A month later, Ms. Hughes spoke to Mr. Rosenberg by telephone again and he told her he had changed his mind and would continue to purchase livestock on a dressed weight basis; he was advised by Ms. Hughes that respondent would have to come into compliance.

12. Respondent's annual report for October 1, 1982 through September 30, 1983, reveals a blank space where the form requires a packer to identify its total livestock purchases during the period that were paid for on a dressed carcass basis.

13. On December 21, 1983, Vincent DiBernardo, an industrial specialist for the Packers and Stockyards Administration, went upon respondent's premises and conducted a test of a sample of respondent's hooks and rollers which revealed that sixty-five percent of those in the sample varied by more than two ounces from the average weight. He also observed that the tare setting on the scale was 20 pounds; whereas the average weight of the hooks and rollers attached to carcasses when weighed, on the basis of those he sampled, should have been 14 pounds 8 ounces.

14. In January of 1984, Ms. Hughes again went upon respondent's premises and again observed the tare setting to be 20 pounds and, believing it to be at least 5 pounds in excess of the weight of the hooks and rollers, she discussed the setting with Jack Rosenberg who told her he took 5 pounds additional tare to compensate for the water added to the carcasses when washed immediately prior to being weighed.

15. In the course of its purchase of livestock on a carcass weight basis, during the period January 31, 1983 through December 29, 1983, respondent customarily weighed carcasses with a tare setting that exceeded, by five pounds, the weight of the rollers and hooks attached to the carcasses; paid sellers and issued accountings to them based on such weights without informing them of this practice; and used hooks and rollers that were not uniform in weight. In respect to one seller alone, Fern Baker, from September 27, 1983 through December 29, 1983, respondent paid the seller $6,751.37 less than required by taking the five pound deduction for water in respect to its weighing of 1701 cattle carcasses.

16. During 1983, respondent's weighmaster always reported the individual carcass weights of livestock purchased on a carcass weight basis in terms of even numbers and never in terms of odd numbers.

17. As part of its annual report for the fiscal year that ended on September 30, 1983, respondent filed financial statements showing its sales for the year were just under 74 million dollars, its gross profits were over 3 million dollars, and its income before income tax was 1.5 million dollars.

CONCLUSIONS

1. (a) Respondent engaged in an unfair and deceptive practice and device in violation of 7 U.S.C. § 192(a) and 9 C.F.R. § 201.99, each time during the period January 31, 1983 through December 29, 1983, when it settled and made final payment for livestock purchased on a carcass weight basis that was not limited to the actual hot weights, but included as part of the tare, an additional five pounds for water and exceeded by that amount, the weight of the hooks, rollers and other equipment used in connection with respondent's weighing of the carcasses.

(b) Pursuant to 7 U.S.C. § 193(b), an order requiring respondent to cease and desist from continuing such violations is warranted and is being entered. Inasmuch as sellers were unaware of this practice, the fact that respondent had been given a prior warning but persisted in the practice, committed in excess of 1700 violations (see finding number 15, supra), and the fact that respondent's annual sales for the fiscal year which ended on September 30, 1983 was nearly 74 million dollars with a gross profit of over 3 million dollars, a civil penalty of $20,000.00 is also being assessed which will not affect respondent's ability to continue in business, and is well below the maximum amount that may be assessed under the Act's authorization of $10,000.00 per violation, but is sufficient to impress respondent with the gravity of the offense and the need for future compliance.

2. (a) Respondent further violated 7 U.S.C. § 192(a) and 9 CFR § 201.99, each time during the period January 31, 1983 through December 29, 1983, when it used hooks and rollers which were not uniform in weight.

(b) Pursuant to 7 U.S.C. § 193(b), an order requiring respondent to cease and desist from continuing such violations is warranted and is being entered, but inasmuch as the violations were technical in nature, the assessment of a civil penalty for these violations is not appropriate.

3. The practice of respondent's weighmaster of reporting all carcass weights on the basis of even numbers only, was not shown to have disadvantaged sellers any more than it did respondent and cannot be said to be in violation of the Act. The Departmental regulation cited by complainant (9 CFR § 201.73-1) applies to the weighing of drafts of livestock and not to dressed carcasses.

DISCUSSION

The gist of the violations committed by respondent was its unauthorized deduction of five pounds for the water that may have been added to the weight of carcasses when it cleaned them just before weighing. The Departmental regulation, promulgated only after considerable industry discussion to make intelligible the prices per pound packers quote to sellers, clearly prohibits any deduction from the actual weight of a carcass other than the actual weight of attached equipment; i.e., the hooks and rollers. Respondent would justify its practice on the basis of the low water table of the land where its plant is situated. It was advised by an engineer that, because of this fact, automatic washing equipment could not be installed because the sewers that service the plant would be caused to back up. However, respondent has not presented any evidence that, after it received a warning that its practices were in violation of the Act and the regulation, it was unable to use the existing pressure hose so as to cleanse the carcasses after, instead of before, weighing them. Moreover, other packers with similar problems have elected to buy livestock on the basis of live weights instead of carcass weights and respondent, at first, advised the investigator that it would switch to such purchasing practice. But, it later changed its decision and persisted in its practices despite actual knowledge that it was violating a Departmental regulation in implementation of the section of the Act that proscribes unfair and deceptive practices.

A civil penalty of $20,000.00 is warranted by respondent's wilful violations of the express language of the regulation when it persisted in adding five pounds to the tare on the carcass weights upon which it paid sellers after it received express warnings and had promised to comply. This penalty is $5,000.00 less than the penalty recommended by complainant and reflects the fact that the charges respecting the weighmaster's practice of recording weights at the nearest even pound have been dismissed and that no civil penalty is being assessed for respondent's failure to use hooks and rollers of uniform weights which was a technical violation not shown to be of benefit to respondent at the expense of sellers.

Accordingly, the following Order is being entered.

ORDER

Respondent Linden Packing Co., Inc., its officers, directors, agents and employees, directly or indirectly through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Failing to settle and make final payment for livestock purchased on a carcass weight basis on the actual hot carcass weight of such livestock;

2. Using hooks and rollers in the weighing of livestock purchased on a carcass weight basis that are not uniform in weight;

3. Using a tare when weighing livestock carcasses greater than the actual weight of the hooks, rollers, gambrels or other equipment being used during such weighing;

4. Operating any monorail scale owned or controlled by it unless the tare on such scale has been checked and the scale's tare has been correctly and properly adjusted prior to the start of each day's operations, and as often as necessary during each day's operations to ensure that the tare is proper;

5. Failing to maintain and operate any livestock or monorail scale owned or controlled by it in such a manner as to ensure accurate and correct weights;

6. Weighing livestock, livestock carcasses or parts thereof, or causing them to be weighed, at other than the true and correct weights; and

7. Accounting to and paying the sellers on the basis of inaccurate or incorrect weights.

Respondent Linden Packing Co., Inc., shall keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose the true nature of all transactions involved in its operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, including hot scale sheets, accounts of sale and purchase invoices showing the true and accurate hot weight of livestock purchased on a carcass weight basis.

Respondent Linden Packing Co., Inc., is assessed a civil penalty in the amount of $20,000.00, which shall be payable by certified check or money order to the Treasurer of the United States.

Respondent Linden Packing Co., Inc., shall deliver a copy of this Decision and Order to all of its personnel whose duties or responsibilities include, in whole or in part, the operation of its livestock and monorail scales, the weighing of livestock or livestock carcasses, and the accounting to and payment of the sellers of livestock.

This Decision and Order shall become final 35 days after service hereof, unless appealed within 30 days of service (9 CFR §§ 1.145(a), 1.142(c)).

A copy of this Order shall be served upon the parties.

[Decision and Order became final May 15, 1986—Ed.]

In re: SELECTED MEATS, INC., JOSEPH A. MEINDL and ROBERT D. HINDSLEY, P&S Docket No. 6430. Decided May 16, 1986.

Packer—issuing insufficent funds checks—failure to pay when due—custodial accounts—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Eric Paul, for complainant.
Virgil L. Beeler, Indianapolis, IN, for respondent.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), by a complaint filed by the Administrative, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents willfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint as modified below and specifically admit the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Selected Meats, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the corporate respondent, is an Indiana corporation whose principal place of business is located in Kingsford Heights, Indiana, and whose mailing address is P.O. Box 471, Kingsford Heights, Indiana 46346.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a Complaint and Notice of Hearing filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.).

Copies of the Complaint and Notice of Hearing and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served on the respondent. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the Complaint and Notice of Hearing.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the Complaint and Notice of Hearing, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Royal Crest Meats, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is a corporation with its principal place of business located at Trenton, New Jersey. Respondent's business mailing address is 610 Roebling Avenue, Trenton, New Jersey 08611.

(b) Respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(1) A packer, within the meaning of and subject to the provisions of the Act; and

(2) Engaged in the business of buying livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter.

(c) Respondent's average annual purchases of livestock exceed $500,000.00.

2. The Packers and Stockyards Administration notified respondent by certified mail on August 20, 1985, that the $10,000.00 surety bond it maintained to secure the performance of its livestock obligations under the Act would terminate on October 29, 1985. Respondent was further informed that if it continued to buy livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter without bond coverage or its equivalent, it would be in violation of the Act and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations promulgated thereunder. Notwithstanding such notice, respondent has continued to buy livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondent has violated section 202(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 192(a)), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 201.29, 201.30).

ORDER

Respondent Royal Crest Meats, Inc., its officers, directors, agents, employees, successors and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with its operations as a packer, shall cease and desist from engaging in the business of a packer, in commerce, without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

In accordance with section 203(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 193(b)), respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00)

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR §§ 1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof sha!l be served on the parties.

Dealer—market agency—failure to meet bonding requirements—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Peter Train, P&S Div., OGC, for complainant.
Kent O. Hyde, Springfield, MO, for respondent.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C., Section 181 et seq.) by a Complaint filed by the Administrator,Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents willfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR, Section 201.1 et seq.). This Decision is entered pursuant to the consent Decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR, section 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in Paragraph I of the Complaint, and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this Decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this Decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Charles Ray Stafford and Robert E. Stafford, hereinafter referred to as "Respondents," are partners doing business as Stafford Brothers. Their business mailing address is 1323 West Locust, Springfield, Missouri 65803.

2. Respondents are, and at all times material herein were:

(a) Engaged in business as a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce for their own account and as a market agency to buy livestock in commerce on a commission basis; and

(b) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for their own account and as a market agency to buy livestock on a commission basis.

CONCLUSIONS

The Respondents, having admitted the jurisdictional facts, and the parties having agreed to the entry of this Decision, such Decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondents, Charles Ray Stafford and Robert E. Stafford, their agents and employees, directly and through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act, as amended and supplemented, and the regulations, without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

Respondents have filed and presently maintain the reasonable bond or its equivalent as required by the Act and regulations and therefore no suspension of their registration is warranted. That Respondents are hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of One Thousand and No/100 ($1,000.00) Dollars, which has been paid and receipt acknowledged in open court.

The provisions of this Order shall become effective on the sixth day after service of this Order on the Respondents.

Copies of this Decision shall be served upon the parties.

John J. Casey, P&S Div., OGC, for complainant.
Daniel Olsen, Kansas City, MO, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

Respondent Western Stockyards Corporation admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Western Stockyards Corporation, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Texas. It is doing business as Amarillo Livestock Auction Company, and as Amarillo Cattle Company, with a principal place of business located at Amarillo, Texas, and a mailing address of 100 S. Manhattan, P.O. Box 30668, Amarillo, Texas.

2. Respondent among other things is, and at all times material herein was:

a. Engaged in the business of conducting and operating the Amarillo Livestock Auction Company stockyard, a posted stockyard under the Act;

b. Engaged in the business of selling livestock on a commission basis; and

c. Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock in commerce on a commission basis.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent Western Stockyards Corporation, its officers, directors, agents, employees, successors and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with their operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Failing to deposit in the Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds of Amarillo Livestock Auction Company, within the time and in the amounts prescribed by section 201.42(c) of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42(c)), amounts equal to proceeds receivable from sales of consigned livestock;

2. Transferring funds, from the same custodial account to their general account, in excess of lawful charges and sums due to respondent as authorized by section 201.42(d) of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42(d)); and

3. Using funds received as proceeds from the sale of livestock sold on a commission basis for purposes of their own or for any purpose other than the payment of net proceeds to the owners, consignors or shippers of such livestock, or for payment of amounts due the respondent for lawful marketing charges.

Respondent Western Stockyards Corporation is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of two (2) weeks, beginning July 6 and ending July 19, 1986, and thereafter until such time as it demonstrates that the shortage in the Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds of Amarillo Livestock Auction Company has been eliminated. When respondent Western Stockyards Corporation demonstrates that the shortage in the custodial account has been eliminated, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension after the expiration of the two-week period.

Respondent Western Stockyards Corporation is hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00), to be paid by check delivered to the attorney for complainant, payable to the United States Treasury, on or before July 7, 1986.

The provisions of this order shall become effective upon service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served on the parties.

Robert L. Williams, Venica, FL, for respondent.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER WITH RESPECT TO CIRCLE B. MEAT CO., INC., AND GEORGE A. MUELLER, SR., UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a Complaint and Notice of Hearing filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondents wilfully violated the Act.

Copies of the Complaint and Notice of Hearing and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served on the respondents by certified mail. Respondents were informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the Complaint and Notice of Hearing.

Respondents Circle B. Meat Co., Inc., and George A. Mueller, Sr., have failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the Complaint and Notice of Hearing pertaining to respondents Circle B Meat Co., Inc., and George A. Mueller, Sr., which are admitted by respondents' failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Circle B Meat Co., Inc., hereinafter referred to as the corporate respondent, is a corporation organized and operating in the State of Florida, doing business as Florida Boneless Beef and Circle B Portion Meat Co. Its business mailing address is P. O. Drawer 1412, Dade City, Florida 34297.

(b) The corporate respondent was, at all times material herein:

(1) Engaged in the business of buying livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter;

(2) Engaged in the business of manufacturing or preparing meats or meat food products for sale or shipment in commerce; and

(3) A packer within the meaning of the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act.

(c) George E. Mueller, Sr., hereinafter referred to as respondent George Mueller, is an individual whose mailing address is Box 1044, Bushnell, Florida 33513.

(d) Respondent George Mueller is, and at all times material herein was:

(1) Vice-President and a director of the corporate respondent; and

(2) Responsible for the management, direction and control of the practices and activities of the corporate respondent.

(e) Respondent George Mueller was, at all times material herein, a packer within the meaning of the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act.

2. As of January 3, 1984, the corporate respondent's financial condition failed to meet the requirements of the Act. On said date, the corporate respondent filed a Chapter XI Petition in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Middle District of Florida.

3. (a) The corporate respondent, under the management, direction and control of respondent George Mueller, in connection with their operations as a packer, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III of the Complaint and Notice of Hearing, and at divers other times, purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock.

(b) As of August 1, 1985, there remained unpaid by respondents approximately $130,399.30 for such livestock purchases.

4. The corporate respondent, under the management, direction and control of respondent George Mueller, in connection with their operations as a packer, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph IV of the Complaint and Notice of Hearing, purchased livestock and in purported payment therefor issued checks which were returned unpaid by the bank upon which they were drawn because the corporate respondent did not have sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks were drawn to pay such checks when presented.

5. The corporate respondent, under the management, direction and control of respondent George Mueller, failed to hold in trust and wilfully dissipated inventories of meat and meat food products which were required to be held in trust for the benefit of all unpaid cash sellers of livestock until such sellers were paid, in that:

(a) On January 6, 1984, respondents sold 4860 pounds of 50/50 beef trim to Swift & Co., Orlando, Florida for $1,980.00. The proceeds from said sale were distributed by respondents to Sam Cohen, United Telephone and M&M Cattle. The payments constitute dissipations of trust assets.

(b) On January 20, 1984, respondents sold 9000 pounds of 50/50 beef trim to Swift & Co., Orlando, Florida for $3,960.00. Respondents used the proceeds from said sale to make payments to U.S. Leasing, United Telephone, Sumter Electric, and Grafton & Sons, Inc., made two loan payments totaling $417.75, and obtained $1,290.66 in currency, the disposition of which is unaccounted for. The payments constitute dissipations of trust assets.

6. The corporate respondent, under the management, direction and control of respondent George Mueller, failed to hold in trust inventories of livestock which were required to be held in trust for the benefit of all unpaid cash sellers of livestock until such sellers were paid, in that, during the period October 24, 1983, through December 12, 1983, respondents purchased 67 head of livestock from Jacksonville Livestock Auction Company, Inc., Whitehouse, Florida, and North Florida Farmers Livestock Market, Inc., Lake City, Florida for $7,847.56. Respondents' records contain no indication of the slaughter or other disposal or disposition of this livestock.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, the corporate respondent's financial condition does not meet the requirements of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 204).

By reason of the facts found in Findings of Fact 3 and 4 herein, respondents Circle B Meat Co., Inc., and George Mueller wilfully violated sections 202(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 192(a), 228b).

By reason of the facts found in Findings of Fact 5 and 6 herein, respondents Circle B Meat Co., Inc., and George Mueller wilfully violated sections 202(a) and 206(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 192(a), 196(b)).

ORDER

Respondent Circle B Meat Co., Inc., its officers, directors, agents and employees, and respondent George E. Mueller, Sr., directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with their operations as a packer, shall cease and desist from:

1. Purchasing livestock while insolvent, i.e., while current liabilities exceed current assets, unless the respondents pay the full purchase price of the livestock at the time of purchase in U.S. currency, by cashier's check or wire transfer;

2. Failing to pay or failing to pay, when due, for livestock;

3. Issuing checks in payment for livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit in the bank account upon which they are drawn to pay such checks when presented;

4. Engaging in any act or practice for the purpose of converting to their own personal use or gain assets required to be held in trust for the benefit of unpaid cash sellers of livestock; and

5. Failing to hold in trust livestock purchased in cash sales and all inventories of or receivables or proceeds from meat, meat food products or livestock products derived therefrom required to be held in trust for the benefit of unpaid cash sellers of livestock, pursuant to section 206(b) of the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 196(b)), until full payment of the amounts due under the trust have been received by such unpaid cash sellers.

Respondent George E. Mueller is hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of Twenty Five Thousand Dollars ($25,000.00).

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR §§ 1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondents wilfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served on the respondents. Respondents were informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondents have failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondents' failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Douglas B. Grant, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is 1115 West Green Street, Cheraw, South Carolina 29520.

(b) The individual respondent at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account;

(2) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for his own account;

(3) Doing business under the name of the corporate respondent, Grant Livestock, Inc.;

(4) President of and 100% stockholder of the corporate respondent; and

(5) Responsible for the direction, management and control of the corporate respondent.

(c) Grant Livestock, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the corporate respondent, is engaged in the business of a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account.

(d) The corporate respondent is not registered with the Secretary of Agriculture in any capacity subject to the Act.

2. During the period January through August 1984, respondents engaged in business as a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for their own account without having and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

3. (a) As of January 31, 1985, the individual respondent had current liabilities totalling $75,579.73 and no current assets. As of January 31, 1985, the corporate respondent had current liabilities of $57,099.03 and no current assets.

(b) The individual respondent's and corporate respondent's current liabilities presently exceed their current assets.

4. Respondents, in connection with their business as a dealer, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph

IV of the complaint, purchased livestock and in purported payment therefor issued checks which were returned unpaid by the bank upon which they were drawn because respondents did not have sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks were drawn to pay such checks when presented.

5. (a) Respondents, on or about the dates and in the transactions specified in paragraph IV and in the transactions specified in paragraph V of the complaint, purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock.

(b) As of July 1, 1985, there remained unpaid by the respondents a total of $60,959.73 for such livestock purchases.

6. Respondents, in connection with their business subject to the Act, failed to keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in their business, in that respondents failed to keep and maintain a record of accounts payable and accounts receivable, buyer's bills, seller's invoices, all bank statements and cancelled checks and all records of their assets and liabilities.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondents have wilfully violated section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a)) and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 201.29, 201.30).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 3 herein, respondents' financial condition does not meet the requirements of the Act (7 U.S.C. 204).

By reason of the facts found in Findings of Fact 4 and 5 herein, the respondents have wilfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 213(a), 228b).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 6 herein, respondents have violated section 401 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 221).

ORDER

The individual respondent, directly or through any corporate or other device, and the corporate respondent, its officers, directors, agents, employees successors and assigns, in connection with their business subject to the Act shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act and the regulations without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations;

2. Issuing checks in payment for livestock purchases without maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks are drawn to pay such checks when presented;

3. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock; and

4. Failing to pay the full purchase price of livestock.

The respondents shall keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose the true nature of all transactions involved in their business subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, including a record of accounts payable and accounts receivable, buyer's bills, seller's invoices, all bank statements and cancelled checks and all records of their assets and liabilities.

Individual respondent Grant is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of six months and thereafter until he demonstrates that he is no longer insolvent and that he is in full compliance with the bonding requirements of the Act and regulations. When the individual respondent demonstrates that he is no longer insolvent and that he is in full compliance with the bonding requirements, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating this suspension after the expiration of the six month period.

Corporate respondent Grant Livestock, Inc., is prohibited from operating subject to the Act for a period of six months and thereafter until it demonstrates that it is no longer insolvent and that it is in full compliance with the bonding requirements of the Act and regulations. When the corporate respondent demonstrates that it is no longer insolvent and that it is in full compliance with the bonding requirements, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the prohibition after the expiration of the six month period.

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR §§ 1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent's financial condition does not meet the requirements of the Act and that the respondent wilfully violated the Act.

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served on the respondent by certified mail. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Celivo Nick Farinelli, Jr., hereinafter referred to as respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is 10018 No. Alves Road, Ballico, California 95303.

(b) Respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(2) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock on a commission basis in commerce, and as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for his own account.

2. (a) On July 22, 1985, respondent filed with the United States Bankruptcy Court, Eastern District of California, a voluntary petition pursuant to Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Act, which indicates that respondent had current assets of $4,000.00 and current liabilities of $97,669.00, resulting in an excess of current liabilities over current assets in the amount of $93,669.00.

(b) Respondent's current liabilities presently exceed his current assets.

3. (a) Respondent, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III(a) of the complaint, in connection with the purchase of livestock, issued checks which, when presented for payment, were not paid by the bank upon which they were drawn because respondent did not have sufficient funds on deposit and available in the accounts upon which such checks were drawn.

(b) Respondent, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraphs III(a) and (b) of the complaint, purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock.

(c) In connection with the livestock transactions set forth in paragraphs III(a) and (b) above, there remains unpaid a total of $31,295.80.

4. In connection with the transactions set forth in paragraph III of the complaint, and on or about the transactions set forth in paragraph IV of the complaint, respondent purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock.

5. Respondent, in connection with his operations as a dealer, during the period April 1, 1985, through August 15, 1985, failed to create, keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose all transactions subject to the Act and regulations, in that respondent failed to create, keep and maintain fully completed purchase and sales invoices.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondent's financial condition does not meet the requirements of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 204).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 3 herein, respondent has violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 4 herein, respondent has wilfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 5 herein, respondent has violated section 401 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 221).

ORDER

Respondent Farinelli, individually or through any corporate or other device, in connection with his operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Issuing checks in payment for livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the bank account upon which they are drawn to pay such checks when presented;

2. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock; and

3. Failing to pay the full purchase price of livestock.

Respondent shall create, keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business subject to the Act, including fully completed purchase and sales invoices.

Respondent Celivo Nick Farinelli, Jr., is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of five (5) years, provided, however, that a supplemental order will be issued terminating this suspension at any time after the expiration of 45 days upon demonstration by respondent that all livestock sellers have been paid in full, provided further that this suspension may be modified upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration to permit respondent's salaried employment by another registrant or packer after the expiration of the 45 day period of suspension.

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR §§ 1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

In re: RICHARD N. GARVER. P&S Docket No. 6449. Decided June 19, 1986.

Insufficient funds checks—Failure to pay when due—Suspension of registration.

The Judicial Officer affirmed that part of Chief Judge Campbell's order requiring respondent to cease and desist from failing to pay for livestock and issuing insufficient funds checks, and suspending respondent's registration for 2 years and thereafter until he is no longer insolvent, but reversed that part of the order holding all but 30 days of the suspension period in abeyance. The fact that insufficient funds checks were issued when the bank lawfully and unilaterally terminated respondent's over-draft protection without notice is not a defense. A violation is willful if respondent intentionally does an act which is prohibited, or acts with careless disregard of statutory requirements. The test of insolvency is whether current liabilities exceed current assets. Once insolvency has been established, it is considered as continuing until a respondent demonstrates that he is no longer insolvent. The failure to pay promptly and in full for livestock and the issuance of insufficient funds checks violate sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act. Severe sanction policy explained. To permit respondent to continue in the livestock industry after a 30-day active suspension period would seriously undercut the deterrent value of the 2-year suspension order. The fact that respondent's creditors would receive a token repayment of the indebtedness if he remains in business is outweighed by the national interest in having fair and competitive conditions in the livestock industry.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.).* An initial Decision and Order was filed on January 29, 1986, by Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. Campbell (ALJ) ordering respondent to cease and desist from failing to pay for livestock and issuing insufficient funds checks. The order also suspends respondent's registration for 2 years and thereafter until he is no longer insolvent, except that all but 30 days of the suspension period is held in abeyance.

On March 4, 1986, complainant, seeking to eliminate that portion of the order holding the suspension order in abeyance, appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35). On April 21, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, I agree with complainant's position on appeal. The ALJ's initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, with changes too minor to itemize, except that the provisions of the order holding the suspension order in abeyance are eliminated, together with the ALJ's reasons therefor. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION (AS MODIFIED)

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), hereafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on November 8, 1984, by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture.

The complaint charges that the respondent's financial condition does not meet the requirements of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 204) and that he willfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b) by issuing nonsufficient funds checks and failing to pay, when due, for livestock.

Respondent filed an answer on January 2, 1985, in which he admitted all but one of the material allegations of the complaint. An oral hearing was held in Cincinnati, Ohio on September 18, 1985. Respondent was represented by Thomas R. Smith, Esq., and complainant was represented by Barbara S. Harris of the Office of the General Counsel. At the close of the hearing the time was set for the filing of briefs.

 The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 405c–405g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program) (December 1962–January 1971).

7. As of September 18, 1985, there remained unpaid a total of at least $700,000.00 for such livestock purchases set forth in Findings of Fact Nos. 5 and 6.

8. For ten (10) years prior to September, 1984, respondent had a business arrangement with his bank under the terms of which the bank honored all overdrafts on his account and charged respondent a fee established by the bank for doing so.

9. At the time that respondent issued the checks identified in Finding No. 5, the arrangement with the bank was in full force and effect and respondent had no reason to believe that the checks would not be honored by his bank.

10. Respondent did not provide checks to persons from whom he had purchased cattle knowing that those checks would be returned because of insufficient funds.

11. Respondent's bank arrangement, noted in Findings 8 and 9, whereby the bank would pay for respondent's overdrafts, was secured by property. When the property was sold there was no longer any collateral to secure respondent's line of credit, and the bank terminated the agreement.

12. Respondent's bookkeeping methods were archaic if not primitive. He maintained no records of accounts receivable and, consequently, had no way of knowing how much he was owed or by whom. For example, respondent testified that it was his custom to visit his bookkeeper once a month, taking all of his bills, sales slips, and bank statements to her in a grocery bag.

13. Since early 1985, respondent has been working as a commissioned buyer of livestock for Elden Ginn who operates a stockyard and sells cattle on a commission basis only. In order to have respondent work for him, it was necessary for Mr. Ginn to increase his own bond from $55,000.00 to $100,000.00.

14. Under respondent's arrangement with Ginn, respondent is paid $275.00 per week for salary and expenses. All commissions earned by him are segregated and (except for taxes, a $100.00 per month payment to Ginn's bookkeeper, and respondent's $275.00 salary) are distributed to respondent's creditors quarterly. The arrangement is contained in respondent's Exhibit No. 1. Respondent acts purely as an agent for Ginn and has no access to funds.

15. At the time of the hearing (September 18, 1985), approximately $4,800.00 had been distributed to creditors under the arrangement with Ginn and it was expected that approximately $6,000.00 more would be paid within several weeks of the hearing.

16. Respondent had not been suspended under the Act prior to this proceeding.

CONCLUSIONS

All contentions of the parties have been considered in the light of the record evidence. By reason of the above findings of fact, it is concluded that respondent's financial condition does not meet the requirements of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 204), and that respondent willfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b) by failing to pay, when due, and by issuing nonsufficient funds checks, for livestock. The order proposed by complainant is issued. . . .

WILLFUL VIOLATIONS OF THE ACT

Complainant correctly contends that respondent's failure to pay for livestock and respondent's issuance of nonsufficient funds checks were willful violations of Sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act.

Respondent admits such practices but argues that his relationship with his bank and the over-draft protection the bank extended to him demonstrate that he did not willfully engage in the practices in violation of the Act. However, the unilateral termination by the bank of the respondent's overdraft protection demonstrates precisely why such arrangement cannot insulate a livestock buyer from accountability under the Act. It gives no protection to the sellers of livestock. Respondent's awareness or state of mind at the time the bad checks were issued is of no consequence.

A line of credit or over-draft protection does not provide respondent's creditors the financial security required by the Act and regulations. Despite Mr. Garver's longstanding and friendly relationship with his bank, his bank lawfully and unilaterally terminated his over-draft protection without notice. Similarly, over-draft protection would be of no value if respondent's bank were to fail. As stated in In re Thumb Auction Markets, Inc., 37 A.D. 164, 167-168 (1977). "Such protection fails to fulfill respondent's obligation under statutory and regulatory requirements. . . ."

Decisions under the Act and regulations have established that a line of credit or over-draft protection extended by a bank is no defense to a charge of insolvency or custodial account violations. In re Thumb Auction Markets, Inc., supra; In re Hugh B. Powell, 41 A.D. 1354, 1360 (1982); In re Sechrist Sales Co., 36 A.D. 665, 668, 670-75 (1977); In re Harry Hardy, 33 A.D. 1383, 1401 (1974). Similarly, over-draft protection cannot be a defense to a charge of issuing insufficient funds checks.

A violation is willful if the respondent intentionally does an act which is prohibited, irrespective of evil motive or reliance on erroneous advice, or if the respondent acts with careless disregard of the statutory requirements. Butz v. Glover Livestock Commission Co., 411 U.S. 182, 185, 187 (1973); Goodman v. Benson, 286 F.2d 896, 900 (CA 7 1961); In re Miller, 33 A.D. 53, 83-87, aff'd sub nom., Miller v. Butz, 498 F.2d 1088 (CA 5 1974); In re Lufkin Livestock Exchange, Inc., 27 A.D. 596, 609 (1968).

Here, the practices engaged in by respondent must be characterized as willful.

Respondent operated completely in the dark regarding the financial condition of his business. He maintained no record of his sales and hence did not know who owed him or how much he was owed. He relied solely on a credit arrangement with a bank to pay his over drafts, and then sold the property which was the collateral for the credit arrangement. This state of affairs led to the respondent's failure to pay for livestock and his issuance of nonsufficient funds checks. At the very least respondent's actions and course of conduct were in careless disregard of the requirements of the Act.

On fourteen separate occasions, respondent issued checks in purported payment for livestock which were returned for nonsufficient funds in his account. In another fourteen transactions, respondent admits that he failed to give his sellers payment for the livestock he purchased. The failure to pay promptly and in full for livestock and the issuance of "nonsufficient funds" checks have been held to violate Sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act. Lewis v. Butz, 512 F.2d 681, 682-83 (CA 8 1975); In re Bryan, 36 A.D. 37, 42 (1977); In re Mid-States Livestock, Inc., 37 A.D. 547, 561-562 (1977), aff'd sub nom Van Wyk v. Bergland, 570 F.2d 701, 704-705 (CA 8 1978); In re Trenton Livestock, Inc., 41 A.D. 1965 (1982); In re Edzards, 37 A.D. 1880, 1887 (1978).

In addition, respondent admitted that as of September 30, 1984, his current liabilities exceeded his current assets and that as of the date of the filing of the complaint, his current liabilities also exceeded his current assets. Under the Act, the principal test of insolvency is whether current liabilities exceed current assets. This test has been reviewed and affirmed by the Fifth Circuit in Bowman v. United States, 363 F.2d 81 (CA 5 1966).

Once insolvency has been established, it is considered as continuing until a respondent demonstrates that he is no longer insolvent. In re Hugh B. Powell, supra, at 1359–1360; In re Donald Hageman, 42 A.D. 531, 539–540 (1983).

Because repondent was insolvent on September 30, 1984 and November 8, 1984, it is clear that he failed to meet the financial requirements of the Act. (7 U.S.C. § 204).

SANCTION

Respondent does not contest the factual allegations of the complaint. His sole argument is directed to the proposed sanction sought by the complainant. The complainant requests that respondent be ordered to cease and desist from the practices alleged and that he be suspended for a period of two years and thereafter until he demonstrates his insolvency.

Complainant urges at page 6 of its brief:

> In 1976, Congress recognized the importance of assuring livestock producers prompt payment for the livestock they sell by amending the Packers and Stockyards Act to include section 409 (7 U.S.C. § 228b). This section, which embodies the prompt payment provisions, was enacted to insure financial integrity in the livestock industry and to prevent economic disaster to livestock sellers (Tr. 10). So crucial is the requirement of prompt payment to the financial stability of the livestock industry, a cash basis industry, that Congress uniformly imposed it on all persons subject to the Act's jurisdiction.
> The testimony at the oral hearing was unequivocal and extensive that due to the congressional mandate set forth above, the Packers and Stockyards Administration considers violation of the prompt payment provisions of section 409 to be very serious (Tr. 12, 13). Mr. Brinckmeyer testified that these practices are damaging to the individual market agency, dealer or producer who does not receive timely payment, and damaging to the industry as a whole. (Tr. 11).

Further, the Judicial Officer has held repeatedly that it is the policy of the Department to impose severe sanctions upon respondents who have engaged in serious or repeated violations of the regulatory laws administered by the Department. This policy has been adopted in order to serve as an effective deterrent to the respondent as well as to other potential violators. In re Braxton M. Worsley, 33 A.D. 1547, 1556-1561 (1974). The Judicial Officer has also stated that the recommendation of the administrative officials with respect to the sanction is to be given great weight since they administer the program on a daily basis and are in the best position for observing whether the sanctions imposed serve as an effective deterrent to future violations by respondents and others. In re Worsley, supra, at 1568.

In light of the nature and seriousness of the violations committed, the sanction requested is appropriate and clearly warranted in the circumstances.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

The ALJ recognized the "enormity of the violations" (Initial Decision at 12), which "clearly warranted" the 2-year suspension order requested by complainant (Initial Decision at 11). Nonetheless, he held all but 30 days of the suspension period in abeyance for the following reasons (Initial Decision at 11-13):

> In light of the nature and seriousness of the violations committed, the sanction requested is appropriate and clearly warranted in the circumstances. At the same time, some consideration should be given to respondent's plea that an order be formulated permitting respondent to continue in the livestock industry with the safeguards that are presently in place. This I believe is possible within the framework of the sanction proposed by complainant.
> A modification appears appropriate for several reasons. Respondent was not subject to prior suspensions nor was there any indication of an intent to defraud his creditors. His faults lay in his failure to establish good accounting practices and blind reliance on a credit arrangement with his bank. These failings appear to be remedied through his present arrangement with his employer, Elden Ginn (Findings 13 and 14, and respondent's Exhibit 1). Further, under such arrangement, respondent's creditors receive a token repayment of the indebtedness. (Findings 14, 15). While such payment is no defense to the violations of the Act

Under the order as contained herein, respondent is suspended as a registrant for two years and thereafter until he demonstrates that he is no longer insolvent, as complainant recommends. However, after a 30-day period of suspension (the enormity of the violations requires at least an initial 30-day suspension) the remainder of the two-year suspension is suspended for so long as respondent remains in the employ of Elden Ginn in accordance with the present arrangement contained in the record. Should such arrangement terminate after a three-month period, for example, the remaining 20 months of the 2-year suspension of registration would become effective. If after expiration of the two-year period, respondent can demonstrate he is no longer insolvent, a supplemental order will be issued terminating the suspension.

The order herein will serve as an effective deterrent to future violations by respondent and others, and at the same time permit respondent's employment in an endeavor in which he has worked all of his life.

I could not disagree more with the ALJ's views! The ALJ's sanction is a "slap on the wrist" which would encourage, rather than discourage, respondent and others to engage in similar reckless conduct costing livestock sellers hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The admitted facts show that as of the date of hearing (September 18, 1985), respondent still had not paid for at least $700,000 worth of livestock purchased during a 3-week period in September 1984 (Findings 5–7). Respondent's exhibits show that during August and September 1984, his checking account was in an overdrawn (or negative) position on only one day, viz., on August 17, 1984 his checking account was overdrawn in the amount of $10,720.20 (RX 3, 4). Since respondent was actually broke in September 1984 (i.e., he was in the red by nearly a million dollars), I infer that he was "robbing Peter to pay Paul." That is, respondent was delaying making payment for livestock purchased from A until he had bought livestock from B, received payment for B's livestock, and then used the money from B's livestock to pay A.

Futhermore, the undisputed evidence gives rise to the inference that respondent had been engaging in that practice for a considerable period of time. Respondent admittedly began selling livestock on a grade and yield basis in 1982 or 1983, and he continued operating until September 1984, when the bank withdrew his line of credit.[2] He explained that he bought animals on a live weight basis, e.g., paying $500 for an animal, and sold it on a dressed weight basis. He would call the packer on a given day and the packer would tell him what price would be paid for choice cattle delivered at the plant the following day. Respondent would then purchase the livestock himself (or through the 15 buyers purchasing livestock for him on a commission basis) on a live weight basis, and sell it on a grade and yield basis. If he or the other buyers estimated incorrectly the grade that would be determined after slaughter or the number of dressed weight pounds that would be produced from the livestock, respondent would likely lose money on the transaction. Since respondent lost about $700,000 from his grade and yield transactions, either he and his buyers were very inept at buying livestock that would be profitable at the price being paid by the packer, or he was taking too much profit from the business. (For our purposes, it makes no difference which explanation is correct.)

Although respondent was admittedly a very poor bookkeeper, and kept no accounts receivable records, he took all of his records to his bookkeeper once a month. No matter how poor respondent's bookkeeping system was, it would not be possible for him to be short $700,000 without knowing that he was operating in the red. Accordingly, I infer that respondent knew for a considerable period of time that he was operating in a manner that exposed the persons selling livestock to him to great risk.[3] Cf. Zwick v. Freeman, 373 F.2nd 110, 115 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 389 U.S. 835 (1967), in which the court said with respect to a failure to pay case under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act:

> As there was a series of 295 transactions which occurred over a period of several months and which involved a deficit in excess of a quarter of a million dollars, it is inconceivable that petitioners were unaware of their financial condition and unaware that every additional transaction they entered into was likely to result in another violation of the Commodities Act. It would be hard to imagine clear-

[2] The bank's action in withdrawing respondent's line of credit did not cause his loss of at least $700,000, but merely exposed his insolvent condition.

[3] Respondent was not asked whether he knew that he had been operating in the red for a considerable period of time. He testified that he assumed that the bank would continue to honor overdrafts, but, as stated above, he was depositing enough money into his checking account from his livestock sales so that his account was overdrawn on only one day during August and September 1984, even though he was at least $700,000 in the red at the time.

er examples of "flagrant" violations of the statute than were exemplified by petitioner's conduct.

If, on the other hand, respondent were to contend that he was totally oblivious to the fact that he was operating heavily in the red, when, in fact, he was short approximately $700,000 in his livestock business, that would be such reckless conduct that it would demonstrate a total lack of regard for the legislative requirements that he pay promptly and in full for his livestock purchases.

Hence under any view of the situation, respondent's failures to pay for over $700,000 worth of livestock constitute flagrant violations of the Act warranting a most severe sanction.

It is the policy of this Department to impose severe sanctions for serious or repeated violations of any of the regulatory programs administered by the Department to serve as an effective deterrent not only to the respondents, but also to other potential violators. This policy has been followed in all of the Department's disciplinary proceedings since the early 1970's.

The basis for the Department's severe sanction policy is set forth at great length in numerous decisions, e.g., In re Worsley, 33 Agric. Dec. 1547, 1556–71 (1974),[4] which is set forth as an Appendix to this decision.[5] The Department's sanction policy is also discussed at length in In re Esposito, 38 Agric. Dec. 613, 624–65 (1979).

Dec. 1151, 1263–64 (1971), and was further developed in numerous other decisions before it was finalized in In re Miller, 33 Agric. Dec. 53, 64–80 (1974), aff'd per curiam, 498 F.2d 1088 (5th Cir. 1974).

Respondent's failure to pay for about $700,000 worth of livestock fully justifies the 2-year suspension order requested by complainant. It should be noted that there has been a drastic change in complainant's sanction policy with respect to failure to pay violations in recent years. For many years, a person who deprived a livestock seller of 1% of the value of his livestock by false weighing would be given a more severe sanction than a person who deprived the livestock seller of 100% of the value of his livestock by failing to pay for the livestock. In the latter case, a 30-day suspension order was typical. (I inherited that policy and did not change it during the period I was administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program.)

I suggested a drastic change in that policy in In re Mid-States Livestock, Inc., 37 Agric. Dec. 547 (1977), aff'd sub nom. Van Wyk v. Bergland, 570 F.2d 701 (8th Cir. 1978). In that case, livestock sellers lost over half a million dollars because respondents took money from their livestock business, which was needed to pay sellers, and lost it gambling on the commodity futures market (37 Agric. Dec. at 550). Complainant recommended the usual 30-day "slap on the wrist" suspension order, which was imposed by the ALJ. When respondent appealed, I sua sponte raised the issue as to whether the sanction should be increased on appeal, and suggested in an order requesting additional briefs that a 5-year suspension order seemed appropriate. In imposing a 60-day suspension order in that case, it is stated (37 Agric. Dec. at 550–51):

> Just last year Congress indicated its concern that livestock producers be paid for their livestock by the enactment of amendments to the Packers and Stockyards Act which impose payment requirements even more stringent than those previously imposed by the regulations issued under the Act (Public Law 94–110, 94th Cong., 2nd Sess.; 90 Stat. 1249). In the House Report on the bill relating to these amendments, it is stated (H. Rep. No. 94–1043, 94th Cong., 2nd Sess., p. 5; see, also, Sen. Rep. No. 94–932, 94th Cong., 2nd Sess., pp. 5–6):
> > USDA figures show that in 1973 some $31 billion worth of livestock and $4 billion worth of poultry were marketed in the United States, representing approximately one-third of all farm > income. Livestock is probably the single most important source of protein in the American diet. Thus, livestock producers occupy a position of unique national importance. No individual is engaged in a riskier endeavor or one more vital to the national interest than the producer. And no entrepreneur is so completely at the mercy of the marketplace. The livestock producer, if he successfully combats the vicissitudes of weather, financing, skyrocketing costs, etc., must sell when his cattle are ready irrespective of the market. His livestock may represent his entire year's output. And, if he is not paid, he faces ruin. While some may argue that business is business and that farmers must take their chances along with everyone else, this Committee must view the situation from a larger perspective. We would be derelict in our responsibilities to the American people if we failed to address the evils which have inflicted heavy losses upon the very producers upon whom the Nation depends for such an important part of its basic food supply.

In two recent cases involving failure to pay for about $766,000.00 and $3.2 million dollars worth of livestock, respectively (In re Robert L. Benefiel, 32 Agr Dec 1684 (1973); In re James L. Heller, 34 Agr Dec 1563 (1975)), respondents were suspended for five years. Although these cases are not weighty precedents because one is a consent case and the other a default case, they show, nonetheless, that a 5-year suspension order is at least regarded as appropriate in some failure to pay cases. I believe that the respondent's failure to pay over half a million dollars in the present case warrants a similar 5-year suspension order, particularly since the respondents took the money from their successful livestock business to finance their gambling ventures.

Under a similar regulatory program administered by the Department involving perishable agricultural commodities, a violator's license is routinely revoked for failing to pay a significant amount of money for produce, even where such failure is because of legitimate business losses. See, e.g., In re Reese Sales Company, 28 Agr Dec 1150 (1969), affirmed sub nom. Reese Sales Company v. Hardin, 458 F.2d 183

(C.A. 9); In re Sam Leo Catanzaro, 35 Agr Dec 26 (1976), [aff'd, No. 76-1613 (9th Cir. Mar. 9, 1977), printed in 36 Agric. Dec. 467 (1977)].[6] A revoked licensee may not apply for a new license for two years. 7 U.S.C. 499d(b).

> Although I believe the violations in this case warrant a 5-year suspension order to serve as an effective deterrent to future similar violations, the complainant, in the oral argument before the Judicial Officer, recommended only a 60-day suspension order. Since it is the policy of the Judicial Officer "never to increase the sanction recommended by the administrative officials" (see Appendix, p. 21a), a 60-day suspension order will be issued rather than a 5-year suspension order.

Subsequent to the decision in Mid-States, just quoted, the Judicial Officer overruled that portion of the Department's sanction policy which precluded him from imposing a sanction greater than that recommended by the administrative officials (In re Rowland, 40 Agric. Dec. 1934, 1952 (1981), aff'd, 713 F.2d 179 (6th Cir. 1983)). Accordingly, if Mid-States were to be decided today, a 5-year suspension order would be issued.

The ALJ felt that it would be desirable to permit respondent to continue in the livestock industry with the safeguards that are presently in place. I disagree! It is not desirable to permit respondent to continue in the livestock industry since that would seriously undercut the deterrent value of the administrative sanction imposed in this case. It would encourage respondent and others to act in a similar irresponsible manner in the future, greatly endangering livestock sellers.

The ALJ also indicated that under the proposed arrangement to permit respondent to remain in the livestock business during all but 30 days of the 2-year suspension period, respondent's creditors could receive a "token" repayment of the indebtedness. However, that argument has routinely been rejected in determining sanctions imposed by this Department. It has consistently been held that any hardship to the respondent's creditors, customers, community, or employees which might result from a suspension order is given no weight in determining the sanction since the national interest of having fair and competitive conditions in the livestock and meat industries prevails over the local interests that might be damaged as a result of a suspension order.[7]

Continued

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Richard N. Garver, his agents and employees, individually or through any corporate or other device, in connection with his activities subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Issuing checks in payment for livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which they are drawn to pay the checks when presented;

2. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock; and

3. Failing to pay the full purchase price of livestock.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act for 2 years and thereafter until such time as he demonstrates that he is no longer insolvent. When the respondent demonstrates that he is no longer insolvent, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating this suspension after expiration of the 2-year period.

The cease and desist provisions of this order shall become effective on the day after service of this order on respondent. The suspension provisions shall become effective on the 30th day after service on respondent.

In re: LANDMARK BEEF PROCESSORS, INC., JOHN M. BURBANK, ALAN SILVERBERG, RONALD HILLMAN, and CHAIM TREIBATCH, P&S Docket No. 6174. Decided June 20, 1986.

Failure to pay—inaccurate records—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Jory Hochberg, for complainant.
Harrison W. Hertzberg, Los Angeles, CA, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION WITH RESPECT TO CHAIM TREIBATCH

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a Complaint and Notice of Hearing filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, and a subsequent Amended Complaint and Notice of Hearing alleging that the respondents wilfully violated the Act. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

Respondent Chaim Treibatch admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the Complaint and Notice of Hearing as they pertain to him and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, neither admits nor denies liability for the actions and practices of Landmark Beef Processors, Inc., waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Chaim Treibatch, hereinafter referred to as respondent Treibatch, is an individual whose mailing address is 17211 Rancho Street, Encino, California 91316.

2. Respondent Treibatch is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Chief Financial Officer of Landmark Beef Processors and a principle owner of the stock of Landmark Management Company, a holding company which owns 100% of the stock of the corporate respondent;

(b) With John M. Burbank, Ronald Hillman and Alan Silverberg, responsible for the management, direction and control of the policies and practices of respondent Landmark Beef Processors; and

3. Respondent Treibatch consents to the jurisdiction of the Secretary to enter this decision.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent Chaim Treibatch having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent Chaim Treibatch, his agents and employees, individually or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Failing to pay, when due, for meat and meat food products purchased;

2. Preparing and using any false, misleading, incorrect or incomplete financial statements or inventory reports for the purpose of inducing suppliers and vendors of meat and meat food products to sell or otherwise transfer such products to respondents.

Respondent shall keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act and the regulations, including, but not limited to: (1) invoices and other accountings which disclose all purchases and sales of meat or meat food products; (2) records of all receipts and disbursements; (3) a general ledger of accounts disclosing respondent's assets, liabilities, income, expenses and net worth; and (4) an accurate and current inventory record.

Respondent shall keep and maintain, and shall not destroy or otherwise dispose of, any purchase invoices, sales invoices, inventory records, or similar accounts and records documenting the purchase and sale of meat or meat food products for a minimum period of two years. In addition, respondent shall strictly comply with the provisions of section 203.4 of the statements of general policy (9 CFR § 203.4).

Respondent Chaim Treibatch is hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00), payable pursuant to the terms of that certain Understanding With Respect to Civil Penalty and Payment Terms, concurrently executed herewith.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on respondent Chaim Treibatch.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

In re: KLEMME CATTLE CO., INC., P&S Docket No. 6455. Decided February 24, 1986.

Maintain bond—Civil Penalty.

Roberta Swartzendruber, for complainant.
Kent O. Hyde, Springfield, MO, for respondent.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary action brought pursuant to the provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C., section 181, et seq.), wherein the Respondent is charged with violation thereof by reason of operating as a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce, without having and maintaining an adequate bond, or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder, by the Secretary of Agriculture (9 CFR section 201.1 et seq.).

The Complaint was filed on November 29, 1984, to which the Respondent filed an Answer on December 26, 1984.

An oral hearing was held herein on July 17, 1985, in Springfield, Missouri, before Administrative Law Judge Dorothea A. Baker. Appearing as counsel for the Complainant was Roberta Swartzendruber, Esquire, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. Respondent was represented by Kent O. Hyde, Esquire, Harrison, Tucker & Geisler, 1121 S. Glenstone, Missouri 65804. Pursuant to pleadings for the reopening of the briefing period, the last brief herein was filed February 3, 1986, and the case was referred to the Administrative Law Judge on February 10, 1986.

The parties do not materially differ as to the Findings of Fact, but, rather, to the legal implications flowing therefrom.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Klemme Cattle Company, Inc., hereinafter referred to as Respondent, or, as Respondent Klemme Cattle, is a corporation with its principal place of business located at Walnut Grove, Missouri. Its business mailing address is Route 2, Walnut Grove, Missouri 65770.

2. Respondent Klemme Cattle, at all times material herein, was engaged in the business of a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account.

3. Respondent Klemme Cattle, at all times material herein, was registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce, and as a market agency buying livestock in commerce on a commission basis. (Complaint, Paragraph I(b)(2); CX 1)

4. Respondent Klemme Cattle is solely owned by Lem and Yvonne Klemme and their four children. It is directed, controlled and managed by Lem and Yvonne Klemme. (TR 57, 58, 61)

5. Respondent Klemme Cattle was sent, on September 24, 1984, and received, on September 26, 1984, formal notice from the Packers and Stockyards Administration that its bond to secure the performance of its livestock operations under the Act would expire on October 24, 1984. The notice further stated that if a new bond or its equivalent was not secured, all livestock operations for which bonding was required would have to be discontinued as of October 24, 1984, or respondent Klemme Cattle would be in violation of the Act and regulations. (CX 2, 3, 4; TR 10, 11, 14, 15)

6. Despite this notification, respondent Klemme Cattle continued in business as a dealer, engaging in livestock operations for which bonding was required under the Act without maintaining either a bond or its equivalent. (CX 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11; TR 11, 12, 59, 65, 70)

7. Respondent Klemme Cattle continued in violation of the Act, engaging in livestock operations for which bonding was required without having in effect a bond or its equivalent from October 24, 1984, through March 27, 1985. (CX 2, 3, 4, 5; TR 10, 11, 27, 31, 59, 65)

8. In the five month period from October 24, 1984, through March 27, 1985, during which no bond or its equivalent was in effect, Respondent Klemme Cattle purchased and sold hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of livestock in transactions for which bonding was required under the Act.

9. Except for the period alleged in the Complaint, Respondent has always maintained a Bond and abided by the Packers and Stockyards Rules and Regulations.

10. Respondent's Livestock Bond was terminated on or about October 24, 1984, because the company which provided Respondent with a Bond discontinued writing Livestock Bonds. Respondent immediately sought a new company to write a Bond, and although Respondent was diligent in its efforts to obtain a new Bond, five months expired in the interim.

11. The record is abundant with evidence that Respondent, by and through its agent, employee, and part owner, made timely attempts to obtain a new Bond.

CONCLUSIONS

The Respondent herein, during the period from October 24, 1984, through March 27, 1985, operated without a Bond or Bond equivalent in disregard of Complainant's Notice that such operations would be in violation of the Act and the regulations.

On September 24, 1984, the Complainant notified Respondent that its Bond would terminate on October 24, 1984. The Notice further instructed Respondent that if a new Bond or its equivalent was not obtained by the close of business on October 24, 1984, all livestock operations for which bonding is required under the Act had to be discontinued. Said Notice was received by the Respondent corporation.

For a period of five months from October 24, 1984, through March 27, 1985, the Respondent operated without a Bond or its equivalent. The testimony adduced at the oral hearing constitutes admissions that during the cited time period, the Respondent was in continuous violation of the Act.

During this five-month period, Respondent purchased and sold hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of livestock in unbonded transactions. In the fourth quarter of 1984 alone, Respondent, although bonded for only twenty-four days of that three-month period, purchased livestock totaling $401,968.89 while leaving a total livestock inventory for 1984 of only $22,794.44.

The requirement that a Bond or its equivalent be maintained by every dealer is a requirement imposed by the Act and the regulations (7 U.S.C. section 204; 9 CFR section 201.29, 201.30). It has been held that operation without a Bond or its equivalent is a violation of section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. section 213(a)) as an "unfair, unjustly, discriminatory, or deceptive practice or device." See In re: Martin, 8 A.D. 1247 (1949); In re: White, 23 A.D. 1104 (1964); and In re: Centreville Livestock Auction Inc., 31 A.D. 765 (1972).

The Respondent does not substantially dispute the Findings of Fact in this matter, but rather maintains that before there can be finding of wilfulness in an action brought under the Packers and Stockyards Act, there must be a finding that the Respondent committed an "intentional misdeed or such gross neglect of a known duty as to be the equivalent thereof." Citing Capital Packing Company v. United States, 350 F.2d 67 (10th Circuit, 1965).

With respect to this argument of the Respondent, it will be noted initially that the Respondent did, in this case, receive a "warning letter." Moreover, the contention of the Respondent that it should not be found to have "willfully" violated the Act cannot be maintained in view of the precedent followed by the Department of Agriculture.

As set forth by the Complainant in its Brief, the term "willful" has many meanings, in connection with regulatory statutes such as this one. The precedent followed by the Department of Agriculture is that a prohibited action is willful if done intentionally or with careless disregard of statutory requirements. In re: Speight, 33 A.D. 280 (1974); In re: Miller, 33 A.D. 53 (1974), appeal denied, 498 F.2d 1088 (5th Circuit 1974); In re: Rayville Livestock Inc., 30 A.D. 886 (1971); and Goodman v. Benson, 286 F.2d 896 (7th Circuit 1961).

Intentionally or negligently doing a prohibited act is willful under a regulatory statute such as the one here involved. This broad definition of willfulness has been adopted in precedent cases. A most recent statement of the Department's Judicial Officer is set forth in the excerpt, infra, from Gerald F. Upton, d/b/a Degraff Livestock Sales, Respondent, Docket No. P. & S. 6196, December 4, 1985:

"As stated in In re Farrow, 42 Agric. Dec.—(September 21, 1983) (slip op. at 54-55):

> Respondents would have to be incredibly naive not to know that their agreement violated the comprehensive Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program. I do not believe that they are incredibly naive. But in any event, a violation is wilful, so that a suspension order can be issued (5 U.S.C. § 558(c)), if a person (i) intentionally does an act which is prohibited, irrespective of evil motive, or reliance on erroneous advice, or (ii) acts with careless disregard of statutory requirements. In re Shatkin, 34 Agric. Dec. 296, 298-314 (1975), and cases cited therein. And see Butz v. Glover Livestock Comm'n Co., 411 U.S. 182, 185-87 (1973). (Footnote omitted)

The Court stated in Butz v. Glover Livestock Comm'n Co., 411 U.S. 182, 186-87 (1973):

> The Secretary may suspend "for a reasonable specified period" and registrant who has violated any provision of the Act. 7 U.S.C. § 204. Nothing whatever in that provision confines its application to cases of "intentional and flagrant conduct" or denies its application in cases of negligent or careless violations. Rather, the breadth of the grant of authority to impose the sanction strongly implies a congressional purpose to permit the Secretary to impose it to deter repeated violations of the Act, whether intentional or negligent."

In addition, the Upton case went on to state:

"Suspension orders have routinely been upheld where a finding of willfulness was made by the Department without a finding that the respondent knew that his conduct was unlawful. For example, in Goodman v. Benson, 286 F.2d 896,900 (7th Cir. 1961), the court upheld a suspension order, stating:

We think it clear that if a person 1) intentionally does an act which is prohibited,—irrespective of evil motive or reliance on erroneous advice, or 2) acts with careless disregard of statutory requirements, the violation is wilful. Eastern Produce Co. v. Benson, 3 Cir., 278 F.2d 606, 609.

Similarly, in Eastern Produce Co. v. Benson, 278 F.2d 606, 609 (3d Cir. 1960), the court upheld a suspension order, stating:

Nor can we subscribe to the proposition that the test of willfulness in this context is to be evil purpose of criminal intent, for this is not a criminal statute."

The Respondent's owners and managers freely admitted during the oral hearing that the Respondent corporation had operated in violation of the Act for months after Notice, and it was further admitted that they had full knowledge and understanding of the Act's provisions and requirements, having been in the cattle business for more than 20 years. Such operation after Notice has consistently been held to be willful.

The Complainant has established on the record the reason for its requested sanction of a $1,500.00 civil penalty to be assessed against the Respondent for its willful violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act and regulations. Accordingly, such sanction is hereby imposed.

The Respondent seeks the imposition of a penalty of no more than $100.00. However, the facts and record of this case do not show valid reason for such a low penalty, and, is not consistent with the record evidence. The Complainant's sanction policy and guidelines were provided by Complainant's witness, Mr. Jack Brinckmeyer. This testimony is found at pages 84 and 85 of the transcript:

Q. Why is that you think an appropriate sanction is $1,500.00?

A. It is basically based on our present guidelines that we use in determining sanction for a failure to provide bond coverage. July, a year ago, when the bonding requirements were increased to $10,000.00 minimum, we changed our basic determination to 5 per cent of the amount of the bond that was required at the time it was terminated, plus the period of time that the person operated without bond coverage is determined in the civil penalty that is included.

Prior to that we have been using 10 per cent because of the increase in the minimum bond and requirements under 303, we tried to equate those to be in a fairly equal position.

* * * * * * *

Q. Do you feel, Mr. Brinckmeyer, in your opinion as an employee of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, do you feel that the penalty of $1,500.00 is what is necessary to basically assure the Department that Mr. Klemme won't again operate without a bond?

A. That's part of it. We feel that the penalty is also to indicate to other people that would be inclined to violate the Act, that they should stay in compliance. I will have to say that we have started and are continuing to increase our sanctions, not only on civil penalties but on suspensions as well, to a point to where we have more voluntary compliance, if you want to call it that. I feel this penalty is in an area that we need at the present time to insure compliance by respondent, as well as other people who would be inclined in engage in the same type of violations.

The Department's deciding official, the Judicial Officer, has stated many times what is set forth in the 1974 decision of: In re: Worsley, 33 A.D. 1547, that it is the policy of the Department to impose severe sanctions upon Respondents who have engaged in serious or repeated violations of the regulatory laws administered by the Department.

The record evidence herein firmly establishes the seriousness of Respondent's violations. For months, Respondent Klemme Cattle engaged in livestock transactions totalling hundreds of thousands of dollars while offering the industry no surety protection in event of its failure to pay those with whom it engaged in business.

Accordingly, the following Order is appropriate, and, it is so issued.

ORDER

Respondent Klemme Cattle Company, Inc., its officers, directors, agents, employees, successors and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with its operations as a dealer or market agency subject to the Act, shall cease and desist from engaging in business subject to the Act without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. section 213(b)), Respondent is assessed a civil penalty of One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($1,500.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Roberta Swartzendruber, Esquire, Office of the General Counsel, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

The provisions of this Order shall become effective Thirty-five days after service thereof unless appealed by a party hereto within Thirty Days after service, all as more fully set forth in the Rules of Practice and Procedure, 7 CFR 1.131, et seq, 1.145(a) and 1.142(c).

Copies of this Decision shall be served upon the parties.

Cease and desist failure to pay for purchases—Suspension—Consent.

Andrew Stanton, for complainant.
James A. Boyd, Wytheville, VA, for respondent.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. B. C. Umberger, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is Route 1, Box 265, Wytheville, Virginia 24382.

2. The respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(b) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for his own account.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent B. C. Umberger, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with his operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from failing to pay, when due, for livestock purchases.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of four weeks.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the sixth day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served on the parties.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondents Fred Cochran and Dale Cochran, their agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with their business operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Issuing checks in payment for livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks are drawn to pay such checks when presented;

2. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock; and

3. Failing to pay the full purchase price of livestock.

Respondents Fred Cochran and Dale Cochran are suspended as registrants under the Act for a period of five years, provided, however, that upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration, a supplemental order may be issued terminating this suspension at any time after the expiration of six months for respondent Fred Cochran and after two years for respondent Dale Cochran upon demonstration by respondents that all unpaid livestock sellers have been paid in full, and provided further that this order may be modified upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration to permit respondents' salaried employment by another registrant after the expiration of a six month suspension for Fred Cochran and a two year suspension for Dale Cochran.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the sixth day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served on the parties.

In re: RAYMOND HENSLEY, P&S Docket No. 6534. Decided June 26, 1986.

Bonding required—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Roberta Swartzendruber, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Raymond Hensley, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is Route 1, Box 199, Collins, Missouri 64738.

2. Respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account, and a market agency buying livestock in commerce on a commission basis; and

(b) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for his own account and as a market agency to sell livestock in commerce on a commission basis.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent Raymond Hensley, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act, as amended and supplemented, and the regulations, without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act until such time as he complies fully with the bonding requirements under the Act and the regulations. When respondent demonstrates that he is in full compliance with such bonding requirements, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating this suspension.

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty, the dollar amount of which shall be five percent (5%) of the respondent's required amount of bond coverage, not to exceed Two Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($2,750.00). The amount of required bond coverage is dependent on the amount of livestock purchased during the respondent's business year as set forth in Packers and Stockyards Administration regulations at 9 CFR § 201.30. The respondent agrees to furnish the dollar amount of all his livestock purchases from January 1, 1985, through March 31, 1986, to the Packers and Stockyards Administration's Kansas City, Missouri, Regional Office at 828 Livestock Exchange Building, Kansas City, Missouri 64102.

When the livestock purchase figures are received and the amount of the respondent's required bond is determined, the dollar amount of the civil penalty shall be assessed as set forth herein and the respondent shall be immediately notified by the Regional Office of the required dollar amount for his bond and the amount of his assessed penalty.

Should this dollar amount of livestock purchases NOT be received by the Regional Office within the 30 day period following the date this decision is signed by the administrative law judge, the maximum civil penalty of Two Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($2,750.00) is hereby assessed against the respondent.

Upon the effective date of this order, respondent Raymond Hensley shall make a payment of Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($250.00) toward the total civil penalty to be assessed, such payment to be made by certified check payable to the Treasurer of the United States clearly marked with the case docket number and sent to Roberta Swartzendruber, Attorney, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Room 2446, South Building, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400. Payments in the sum of Two Hundred Fifty Dollars ($250.00) per month shall be made in like manner by respondent on the remaining balance of the civil penalty until paid in full. These payments are to commence on the first day of the month following respondent Hensley's notification of the amount of civil penalty assessed.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the sixth day after service of this order on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

In re: GILES AND STRATTON AUCTION, INC., a corporation, d/b/a LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS, FLOYD GILES, an individual, and RONNIE STRATTON , an individual, P&S Docket No. 6660. Decided June 26, 1986.

Insolvent—Civil Penalty—Suspended—Consent.

Roberta Swartzendruber, for complainant.
Michael Epley, Magnolia, AR, for respondent.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents wilfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent Giles and Stratton Auction, Inc., doing business as Livestock Producers, hereinafter referred to as the corporate respondent, is a Louisiana corporation whose mailing address is R.R. 1, Box 666, Bossier City, Louisiana 71112.

2. The corporate respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of conducting and operating Livestock Producers stockyard, a stockyard posted under and subject to the provisions of the Act, hereinafter referred to as the stockyard;

(b) Engaged in the business of a market agency selling livestock in commerce on a commission basis and as a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account; and

(c) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock on a commission basis and as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for its own account.

3. Floyd Giles and Ronnie Stratton, hereinafter referred to as individual respondents Giles and Stratton, are sole owners of the corporate respondent. Individual respondent Giles is president and individual respondent Stratton is vice president of the corporate respondent.

4. Individual respondents Giles and Stratton direct, manage and control the business activities of corporate respondent.

5. The individual respondents Giles and Stratton are market agencies and dealers within the meaning of those terms as defined in the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Corporate respondent Giles and Stratton Auction, Inc., its officers, directors, agents, employees, successors and assigns, and individual respondents Floyd Giles and Ronnie Stratton, their agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in business as a dealer or market agency while their current liabilities exceed their current assets;

2. Failing to deposit in their Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds, within the times prescribed by section 201.42 of the regulations, amounts equal to the proceeds due consignors for livestock purchased by respondents for market support, and amounts equal to the outstanding proceeds receivable due from the sale of consigned livestock;

3. Failing to otherwise maintain and use properly their Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds in strict conformity with the provisions of section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42);

4. Using funds received as proceeds from the sale of livestock sold on a commission basis for purposes of their own or for any purpose other than the payment of lawful marketing charges and the remittance of net proceeds to the consignors and shippers of livestock;

5. Consigning livestock to any stockyard for sale under false or fictitious names;

6. Preparing buyer's bills which fail to disclose the full, true and correct names of the buyers of consigned livestock;

7. Permitting its auctioneer or other key employees to purchase livestock from consignments for speculative resale or to fill orders; and

8. Selling consigned livestock to any owner, officer, agent, employee, or any such person having an ownership or financial interest in the market without disclosing the name of the buyer and the nature of the relationship existing between the market agency and the buyer on the account of sale issued to the consignor. Further, such disclosure shall be publicly announced at the time of sale.

Respondents Giles and Stratton Auction, Inc., and Floyd Giles are suspended as registrants under the Act for a period of seven (7) days and thereafter until they demonstrate that they are no longer insovlent and that the shortage in their Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds has been eliminated. When respondents demonstrate that they are no longer insolvent and that the shortage in their Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds has been eliminated, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension after the expiration of the seven (7) day period.

Respondent Stratton is prohibited for a period of seven (7) days from engaging in business or operating subject to the Act as a dealer and/or market agency.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)), respondents are hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of seventeen thousand dollars ($17,000.00).

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the sixth day after service of this order on the respondents.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

MISCELLANEOUS DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: FARMERS LIVESTOCK AUCTION, INC., P&S Docket No. 6266. Decided May 14, 1986.

Suspension modified to terminate—deficit in accounts eliminated.

Jory Hochberg, for complainant.
Gerald Eftink, Kansas City, MO, for respondent.

Decision for John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER

On November 14, 1985, an order was issued in the above-captioned matter, which, inter alia, suspended respondent as a registrant under the Act for a period of 28 days and thereafter until the deficit in respondent's custodial account was eliminated. The effective date of this suspension was later modified by orders issued on December 11, 1985, and April 15, 1986.

Respondent has now demonstrated that the deficit in its custodial account has been eliminated. Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the suspension provision of the order issued April 15, 1986, is modified to terminate after the expiration of the 28 day period of suspension. The order shall remain in full force and effect in all other respects.

Late Appeal denied.

Roberta Swartzendruber, for comp'ainant.
John P. Smith, Park Rapids, MN, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER DENYING LATE APPEAL

Respondent's appeal was filed with the Hearing Clerk on April 28, 1986, after it had become final and effective on April 26, 1986. Accordingly, respondent's appeal must be dismissed because it was not timely filed. See In re Powell, 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 28, 1985), attached as Appendix A.

Even if respondent's appeal had been timely filed, it would have been dismissed because respondent failed to file a timely answer. See In re Daul, 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (Mar. 6, 1986), attached as Appendix B.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent's appeal is denied since it was filed after the Administrative Law Judge's decision had become final.

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER

On May 5, 1986, an order was issued in the above-captioned matter which, inter alia, suspended the corporate respondent as a registrant under the Act for a period of 21 days and thereafter until its current liabilities do not exceed its current assets.

Corporate respondent has now demonstrated that its current liabilities do not exceed its current assets. Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the suspension provision of the order issued May 5, 1986, is terminated. The order shall remain in full force and effect in all other respects.

In re: ALLEN H. RIFFEE, P&S Docket No. 6477. Decided June 30, 1986.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

Complainant having informed the presiding officer that he has received full payment of his claim, the above-captioned complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

In re: LEO ZEMLISKA, d/b/a PROFESSIONAL FEEDER CONSULTANTS, v. GLASGOW LIVESTOCK SALES CO., and ROBERT D. FJELDHEIM, P&S Docket No. 6064. Decided June 20, 1986.

Failure to pay—agency—indemnity for expenses and losses—instructions violated—portion dismissed—reparations.

Thomas Heinz, Presiding Officer.
John L. Davidson, Billings, MT, for complainant.
Robert M. Cook, Norfolk NE, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), hereinafter "the Act," begun by a complaint timely filed on February 11, 1982, alleging in substance that respondents failed to reimburse complainant for livestock purchased on order by complainant for respondents. The amount claimed as reparation was $57,016.32. That amount was changed on brief to $41,501.25 plus interest thereon at the rate of 16.5% per annum from November 15, 1983, until paid. A copy of the formal complaint and the investigation report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of this Department was served on respondents.

Respondents filed a timely answer generally denying the allegations of the complaint. Further, in allegations later abandoned on brief, respondents alleged that the Secretary of Agriculture lacks jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter, that the complaint was untimely filed and that complainant has been paid. Respondents requested an oral hearing. Accordingly, oral hearings were held on November 22 and 23, 1983, in Billings, Montana, before Joanne I. Schwartz of the Office of General Counsel of this Department. Complainant was represented by John R. Davidson, Esquire, of Davidson, Veeder, Baugh, Broeder, Poppler & Michelotti, Billings, Montana. Respondents were represented by Robert M. Cook, Esquire, Norfolk, Nebraska. Complainant testified on his own behalf and introduced six exhibits. Three witnesses testified for respondents who introduced two exhibits. After the oral hearing was held, complainant requested leave to introduce rebuttal evidence by deposing two individuals who did not appear at the hearing. Although orders were issued to depose both of these two individuals using written interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, complainant encountered difficulties in his attempts to depose one of them, and eventually agreed to proceed without that individual's deposition. Briefing by the parties was completed on November 18, 1985.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant Leo Zemliska (hereinafter "Zemliska") is an individual doing business as "Professional Feeder Consultants," with his principal place of business located at Newcastle, Wyoming. At all times material herein, Zemliska was registered with the Secretary as a dealer to buy and sell livestock for his own account and as a market agency to buy livestock on commission for the account of others. Zemliska has been engaged in the livestock business for many years.

2. Respondent Glasgow Livestock Sales Company, at all times material herein, was a corporation registered with the Secretary as a dealer to buy and sell livestock for its own account and as a market agency to sell livestock on a commission basis for the account of others. The corporate respondent had its principal place of business located in Glasgow, Montana. Fjeldheim Livestock, Incorporated, is the successor corporation to Glasgow Livestock Sales Company.

3. Respondent Robert D. Fjeldheim is an individual who at all times material herein was the president and sole stockholder of the corporate respondent. The respondents hereinafter will be referred to collectively as "Fjeldheim." Fjeldheim has been engaged in the livestock business for many years.

4. During August of 1981, Fjeldheim received an order from one Marlyn Dahlquist (hereinafter "Dahlquist") of Laurel, Nebraska, to purchase approximately 1,000 heifers and heiferettes suitable for his feeding operations. Dahlquist operated feed lots in Laurel, Nebraska, and Avon, South Dakota, and wanted animals which were relatively young, with healthy mouths, not pregnant and, if properly fed, capable of gaining weight to the point where their meat would grade higher upon slaughter than it would have if the animals were slaughtered immediately after purchase. The livestock were to be furnished to Dahlquist subject to his approval. The agreement required Fjeldheim to use his own funds to purchase the livestock and to bill Dahlquist for the actual cost of the cattle plus a buying commission of $1.00 per hundredweight for his services.

5. In early December, 1981, as part of his continuing efforts to fill the order from Dahlquist, Fjeldheim requested Zemliska purchase some of the same type of animals at livestock auction markets in Sturgis and Belle Fourche, South Dakota. Fjeldheim told Zemliska that the cattle were to be purchased for a third party who had the right to reject them upon receipt, but Fjeldheim did not reveal Dahlquist's identity at this time. Like the Dahlquist-Fjeldheim agreement, the agreement between Fjeldheim and Zemliska required Zemliska to use his own funds to purchase the livestock and to bill Fjeldheim for the actual cost of the cattle plus a buying commission of $.50 per hundredweight to compensate Zemliska for his buying services. Zemliska was also responsible for arranging truck transportation of the animals to a destination which was to be communicated to the trucker after departure from the purchase location.

6. Pursuant to his order, in early December, 1981, Zemliska purchased two loads of cattle at Sturgis and Belle Fourche, South Dakota, arranged their transportation, and issued accountings to Fjeldheim, who accordingly reimbursed Zemliska, paid the agreed $.50 per hundredweight buying commission, and billed Dahlquist for the cost of the cattle plus a commission of $1.00 per hundredweight. There is no controversy between the parties regarding these two loads of cattle which were accepted by Dahlquist upon receipt.

7. Based on Dahlquist's acceptance of the cattle purchased by Zemliska at Sturgis and Belle Fourche, South Dakota, Fjeldheim instructed Zemliska to purchase additional livestock of the same type and quality at Torrington, Wyoming and St. Onge, South Dakota. Thereafter, on December 4, 1981, using his own funds, Zemliska purchased 345 head of livestock at Torrington Livestock Commission Company, Torrington, Wyoming. Zemliska billed Fjeldheim for $125,835.94 which included the buying commission of $1,481.55 of these 345 head. Fjeldheim accordingly issued a check to Zemliska to reimburse him for the cost of the cattle and to pay the buying commission. Pursuant to instructions from Fjeldheim, these cattle were shipped to Dahlquist's feedlots in Avon, South Dakota, where they arrived on December 5, 1981.

8. On December 5, 1981, using his own funds, Zemliska purchased 112 head of livestock at Madden's Livestock Market, Inc., St. Onge, South Dakota, for $41,072.03 and billed Fjeldheim for $41,574.38 which included a buying commission of $502.35. Fjeldheim thereafter issued a check to Zemliska to reimburse him for the cost of the cattle and to pay the buying commission. These cattle were shipped, pursuant to instructions from Fjeldheim, to Dahlquist in Avon, South Dakota, on December 6, 1981, and arrived on December 7, 1981.

9. On or about December 7, 1981, Russell Hamilton, manager of Dahlquist's feedlots in Avon, South Dakota, telephoned Dahlquist in Laurel, Nebraska, to tell him the livestock received from Torrington, Wyoming, and St. Onge, South Dakota on December 5 and 7 were not heiferettes, did not conform, were not suitable for feeding and were not of the same type and quality as the livestock previously received from Sturgis and Belle Fourche.

10. Dahlquist personally inspected the cattle on December 9, 1981, and concluded only 91 out of the 457 head shipped from Torrington and St. Onge conformed to his order. On the same day, he telephoned Fjeldheim to reject the non-conforming cattle.

11. On December 9, 1981, pursuant to his order from Fjeldheim and using his own funds, Zemliska purchased 36 head of livestock at Torrington Livestock Commission Company, Torrington, Wyoming, for $13,711.47.

12. During the morning of December 10, 1981, before the cattle purchased the proceeding day could be shipped, Fjeldheim telephoned Zemliska to inform him that on December 9, 1981, Dahlquist had rejected the cattle which had arrived at his feedlots on December 5 and December 7 because there were "too many lumps and bumps and [the livestock] did not conform to the order." Transcript, p. 159. Fjeldheim instructed Zemliska to resell in Torrington the 36 head purchased on December 9 and promised to indemnify him for any loss upon resale. When resold, these 36 cattle incurred a loss of $2,813.48.

13. On December 10, 1981, Zemliska purchased 113 head of livestock from Fjeldheim for $26,658.30, which amount has not been paid.

14. On December 10, 1981, Fjeldheim agreed to pay one half the air fare for Zemliska to fly to Avon, South Dakota in order that he, Zemliska, could inspect the cattle which Dahlquist had rejected. The total air fare for the trip was $425.00.

15. Zemliska inspected the cattle on December 11, 1981. Thereafter, on several occasions between December 11 and December 30, 1981, Zemliska, Fjeldheim, Dahlquist and his agents, and South Dakota brand inspectors examined the cattle which had been rejected by Dahlquist. These examinations were prompted by Zemliska's contention that the cattle Dahlquist had rejected were not all the same cattle he had purchased at Torrington, Wyoming, and St. Onge, South Dakota, on December 4 and 5 respectively.

16. On or about December 11 or 12, 1981, Zemliska entered into an agreement with Russell Hamilton, subsequently ratified by Dahlquist, wherein Dahlquist agreed to feed the rejected livestock for Zemliska until Zemliska could ascertain whether the livestock were in fact those which he had purchased at Torrington and St. Onge.

17. On December 14, 1981, Fjeldheim stopped payment on the checks which had been issued to pay for the cattle purchased by Zemliska pursuant to order on December 4 and 5, 1981.

18. On December 30, 1981, Zemliska arranged for the resale of 363 head of the 457 head of disputed livestock at auction markets in Yankton and Mitchell, South Dakota. Zemliska received proceeds from those resales totalling $113,070.99.

19. Out of the disputed 457 head, three died before they could be resold, one in transit to Dahlquist's feedlots and the other two while in the feedlots. Zemliska has received insurance compensation of $296.12 for the animal that died in transit.

20. The remaining 91 head out of the disputed 457 head were resold to one Gary Erwin and generated net proceeds of $38,663.82, which amount Fjeldheim has retained and not remitted to Zemliska.

SUBSIDIARY FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

Zemliska contends, in effect, that he properly purchased 457 head of livestock pursuant to an order received from Fjeldheim, and that by the time they were inspected by Fjeldheim's prospective purchaser, Dahlquist, some unknown party or parties had mixed in or substituted different cattle for some of those he had purchased. Further, Zemliska contends that even if the livestock did not conform to the order, Dahlquist and hence Fjeldheim did not reject them in a timely manner. Zemliska argues that he purchased the livestock as an agent for Fjeldheim who, as the owner of the livestock, must bear the loss incurred when Dahlquist improperly rejected the cattle and they had to be resold. Fjeldheim, on the other hand, claims that Zemliska was not an agent, rather he was the seller to Fjeldheim who as the buyer rightfully rejected the livestock which did not conform to the contract of sale. Therefore, Fjeldheim argues, Zemliska as seller must suffer the losses incurred in the salvage sale of the nonconforming cattle. Neither party's argument can be entirely endorsed. Although Zemliska correctly argues that he acted as Fjeldheim's agent, that fact does not permit him to recover all the expenses and losses claimed in this case. On the contrary, by unjustifiably tendering livestock which concededly did not conform to the order, Zemliska failed to fulfill his duty as an agent to follow instructions and cannot be indemnified for the losses and expenses occasioned by the transactions.

Nature of Relationship Between the Parties

Section 1 of the Second Restatement of Agency provides as follows:

> (1) Agency is the fiduciary relation which results from the manifestation of consent by one person to another that the other shall act on his behalf and subject to his control, and consent by the other so to act.
> (2) The one for whom action is to be taken is the principal.
> (3) The one who is to act is the agent.

The agreement between Zemliska and Fjeldheim clearly manifests a contract of agency. Fjeldheim gave instructions as to the type of cattle to buy, where to buy them, at what price and weight, and where to send them after purchase. Zemliska acted subject to Fjeldheim's control and primarily for Fjeldheim's benefit, not his own, which distinguishes their relationship from that of a buyer and seller.

> One who contracts to acquire property from a third person and convey it to another is the agent of the other only if it is agreed that he is to act primarily for the benefit of the other and not for himself.

Section 14K, Restatement of Agency, 2d.

Zemliska was to be paid a flat commission of $.50 per hundredweight for his buying services. He was required to bill Fjeldheim for the exact costs of the cattle. This is a crucial fact in the determination of the nature of the relationship between the parties. If Zemliska had been a seller here, that is, a dealer rather than an agent, he would have been free to make a speculative profit in the venture. He was not. His only personal benefit was the flat per hundredweight commission. Moreover, if the parties had been operating as buyer and seller rather than as principal and agent, it is very unlikely Fjeldheim would have felt obligated to promise indemnification, as he did, for any loss suffered on the 36 head of cattle Zemliska bought on December 9, 1981 at Torrington, Wyoming.

A considerable portion of the record in this case concerns brand certificates issued and reissued at various points by various persons. Under the best of circumstances, the brand certificates are merely prima facie, not conclusive, evidence of ownership. (Section 11-20-108 of Wyoming statutes of 1977.) The evidence in this case shows that at the time the cattle were purchased, Zemliska knew he was not purchasing them for his own account but rather for a third party whose identity was known to Fjeldheim but not to Zemliska at that time. Dahlquist's identity was revealed to Zemliska later. Under these circumstances, it was understandable and reasonable for Zemliska to identify Fjeldheim as the "owner." Since there is no evidence the brand inspectors who filled out the original brand certificates had any source of information about the relationship between the parties independent of Zemliska, those brand certificates cannot be taken conclusively to determine the true ownership of the cattle. They merely reflect what Zemliska told the brand inspectors. The reissued brand certificates in the record are likewise unreliable indicators of ownership because the person who filled them out was not shown to be aware of the true nature of the relationship between the parties.

Invoices, health certificates and bills of lading in the record variously designate both Zemliska and Fjeldheim as the person who was "owner," "shipper," "consignor," "consigned to," "consignee," and "purchaser." Like the brand certificates, these documents do not reveal or determine the true nature of the relationship between the parties.

The ultimate purchaser of the disputed livestock was to be Dahlquist. The agreement between Dahlquist and Fjeldheim was identical to the Fjeldheim-Zemliska agreement except that Dahlquist agreed to pay a buying commission of $1.00 per hundredweight over the exact cost of the cattle rather than the $.50 per hundredweight Fjeldheim agreed to pay Zemliska for Zemliska's services. Fjeldheim's sole personal benefit from the transactions derived from the flat-rate buying commission. Like Zemliska, he was not free to make a speculative profit from the deal. In other words, like Zemliska, Fjeldheim also was acting as an agent. Zemliska was the subagent for Fjeldheim, the agent for Dahlquist, the principal.

Duties and Liabilities of the Parties

The Second Restatement of Agency and Corpus Juris Secundum set out the following rules defining the duties and liabilities of the parties in this case:

> (1) Unless otherwise agreed a subagent who knows of the existence of the ultimate principal owes him the duties owed by an agent to a principal, except the duties dependent upon the existence of a contract.
> (2) Unless otherwise agreed, a subagent owes the agent the duties of an agent to his principal.

Restatement of Agency, 2d, § 428.

Comment(c) to section 428 describes the situation where Zemliska knew that he was purchasing cattle for an unknown third party.

> (c) Principal partially disclosed. A subagent who knows of the existence but does not know of the identity of the principal has in general the same liabilities as one who knows of the identity of the principal.

Zemliska was obliged to obey instructions from Fjeldheim.

> It is an agent's duty to adhere faithfully to all instructions given him by his principal, and his violation of the instructions will serve to make the agent liable for any loss or damage which may result therefrom.

3 C.J.S. Agency § 288

If Zemliska followed instructions, Fjeldheim is required to indemnify him for expenses and losses.

> The general rule is that where one is employed or directed by another to do an act in his behalf, not manifestly wrong, the law implies a promise of indemnity by the principal for damages resulting from or expenditures incurred as a proximate consequence of the good faith execution of the agency . . .

3 C.J.S. Agency § 321.

However, if Zemliska did not obey instructions and committed unauthorized acts, Fjeldheim is not required to indemnify the losses and expenses caused by the unauthorized acts.

> Unless otherwise agreed, the principal is not subject to a duty to indemnify an agent:

> (a) for pecuniary loss or other harm, not of benefit to the principal, arising from the performance of unauthorized acts or resulting solely from the agent's negligence or other fault . . .

Restatement of Agency, 2d, § 440

The Dahlquist-Fjeldheim cattle order called for heifers and heiferettes in healthy condition and suitable for feeding purposes. Invoices in the record show a majority of the cattle Zemliska purchased were cows, not heifers or heiferettes.[1] Gail Sohler, the owner and operator of the auction market where many of the rejected cattle were resold testified that the rejected cattle were "all butcher cows." (TR 360) Mike Madden, owner and operator of the auction market in St. Onge where Zemliska purchased 112 of the disputed livestock, testified that Zemliska bought 82 aged cows and 30 heiferettes. (TR 226, 228) In his deposition, Dallas Larson said he was present at the December 4, 1981, sale at Torrington when Zemliska was buying and saw the purchase of animals which would not qualify as heiferettes. Moreover, invoices made out at the time Zemliska purchased the animals in dispute show several which were "lame," "rough," or suffering from a cancerous eye, conditions which adversely affected their suitability for feeding purposes. It is therefore clear that many of the 457 head of cattle which are subject of this dispute did not conform to that order in that they were not heifers, were too old to be heiferettes or were not suitable for feeding purposes; they were cows suitable only for butcher purposes.

In fact, Zemliska does not dispute that a significant number of the livestock did not conform to the order, but he claims he did not buy them. Rather, he argues there had to have been a mix-up at some point along the line from his purchase to rejection by Dahlquist. In other words, Zemliska contends that he followed his principal's instructions, but that someone else was responsible for the delivery of non-conforming livestock. This argument is unpersuasive. There is prima facie proof Zemliska violated instructions, but he has failed to carry his burden to prove he was not responsible for the delivery of cattle which did not conform to the order.

[1] Although there is some considerable debate in the record concerning the exact meaning of "heiferette," there can be no doubt that the term does not include butcher cows. (See, Grischott v. Willard, 28 Agric. Dec. 423 (1969) where it was found that the disputed animals were cows and too old to be "heiferettes," making them unfit as feeders.)

> The principal has the burden of proving that the agent has been guilty of negligence or misconduct or has violated instructions; these matters will not be presumed, but where there is prima facie proof thereof, the agent has the burden of showing facts relieving him from liability or reducing the amount of damages.

3 C.J.S. § 507; See also, Robbins v. Roumel, 138 A.2d 922 (D.C. 1958).

Zemliska submitted into evidence lists of back tag numbers reportediy attached to the cattle at the time they were purchased, along with lists of back tag numbers purportedly found on some of the cattle purchased at St. Onge when inspected at Dahlquist's feedlots. These lists show gaps in the numbers, unassigned numbers, missing tag numbers, and unexplained and undecipherable notations. Therefore, these lists do not support Zemliska's argument that the back tag numbers do not match, thereby proving a mix-up of the cattle.

Terry Gropper was the South Dakota brand inspector who prepared the brand inspection certificate for the 112 head of cattle Zemliska purchased at St. Onge, South Dakota, on December 5, 1981. Mr. Gropper twice went to Avon, South Dakota, at Zemliska's request to check the brands. Although Zemliska did not call Mr. Gropper to testify at the hearing, the investigation report, served on Zemliska before the hearing, contains a memorandum of a conversation Mr. Gropper had with an investigator from the Packers and Stockyards Administration. That memorandum indicates Mr. Gropper said the cattle he found in Avon were the same cattle he issued a market clearance for on December 5, 1981, after the auction at St. Onge.[2] The content of this conversation was corroborated by Mike Madden, owner and operator of the St. Onge auction market, who testified at the hearing that Mr. Gropper reported the same conclusion to him.[3] Further, Mr. Madden and his employees also conducted an independent investigation which reached the same conclusion.

Zemliska himself testified to the effect that he found the majority of the 345 cattle he purchased at Torrington, Wyoming arrived at the Dahlquist feedlots. He specifically remembered only three head out of the 345 as not purchased by him because "they were older cows." (TR 169) Finally, The affidavit in the record from Lester W. Maxfield, owner and operator of the auction market in Torrington, contains Maxfield's statement that "it is my opinion that Mr. Zemliska loaded out on trucks the exact 345 head of cattle that he purchased." In sum, the preponderance of the evidence does not support Zemliska's uncorroborated contention that a significant number of the cattle found at Dahlquist's feedlots were not the same cattle he had purchased at St. Onge, South Dakota, and Torrington, Wyoming on December 4 and 5, 1981.

Zemliska also argues, in effect, that even if all the cattle did not conform to the order, Dahlquist and his agents initially took action inconsistent with rejection and failed to reject the cattle within a reasonable time. Both parties improperly cite Article 2 of the Uniform Commercial Code on sales in their arguments regarding this issue. Since the parties are not buyer and seller but rather are principal and agent as to each other, agency law, not sales law, governs this dispute. See UCC § 1-103 and Manger v. Davis, 619 P.2d 687 (Utah, 1980); Cairo Co-op Exchange v. First National Bank of Cunningham, 608 P.2d 1370 (Kan. 1980). Cast in agency terms, Zemliska is arguing that Dahlquist must be taken to have impliedly ratified his unauthorized purchase of non-conforming cattle by treating the livestock in a manner consistent with acceptance and by failing to reject the cattle until two to five days after delivery. That argument has no merit.

> The principal must have full knowledge of the unauthorized act of his agent and an opportunity to repudiate the same before any delay in repudiating the act in question can constitute a ratification thereof.
> The principal does not ratify an unauthorized act if he repudiates it with reasonable promptness after learning the facts, instant repudiation not being essential to avoid ratification . . . .

2A C.J.S. Agency § 87, 89.

The Torrington cattle arrived in Avon, South Dakota, on Saturday, December 5, and the St. Onge cattle arrived on Monday, December 7, 1981, the same day Dahlquist's employee, Russell Hamilton, called him in Laurel, Nebraska to report that the cattle did not conform to the order. Russell Hamilton obviously did not have authority on his own motion to reject the cattle, or he would have done so without contacting his employer. Dahlquist personally inspected the cattle on Wednesday. He then immediately communicated rejection to Fjeldheim who in turn passed the word to Zemliska on Thursday morning, December 10. Under these circumstances, we find that repudiation of Zemliska's unauthorized act, that is, the purchase of non-conforming livestock, occurred with reasonable promptness after Dahlquist learned the facts.

Although Dahlquist's feedlot employees apparently initially treated the livestock in a manner which would have been consistent with acceptance by their employer, this treatment cannot be deemed acceptance, particularly in the absence of any showing that these employees had authority from Dahlquist to reject livestock purchased on order, or in the absence of any evidence that Zemliska was prejudiced either by the short lapse of time between delivery and rejection or by the treatment the cattle received while in Dahlquist's custody before rejection.[4]

In summary, Zemliska, in violation of instructions, purchased livestock which did not conform to the Dahlquist-Fjeldheim order and which were rightfully rejected by Dahlquist in a timely manner. Because Zemliska violated his order-buying instructions without justification, we hold that he, not Fjeldheim, is liable for losses and expenses incurred in connection with his purchase of the non-conforming livestock. 3 C.J.S. Agency § 288. The complaint will be dismissed as to those losses and expenses, which include the losses generated upon resale of the livestock, plus telephone, travel, brand inspection and trucking expenses incurred with respect to the livestock rightfully rejected by Dahlquist. This conclusion, based on the facts of this case, comports with record evidence showing that as a general rule in the livestock industry, a livestock order buyer bears the risk of loss for delivery of non-conforming livestock.

[4] The investigation report contains a memorandum to file by Dennis Thalacker, Packers and Stockyards Administration, memoralizing his interview of Oliver Dicken, auctioneer at Torrington Livestock Commission Co., Torrington, Wyoming. Mr. Dicken is reported to have compared various average cattle prices on December 4 and December 11, 1981, and to have concluded that "it was evident that the going price paid for various types of cattle had declined about $2.00 per hundredweight." If Mr. Dicken's conclusion was well-founded, it suggests a possible bad faith motive for rejecting the livestock. However, since Dahlquist was not called to testify and there is no other evidence on this point, on the basis of this record we must conclude that Dahlquist acted in good faith when he rejected on December 9 the livestock purchased by Zemliska on December 4 and 5.

Fjeldheim received the proceeds from the sale of the 91 head of livestock which in fact conformed to the Dahlquist-Fjeldheim order. Failure to reimburse an agent for the full amount of the purchase price plus costs of livestock properly purchased on order constitutes an unjust practice in violation of the Act for which reparation may be awarded. Frank Novy v. Western Iowa Farms Co., d/b/a Martin Bros. & Co., 33 Agric. Dec. 23 (1974); Southwest Cattle Co. v. Betts, 28 Agric. Dec. 426 (1969).

Fjeldheim concedes he owes Zemliska the following amounts:

$38,663.82	proceeds from resale of 91 head to Gary Erwin which reimburses Zemliska for the cost thereof and includes Zemliska's buying commission thereon
1,216.06	shipping cost for the 91 head
2,813.48	loss incurred upon resale of 36 head purchased on December 9, 1981
212.50	one-half of air fare for Zemliska's trip to Avon

From this amount must be deducted $26,658.30 which both parties agree Zemliska owes Fjeldheim for 113 cattle purchased on December 10, 1981, leaving a total of $16,247.56.

Fjeldheim claims an additional setoff of $11,875.28 for feed he contends Zemliska owes Dahlquist. However, Fjeldheim was not a party to the contract wherein Dahlquist agreed to feed cattle for Zemliska, nor has Fjeldheim become subrogated to Dahlquist's rights under that contract. Therefore, Fjeldheim is without standing to assert the purported feed bill of $11,875.28 as a setoff claim against Zemliska. Accordingly, Fjeldheim will be ordered to pay Zemliska as reparation $16,247.56 plus interest.

Three out of the subject 457 cattle died, one in transit to South Dakota for which Zemliska has received insurance compensation and two others after arrival at Dahlquist's feedlots. The record does not reveal whether or not these two conformed to the Dahlquist order. Since Zemliska has the burden of proving his damages, no reparation can be awarded for the two cattle which died after delivery to Dahlquist.

All contentions of the parties presented for the record have been carefully considered whether or not specifically mentioned herein.

This decision and order is the same as a decision and order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, being issued pursuant to delegated authority, 7 CFR § 2.35, 42. F.R. 4395, as authorized by the Act of April 4, 1940, 54 Stat. 81, 7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g. It constitutes an "order for the payment of money" within the meaning of section 309(f) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 210(f)).

Under that section, if respondents do not comply with this order within the time limit in this order, comlainant may within one year of the date of this order file in the district court of the United States for the district in which they reside or in which is located the principal place of business of respondents, or in any state court having general jurisdiction of the parties, a petition setting forth briefly the causes for which he claims damages and this order in the premises. That section further provides that such suit in the district court shall proceed in all respects like other civil suits for damages except that the findings and order herein shall be prima facie evidence of the facts herein stated, and the petitioner shall not be liable for costs in the district court nor for costs at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless they accrue upon appeal. That section further provides that if the petitioner finally prevails, he shall be allowed a reasonable attorney's fee to be taxed and collected as a part of the costs of the suit.

It is requested that copies of all pleadings filed by any party in any such suit be filed with the Hearing Clerk, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, for inclusion in the file of this reparation proceeding. It is further requested that if the construction of the Act, or the jurisdiction to issue this order, becomes an issue in any such suit, prompt notice be given to the Office of the General Counsel, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

On the Secretary's jurisdiction to issue this order, see discussion in Neugebauer v. Ryken, Civ. 74-4018, U.S.D.C., D. So. Dak., So. Div. 1975, 34 Agric. Dec. 1712; Mid-South Order Buyers, Inc. v. Platte Valley Livestock, Inc., 210 Nebr. 382, 315 N.W.2d 229, 41 Agric. Dec. 48 (1982).

On a petition to reopen a hearing, to rehear or reargue a proceeding, or to reconsider an order, see rule 17 of the Rules of Practice, 9 CFR § 202.117.

On the respondents' right to judicial review hereof, see Maly Livestock Commission v. Hardin, et al., 446 F.2d 4, 30 Agric. Dec. 1063 (8th Cir. 1971). On complainant's right to judicial review hereof, see United States v. I.C.C., 337 U.S. 426.

ORDER

That part of the complaint filed herein is dismissed which seeks recovery from losses and expenses incurred by complainant Leo Zemliska in connection with the rejection by Marlyn Dahlquist of all but 91 head out of 457 head of livestock purchased on order by complainant Leo Zemliska for respondents Glasgow Livestock Sales Co. and Robert D. Fjeldheim.

Within thirty days from the date hereof, respondents Glasgow Livestock Sales Co., its successors and assigns, and Robert D. Fjeldheim shall pay complainant Leo Zemliska as reparation the sum of $16,247.56 with interest thereon at the rate of 13 per cent per annum from February 1, 1982, until paid.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

ROBERT L. REEVES, CHARLES W. REEVES, JAMES C. REEVES v. UNITED STATES OF AMERICA and U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE. Civil Action Nos. 85-1517, 85-1518, 85-1519. Decided May 28, 1986.

United States Court of Appeals District of Columbia

PETITIONS FOR REVIEW OF ORDERS OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BEFORE: WALD and GINSBURY, Circuit Judges and RE, Chief Judge of the United States Court of International Trade (sitting by designation).

JUDGMENT

These consolidated petitions for review of decisions of the Administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service were briefed and argued by counsel for the parties. The court has considered the issues petitioners present and finds they occasion no need for a further opinion. See D.C. Cir. R. 13(c).

Our review of the record satisfies us that petitioners have failed to demonstrate that they are not "responsibly connected" with a dealer. Unlike Quinn v. Butz, 510 F.2d 743 (D.C. Cir. 1975), and Minotto v. U.S. Dep't of Agriculture, 711 F.2d 406 (D.C. Cir. 1983), petitioners here are in no sense subordinate to or under the control of the principal actor in the company in question. The evidence amply shows that petitioners acted of their own volition, and became affiliated as directors and stockholders of Reeves Produce because they believed the business would yield them a profit. The evidence further shows that they failed to exercise due care to determine whether Reeves Produce was being managed in accord with legal requirements imposed by the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act. It is therefore ORDERD and ADJUDGED that the petitions for review are denied and the decisions of the Administrator are affirmed.

REEVES PRODUCE, INC. v. UNITED STATES OF AMERICA and U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE, CIVIL ACTION NO. 85-1602. DECIDED MAY 28, 1986.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIRCUIT

PETITION FOR REVIEW OF AN ORDER OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Before: WALD and GINSBURY, Circuit Judges and RE, Chief Judge of the United States Court of International Trade (Sitting by designation).

JUDGMENT

This petition for review of a decision of the Secretary of Agriculture was briefed and argued by counsel for the parties. The court has considered the issues petitioner presented and finds they do not merit a further opinion. See D.C. Cir. R. 13(c).

Substantial evidence, summarized in the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge and Judicial Officer, fully supports the determination that Reeves Produce committed flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2(4) of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 7 U.S.C. § 499b(4). Furthermore, the record evidence plainly warrants the sanction ordered. It is therefore ORDERED and ADJUDGED that the petition for review is denied and the decision of the Secretary is affirmed.

DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: TED SOBIECH. PACA Docket No. 2-6902. Decided May 8, 1986.

Failure to pay promptly—License suspended—Consent.

Edward M. Silverstein, for complainant.
Jeffrey D. Sherwin, Middletown, New York, for respondent.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Chief Administrative Law Judge, for Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on July 24, 1985, by the Acting Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period April 1984 through February 1985, respondent purchased, received and accepted, in interstate commerce, from nine sellers, 39 lots of onions, a perishable agricultural commodity, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the total amount of $144,723.41.

A copy of the complaint was served upon respondent. On August 28, 1985, an answer was filed by respondent in which he denied violating the Act as alleged by complainant. Complainant moved for the setting of a definite date for hearing, and, on February 20, 1986, the matter was set down for hearing on April 1, 1986, in New York City, New York. A prehearing conference, by telephone, was held on March 13, 1986. Complainant's counsel appeared at the April 1, 1986, hearing and reported that, at 11:15 the previous evening, the parties had agreed to settle this matter without hearing. Therefore, with the consent of the parties, the following Decision and Order is issued.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Thaddeus J. Sobiech t/a Ted Sobiech, is an individual, whose mailing address is Box 158, Pine Island, New York 10969.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 152721 was issued to respondent on June 29, 1954, was renewed annually, presently is in effect, and is subject to renewal on or before June 29, 1986.

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period April 1984 through February 1985 respondent purchased, received and accepted in interstate commerce, from nine sellers, 39 lots of onions a perishable agricultural commodity, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $144,723.41.

4. The amounts due and owing the nine sellers referred to in paragraph 3 above has now been paid, and respondent appears to be current in his payments to his suppliers.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 39 transactions set forth in Finding of Fact No. 3, above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's license is suspended for 80 days.
This Order shall take effect on May 15, 1986.
This Decision will become final upon its issuance.
Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

In re: TED SOBIECH. PACA Docket No. 2-6902. Decided May 19, 1986.

Correction of decision—Consent.

Edward M. Silverstein, for complainant.
Jeffrey D. Sherwin, Middletown, New York, for respondent.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

CORRECTION TO CONSENT DECISION

The oral hearing was held herein on April 1, 1986, during which a settlement agreement was reached on the record. Same was to be reduced to writing and presented to the Administrative Law Judge. This was not done until May 7, 1986, at a time when the Judge was out of town on another hearing and the Consent Decision was signed in her absence.

Paragraph 4. thereof is hereby corrected to read:

> The amounts due and owing the nine sellers referred to in paragraph 3 above have now been paid, and respondent appears to be current in his payments to his suppliers.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

In re: H & J BROKERAGE, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6437. Decided May 22, 1986.

Appeal of denial of application for license—Denial affirmed.

The Judicial Officer affirmed Judge Baker's decision denying respondent's application for a license on the ground that Mr. Scharf, respondent's president, treasurer, and 75% stockholder, played a major role in the failure of Fresh World, Inc., to pay 20 shippers for over $331,000 worth of produce. Although Mr. Scharf was not solely responsible for Fresh World's failures to pay, he was general manager of Fresh World and was primarily responsible for its sales to Central Produce, whose failure to pay $342,000 to Fresh World was a major factor in Fresh World's failure to pay its suppliers. It is immaterial that Mr. Scharf was not "responsibly connected" with Fresh World, as that term is defined in the Act. Explanation as to when a "responsibly connected" determination is relevant. It is only necessary for complainant to show that Mr. Scharf engaged in practices of the character prohibited by the Act. The inclusion of a term in one section of the Act, while omitting it in another, emphasizes that it should not be implied in the place where it was omitted. The Act has been interpreted in a tough and harsh manner, with the support of the industry. Excuses are routinely rejected in failure to pay and failure to pay promptly cases. Once complainant establishes that Mr. Scharf engaged in practices of the character prohibited by the Act, the burden of proof is on respondent to show that it is fit to receive a license. It is only necessary that the complaint in an administrative proceeding reasonably apprise the litigant of the issues in controversy. In a hearing conducted at intervals, there is little or no basis for respondent's complaint as to the adequacy of the administrative complaint. The ALJ should require the parties to number the pages of multi-page exhibits.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.),* in which Administrative Law Judge Dorothea A. Baker (ALJ) filed an initial Decision and Order on July 24, 1985, denying respondent's application for a license on the ground that Donald Scharf, who is respondent's president, treasurer, only director, and 75% stockholder, played a major role in the failure of Fresh World, Inc.,

to pay 20 shippers for over $331,000 worth of produce from June 1983 through September 1983.

On December 9, 1985, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35). On March 25, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

Oral argument before the Judicial Officer, which is discretionary (7 CFR § 1.145(d)), was requested by respondent, but is denied inasmuch as the issues are not difficult, the case has been thoroughly briefed, and oral argument would seem to serve no useful purpose.

Based upon a careful consideration of the entire record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order, with material added by the Judicial Officer included in brackets. In addition, a few trivial changes not included in brackets have been made. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION (AS MODIFIED)

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is an administrative action brought pursuant to the provisions of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "PACA." It arises by reason of a Notice to Show Cause filed on December 12, 1983, wherein it is alleged that the Application of Respondent corporation, a New Jersey corporation, filed on November 14, 1983, reflects that Donald Scharf is the president, treasurer, director and holder of 75 percent of the outstanding stock of said H & J Brokerage, Inc. It is further alleged that said Donald Scharf was president and/or general manager and/or director of Fresh World, Inc., a California corporation, holding a PACA license certificate, and that said Fresh World, Inc. allegedly violated Section 2(4) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b(4)) during the period June 1983 through September 1983 by failing to make full payment promptly to 20 sellers of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $331,194.55 for 85 lots of perishable agricultural commodities purchased, moved, and accepted in interstate or foreign commerce.

 The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

The Notice to Show Cause further alleges that during the period June 1983 through September 1983, Donald Scharf, acting as general manager, made all decisions regarding from whom Fresh World, Inc. would purchase and to whom it would sell perishable agricultural commodities. It is further stated that during the above period, Donald Scharf sold to Central Produce Corp., San Juan, Puerto Rico, substantial quantities of produce purchased by Fresh World, Inc., permitting an indebtedness from Central Produce Corp. to Fresh World, Inc. of more than $300,000.00 to accrue. It is further alleged that Central Produce has failed and refused to pay this indebtedness. Until August 9, 1983, it is stated that Donald Scharf had authority to issue checks for Fresh World, Inc.

The reason stated that the issuance of a license to Respondent, H & J Brokerage, Inc., has been withheld is because Mr. Scharf is the Respondent corporation's president, treasurer, director, and holder of 75 percent of the outstanding stock and it is alleged that Mr. Scharf as president, director, and/or general manager of Fresh World, Inc. is responsible for the commission of violations of PACA in that:

Section 2(4) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b(4)) provides as follows:

> It shall be unlawful in or in connection with any transaction in interstate or foreign commerce—
> (4) For any commission merchant, dealer or broker, to make for a fraudulent purpose, any false or misleading statement in connection with any transaction involving any perishable agricultural commodity which is received in interstate or foreign commerce by such commission merchant, or bought or sold, or contracted to be bought, sold, or consigned, in such commerce by such dealer, or the purchase or sale of which in such commerce is negotiated by such broker; or to fail, or refuse truly and correctly to account and make full payment promptly in respect of any transaction in any such commodity to the person with whom such transaction is had; or to fail, without reasonable cause, to perform any specification or duty, express or implied, arising out of any undertaking in connection with any such transaction.

And that, during the period June, 1983, through September, 1983, Fresh World, Inc. violated Section 2(4) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b(4)), by failing to make full payment promptly to 20 sellers of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof, in the total amount of $331,194.55 for 85 lots of perishable agricultural commodities purchased, moved and accepted in interstate or foreign commerce.

Despite these clear assertions in the Complaint, the Complainant, on brief, and through the evidence which it either adduced, or sought to admit into evidence, seeks to enlarge upon the reasons why the Respondent should not be granted a license under the PACA. This is done through reference to Mr. Scharf's prior associations with other firms with which he has been associated. It should be remembered that this is not an action against Fresh World, Inc. nor the determination of responsibility of that entity, and its officers, and shareholders as to the requirement of payment to its suppliers. However, official notice is taken herein of a Default Decision against Fresh World, Inc., PACA 2-6526 (October 4, 1984).

As will be set forth more fully hereinafter, the Secretary of Agriculture has a wide area of discretion with respect to the granting of licenses, and if there is legally sufficient basis for his denying a license application, then, a substitution of judgment is not appropriate.

Further, it is alleged in the Notice to Show Cause, that:

> "Section 9 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499i) requires that records of business transaction by commission merchants, dealers and brokers be maintained so as fully and correctly to disclose all transactions involving perishable agricultural commodities. On information and belief, Mr. Scharf either caused records pertinent to the transactions set forth * * * above, not to be maintained, or took such action which has made them unavailable for inspection by the Department, in violation of the PACA and regulations issued thereunder."

Also the Notice to Show Cause relies upon the Statutory provision:

Section 4(d) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499d(d)), in pertinent part, provides as follows:

> (d) The Secretary may withhold the issuance of a license to an applicant, for a period not to exceed thirty days pending an investigation, for the purpose of determining (a) whether the applicant is unfit to engage in the business of a commission merchant, dealer, or broker because the applicant, . . . or in case the applicant is a corporation, any officer or holder of more than [1] 10 per centum of the > stock, prior to the date of the filing of the application engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by this Act . . . If after investigation the Secretary believes that the applicant should be refused a license, the applicant shall be given an opportunity for hearing within sixty days from the date of the application to show cause why the license should not be refused. If after the hearing the Secretary finds that the applicant is unfit to engage in the business of a commission merchant, dealer, or broker because the applicant . . . or in case the applicant is a corporation, any officer or holder of more than 10 per centum of the stock, prior to the date of the filing of the application engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by this Act . . . the Secretary may refuse to issue a license to the applicant.

The Respondent maintains that it is entitled to the license for which application has been made and in support thereof alleges that although Donald Scharf was named as the president on the license of Fresh World, Inc., a California corporation, he never acted as such; that in a letter sent to the United States Department of Agriculture under date of March 23, 1983, Donald Scharf requested that his name be removed as president of Fresh World, Inc.; that on March 29, 1983, David Dixon took over the ownership of Fresh World, Inc. and received the majority of the stock of Fresh World, Inc., it being Respondent's information and belief that Karl Allen retained a minority ownership of the stock of Fresh World, Inc.; that although Donald Scharf acted as manager of Fresh World, Inc., from March 29, 1983, to the early part of August, 1983, said management was subject to the control and direction of David Dixon; and that in the early part of August, 1983, and without hisknowledge, Donald Scharf's authority to sign checks was withdrawn from the bank by David Dixon who handled the financial matters of Fresh World, Inc. It is further alleged that David Dixon made the managerial decisions of Fresh World, Inc. from June, 1983, to September, 1983.

The first session of the oral hearing commenced on February 8, 1984, and continued to February 9 and 10, 1984, in San Francisco, California. Pursuant to agreement of the parties, the hearing continued thereafter on April 4 and 5, 1984, in San Francisco, California.

The oral hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge, Dorothea A. Baker. The Complainant was represented by Dennis Becker, Esquire, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, and the Respondent was represented by Eugene Epstein, Esquire, Shostak, Epstein and Boyd, 144 West Gabilan Street, P.O. Box 2164, Salinas, California, 93902.

The last brief was filed herein on September 17, 1984.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, H & J Brokerage, Inc., is a New Jersey corporation with a business address at 1287 North Main Street, Suite 109, Salinas, California, 93909, and on November 14, 1983, filed a license application which, if issued, would authorize H & J Brokerage, Inc. to engage in the business of handling fruits and vegetables or perishable agricultural commodities in interstate or foreign commerce as a dealer or broker.

2. That license application reflects that Donald Scharf is the President and Treasurer, a 75 percent stockholder, and the only director of Respondent. Said License application further reflects that the other 25 percent of the stock is held by Howard Chaplin, M.D. Donald Scharf also currently holds a license to do business as H & J Brokerage, which is a sole proprietorship.[2]

3. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the PACA, license No. 820039 was issued to Fresh World, Inc., on October 14, 1981, and was renewed in 1982, but was allowed to lapse when it was due for renewal in October, 1983.

4. The Secretary of Agriculture has jurisdiction of the subject matter of this proceeding.

5. On December 12, 1983, the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, issued a "Notice to Show Cause" indicating that the issuance of a license to H & J Brokerage, Inc. was withheld at that time pursuant to Section 4(d) of the PACA inasmuch as Donald Scharf had allegedly engaged in practices in violation of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act.

6. The "Notice to Show Cause" reflects that the only allegation of wrongdoing on the part of Donald Scharf is that by reason of his association and position as general manager, during the period June, 1983, through September, 1983, the corporation known as Fresh World, Inc., a California corporation, whose mailing address is P.O. Box 4550, Salinas, California, 93912, failed to make full payment promptly to 20 sellers of the agreed-upon purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $331,194.55 for 85 lots of perishable agricultural commodities in interstate or foreign commerce and that Mr. Scharf "permitted" [3] an indebtedness of over $300,000.00 to accrue from Central Produce Corp., as well as an allegation pertaining to the failure to keep, maintain, and make available pertinent records.

7. The evidence establishes, and it is not disputed, that the amounts set forth in the Notice to Show Cause, or substantial portions thereof, remained unpaid by Fresh World, Inc., at the time of the oral hearing. Once the corporation, Fresh World, Inc., closed down its business in September, 1983, and the accounts receivable were taken by Mr. Dixon, and the accounts payable were either placed in storage or were unaccounted for, it cannot be ascertained if any of the amounts collected by either the Bank or Mr. Dixon were ever used to pay any of the accounts payable, although there may have been some small payments. However, several trades people testified as to the non-payments of their accounts.

8. Essentially, the Complainant frames the dispute herein as one concerning whether or not Mr. Donald Scharf was responsible for non-payment to the vendors of the amounts set forth in Paragraph 6 of the Notice to Show Cause. A principal witness, appearing on behalf of the Complainant, was Mr. Dixon, a majority owner of Fresh World, Inc., from at least March, 1983, who indicated that Mr. Scharf had the responsibility for the non-payment of the accounts. Mr. Scharf, the applicant/Respondent herein, maintains that the unpaid indebtednesses were attributable to persons other than him.

9. On or about October, 1981, several individuals decided to form a corporation known as Fresh World, Inc., for the purpose of dealing and/or brokering in perishable agricultural commodities. In order to do this, Mr. Karl Allen invested $10,000.00 in the corporation and advanced $10,000.00 each to Mr. Terry Allen (his brother), Mr. James Faulkner, and Mr. Smith. No promissory notes were ever executed and there are no documents evidencing the $30,000.00 indebtedness. The latter three individuals allegedly invested by paying into the treasury of the corporation the $10,000.00 advanced to them by Karl Allen and each of the four received 25 shares of stock representing a 25 percent ownership for each one. Karl Allen, an attorney, did not actively participate in the business. The business was run on a day-to-day basis by Mr. Faulkner together with clerical help.

10. Mr. Faulkner left Fresh World, Inc. in the summer of 1982 and was subsequently replaced by Donald Scharf. Through a mutual acquaintance, Mr. Scharf became aware of Fresh World, Inc. during the latter part of June, 1982. The mutual acquaintance indicated that Fresh World, Inc. needed someone to buy and sell produce. Mr. Scharf met with Terry Allen, who was the President of Fresh World, Inc., during June, 1982, and as a result of discussions and a consultant-employment arrangement, Mr. Scharf commenced employment with Fresh World, Inc. during the last week of June, 1982. The initial employment arrangement was that Mr. Scharf would be employed as a consultant for 12 weeks at a salary of $1,000.00 per week, plus car allowances and medical insurance. Mr. Scharf had never been a seller or broker of produce before this employment [, but he has been in the produce business for 29 years, including buying for supermarket chains (Tr. 106, 781–82, 806–16), and he bought and sold produce for Amigo Foods (Tr. 806)]; Mr. Scharf did not have any responsibilities for the financial records of Fresh World, Inc., nor did he even look at them during the period when Terry Allen ran the corporation.

11. Early in the existence of Fresh World, Inc., Karl Allen received $15,000.00 from Fresh World, Inc. which he stated he considered repayment of funds advanced by him for the incorporation of Fresh World, Inc. During the latter part of 1982, Mr. Karl Allen indicated that he became concerned about his investment, and in December, 1982, Karl Allen, through the corporation's Treasurer, and his brother, Terry Allen, caused corporate funds to be distributed to him in the amount of $25,000.00. He still retained his 25 shares in the corporation. Even if Karl Allen's premise is correct that all he was doing was withdrawing his investment in the corporation, it conflicts somewhat with his theory that what he did was to make loans to the other three investors. Also, inasmuch as Karl Allen still retained his 25% interest in the corporation, the difference between $40,000.00 withdrawn and the $30,000.00 invested would be attributable to earnings of the corporation in the absence of evidence to the contrary.[*]

12. Basically, the Complainant maintains that Respondent is unfit to receive a PACA license because Fresh World, Inc. did not pay its bills, and that Mr. Scharf was knowing, or permissive thereof. However, dilution of the earnings and/or capitalization of a company can also be a factor as to why it does not pay its creditors. Although neither party on brief addresses the situation, there is,

[* Mr. Dixon considers the $40,000 withdrawal of funds by Karl Allen to be illegal (Tr. 357–63, 403–04), and he plans to institute an action against the Security Pacific Bank for $25,000 of that amount, because the $25,000 check was signed by Terry Allen, who was not authorized at that time to sign checks (Tr. 359, 488), and to recover the other $15,000 from Karl Allen (Tr. 488, 492–93).]

nevertheless, some evidence of record that there was a transaction involving a company referred to as Tamarack. The evidence in this regard is not sufficient to form any conclusions, but there is some testimony to the effect that Cameron Dale was a force in causing the Tamarack entity to provide collateralization for cash made available to Fresh World.

Undisclosed facts relating to the Tamarack corporation, of which Mr. Al Olson and Mr. Bob Paul were principals, preclude any determination as to the effect, if any, which the issuance of some 500 shares of stock of Fresh World, Inc., for the supplying of security for a $35,000.00 loan, and the subsequent surrender of such stock, as well as other matters associated with same, may have had on the financial aspects of Fresh World.

13. Mr. David Dixon became involved with Fresh World, Inc. in January, 1983. He became President of the corporation in March, 1983, by election of the Board of Directors, which consisted of himself and another individual. Mr. Dixon indicated that he first became aware of Fresh World through Cameron Dale whom he had known for approximately three years.

14. Mr. Dixon has been a principal stockholder of ten closely held corporations within the past fifteen years, including being the President and owner of Food Tech, Inc., and Food Source, Inc.

15. Mr. Dixon acquired 75 percent, or 75 shares of the stock of Fresh World, Inc. [in consideration for obtaining and guaranteeing a $500,000 line of credit for Fresh World]; and, Food Source, Inc., a corporation controlled by Mr. Dixon provided Fresh World, Inc., $70,000.00 [as a loan] in February, 1983.[*] No promissory note was received for these funds, and the $70,000.00 was subsequently withdrawn from Fresh World by Mr. Dixon, and paid to Mr. Dixon by the end of July, 1983.

16. Mr. Dixon sought to acquire the 100 shares outstanding in order to effectuate the total ownership of Fresh World, Inc.; however, Mr. Cameron Dale from whom Mr. Dixon acquired three signed certificates of stock, the signatures of which were not guaranteed,

[* Respondent's Proposed Findings of Fact, Conclusions, and Order filed August 22, 1984, states (p. 5):

> 15. DAVID DIXON acquired 75 percent or 75 shares of the stock of FRESH WORLD, INC. in exchange for his agreement to furnish a line of credit of $500,000.00 through SECURITY PACIFIC BANK to FRESH WORLD, INC. (Tr. 356)
> 16. FOOD TECH, a corporation controlled by DAVID DIXON loaned FRESH WORLD, INC. $70,000.00 in February 1983. (Tr. 360) No promissory note was received for this loan. (Tr. 361) $70,000.00 was repaid to DIXON by the end of July 1983. (Tr. 401)] was unable to persuade Karl Allen to relinquish his stock. The 75 share acquisition was apparently done through Mr. Cameron Dale; Food Source, Inc. [and Mr. Dixon guaranteed payment of the $500,000 line of credit from Security Pacific National Bank, which was the consideration for the acquisition of the 75 shares. Under the line of credit, the bank agreed to loan Fresh World 70% of its "eligible" accounts receivable (i.e., those regarded by the bank as collectible).]

17. During the period January, February and March, 1983, Mr. Dixon had conversations with Mr. Scharf relating to matters pertaining to the corporation and with bank officials relative to the establishment of a line of credit from Security Pacific [referred to in Findings 15 and 16]. Fresh World was already doing business with the bank, and already indebted thereto. It was at this time that Terry Allen ordered Mr. Scharf to sign a collateral agreement as President of Fresh World. Mr. Scharf did not regard himself as President of Fresh World but was ordered to do this by Mr. Allen. Nevertheless, he acted in such capacity and held himself out to third persons as being President. Any third party has the right to rely upon officership as represented.

18. Prior to Mr. Dixon's acquisition of Fresh World, he reviewed numerous financial documents pertaining to its financial condition and knew of its negative net worth. Several of these documents consisted of unaudited statements. [However, in January 1983, when Mr. Dixon first looked at Fresh World's financial statement for December 31, 1982 (which shows "Total Capital" of $13,880.41 (CX 2, p. 2)), he understood that "Fresh World, Inc. had a net worth of approximately $14,000" (Tr. 485–86). Based on that understanding, his corporation (Food Source, Inc.) loaned $70,000 to Fresh World (see Finding 15). In the latter part of February 1983, Mr. Dixon received Fresh World's January 31, 1983, financial statement that was prepared on an accrual basis with accounts receivable judged to be uncollectible removed, and it showed "the company then moving to $125,000 negative net worth" (Tr. 161), actually negative $124,836.07 (CX 4, p. 2). Mr. Dixon was "angry at the fact we had already put money into the company on the basis of financial statements that Mr. Scharf had given me earlier showing a stronger company" (Tr. 161). Nonetheless, since Mr. Dixon was convinced by Cameron Dale and Mr. Scharf that Fresh World "could do much better" if capital were infused into the company (Tr. 963; see also Tr. 105, 107–08, 158–60), he subsequently provided the $500,000 guarantee resulting in his "acquisition" of Fresh World (see Findings 15–17).]

19. Mr. Dixon was furnished various Accountants' Compilation Reports which contained, among other things, the statements:

> A Compilation is limited to presenting in the form of Financial statements information that is the representation of management. We have not audited or reviewed the accompanying financial statements and, accordingly, do not express an opinion or any other form of assurance on them.
> Management has elected to omit substantially all of the disclosures required by generally accepted accounting principles. If the omitted disclosures were included in the financial statements, they might influence the user's conclusions about the company's financial position and results of operations. Accordingly, these financial statements are not designed for those who are not informed about such matters.

20. Mr. Dixon, prior to becoming President of Fresh World, Inc. caused the accountants, the Kemper Group, to convert the method of accounting from a cash basis to an accrual basis. Mr. Dixon believed that some of the accounts receivable were not good accounts, and should be eliminated so as to more correctly reflect the financial status of the corporation. The record does not disclose whether any of the eliminated accounts receivable were ever collected.

21. Mr. Scharf was hired by Mr. Dixon to buy and sell produce. Mr. Scharf received his instructions from Mr. Dixon as to the presentment of the invoices to Security Pacific Bank to receive advances on the accounts receivable.

22. Mr. Scharf bought and sold produce and acted as a broker for Fresh World, Inc.—he kept a record of each transaction in a separate folder which contained all the documents connected with each transaction. From time to time there were one or two other salesmen employed by Fresh World and each of them kept track of his own transactions. The record evidence does not disclose which, if any, of the unpaid creditors were the result of transactions with salesmen, other than Mr. Scharf.

23. Considerable evidence was adduced as to the financial situation of Fresh World, Inc. at the time of the stock acquisition by Mr. Dixon, who apparently turned the stock over to Food Source, Inc., which acted as a guarantor for the then existing liability of Fresh World, Inc. Despite the fact that apparently Food Source had the stock, nevertheless, Mr. Dixon did not believe that it had a positive value, and never entered it as an asset on the books of the corporation. In fact, according to advice which he said he obtained, Food Source did not reveal either its contingent liability to the bank, or the asset value of the stock of Fresh World. Without having such items on its books, a potential creditor, etc. of Food Source would be unaware of such items.

24. Both Mr. Dixon and persons associated with him were sophisticated businessmen. Mr. Scharf had a high school education and was under a doctor's care [,i.e., he was seeing a psychologist twice a week (at Fresh World's expense) (Tr. 882, 966-69, 985-87).]

25. Complainant seeks to draw some sort of negative inference from Mr. Scharf's salary and other renumeration from the corporation, such as, that he was receiving, admittedly $1,500.00 salary per week and benefits which complaint alleges amount to $100,000.00 a year while other salesmen [for Fresh World] were receiving amounts of $15,000.00 and $20,000.00. By reason of this difference, the Complainant argues that Mr. Scharf was not a "mere salesman". This may be so, but there is nothing in the persuasive evidence to prove otherwise—i.e., that his salary was excessive, for instance there was no comparison of sales, results, duties, either intra-company or inter-company. Perhaps if such evidence were adduced it might be shown that salesmen with Mr. Scharf's background and ability to generate business might make more than he received. [From March 1983 through August 1983, Mr. Scharf was "General Manager" of Fresh World (CX 24, p. 3; Tr. 1009);[3c] he bought and sold produce without control as to prices, suppliers or

---

[* Mr. Scharf at first denied that he was general manager of Fresh World. He testified (Tr. 950):

> Q. Did you ever consider yourself to be the general manager?
> A. There really wasn't a title addressed to myself.
> Q. Did you ever consider yourself to be the general manager?
> A. No.

However, Mr. Scharf later admitted that he was Fresh World's general manager, testifying (Tr. 1009-10):

> Q. From March of 1983 through August of 1983 did you ever have a title?
> A. Yes.
> Q. What was it?
> A. Generai manager.
> Q. Where did you get that title?
> A. Mr. Dixon gave it to me.

Similarly, Mr. Scharf stated in an affidavit (CX 24, p. 3) which he signed on November 25, 1983, after consulting with counsel (Tr. 1032-35):

> While I was employed at Fresh World, Inc., I was General Manager and worked with Jeff Leonard, a Salesman.]

customers (Tr. 1008-10; see also Tr. 109, 412-13, 787, 907-08, 964-65, 973-74);[3d] he had authority to hire and fire employees (Tr. 109, 687, 975, 988); he signed numerous bank documents (even prior to March 1983) (CX 15; Tr. 884-904), and starting in April 1983 he signed the documents that obtained the loans from Security Pacific Bank on the $500,000 line of credit (Tr. 789-91, 960-61, 970-71); and until August 9, 1983, he was authorized to sign (and signed) Fresh World's checks (Tr. 672, 907-08, 976, 1027), including salary checks (Tr. 787-88, 950), and checks to vendors and for other payables (Tr. 787-88, 965, 974).]

26. On or about the time that Mr. Dixon took over the ownership of the corporation, Miss Judy Allwardt came to Fresh World, Inc., as the bookkeeper and office manager, at first working on a part time basis and later on a full time basis. She previously had been employed by Mr. Terry Allen. Miss Allwardt subsequently left Fresh World, Inc., for a better position on or about August 10, or 11, 1983. She was replaced by Miss Leddemer. Miss Allwardt helped Miss Leddemer close the books for July, 1983. This was done the first half of August, 1983. In the [latter] part of [July], 1983, when Mr. Scharf wrote a check to himself [for $20,000, believing that he was entitled to 50% of the profits (Tr. 983-94)], Miss Allwardt caused Mr. Dixon to be informed [i.e., she told a lady at the bank, who relayed the information to a bank officer, who, in turn, told Mr. Dixon], and payment on the check was stopped [, but it was never negotiated since Mr. Dixon told Mr. Scharf that he was not entitled to the money. (Tr. 199-201)]

27. Miss Allwardt was in charge of the accounting aspects of the operation of Fresh World, Inc. Donald Scharf bought and sold produce and directed her to pay the vendors, and until his authority to do so was revoked, Mr. Scharf signed the checks therefor.

28. After becoming involved with the corporation, Mr. Dixon took steps to obtain a $500,000.00 line of credit with the Security Pacific Bank [referred to in Findings 15-18, 25]. The bank utilized its normal banking procedural methods for an extension of a line of credit, whereby the accounts receivable are hypothecated as security, and such receivables were reviewed on a constant basis by the bank. The agreement for the line of credit agreement was signed in March, 1983, and that agreement was guaranteed by Food Source, Inc. and Mr. Dixon, personally. Before the close of the hearing, it was disclosed that in order for Security Pacific to recover the amount of its advances to Fresh World, Inc., Security Pacific had instituted legal proceedings against Fresh World, Inc., Food Source, Inc., and Mr. Dixon, personally.

[[3d] Mr. Dixon testified that he told Mr. Scharf in July 1983 that the bank had refused to lend any more money on Central Produce accounts receivable and that Mr. Scharf should cut back the sales to Central Produce and collect the monies owed (Tr. 188, 475-76). Mr. Scharf admits that Mr. Dixon told him in the latter part of June or the early part of July that the bank would not loan additional money on the Central Produce receivables, but he testified that Mr. Dixon told him to continue selling as much merchandise as he could to Central Produce (Tr. 992). The ALJ did not resolve this conflict (see Finding 39).]

29. The bank indicated that as of November, 1983, it wanted Fresh World's receivables out of its portfolio although the said receivables could be put back in December [(Tr. 209); i.e., the bank wanted the accounts receivable line of credit paid up by November 1983 (Tr. 456).] During the period March, 1983, through September, 1983, the bank had extended close to the $500,000.00 line of credit on the basis of the monthly gross volume of business evidenced by the accounts receivable, which included the account of Central Produce.

30. Utilizing its standard banking procedures, the accounts receivable were reviewed on a constant basis and those which were older than ninety days were regarded as ineligible to be carried in the security portfolio. In approximately June of 1983, Security Pacific decided not to loan anymore against Central Produce receivables and this was [because the bank did not want to have more than "a 20 percent exposure for any one particular account, . . . and Central Produce's account exceeded that 20 percent" (Tr. 992).]

31. The documents that were submitted to Security Pacific [to obtain loans from the $500,000 line of credit referred to in Findings 15–18, 25, and 28–30] were prepared by Miss Allwardt, and she was responsible for that part of the operation of the company, although they may have been submitted to the Bank by Mr. Scharf, [and the documents submitted to the bank from April through August 1983 were signed by Mr. Scharf (Tr. 789–91, 960–61, 970–71).]

32. Donald Scharf was a signatory on the checking account of Fresh World, Inc. until his authority was removed by Mr. Dixon on August 6 [or 9], 1983. Mr. Scharf learned of this removal from the signature card at the bank on August 19, 1983. Not knowing that his signature had been removed, Mr. Scharf, between August 6 [or 9], 1983, and August 19, 1983, had signed several checks payable to vendors. When he talked to Mr. Dixon about this he was told that Mr. Dixon was President of the company, and that was the way he wanted it. The bookkeeper was not informed of the removal of Mr. Scharf's authority [, although she was told in August that Mr. Dixon wanted the checks prepared for his signature (Tr. 203–05, 397–99, 409, 413, 674–78).]

33. According to evidence of record, as of August 30, 1983, there were accounts receivable of $689,000.00 [, $523,426.95 of which were "eligible" accounts receivable (CX 13, p. 1, line 10)]; and, there was sufficient money in the account of Fresh World, Inc., to pay the vendors for the produce purchased by Donald Scharf. [Fresh World's loan balance owed to the bank on August 30, 1983, on the $500,000 line of credit referred to in Findings 15–18, 25, and 28–31 was $366,398.37 (CX 13, p. 1, line 19).] When Mr. Scharf was signing checks all of the vendors were paid as the obligations became due [, except that some of his checks bounced after his check signing authority was removed on August 9, 1983 (e.g., Tr. 81–86, 273–74, 318; CX 1, 17, 20).]

34. Mr. Dixon established a new procedure for payment of the vendors [in August 1983]. The checks were to be mailed to him in Larkspur, and then he would sign them and mail them directly to the creditors. However, Mr. Dixon, although receiving them, did not mail [many of] the checks to the creditors [, but about 25 to 50 creditors were paid by Mr. Dixon (Tr. 409, 413, 676–78).] The file containing the unsigned checks is said to be lost.

35. As the evidence clearly shows, times before and after, when produce suppliers were not being paid promptly, the funds of the corporation, Fresh World, Inc., were being depleted by the $70,000.00 withdrawn by Mr. Dixon (as repayment [of the loan referred to in Finding 15]) over the months of March through June or July, 1983. Also, after the removal of Mr. Scharf[']s check signing authority], and at a time when the company's books reflected large amounts of unpaid creditors, Mr. Dixon withdrew $20,000.00 for "management" fees, and another $100,000.00 from the operating account of the corporation, (of which others were unaware) which he caused to be deposited in a separate bank account at the First Interstate Bank, subject to his signature, as well as others.

36. On August 30, 1983, $17,447.32 was deposited into the account of Fresh World, Inc., as an advance on the accounts receivable line of credit. On September 13, 1983, $24,135.04 was deposited by Security Pacific Bank into the account of Fresh World, Inc.

37. On August 22, 1983, David Dixon drew a check on the account of Fresh World, Inc., to pay an obligation to Cessna, Inc., for an airplane owned by him. The amount of the check was $7,098.00.

38. A contention, crucial to the position of the Complainant, is that Mr. Scharf "knew", "permitted", or otherwise encouraged a debt accumulation of a Puerto Rico concern by the name of Central Produce, in the sum of approximately $300,000.00; that if Mr. Scharf had not dealt with this concern, or had effectuated payment of its account, then the creditors of Fresh World would have been paid. It is true that Mr. Scharf was responsible for bringing The Central Produce Co., account to Fresh World, and that the majority of the business transactions were purchase and sale transactions as opposed to brokerage transactions. The extent and nature of Mr. Scharf's knowledge of the payment practices of Central Produce was not sufficiently proven by the record evidence. [However, Mr. Scharf admittedly was aware of the large increase in Central Produce's debt while it was happening (Tr. 991).] Also, who were the owners, stockholders, directors, the corporate charter, minutes, etc. of Central Produce were not proven of record by either party, and no findings of fact can properly be made thereto.[3*]

[Note: Finding 38(a)-(d) is added by the Judicial Officer]

[38(a) Mr. Scharf brought the Central Produce account to Fresh World as a result of his knowledge of Central Produce before joining Fresh World. Before joining Fresh World in 1982, Mr. Scharf worked for Amigo Foods in 1980 as a buyer and seller of produce (Tr. 806-07). Amigo Foods was owned by Harry Krupnick, and Robert Krupnick also worked there (Tr. 804). Amigo Foods sold produce to Central Produce, but Mr. Scharf was not personally involved in sales to Central Produce (Tr. 806).

[(b) In 1980 and 1981, Robert Krupnick went into business as Watermill Export Company in Scarsdale, New York (Tr. 808-09). Mr. Scharf went with him and worked for Watermill from the time it first started in business (Tr. 809). Watermill had six employees, a controller, three secretaries, Robert Krupnick and Mr. Scharf (Tr. 812-13). Mr. Scharf bought produce for Watermill and Robert Krupnick bought and sold produce for Watermill (Tr. 813). Mr. Scharf knew that Watermill sold only to Central Produce, i.e., that all of the produce bought by Robert Krupnick and Mr. Scharf was sold to a single customer, viz., Central Produce and its subsidiaries (Tr. 814). On occasions, when Robert Krupnick was not there, Mr. Scharf would talk to Pepe Fillgara of Central Produce about invoices and merchandise (Tr. 819-20).

[3* The ALJ did not accept Mr. Dixon's testimony that Mr. Scharf told him that Central Produce was partly owned by Mr. Scharf's friend and former employer, Robert Krupnick, who had been the silent 50% owner of North American Produce Distributors with Cameron Dale (Tr. 188-89). Mr. Scharf denied discussing Central Produce's ownership with Mr. Dixon (Tr. 791). Mr. Scharf did, however, admit that when he sold produce for Fresh World to Central Produce, Central Produce at times wanted the transportation handled by Luallipam, and that Robert Krupnick was one of the persons at Luallipam with whom he dealt (Tr. 858-61, 1005-08). Luallipam was located at the same address in Scarsdale, New York, where Watermill (see Finding 38(b), infra) had been located (Tr. 859).]

[Mr. Scharf testified that he was "told" that he was vice president of Watermill (Tr. 815), but he wrote to the Department of Agriculture on March 4, 1982, stating that "effective March 4, 1982, I, Don Scharf, am resigning my position as vice president and officer of Watermill Export, Inc." (CX 23).

[Watermill's PACA license was automatically suspended on April 23, 1982, because it failed to satisfy a reparation award issued against it In re Watermill Export, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1781, 1782 (1982). Mr. Scharf was not aware of that suspension (Tr. 854–55). Subsequently, Watermill's license was revoked on September 16, 1982, because it failed to pay promptly for $828,370.57 worth of produce, $292,265.82 of which remained unpaid (Tr. 811, 854; In re Watermill Export, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1781, 1781–82 (1982)). Mr. Scharf testified (Tr. 993):

> A. I didn't know exactly why Watermill went under because I was here in California when I read in the Packer [a trade magazine] about Watermill. I didn't know anything about what was happening as far as their financial problems.

[(c) After leaving Watermill in March 1982, Mr. Scharf was engaged in April 1982 by Steven L. Gilfenbain to do a feasibility study of going into the gourmet-type food operation in California (Tr. 815, 831–32). While working in California, Cameron Dale came to see Mr. Gilfenbain about a trucking project, and he also visited with Mr. Scharf (Tr. 833). Cameron Dale and Mr. Scharf knew each other many years previously (Tr. 832–33). Cameron Dale mentioned to Mr. Gilfenbain that there was an opening at Fresh World, Mr. Gilfenbain passed the information on to Mr. Scharf, and Mr. Scharf contacted Terry Allen of Fresh World, which resulted in his affiliation with Fresh World (Tr. 834–39). (This is the same Cameron Dale who interested Mr. Dixon in Fresh World.)

[(d) About three weeks after Mr. Scharf went to Fresh World, he began buying and selling produce for Fresh World (Tr. 852–56). He called people he had previously known through his prior employment. Pepe Fillgara of Central Produce was one of the first persons he called (Tr. 855–56, 863–64). Fresh World had not previously dealt with Central Produce (Tr. 856).

752). (Central Produce's letter of January 18, 1984, referring to settlement discussions states that "Don Scharf" must be included in any settlement conversation "[s]ince it was he that we dealt with" (CX 14; Finding 40, infra.)

[Mr. Scharf told Mr. Dixon that Central Produce was a good receivable, and that based on previous experience, Central Produce had paid their bills (Tr. 160, 991–93).

[(e) Mr. Scharf is currently operating H & J Brokerage as a sole proprietorship, with a PACA license. He is not doing any business as a dealer, i.e., he does not take title to any produce. He operates solely as a broker. (Tr. 1016–17, 1024–25). He currently does brokerage business with Central Produce (Tr. 1017, 1024). Although he does not now operate as a dealer, Mr. Scharf would like to operate as a dealer if his license application is accepted (Tr. 1032).]

39. By July 31, 1983, Central Produce owed Fresh World an amount of $283,000.00, an increase from $42,000.00 which it owed in January, 1983. [By September 6, 1983, Central Produce owed Fresh World $342,144.66 (CX 12, 2d and 3d pages after cover page).] Mr. Dixon was aware of the large indebtedness owed by Central Produce at least by May, 1983, when it was brought to his attention by Security Pacific, which was lending on the account receivable. Although Mr. Dixon indicates that he told Mr. Scharf to cut back on the sales to Central Produce in June of 1983, this is contradicted by Mr. Scharf. It is reasonable to conclude, on the basis of the record as a whole, that both Mr. Scharf, and Mr. Dixon, as well as Judy, the bookkeeper, knew, could [have] known, or should have known, of the extent of the increasing indebtedness of Central Produce, at least from May, 1983.[*] It was information readily ascertainable, and, certainly, material to the operation of the company.

40. Central Produce has offered to settle its indebtedness to Fresh World, for the amount of $118,000.00, thus conceding that it owes at least that amount. Fresh World claims that Central Produce owes approximately $340,000.00. David Dixon has refused to discuss this account with any representatives from Central Produce, and in fact, he has refused to communicate with the members of Central Produce. Why greater effort was not made to collect this account is not clear from the record, but it seems that very little effort was directed to collecting it. [However, David Dixon did take a number of steps to collect the Central Produce debt. He began by writing one or two letters to each debtor, including Central Produce, demanding payment (Tr. 407, 449). Security Pacific Bank then took charge of collecting the receivables, and Mr. Dixon met with them about six times to review their letters and phone calls to Central Produce and other creditors (Tr. 450, 478, 603–09; RX E). Mr. Dixon also had two telephone calls with Pedro Gonzales of Central Produce in January 1984 (Tr. 450–51). But he did not have Mr. Scharf on the line, as requested by Central Produce. Central Produce stated in a letter to Mr. Dixon (CX 14; see, also, RX E, 3d letter):

[*Central Produce's debt to Fresh World was some $116,000 on May 6; $218,000 on June 10; $153,000 on June 13; $231,000 on July 8; $281,000 on July 15; $329,000 on July 22; $362,000 on July 29; $283,000 on July 30; $327,000 on August 5; $332,000 on August 23; and $342,000 on September 6, 1983 (CX 12).]

> We have offered on many occasions to discuss the matter, however, any discussion must be had with those people that handled the sales and purchases. You have promised to contact me on Friday, January 20th, 1984. At that time we can go over the entire matter, however, we will insist that your Mr. Don Scharf be included in the conversation. Since it was he that we dealt with and the fact that you have no first-hand knowledge of any of the surrounding events Mr. Scharf must necessarily be included.

[Mr. Dixon met with the vice president of Western Growers Association (a trade association that handles collection and other matters for many West Coast produce firms), and gave them the responsibility for collecting the accounts receivable. For awhile, they worked concurrently with Security Pacific Bank, and then had complete responsibility when Security Pacific Bank discontinued collection efforts. (Tr. 451–52, 476–80).[3*]

[Mr. Dixon is also considering legal action against Central Produce, and has discussed the matter with counsel (Tr. 452–53, 476), since he is not willing to accept the $118,000 settlement offered by Central Produce, which claims that there were returns or bad produce (Tr. 494–95, 604–08, 767–69).

[Although the record does not reveal whether Mr. Scharf told Mr. Dixon that there were many "problem" shipments involving produce sold to Central Produce, Mr. Scharf testified that there were a "whole large series of transactions in May, June and July and August of 1983 between Fresh World and Central [Produce] in which goods arrived in Puerto Rico about which there were problems" (Tr. 1000; and see Tr. 994–1005). Mr. Scharf attempted to resolve the problems as they occurred, through discussions by telephone or Telex with Central Produce, suppliers, and other involved parties. He made some adjustments with Central Produce, and others were pending. (Tr. 897–98, 995–1005).]

41. As set forth herein and on the basis of the record as a whole, the evidence does not support the allegation, or contention, that Mr. Scharf was solely responsible for the non-payment of the creditors of Fresh World, Inc. However, the evidence does disclose that such non-payment did occur at a time when he had significant responsibilities and duties with the company. For instance, he was the principal factor in the corporation commencing to sell to Central Produce—an account which it did not have prior to his coming into the corporation; Mr. Scharf did sign documents which bound Fresh World to Security Pacific Bank with respect to loans and other financial concerns; also, commencing the first part of January, 1983, Mr. Scharf was operating as the chief operating officer, and everyday manager, which included making all decisions regarding [his] purchase[s] and sale[s] of produce, . . . and generally overseeing the activities of other employees. It may have been that Mr. Scharf was [or would have been] powerless to go against the wishes of the corporate owners, as portrayed by either Mr. Allen, or Mr. Dixon [, in those instances where they chose (or could have chosen) to exercise their superior authority.] Mr. Scharf was motivated to keep his job and to show increasing business activity on the part of Fresh World, Inc. However, his close association with this corporation, which did not pay its bills, is sufficient reason for the Secretary to find that the Respondent applicant is unfit to receive a PACA license. His role with Fresh World was not that of an insignificant clerk or employee.

42. The day [after] Labor Day 1983, at a time when Mr. Scharf had traveled East with the knowledge and consent of Mr. Dixon who had advanced him funds to do so, Mr. Dixon closed down the office of Fresh World, Inc., gave termination notices to its employees, had four men come and take the records thereof, and had them removed to Mr. Dixon's warehouse, except for the accounts receivables which he personally took. During his travels East, Mr. Scharf had intended to go to Puerto Rico for the purpose of discussing collection on the amounts due from Central Produce, Inc. During the time Mr. Dixon was closing down the office, and while Mr. Dixon was there, Mr. Scharf called and wanted to speak to Mr. Leonard relative to some new accounts which Mr. Scharf had acquired. It was at that time that Mr. Scharf was advised by Mr. Dixon that he was no longer employed.

43. Although Mr. Dixon withdrew Mr. Scharf's signatory authority at the bank on August 6 [or 9], 1983, Mr. Scharf was unaware until August 19, 1983, that he no longer had authority to sign checks for Fresh World, Inc. His awareness came about August 19, 1983, when he wrote a check to himself [for expenses. He went to the Security Pacific Bank to cash the check, but the bank teller told him that his signature was not authorized (Tr. 793).[3b]]

44. Mr. Scharf is untutored with respect to financial statements and he did not become acquainted with Fresh World's records except for the purchasing and payment aspects. There was maintained by him a tickler file which Mr. Scharf monitored to assure that payment to the vendors was made on time inasmuch as the sellers of produce had various times for payment, such as 10, 20, 30 or 35 days.

45. From March 1, 1983 through August 6 [or 9], 1983, when his authority to sign checks was removed, and, the first [part] of September, 1983, when he was dismissed as an employee, Mr. Scharf was employed to buy and sell produce, to manage the affairs of the corporation on a day-to-day basis including overseeing paying the bank, paying the personnel, paying the suppliers, and matters of like nature. Mr. Scharf was to report to Mr. Dixon on a monthly basis by way of financial statements. This was done through June or July, 1983. During this time period there were other employees of Fresh World, Inc. who were buying and selling produce including Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Leonard, each of whom handled his own account and was responsible for all aspects thereto.

46. The evidence is undisputed that from and after August 6 [or 9], through September, 1983, Mr. Scharf did not have authority to sign checks and pay the bills. However, he still had authority to buy and sell produce, and he did. A procedure was worked out whereby the bookkeeper was to make up the checks, give or send them to Mr. Dixon, who was supposed to either send them back to Fresh World's office for forwarding or was suppose[d] to sign the checks himself and put them in the mail. Utilizing this procedure, a number of the accounts for which the bookkeeper had written checks and sent to Mr. Dixon for signature and mailing never received the checks.

47. Mr. Scharf did not have control over the circumstances that caused the non-payment of the majority of the produce creditors

[3b Mr. Dixon testified that he told Mr. Scharf on August 5 or 6, 1983, that his name was removed as a person authorized to sign checks on Fresh World's account (Tr. 386–99), but the ALJ apparently did not believe the testimony, which was contradicted by Mr. Scharf (Tr. 793).]

listed in the Notice to Show Cause [, except to the extent that the Central Produce debt resulted in such nonpayments.] A vast majority of the 85 transactions set forth in Paragraph VI of the Notice to Show Cause became due and payable at a time subsequent to August 6, 1983.[4] There are a number of other accounts which became due at dates prior to August 6, 1983. Although some of these accounts were due in either June or July, 1983, they were of relatively small amounts and some of them may have been the subject of dispute. Using a 10-day payment due date [which is not entirely accurate (see note 4)], or as set forth in the Notice to Show Cause, amounts which would have been due and owing prior to August 6, 1983, were:

Transaction	1.	-	$3,257.10
	2.	-	3,948.00
	10.	-	1,016.20
	19.	-	2,834.50

	47.	-	1,380.00	(August 5, 1983)
	49.	-	3,335.00	(August 5, 1983)

48. Between August 6, 1983, and August 19, 1983, Mr. Scharf signed a number of checks which were subsequently returned because he did not have signatory authority. It is not shown on the record whether any of the above transactions were among them or if any of such transactions were the subject of dispute. An example of a returned check is Exhibit 20 to Oneonta Trading Corp. and Respondent's Exhibit A for $1,900.00.

49. There can be no question that from August 6 [or 9], 1983, the only individual, according to the evidence in this case, to have authority to sign the checks and to give instructions as to how the payment procedure was to be done, was Mr. Dixon.

[4] These payment due dates set forth in the Notice to Show Cause may not coincide with the actual practice and payment procedures by Fresh World, Inc.; for the purposes of this proceeding, the Complainant has not challenged the payment practices of Fresh World, Inc. wherein it paid its accounts at intervals ranging from 10 to 35 days.

50. With respect to those accounts which fell due prior to August 6 [or 9], 1983, (assuming that these are proper due dates), the responsibility for the non-payment thereof must be weighed in light of the evidence. Once Mr. Dixon went to the bank [5] and withdrew Mr. Scharf's signatory authority capabilities, although Mr. Scharf was not so informed and he continued to sign checks after that date for Fresh World, Inc., some of which were returned for lack of authority to sign the checks, Mr. Scharf could not have paid creditors if he had wanted to. Mr. Dixon's activities in Fresh World, Inc. at this time were of such magnitude that he had to be well aware of what was occurring financially; on the other hand, Mr. Scharf was not. He was under the impression that there was plenty of money to pay the creditors based on the volume of business which he and other employees were generating. Accordingly, he never worried about the availability of funds for payment to the suppliers. [However, Fresh World's monthly financial statements (for which Mr. Scharf provided data (Tr. 456), looked at (Tr. 981-83), and discussed with Mr. Dixon (Tr. 170-78, 981-83)) show that the funds were largely coming from the $500,000 line of credit referred to in Findings 15-18, 25, 28-31, and 36. Specifically, Fresh World owed the bank on the line of credit about $185,000 on April 30 and May 31 (CX 8, p. 3; CX 9, p. 3), and about $357,000 on July 31, 1983 (CX 10, p. 2). Moreover, prior to September 1983, Mr. Scharf signed the documents obtaining the loans from the bank which showed the total loan balance (e.g., CX 13, p. 1, line 19; Tr. 789-91, 960-61, 970-71). For example, Mr. Scharf signed the loan document on August 30, 1983, showing the loan balance of $366,398.87 (CX 13, p. 1, line 19).]

51. The Complainant has taken the position by reason of the fact that Watermill, Inc. had as one of its customers, or as its only customer, Central Produce, Inc., a concern operating out of Puerto Rico, and because Central Produce became a customer of Fresh World, Inc. after the employment of Mr. Scharf, that this entitled the Complainant to bring into issue the alleged non-payment of suppliers by Watermill. This was not alleged in the Complaint and was not a matter upon which the Respondent was given notice prior to the hearing. Also, the Complainant cites no cases which entitled it, without notice, in a Notice to Show Cause proceeding, to determine the responsibility for non-payment of debts of another corporation on the sole basis that there was a common purchaser with Respondent. Moreover, the evidence sought to be adduced, and relied upon by Complainant, is not sufficient proof that Mr. Scharf was responsible for any violations by Watermill.

52. Robert Krupnick and his company, Watermill Export, Inc., were suspended from employment in the produce industry for failure to pay produce creditors. In this connection, agreement is reached with the contentions of the Respondent that the reason for failure to pay the produce creditors was not proven in this proceeding, and even if the Complainant's offer of proof had been admitted, it is insufficient to establish that such failure was caused by the customer, Central Produce, and/or the Respondent [or, rather, Mr. Scharf], who worked for Watermill as a buyer of produce.

53. At the oral hearing certain proferred evidence concerning the company "Watermill" was excluded because it was not alleged in the Notice to Show Cause as being a reason why a PACA license should be denied to Respondent. Moreover, Complainant's proof would not have shown facts which would have supported its conclusions drawn from "simple fact" and things being, "virtually inconceivable". It is upon this latter description that the Complainant relies for its statement that "It is virtually inconceivable that Mr. Scharf did not act as a seller of produce to [for] Watermill as well as a buyer from various customers". Reliability of this statement without proof cannot be granted. The evidence proferred herein is not sufficiently reflective of the financial picture of Watermill from which correct conclusions can be drawn.

54. The allegations of Paragraph 8 of the Complaint are most easily resolved. The evidence clearly shows that the records of Fresh World, Inc., were removed from the business premises by Mr. Dixon, or persons unknown. Respondent removed nothing. This is uncontroverted by the evidence. Therefore, paragraph 8 should be, and hereby is dismissed.

55. There has been a scarcity of evidence in this proceeding relative to numerous matters, such as who knew whom, and the relevance of such relationship, if any; and the financial status, according to generally accepted accounting practices, of Fresh World, Inc., at any given time.

56. The evidence in this case is insufficient to make a determination as to who were the owners of Central Produce.

57. The evidence is also insufficient in regard to transportation costs of the produce which was purchased for movement to Puerto Rico which obviously had to move over land, mostly by trucks, and picked up at a port of embarkation by a shipping and forwarding firm.

58. A disciplinary complaint was filed against Fresh World, Inc., on April 10, 1984, PACA Docket No. 2-6526, and a default Decision issued thereon [finding that Fresh World "has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499b)" (In re Fresh World, Inc., 43 Agric. Dec. ____ (Oct. 4, 1984).]

59. Reparation awards have been granted by the Secretary of Agriculture to several of Fresh World, Inc.'s produce suppliers.

CONCLUSIONS

The granting or withholding of a license is a matter committed to the Secretary's expertise and discretion and is entitled to deference in the absence of violation of Constitutional, statutory, regulatory, or other legal mandates or restrictions.

By reason of the above findings of fact, it is concluded that:

a. Donald Scharf, a former employee, and, at least on paper, "President" of Fresh World, Inc. [at one time, and later "General Manager"], has engaged in practices of a character prohibited by the Act; and

b. Because Donald Scharf is president of and a holder of 75 percent of the outstanding stock of Respondent, H & J Brokerage, Inc., the Secretary of Agriculture may withhold the issuance of a license to Respondent.

Section 4(d) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499d) reads in pertinent part:

> ". . . . If after the hearing the Secretary finds that the applicant is unfit to engage in the business of a commission merchant, dealer, or broker because the applicant, ... or in case the applicant is a corporation, any officer or holder of more than 10 per centum of the stock, prior to the date of the filing of the application engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by this Act . . . . the Secretary may refuse to issue a license to the applicant."

Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499h) lists the practices prohibited under the Act:

> "It shall be unlawful in or in connection with any transaction in interstate or foreign commerce . . . .
> * * * * * * *
> (4) For any commission merchant, dealer, or broker . . . . to fail or refuse truly and correctly to account and make full payment promptly in respect of any transaction in any such commodity to the person with whom such transaction is had; . . . ."

The Act provides the framework by which the Secretary of Agriculture can regulate business practices in the perishable agricultural commodities industry. Essential to that regulation is the procedure outlined in Section 4(d) whereby the Secretary may question the fitness of any particular applicant for a license to conduct business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry. In the case of a corporate applicant, the inquiry into fitness extends not only to the corporate entity itself, but also to the principals of the corporation; specifically extending to an officer, director, or holder of more than 10 percent of the outstanding stock of the corporation. The inclusion of this level of inquiry into fitness, of course, recognizes that corporate activity is initiated by those persons who control the corporation.

Similarly, section 4(d) of the Act authorizes the Secretary to withhold the issuance of a license when a person who is responsibly connected with the applicant has engaged in practices of the nature prohibited by the Act. Hence, if there is evidence that a person responsibly connected with the applicant has engaged in a prior course of conduct which included practices of the nature prohibited by the Act, then that person should be restrained in his methods of doing business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry in order to protect those members of the industry who can and do conduct their business in accordance with the dictates of the Act. Donald Scharf was President for a time, as well as a responsible employee of Fresh World, Inc. and because Fresh World, Inc. did not, and has not, paid, truly and fully its creditors, such non-compliance with the Act renders the applicant unfit to engage in the business of dealing in perishable agricultural commodities in interstate or foreign commerce as a commission merchant, dealer, or broker.

As stated more fully in the Findings of Fact, Fresh World, Inc. engaged in practices of a nature prohibited by the Act. Fresh World, Inc. was a licensee under the Act, and violated section 2(4) of the Act by failing to account truly and correctly and make full payment promptly to the sellers of produce.

Under section 4(d), the Respondent-applicant is given the opportunity to "show cause why the license should not be refused". If the applicant fails to present sufficient evidence to prove its fitness to hold a license, then the Secretary is justified in refusing the issuance of the license. Complainant has established that Fresh World, Inc., with which Mr. Scharf was responsibly connected [, i.e., connected in a responsible manner with the violations], has engaged in a practice of a character prohibited by the Act.

The extent of responsibility for the non-payment of Fresh World's creditors is not exclusively with Mr. Scharf, as can be seen by the activity and withdrawals of corporate funds by others associated with the corporation. Even assuming that Mr. Scharf's remuneration was as stated by the Complainant, there is no showing that this was excessive when viewed in light of the business he generated, and the activities he engaged in. No case has been brought to my attention where a future applicant is denied a license because of a nonadjudicated determination of "responsibly connected." Complainant avoids this by making the "knowing" or the "permitting" of unpaid accounts by the Central Produce account as a basis for the denial of a license. However, as a result of the evidence adduced in this proceeding, it is more than evident that Mr. Scharf actively participated in the corporate affairs of Fresh World, Inc., even though he may not have been responsible for all of its activities.

This is a very close case as to who was responsible for the nonpayment of creditors, but Mr. Scharf was associated and closely involved with the operations of Fresh World, from June, 1983, through August 6 [or 9], 1983, when he could no longer sign checks, and until September, 1983, when he was dismissed as an employee. The documentation is not sufficiently complete to determine whether or not, if all the accounts receivables had been collected, and if withdrawals from the corporation had not occurred, the creditors could, or would, have been paid in full [, but I infer that they would have been fully paid]. However, all things considered, and from an evaluation of the entire record evidence, I find and conclude that the Secretary had sufficient and reasonable basis for refusing a license to the Respondent. Accordingly, I find that the evidence establishes that, as that term is used in the Act, Respondent is "unfit" to receive a PACA license.

By reason of the occurrences set forth in the above stated Findings of Fact, the financial status of Fresh World, Inc., from October, 1981, through September, 1983, was affected by the following transactions:

1) Although Mr. Faulkner was running the business on a day-to-day basis, others of the original incorporators may have been receiving consulting fees. There is evidence that Mr. Cameron Dale had a "consulting agreement" which was not reduced to writing and any amounts which may have been paid thereunder are not evident on the record.

2) Karl Allen caused to be withdrawn from the corporation an amount of $40,000.00 and still retained his 25% ownership, which he subsequently tried to sell for $50,000.00. The original 75 shares of stock belonging to others than Karl Allen apparently were never surrendered to the corporation, and later became the object of purchase [or, rather, acquisition] by Mr. Dixon.

Also, without corporate books and records, such as audited profit and loss statements and balance sheets, normally maintained, it cannot be ascertained from this record what occurred, as it might affect the corporate structure when Mr. Faulkner left the business. Supposedly, he would have transferred his stock back to the corporation. Whether there was any consideration, other than a release from liability by the bank is not known.

Therefore, at the conclusion of the first 14 or 15 months of its existence, an amount coinciding with the entire capitalization of Fresh World, Inc., had been depleted. Mr. Scharf first became associated with the corporation as a consultant the latter part of June, 1982, and three months later, became a regular employee. During December, 1982, or January, 1983, Mr. Karl Allen withdrew the amount of $25,000.00 from the corporation, which is a part of the $40,000.00 mentioned above. There is no evidence that Mr. Scharf knew, or had any control over this withdrawal. The check was signed by Terry Allen, Mr. Karl Allen's brother.

Mr. Dixon indicated that the initial $70,000.00 which he utilized to [loan to] Fresh World, Inc. consisted of corporate funds from Food Source, Inc. for which Food Source, Inc. issued a check for $50,000.00 in January, 1983, and another check for $20,000.00 in February, 1983. Food Source, Inc. acquired no promissory notes for the transfer of the $70,000.00 from Food Source, Inc. to Fresh World. Food Source's books did not reflect either a separate loan to Fresh World nor did it carry Fresh World's stock in its capital asset account. With respect to this transaction, its books showed nothing. The implications of this are not explored herein and although Mr. Dixon was 100 percent owner of Food Source, Inc., according to the testimony of Karl Allen, he was only a 75% owner of Fresh World, Inc.

Mr. Dixon's own testimony indicates that the initial $70,000.00 advanced for the [loan to] Fresh World from Food Source was repaid over a period of months and his testimony reflects that by the end of July, 1983, the initial advance had been repaid.

In addition, as set forth herein, Mr. Dixon withdrew $120,000.00 from the corporation, Fresh World, Inc., at a time when it had unpaid creditors. According to Mr. Dixon's testimony, in August, 1983, he caused the disbursement of corporate funds from Fresh World in the total amount of $120,000.00; $20,000.00 of which he allocated to himself to cover the cost of management and wrote four checks to Food Tech Corp. for $100,000.00 [, to be held to settle with the Security Pacific Bank on the line of credit (Tr. 234-35, 490-91)]. Food Tech was not the guarantor of Fresh World at the bank; Food Source and Mr. Dixon were.

The above mentioned facts take on significance, because the Complainant would have us believe that the creditors of Fresh World Inc., were not paid solely because of what Mr. Scharf did or did not do. Such an approach ignores the amounts withdrawn from the corporation by its owners.

The findings and conclusions herein have been premised upon a consideration of the entire record evidence, including an evaluation of the credibility of witnesses. However, there is a paucity of reliable evidence as to the corporate structure and activities of a number of corporate entities referred to, including Central Produce; North American Produce Distributors; and Luallipam.

Notwithstanding the various assertions of the parties, I find the evidence inconclusive and not sufficient to furnish a basis for determining who owned and controlled Central Produce. Ownership and control can be proven in many competent ways, including a copy of the corporate charter, minutes, financial statements, etc. This was not done.

From the evidence presented, an unresolved question in this case, and one upon which there is little credible evidence, is that of why greater effort was not made by the owners to effectuate payment from Central Produce. The dramatic increase in indebtedness from $42,000.00 to over $300,000.00 was not unknown, and although there is some evidence that a few statements were made to Mr. Scharf concerning the same, apparently greater effort was not expended. At the time that the Bank removed this account from its security portfolio, this indeed was an indication of the potential peril which this overdue account presented to Fresh World.

For whatever reasons, and the reasons are not clear on the record, the outstanding balance of Central Produce was allowed to increase to over $300,000.00 as of September, 1983, from approximately $97,000.00 in March, 1983, with, at best, only half-hearted attempts by the principals of Fresh World to collect the balance due, and some such attempts were made after September 6, 1983. However, the record does show that approximately $50,000.00 on account was received from Central Produce on or about August, 1983. There is also evidence of record that employees of the Bank considered the Central Produce account receivable as "good" and could be collected—"They are a strong company."—and that credit reports so indicated [(Tr. 766–67).[5a]]

On Brief, Complainant continues to advance its "very determined position" that an employee of Security Pacific was incompetent to give testimony relating to the status and security aspects concerning an account, and the collection of same, over which the Bank had assigned him. The Complainant's many objections were overruled at the time of the oral hearing, and I believe rightly so. Fresh World had a substantial line of credit from the Bank, and, as security therefor, the Bank had taken the accounts receivable of the Company, which included the account of Central Produce, which constituted a substantial portion of the accounts receivable until it was removed as an ineligible account. At issue here is why the creditors of Fresh World were not paid—and if that was the fault of Mr. Scharf, to such a degree that he should be denied a license. Certainly, details concerning the servicing, status, and collection efforts of the Bank are relevant and material to this case.

If Complainant believes Mr. Red's testimony to be incorrect, it could have so shown by competent evidence. Complainant recognizes the importance of the Central Produce account to the nonpayment of the produce creditors—" * * * the whole difficulty was that the Central Produce account had not paid $342,000. * * ". This was of no less importance to the Bank which eventually removed Central Produce from the eligible security. To take a position that Mr. Red, a banking official, with assigned duties over this account, " * * was not connected with, nor interested in, the payment of the amount due and owing [from] Central Produce and [to] Fresh World * * *" is unrealistic, as the Bank anticipated and intended to be paid, even if it had to resort to legal action.

The evidence was received not for the purpose of showing that Mr. Red knew "* * * exactly what was happening between Central Produce Corporation and Mr. Dixon on behalf of Fresh World", but rather, for the purpose of showing what information the Bank had with respect to the accounts receivable, which were the Bank's security.

Complainant's position, more clearly set forth in its Reply Brief, emphasizes that it does not assert, nor does it maintain that there

[[5a] The bank testimony, should, however, be evaluated in the light of the fact that Mr. Dixon had previously testified (Tr. 489):

> A. We plan to assert a claim against Security Pacific Bank on behalf of the corporation that they were negligent in granting the credit against the receivables in the first place and in effect induced myself, Food Source and Fresh World, Inc. to borrow those funds when to do so was not prudent.]

was a conspiracy between Mr. Donald Scharf and other persons to deprive produce creditors of money that is due them.

Complainant's allegation is that Mr. Scharf knew of the problems of dealing with Central Produce Company in Puerto Rico because of prior associations with persons and a corporation which had dealt with Central Produce.

The allegation of the Complaint is to the effect that during the relevant period Donald Scharf:

> "* * * sold to Central Produce Corp., San Juan, Puerto Rico, substantial quantities of produce purchased by Fresh World, Inc., permitting an indebtedness from Central Produce Corp., to Fresh World, Inc., of more than $300,000.00 to accrue. * * *"

The above mentioned allegation of the Complaint goes beyond the subsequent position of Complainant on brief, i.e., the difference between "permitting an indebtedness" and "(knowing) of the problems of dealing with Central Produce Company".

The principles set forth in the case cited by the Complainant, namely, In Re: Ludwig Casca, 34 A.D. 1917 (1975), are applicable herein. The denial of a license is not to be regarded as a penalty imposed on the applicant, but rather a means whereby the Secretary protects the public interest. If the corporate respondent herein were to be granted a license, the public will be dependent upon Mr. Scharf to fulfill the responsibilities under the Act, albeit through a corporation. Under the terms of the Act, the Secretary may withhold the issuance of a license under circumstances where he finds that the applicant is unfit to engage in business as a licensee. To adopt the Respondent's view would be to accept the proposition that Mr. Scharf had absolutely nothing to do with the non-payment of creditors, and, the financial difficulties of the corporation, Fresh World. As I noted above, I do not believe that Mr. Scharf was solely to blame for the non-payment of creditors, but he indeed was more than nominally involved in the business transactions of Fresh World. Although the determination of who is responsibly connected with a corporation is subject to an administrative hearing and decision, this does not preclude an examination of the circumstances in this Notice to Show Cause proceeding as to the correctness of the Secretary's determination that the corporate applicant is unfit to be licensed under the Act.

The goal of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act is that only financially responsible persons should be employed in the business subject to the Act.

The concept that the corporation is a distinct entity, even when wholly owned by a single individual, is designed to serve normal, inoffensive uses of the corporate device and is not to be stretched beyond its reason and policy. The Respondent's reliance on Quinn vs Butz, 510 F2d 743 (C.A.D.C., 1975) does not preclude the result in this case. Mr. Scharf's officership [and, later, service as General Manager] was not purely nominal, and he did participate on an extensive basis in the management, on a day-to-day basis, of the business activities of Fresh World. Thus, this is a different situation than was present in such cases as Minotto vs U.S.D.A., 711 F2d 406 C.A.D.C., 1983) where the Court in reversing a "responsibly connected" determination found that the petitioner therein was a "nominal" director to whom knowledge of the violations could not be imputed—essentially, the litigant therein was a clerical employee.

Mr. Scharf's association with Fresh World was not a passive one—as he indicated with respect to Exhibit C, although he did not have the responsibility of filling the form out (Miss Allwardt did), "The responsibility that I had was that my signature had to be affixed to the bottom of the sheet in order for the bank to accept it." (Tr. 790). This is reflective of executive responsibility—it would be unusual for corporate officers of a large business concern to personally sit down and compile the figures, reports, etc. This is usually done by clerical help and others.

He also signed a Security Pacific Note, and had a signature authorization and corporate resolution to obtain credit.

Even if Mr. Scharf was under the ultimate control of Mr. Dixon, the total circumstances of this case are such that he can not be absolved from the consequences of non-payment to the creditors of Fresh World, Inc., for produce which they supplied.

As set forth herein above, a disciplinary Complaint was filed against Fresh World, Inc. on April 10, 1984, by the Secretary, in PACA Docket No. 2-6526. By reason of official notice thereof, it is ascertained that no answer was filed thereto, and that the allegations of the Complaint contained assertions that during the period June, 1983, through September, 1983, Fresh World, Inc. violated Section 2(4) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b(4)), by failing to make full payment promptly to 20 sellers of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof, in the total amount of $331,194.55 for 85 lots of perishable agricultural commodities purchased, moved and accepted in interstate or foreign commerce. By reason of the admission of such facts by failing to file an answer thereto, a default decision was issued on October 4, 1984, which became final on November 16, 1984.

The officers and stockholders [and General Manager] of Fresh World, Inc., engaged in practices of the character prohibited by the PACA, and the Respondent/Applicant is unfit, as that term is used in the Act, to be licensed under the PACA. If this is a harsh result, then too, are the undeniable facts that, even as late as the oral hearing, there remained unpaid numerous produce suppliers who had furnished produce with the expectation of being paid. They were not.

An evaluation of the record as a whole establishes that the Secretary did not act illegally in denying the applicant a license under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act. The many and varied contentions of the parties have been carefully considered. Any motions, requests, or otherwise which have not been ruled upon, and which are inconsistent with this Decision, are hereby denied.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Respondent argues (correctly) on appeal that Mr. Scharf was not "responsibly connected" (as defined in the Act) with Fresh World during the period that Fresh World failed to pay for produce. The term "responsibly connected" is defined as follows (7 U.S.C. § 499a(9)):

> (9) The term "responsibly connected" means affiliated or connected with a commission merchant, dealer, or broker as (A) partner in a partnership, or (B) officer, director, or holder of more than 10 per centum of the outstanding stock of a corporation or association. . . .

However, the Secretary's authority to refuse a license to respondent arises under § 4(d) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499d(d)), quoted in the Preliminary Statement (supra pp. 5–6). That section does not use the term "responsibly connected." Under § 4(d) of the Act, the Secretary may refuse to issue a license to an applicant that is "unfit . . . because . . . any officer or holder of more than 10 per centum of the stock, prior to the date of the filing of the application engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by this [Act]" (7 U.S.C. § 499d(d)). Since Mr. Scharf is admittedly president and treasurer and a 75% stockholder of the applicant, the Secretary may refuse to issue a license to respondent if it is unfit because Mr. Scharf "engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by [the Act]."

Although the "responsibly connected" definition in the Act and the cases cited by respondent construing the term "responsibly connected" are irrelevant in this case, it is worth mentioning briefly

(for the benefit of a reviewing court) under what circumstances a "responsibly connected" determination is relevant. Section 8(b) of the Act provides (7 U.S.C. § 499h(b)):

> (b) Unlawful employment of certain persons; restrictions; bond assuring compliance; approval of employment without bond; change in amount of bond; payment of increased amount; penalties
> Except with the approval of the Secretary, no licensee shall employ any person, or any person who is or has been responsibly connected with any person—
> (1) whose license has been revoked or is currently suspended by order of the Secretary;
> (2) who has been found after notice and opportunity for hearing to have committed any flagrant or repeated violation of section 499b of this title, but this provision shall not apply to any case in which the license of the person found to have committed such violation was suspended and the suspension period has expired or is not in effect; or
> (3) against whom there is an unpaid reparation award issued within two years, subject to his right of appeal under section 499g(c) of this title.
> The Secretary may approve such employment at any time following nonpayment of a reparation award, or after one year following the revocation or finding of flagrant or repeated violation of section 499b of this title, if the licensee furnishes and maintains a surety bond in form and amount satisfactory to the Secretary as assurance that such licensee's business will be conducted in accordance with this chapter and that the licensee will pay all reparation awards, subject to its right of appeal under section 499g(c) of this title, which may be issued against it in connection with transactions occurring within four years following the approval. The Secretary may approve employment without a surety bond after the expiration of two years from the effective date of the applicable disciplinary order. The Scretary, based on changes in the nature and volume of business conducted by the licensee, may require an increase or authorize a reduction in the amount of the bond. A licensee who is notified by the Secretary to provide a bond in an increased amount shall do so within a > reasonable time to be specified by the Secretary, and if the licensee fails to do so the approval of employment shall automatically terminate. The Secretary may, after thirty days notice and an opportunity for a hearing, suspend or revoke the license of any licensee who, after the date given in such notice, continues to employ any person in violation of this section.

Under § 8(b) of the Act, just quoted, since Mr. Dixon was "responsibly connected" with Fresh World, which was found to have committed flagrant and repeated violations of 7 U.S.C. § 499b (Finding 58), no licensee could employ Mr. Dixon without the approval of the Secretary, and such approval could not be given until one year after the issuance of the Fresh World decision, and then only if the licensee furnished a satisfactory bond. After 2 years, the Secretary could approve Mr. Dixon's employment without a bond.

The term "responsibly connected" is also used in granting the Secretary authority to refuse a license under conditions not relevant here. Specifically, § 4(b) of the Act, not involved here, provides (7 U.S.C. § 499d(b)):

> (b) Refusal of license; grounds
> The Secretary shall refuse to issue a license to an applicant if he finds that the applicant, or any person responsibly connected with the applicant, is a person who, or is or was responsibly connected with a person who—
> (A) has had his license revoked under the provisions of section 499h of this title within two years prior to the date of the application or whose license is currently under suspension;
> (B) within two years prior to the date of application has been found after notice and opportunity for hearing to have committed any flagrant or repeated violation of section 499b of this title, but this provision shall not apply to any case in which the license of the person found to have committed such violation was suspended and the suspension period has expired or is not in effect;
> (C) within two years prior to the date of the application, has been found guilty in a Federal court of having violated the provisions of sections 491, 493 to 497 of this title, relating to the prevention of destruction and dumping of farm produce; or

> (D) has failed, except in the case of bankruptcy and subject to his right of appeal under section 499g(c) of this title, to pay any reparation order issued against him within two years prior to the date of the application.

The inclusion of the "responsibly connected" criterion in § 4(b) of the licensing section of the Act, just quoted, while omitting the term in § 4(d) of the licensing section of the Act (which is applicable here), emphasizes that the "responsibly connected" criterion should not be implied in the place at which it was omitted. Lang v. Comm'r of Internal Revenue, 289 U.S. 109, 112 (1933); Corn Prods. Ref. Co v. Benson, 232 F.2d 554, 562 (2d Cir. 1956). Hence the fact that Mr. Scharf was not "responsibly connected" with Fresh World within the meaning of the Act is irrelevant.

The issue here is whether Mr. Scharf "engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by [the Act]" while he was General Manager of Fresh World (7 U.S.C. § 499d(d)). In order to make that determination, it is necessary to know what type of payment practices are prohibited by the Act, so that we can determine whether Mr. Scharf engaged in practices of that "character".

The Act has been interpreted in a very tough and harsh manner, with the overwhelming support and approval of the industry.[6] See, e.g., In re B.G. Sales Co., 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Oct. 9, 1985), attached as an Appendix to this decision. A licensee which fails to pay for produce has its license revoked, irrespective of excuses (or if it has no license, a finding is made that it engaged in repeated or flagrant violations of the Act, which has the same effect on the violator and on persons responsibly connected with the violator as a license revocation),[7] since "the Act calls for payment—not excuses." [8] In fact, if the pleadings or bankruptcy papers of which of-

As in the case of failure to make full payment, excuses as to why payment could not be made promptly are ignored in determining violations or sanctions under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act since "the Act calls for payment—not excuses.[10]

In affirming the Department's refusal to consider mitigating circumstances in failure to pay cases under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, the court held in Finer Foods Sales Co. v. Block, 708 F.2d 774, 781–82 (D.C. Cir. 1983):

> The petitioner argues that the Judicial Officer improperly refused to consider various "mitigating factors" that, according to it, should have been viewed as excusing its failure to pay its debts. These include the allegedly relatively small amount the petitioner owed, the absence of previous violations by the petitioner, and the lack of "devious or dishonest practices by the petitioner." In refusing to consider these factors, the Judicial Officer pointed out that "it has repeatedly been held under the Act that all excuses are routinely rejected in determining whether payment violations occurred or whether violations were wilful since 'the Act calls for payment—not excuses.'" Quoting In re Kafcsak, 39 Agric. Dec. 683, 686 (1980). See also In re Carlton F. Stowe, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1116, 1129 (1982).
> The Judicial Officer properly interpreted the Act. Section 2(4), 7 U.S.C. § 499b(4) (1976), is unequivocal. It makes it unlawful for a licensee to "fail or to refuse . . . to . . . make full payment promptly." As Congress noted in amending the Act in 1956, "The Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act is admittedly and intentionally a 'tough' law." S.Rep. No. 2507, 84th Cong., 2d Sess. (citing H.Rep. >
> The strict policy of the Secretary that all excuses for nonpayment are disregarded furthers this goal. Under the Act a licensee is required to conduct his business in a manner that insures that he pays his bills fully and promptly. If he fails to do so, he violates the Act. For this reason, alleged mitigating circumstances are irrelevant.

As shown in the cases cited in note 8, supra, the excuse frequently made by a licensee which fails to pay for produce is that another firm failed to pay the licensee. But that excuse has always been rejected. As stated in In re Oliverio, Jackson, Oliverio, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 1151, 1158 (1983):

> Respondent contends that its violations were caused by the failure of Eicaar Export Company, Inc., to pay respondent $248,805.66. Notwithstanding respondent's many efforts to assure itself that Eicaar's ever increasing indebtedness would be paid in full, any seller extending credit on such a large scale to a single firm is taking a calculated risk, at the expense of the seller's suppliers, if the seller is unable to withstand a loss equal to the single firm's indebtedness.

In the present case, Mr. Scharf engaged in practices that led to the failure of Fresh World to pay for at least a large part of the produce involved in Fresh World's payment violations, albeit Mr. Scharf was not the only person connected with Fresh World who engaged in such practices. Mr. Scharf was General Manager of Fresh World (Finding 25). He selected Central Produce as a customer for Fresh World (Findings 38, 38(a)–(d)). He is the one who sold the great bulk of the produce to Central Produce (Findings 38, 38(a)–(d)). He was aware of the tremendous increase in Central Produce's debt to Fresh World while it was happening, i.e., while it was increasing from $42,000 to $342,000 (Findings 38, 39). He knew that Watermill sold only to Central Produce, and that Watermill went broke, but he made no effort to inquire as to whether Watermill went broke because Central Produce failed to pay for merchandise (Finding 38(b)).[11]

Although the record does not show whether Central Produce, which offered to settle the $342,000 debt for $118,000, was entitled to legitimate adjustments with respect to the produce (see Finding 40), in any event Mr. Scharf personally made at least the great bulk of those sales that proved catastrophic to Fresh World.

Respondent argues that Mr. Dixon was solely responsible for Fresh World's failure to pay suppliers, and respondent goes so far as to argue that Mr. Dixon planned from the beginning to withdraw from Fresh World and misappropriate its funds. However, the record does not support respondent's contention. I infer from the totality of the factual situation that Mr. Dixon took over Fresh World in good faith, risking $500,000 of his own money and that of his corporation (Food Source, Inc.) in providing needed capital for Fresh World (Finding 16), and that he took measures to protect his own interests (at the expense of suppliers) in the summer of 1983 only because the profits predicted by Mr. Scharf did not develop, and he was concerned about his large financial exposure and the tremendous debt owed by Central Produce.

Moreover, even though Mr. Dixon took protective measures (to himself) at the expense of suppliers, if the $342,000 had been available from Central Produce, Fresh World's suppliers could have been paid. Accordingly, Mr. Scharf's practices (which led to most, if not all, of the $342,000 Central Produce debt) caused suppliers not to be paid for their produce.

[11] Whether Watermill's failure was caused by Central Produce is not vital to complainant's case. In fact, the record does not explore the reasons for Watermill's financial failure. But a prudent salesman would at least have inquired as to whether Watermill's financial failure was caused by Central Produce's failure to pay Watermill.

The facts here are analogous to those in In re Golden West Wholesale Fruit Distributors, Inc., 36 Agric. Dec. 1591 (1977), in which Golden West's license application was denied because Paul Gitmed, president and 50% stockholder of Golden West, had previously engaged in practices of a character prohibited by the Act when he was an employee of C&M Citrus Distributors, Inc. (C&M). Paul Gitmed was not "responsibly connected" with C&M, within the meaning of the statutory definition, but he was the employee who actually managed C&M's fruit department, and he prepared false entries on slips of paper that were utilized by the bookkeeper to pay consignors. In Golden West it is stated (36 Agric. Dec. at 1595–97, 1599):

> Respondent argued at the hearing and in its brief that Section 4(d) grants authority to withhold a license pending a hearing only if Paul Gitmed was "responsibly connected" with C&M. Because Paul Gitmed was not "responsibly connected" with C&M at the time violations occurred, respondent argues that a license cannot be denied.
> However, we see no merit in this argument, since Section 4(d) simply provides that a license may be withheld if the applicant (here respondent, Golden West) or one (Paul Gitmed) responsibly connected with the applicant (not some other licensee such as C&M) has engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by the Act.
> The issue of responsible connection has bearing only on the question of whether the person who committed the unlawful practices was responsibly connected with the applicant (Golden West in this case). By respondent's own admission, Paul Gitmed is the president and 50 percent shareholder of the respondent-applicant. As can be seen from the express language of section 4(d), there is no requirement that a person who has engaged in practices of the nature prohibited by the Act be responsibly connected with the business entity which is formally charged with the violations.
> The Act provides the framework by which the Secretary of Agriculture can regulate business practices in the perishable agricultural commodities industry. Essential to that regulation is the procedure outlined in section 4(d) whereby the Secretary may question the fitness of any particular applicant for a license to conduct business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry. In the case of a corporate applicant, the inquiry into fitness extends not only to the corporate entity itself, but also to the principals of the corporation; specifically extending to an officer, director, or holder of more than 10 percent of the outstanding stock of the corporation. The inclusion of this level of inquiry into fitness, of course, recognizes that corporate activity is initiated by those persons who control the corporation.

Similarly, section 4(d) of the Act authorizes the Secretary to withhold the issuance of a license when a person who is responsibly connected with the applicant has engaged in practices of the nature prohibited by the Act. Hence if there is evidence that a person responsibly connected with the applicant has engaged in a prior course of conduct which included practices of the nature prohibited by the Act, then that person should be restrained in his methods of doing business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry in order to protect those members of the industry who can and do conduct their business in accordance with the dictates of the Act. Paul Gitmed as president and 50 percent shareholder of Golden West renders the applicant unfit to engage in the business of dealing in perishable agricultural commodities in interstate or foreign commerce as a commission merchant, dealer, or broker.

As stated more fully in the findings of fact, Paul Gitmed engaged in practices of a nature prohibited by the Act. From January 1973 through September 1974, C&M, a licensee under the Act, violated section 2(4) of the Act by failing to account truly and correctly and make full payment promptly of the net proceeds derived from the sale of deciduous fruits handled on consignment. During the time in which at least 117 of those violations occurred, Paul Gitmed operated the deciduous fruit department of C&M. . . .

* * * * * * *

Respondent's argument that Paul Gitmed could not have violated the Act while working for C&M, since C&M committed the violations, is irrelevant since Golden West's application for a license may be refused if it is "unfit" because "any officer or holder of more than 10 per centum of > the stock * * * engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by this chapter" (7 U.S.C. 499d(d)). It is not necessary to find that Paul Gitmed, who is president of Golden West and holds 50% of its stock, violated the Act previously—only that he engaged in a practice of the character prohibited by the Act. That he clearly did.

Here, as in Golden West, Mr. Scharf did not previously violate the Act. Fresh World did. However, as General Manager of Fresh World, he engaged in practices that were a primary cause of Fresh World's violations. Hence respondent is unfit to engage in business as a licensee because of Mr. Scharf's association with respondent.

Respondent contends that the ALJ applied an erroneous standard of proof (pp. 42–43, supra). However, once complainant established that Mr. Scharf engaged in a practice of the character prohibited by the Act, the burden of proof was on respondent to show that it is, nonetheless, fit to receive a license. The Act states that if "after investigation the Secretary believes that the applicant should be refused a license, the applicant shall be given an opportunity for hearing within sixty days from the date of the application to show cause why the license should not be refused" (7 U.S.C. 499d(d), emphasis added). The Act does not state that the hearing is to show cause why the license should not be issued. Under the wording of the Act, respondent is the proponent of an order that the "license should not be refused." Accordingly, respondent has the burden of proving "why the license should not be refused." See 5 U.S.C. § 556(d). As stated in In re Golden West Wholesale Fruit Distributors, Inc., 36 Agric. Dec. 1591, 1598 (1977):

> Under section 4(d), the respondent-applicant is given the opportunity to "show cause why the license should not be refused". If the applicant fails to present sufficient evidence to prove its fitness to hold a license, then the Secretary is justified in refusing the issuance of the license. Once complainant establishes that a person who is responsibly connected with the applicant has engaged in a practice of a character prohibited by the Act, then the applicant must present evidence to rebut the presumption of unfitness. In re Ludwig Casca, 34 A.D. 1917 (1975); In re Pappas Produce, Inc., 36 A.D. [684, 692–93], April 4, 1977.

In any event, however, even if complainant had the burden of proof in all respects, complainant met that burden here.

Respondent contends that the Notice to Show Cause did not adequately apprise respondent of the matters at issue. But there is no merit to that contention. The Notice to Show Cause states:

4. Donald Scharf was president and/or general manager, and/or a director of Fresh World, Inc., . . . during the period June 1982 through September 1983. . . .

* * * * * * *

6. During the period June 1983 through September 1983, Fresh World, Inc., violated Section 2(4) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b(4)), by failing to make full payment promptly to 20 sellers of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof, in the total amount of $331,194.55 for 85 lots of perishable agricultural commodities purchased, moved and accepted in interstate or foreign commerce. The details of these transactions are set forth below:

* * * * * * *

The total amount past due and unpaid these 20 sellers is $331,194.55.

7. On information and belief, during the period June 1983 through September 1983, Donald Scharf, acting as general manager, made all decisions regarding from whom Fresh World, Inc., would purchase and to whom it would sell perishable agricultural commodities. Until August 9, 1983, Donald Scharf had authority to issue checks for Fresh World, Inc. During the above period, Donald Scharf sold to Central Produce Corp., San Juan, Puerto Rico substantial quantities of produce purchased by Fresh World, Inc., permitting an indebtedness from Central Produce Corp., to Fresh World, Inc., of more than $300,000 to accrue. Central Produce has failed and refused to pay this indebtedness.

* * * * * * *

10. Donald Scharf, as president, director and/or general manager of Fresh World, Inc., during the period in which the violations of the PACA alleged in paragraphs 6 and 8 above occurred, is responsible for the commission of these violations. These acts constitute practices of the character prohibited by the PACA.

The Notice to Show Cause sets forth precisely complainant's contentions involved here. But even if the allegations had not been precisely stated, it is well settled that the formalities and technicalities of court pleading are not applicable in administrative proceedings.[12] It is only necessary that the complaint in an administrative proceeding reasonably apprise the litigant of the issues in controversy; any such notice is adequate and satisfies due process in the absence of a showing that some party was misled.[13]

In addition, complainant's attorney made his position plain throughout the hearing, e.g., he stated (Tr. 370; and see Tr. 610–11):

> The issue is whether Mr. Scharf engaged in practices of the contract [character] prohibited by the act. The practices with which we are concerned are the purchases of commodities for [from] produce sellers which were not paid for by Fresh World.
> And we respectfully suggest that we are laying responsibility on Mr. Scharf for those kinds of actions. . . .

Furthermore, complainant rested on February 10, 1984, and most of respondent's case was not put on until April 4 and 5, 1984. In a hearing conducted at intervals, there is little or no basis for a complaint as to the adequacy of the administrative allegations instituting the procedure.[14]

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.[15]

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on October 3, 1985, by the Acting Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period May through October 1984, respondent purchased, received and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 16 sellers, 41 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the total amount of $221,886.84.

A copy of the complaint was served upon respondent which filed an answer thereto admitting all of the material allegations of the complaint with one minor exception.[1] In view of this, and upon complainant's motion, the following Decision and Order is issued without further investigation or hearing pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139).

[1] Respondent denies being indebted to Growers Packing Company, Florida City, Florida, in the amount of $22,773.80 for four lots of tomatoes. In its motion for a decision, complainant has withdrawn this allegation.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Emerson H. Elliott, is an individual doing business as Emerson Elliott Produce, whose mailing address is P.O. Box 745, Casselberry, Florida 32707.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 801217 was issued to respondent on June 24, 1980. This license was renewed annually, and was next subject to renewal on or before June 24, 1986. However, respondent's license was automatically suspended on February 27, 1985, pursuant to section 7(d) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. § 499g(d) when he failed to satisfy a reparation award issued against him in PACA Docket No. 2-6699 (44 Agric. Dec. ____).

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period June through October 1984 respondent purchased, received and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce, from 15 sellers, 37 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $199,113.04.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 37 transactions set forth in Finding of Fact No. 3, above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b). Zwick v. Freeman, 373 F.2d 110 (2d Cir.), cert. den., 389 U.S. 835 (1967); George Steinberg and Son, Inc. v. Butz, 491 F.2d 988 (2d Cir.), cert. den., 419 U.S. 830 (1974); Marvin Tragash Co. v. United States Dept. of Agr., 524 F.2d 1255 (5th Cir. 1975); United Fruit & Veg. Co. v. Dir. of Fruit & Veg. Div., 668 F.2d 983 (8th Cir.), cert. den., 456 U.S. 1007 (1982); Wayne Cusimano, Inc. v. Block, 692 F.2d 1025 (5th Cir. 1982); Finer Foods Sales Co., Inc. v. Block, 708 F.2d 774 (D.C. Cir. 1983); and Melvin Beene Produce v. Agricultural Marketing Serv., 728 F.2d 347 (6th Cir. 1984). Accordingly the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's license is revoked.

This Order shall take effect on the eleventh day after this Decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice governing procedures under the Act, this Decision will become final without further proceedings thirty-five days after service hereof, unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within thirty days after service as provided in sections 1.139 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139 and 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.; hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), instituted by a complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

The complaint alleges that during the period April 1984 through April 1985, Respondent failed to make full payment promptly to nine sellers, of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $165,635.43 for 52 lots of perishable agricultural commodities, which it purchased, received, and accepted in interstate commerce. A copy of the Complaint was served upon Respondent. Respondent filed an Answer admitting the material allegations of the Complaint. The Respondent and Complainant have now agreed to the entry of a Decision and Order as set forth herein. Therefore, pursuant to Section 1.138 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.138), the following Decision and Order is issued without further procedure or hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Gulfport Tomatoes, Inc., (hereinafter "Respondent"), is a Mississippi corporation, whose mailing address is P.O. Box 999, Gulfport, Mississippi 39501.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 681081 was issued to Respondent on December 20, 1967. This license has been renewed annually, but terminated on December 20, 1985, pursuant to Section 4(a) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499d(a)), when Respondent failed to pay the required annual license fee.

3. The Secretary has jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter involved herein.

4. As set forth more fully in paragraph 5 of the Complaint, during the period April 1984 through April 1985, Respondent failed to make full payment promptly to nine sellers of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $165,635.43 for 52 lots of perishable agricultural commodities, purchased, received, and accepted in interstate commerce.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b), by failing to make full payment promptly with respect to the transactions set forth in Findings of Fact No. 4 above, for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

A finding is made that Respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b), and the facts and circumstances set forth above be published.

This order shall become effective on June 23, 1986.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

In re: GREEN VILLAGE FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, INC., PACA Docket No. 2-6845. Decided May 8, 1986.

Failure to pay promptly—application for license denied.

Jory Hochberg, for complainant.
Denise Langer, New York, NY, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding to discipline respondent and deny it a license was instituted by a Notice to Show Cause and Complaint filed on June 5, 1985, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture under the provisions of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.; the "PACA"), applicable regulations (7 CFR 46.1 through 46.45), and Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.130 through 1.151). The Notice to Show Cause and Complaint alleges that respondent, Green Village Fruit & Vegetable, Inc., violated section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b) by failing to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices for 69 lots of mixed fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, for a total of $259,618.92. Respondent filed an answer on July 22, 1985, in which it denied violating the PACA.

Oral hearing was held before me on December 5, 1985, in New York, New York. Complainant was represented by Jory M. Hochberg, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250. Respondent was represented by G. Oliver Koppell, 28 West 44th Street, New York, New York 10036. The complaint was amended at the hearing to include additional instances of respondent's alleged failures to make full payment promptly to H. Schnell & Co., one of the sellers originally named in the complaint.

Briefing was completed on April 25, 1986.

Upon consideration of the evidence of record, the arguments of counsel, and the proposed findings, conclusions and briefs filed by the parties, a finding is being entered that respondent committed repeated and flagrant violations of the PACA, and its application for a license under the PACA is being denied.

PERTINENT STATUTORY PROVISIONS

1. Sec. 2(4).

It shall be unlawful in or in connection with any transaction in interstate or foreign commerce—

* * * * * * *

(4) For any commission merchant, dealer, or broker to make, for a fraudulent purpose, any false or misleading statement in connection with any transaction involving any perishable agricultural commodity which is received in interstate or foreign commerce by such commission merchant, or bought or sold, or contracted to be bought, sold, or consigned, in such commerce by such dealer, or the purchase or sale of which in such commerce is negotiated by such broker; or to fail or refuse truly and correctly to account and make full payment promptly in respect of any transaction any such commodity to the person with whom such transaction is had; or to fail, without reasonable cause, to perform any specification or duty, express or implied, arising out of any undertaking in connection with any such transaction; or to fail to maintain the trust as required under Section 5(c);

2. Sec. 4(a).

(a) Whenever an applicant has paid the prescribed fee the Secretary, except as provided elsewhere in this Act, shall issue to such applicant a license, which shall entitle the licensee to do business as a commission merchant and/or dealer and/or broker unless and until it is suspended or revoked by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of this Act, or is automatically suspended under section 7(d) of this Act, but said license shall automatically terminate on any anniversary date thereof unless the annual fee has been paid: Provided, That notice of the necessity of paying the annual fee shall be mailed at least thirty days before the anniversary date: Provided, further, That if the annual fee is not paid by the anniversary date the licensee may obtain a renewal of that license at any time within thirty days by paying the fee provided in section 3(b), plus $5, which shall be deposited in the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act fund provided for by section 3(b): And provided further, That the license of any licensee shall terminate upon said licensee, or in case the licensee is a partnership, any partner, being discharged as a bankrupt, unless the Secretary finds upon examination of the circumstances of such bankruptcy, which he shall examine if requested to do so by said licensee, that such circumstances do not warrant such termination;

3. Sec. 4(d)

(d) The Secretary may withhold the issuance of a license to an applicant, for a period not to exceed thirty days pending an investigation, for the purpose of determining (a) whether the applicant is unfit to engage in the business of a commission merchant, dealer, or broker because the applicant . . . or in case the applicant is a corporation, any officer or holder of more than 10 per cent of the stock, prior to the date of the filing of the application engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by this Act . . . If after the investigation the Secretary believes that the applicant shall be refused a license, the applicant shall be given an opportunity for hearing within sixty days from the date of the application to show cause why the license should not be refused. If after the hearing the Secretary finds that the applicant is unfit to engage in the business of a commission merchant, dealer, or broker because the applicant . . . or in case the applicant is a corporation, any officer or holder of more than 10 per cent of the stock, prior to the date of the filing of the application engaged in any practice of the character prohibited by this Act . . . the Secretary may refuse to issue a license to the applicant.

4. Sec. 8(a)

(a) Whenever (a) the Secretary determines as provided in section 6 that any commission merchant, dealer, or broker has violated any of the provisions of section 2, or (b) any commission merchant, dealer, or broker has been found guilty in a Federal court of having violated section 14(b) of this Act, the Secretary may publish the facts and circumstances of such violation and/or, by order, suspend the license of such offender for a period not to exceed ninety days, except that, if the violation is flagrant or repeated, the Secretary may, by order, revoke the license of the offender.

PERTINENT REGULATIONS

Sec. 46.2(aa)

'Full payment promptly' is the term used in the [PACA] in specifying the period of time for making payment without committing a violation of the [PACA]. 'Full payment promptly,' for the purpose of determining violations of the [PACA], means:

* * * * * * *

(5) Payment for produce purchased by a buyer, within 10 days after the day on which the produce is accepted.

* * * * * * *

(11) Parties who elect to use different times of payment than those set forth in paragraphs (aa) (1) through (10) of this section must reduce their agreement to writing before entering into the transaction and maintain a copy of the agreement in their records. If they have so agreed, then payment within the agreed upon time shall constitute 'full payment promptly', Provided, That the party claiming the existence of such an agreement for time of payment shall have the burden of proving it.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent is a New York corporation whose address is New York City Terminal Market, No. 220A, Bronx, New York 10474.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the PACA, on January 26, 1984, license number 840616 was issued to Sechin K. Kim, also known as Se Chin K. Kim, to do business in his own name. Since on its first anniversary date, Mr. Kim indicated on his renewal application that his business had incorporated, Mr. Kim was advised that it was necessary to apply for a corporate license. The individual license of Mr. Kim terminated on January 26, 1985, and thereafter, Green Village, of which Mr. Kim is the sole officer, director and stockholder continued to operate subject to the PACA without a valid license. On May 8, 1985, respondent, Green Village Fruit & Vegetable, Inc., applied for a PACA license.

3. During the period November 1984 through January 1985, Sechin K. Kim purchased, received, and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, 69 lots of mixed fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, from three sellers set forth in the complaint for a total obligation of $255,169.82. He failed to promptly pay such obligations. During the period February 1985 through April 1985, Sechin K. Kim, now incorporated as respondent, purchased additional lots of mixed fruits and vegetables from one of these sellers and failed to promptly pay in full the agreed purchase prices and this seller, at the time of the hearing, was still owed approximately $90,000, although the other two sellers had been paid in full.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failures to fully and promptly pay the agreed purchase prices for numerous lots of perishable agricultural commodities purchased, received, and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce constitute willful, flagrant and/or repeated violations of section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b). Respondent should be refused the PACA license for which it has made application because respondent and its sole officer, director and stockholder, Sechin K. Kim, engaged in conduct of a character prohibited by the PACA which makes it unfit to engage in the business of a commission merchant, dealer or broker.

DISCUSSION

A. Introduction

This is a combined Notice to Show Cause and disciplinary proceeding brought pursuant to sections 4 and 8 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499d, 499h). The PACA was enacted to regulate and control the handling of fresh fruits and vegetables. 71 Cong. Rec. S2163 (May 29, 1929). Its passage was occasioned by the severe losses that shippers and growers were suffering due to unfair practices on the part of commission merchants, dealers, and brokers. (H.R. Rep. 1041, 71st Cong., 2d Sess. (1930)). Its primary purpose was to provide a practical remedy to small farmers and growers who were vulnerable to the sharp practices of financially irresponsible and unscrupulous brokers in perishable agricultural commodities. Chidsey v. Guerin, 443 F.2d 584 (6th Cir. 1971); O'Day v. George Arakelian Farms, Inc., 536 F.2d 856 (9th Cir. 1976). "Accordingly, certain conduct by commission merchants, dealers, or brokers [was] declared to be unlawful. 7 U.S.C. § 499b." Id. at 858. Enforcement is effectuated through a system of licensing with penalties for violation. H. Rep. 1041, 71st Cong., 2d Sess. (1930) 3. See, also, George Steinberg and Son, Inc. v. Butz, 491 F.2d 988 (2d Cir.), cert. den., 419 U.S. 830 (1974). Complementary to this enforcement scheme, the Secretary has the authority to refuse to issue a license to an applicant which has committed the kind of acts which are prohibited under the PACA.

The purpose of the present proceeding is to determine whether respondent violated section 2(4) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b(4)) and, if so, the appropriate sanction, if any, to be imposed, as well as whether respondent is unfit to be granted the new PACA license for which it has made application.

B. Respondent Violated the PACA

Section 2(4) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b(4)) makes it unlawful, inter alia, for any commission merchant, dealer, or broker as defined by the act (7 U.S.C. 499a(5)(6) and (7)), to fail to "make full payment promptly" of its obligations with regard to transactions involving perishable agricultural commodities made in interstate commerce. "Full payment promptly," under Departmental regulation (7 CFR § 46.2(aa)(5)) requires that the agreed purchase prices for produce be paid in full within 10 days after the day on which the produce is accepted. Respondent stipulated at the hearing that full payment was not made promptly, as required by the regulations, for all of the perishable agricultural commodities accepted from Kleiman-Hochberg and D'Arrigo Brothers, as tabulated on page 4 of the complaint, and that these amounts remained overdue for six months or more. Although complainant has stipulated that the indebtedness to D'Arrigo and Kleiman-Hochberg which was alleged in the complaint has now been fully paid, this does not alter the fact of the violations. See, Baltimore Tomato Company, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 412 (1980); and V.P.C., Inc., t/a Peter T. Glakas Produce, PACA Docket No. 2-5844 (April 14, 1982).

Although respondent did not enter into any stipulations respecting its indebtedness to the remaining seller, H. Schnell & Co., it offered no evidence to contest the allegations that it failed to pay promptly for the perishable agricultural commodities shown on the invoices contained in Complainant's Exhibit Nos. 44 through 71, which cover the time period covered by the complaint. Instead, respondent contends that the indebtedness resulting from these particular transactions has now been paid, and that respondent's indebtedness at the time of the hearing to H. Schnell arose from subsequent transactions (for which the complaint was amended) and should not be considered. However, the testimony of Mr. Golding, H. Schnell's Office Manager, Complainant's Exhibit No. 72, and respondent's admissions at the hearing, provide ample support for the conclusion that respondent had failed to make timely payment and still owed for approximately $90,000 of perishable fruits and vegetables which it purchased and accepted from Schnell in interstate commerce.

Failures to make timely payment for produce purchased in interstate and foreign commerce are clearly in violation of the prohibitions of section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b). Atlantic Produce, 35 Agric. Dec. 1631 (1976), aff'd mem., 568 F.2d 772 (4th Cir.), cert. den., 439 U.S. 819 (1978). Moreover, numerous violations constitute flagrant and repeated violations of the PACA. American Fruit Purveyors v. United States, 630 F.2d 370, 373-374 (5th Cir. 1980); G. Steinberg & Son, Inc., 32 Agric. Dec. 236 (1973), aff'd sub. nom., George Steinberg and Son, Inc. v. Butz, supra, 491 F.2d 988. Respondent's violations must be construed as willful. A violation is willful if, irrespective of evil motive or erroneous advice, a person intentionally does an act prohibited by a statute or if a person carelessly disregards the requirements of a statute. Henry S. Shatkin, 34 Agric. Dec. 296 (1975); G. Steinberg & Son, supra, 32 Agric. Dec. 236, 263-269; Goodman v. Benson, 286 F.2d 896 (7th Cir. 1961). Respondent knew or should have known that it could not make prompt payment for the large amount of perishables it ordered and even after it had received complaints about its failures to pay promptly, respondent continuted to make purchases without making timely payments. Respondent was aware of the Act's requirements yet it continued to buy knowing that each purchase would result in another violation. A licensee is required under the PACA to have sufficient capital with which to operate. Respondent did not and, consequently, could not pay its suppliers. Under these circumstances, it must be concluded that respondent was operating in careless disregard of the payment requirements of the PACA, and that its consequent violations were willful. Atlantic Produce, supra, 35 Agric. Dec. 1631, 1961; Rudolph John Kafcsak, 39 Agric. Dec. 683 (1980), aff'd. mem., 673 F.2d 1329 (6th Cir. 1981).

C. Disciplinary Sanction and Denial of New PACA License

If a licensee who has failed to pay for produce is not current in his payments at the time the oral hearing is convened, the appropriate disciplinary sanction is revocation of an existing PACA license. See Gilardi Truck & Transportation, Inc., decided January 27, 1984, and Finer Foods Sales Co., Inc. v. John R. Block, 708 F.2d 774 (D.C. Cir. 1983). This was explained to respondent's counsel in advance of the hearing which was delayed to give respondent time to become current. But respondent still owed $90,000 to a produce seller at the time of the hearing. From that point on, my discretion in this case, under controlling Departmental policy, became most limited. This, too, was explained to respondent's counsel who was advised that unless he could arrange for a voluntary settlement with complainant before I entered my decision, I would have to treat this as a "no pay" rather than a "slow pay" case which, under Gilardi and other Departmental decisions, requires the revocation of an existing license. As a disciplinary sanction for respondent's violations of section 2(4) of the PACA, complainant seeks, instead of revocation, a finding that respondent, an unlicensed entity, committed repeated and flagrant violations of the Act and that the finding be published. This sanction has the same effect on a violator and persons responsibly connected with a violator as does license revocation. Jarosz Produce Farms, 42 Agric. Dec. ____ (Oct. 5, 1983).This sanction is appropriate under controlling Departmental policy in light of the number of violations, the seriousness of the violations, the impact of violations on the industry as a whole, and the financial status of respondent. Taking all these factors into consideration, the sanction sought by complainant shall be granted. See, J. H. Norman & Sons Distributing Co., 37 Agric. Dec.705 (1978); G. Steinberg & Son, supra, 32 Agric. Dec. 236.

In addition to being a disciplinary proceeding, this is a proceeding to show cause why respondent's pending license application should not be denied. The burden of proof in such a proceeding initially falls upon the complainant who must demonstrate good reason why the license application is being challenged. However, once the complainant has provided such good reason, the burden of proof shifts to the applicant to show cause why its application should be granted. Pappas Produce, 36 Agric. Dec. 684 (1977).

In the present case, complainant has established that respondent's sole officer, director and stockholder violated section 2(4) of the PACA by failing to make prompt payment to three sellers in excess of $250,000 worth of mixed fruits and vegetables. The evidence further established that as of the date of the hearing, respondent owed long overdue debts in a total amount of approximately $90,000 to one of these sellers, H. Schnell & Co. This evidence provides substantial and sufficient reason for the denial of respondent's license application. Respondent's evidence does not sustain the contrary conclusion.

Respondent's sole witness and President, Mr. Kim, made absolutely no attempt to refute or deny his failure and that of respondent to pay for the transactions alleged in the complaint, or the subsequent transactions with H. Schnell shown on Complainant's Exhibit No. 72. Instead, he explained the failures to pay these debts as they became due on the basis of unpaid loans totalling $500,000 he made to friends some two years ago. By so doing, Mr. Kim left his business undercapitalized which is a circumstance that is never condoned under the Act. The Department of Agriculture treats its issuance of a PACA license to an applicant as an attestation to the industry that the applicant is believed able and determined to comply with the Act's financial requirements. V.P.C. Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 734 (1982). Respondent's financial history prevents the Secretary from so attesting. Under these circumstances, the respondent's license application shall be denied.

ORDER

Respondent, Green Village Fruit & Vegetable, Inc., has committed repeated and flagrant violations of section 2(4) of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499b(4)).

The application for a license made pursuant to the provisions of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.) by respondent is denied.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice, this Decision will become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within 30 days after service as provided in section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a Notice to Show Cause proceeding brought pursuant to the provisions of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.; hereinafter the "PACA"). The Notice to Show Cause was filed on May 1, 1986, alleging that the respondent was unfit for the issuance of a license under the PACA. A hearing was scheduled on May 22, 1986. During negotiations which took place at the hearing, the parties agreed to an amicable settlement of this matter. Therefore, pursuant to this agreement, the following decision and order is issued without further proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Battaglia Distributing Company, Inc., is a corporation whose business address is 2545 South Ashland Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60608.

2. The persons who are responsibly connected with respondent are as follows: Frank P. Battaglia, president, director, and 33.3 percent stockholder; Anthony J. Battaglia, treasurer, director, and 33.3 percent stockholder; Joseph L. Battaglia, secretary, director, and 33.3 percent stockholder; and Ernest A. Battaglia, vice-president.

3. August Battaglia Processing Company, an Illinois Corporation, whose address is also 2545 South Ashland Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60608, was issued license no. 841376 pursuant to the licensing provisions of the PACA. This license is still in effect, and is next subject to renewal on June 6, 1986. The persons who are responsibly connected with this company are as follows: Frank P. Battaglia, vice-president, treasurer, director, and 33.3 percent stockholder;

Anthony J. Battaglia, president, director, and 33.3 percent stockholder; Joseph L. Battaglia, secretary and 33.3 percent stockholder; and Ernest Battaglia, vice-president. Also, August J. Battaglia and George Battaglia are vice-presidents.

4. August Battaglia Company, Inc., is an Illinois corporation whose address is 15 South Water Market, Chicago, Illinois 60608, which was issued PACA license no. 106488 on March 27, 1947. This license terminated on March 27, 1986, pursuant to section 4(a) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499d(a)) when the firm failed to pay the required annual renewal fee. The persons who were responsibly connected with this company were as follows: Frank P. Battaglia, vice president, treasurer, and director; Anthony J. Battaglia, president and director; Joseph L. Battaglia, secretary and director; and Ernest Battaglia, vice-president. Also, August J. Battaglia and George C. Battaglia were vice-presidents, and A. Battaglia Holding Company was its 100 percent stockholder.

5. An audit of the business records of August Battaglia Company, Inc., was conducted from January through March 1985, in connection with a reparation complaint filed against it pursuant to section 6 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499f) by a shipper. This audit established that, from September 1983 through November 1984, August Battaglia Company, Inc., failed to account truly and correctly, and also failed to make full payment promptly, to five shippers of the net proceeds realized from the sale of fruit, all being perishable agricultural commodities, received and accepted on consignment, in interstate commerce. The amount which August Battaglia Company, Inc., was found to have underreported and underpaid to its principals totalled $50,901.54. August Battaglia Company, Inc., agreed to, and did, make full restitution to these shippers. Thereafter, pursuant to section 6(c) of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499f(c)), a disciplinary complaint was filed and served upon August Battaglia Company, Inc. The corporation answered the complaint, admitted its violations of the PACA, and consented to the suspension of its PACA license for 45 days. On January 22, 1986, a Decision and Order was issued suspending the PACA license of August Battaglia Company, Inc., for the 45 day period January 22, 1986, through March 7, 1986. See PACA Docket No. 2-7048. By letter dated January 27, 1986, the responsibly connected persons affiliated with August Battaglia Company, Inc., named in paragraph 4 above, were advised as to the issuance of the Decision and Order, and also were advised that they were under employment and licensing restrictions during the license suspension period.

6. During the January 22, 1986, through March 7, 1986, suspension of the PACA license of the August Battaglia Company, Inc.,

August Battaglia Processing Company did not operate as a dealer as that term is defined in section 1 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 449a).

7. On May 22, 1985, an application for a license pursuant to the provisions of the PACA was received from respondent. Respondent stated on its application that it had conducted business subject to the PACA since May 21, 1985. This application was returned to respondent for correction and amendment by a certified letter dated June 11, 1985, which was received by respondent on June 14, 1985. The firm resubmitted a completed application on July 23, 1985, but by letter dated August 12, 1985, requested that the application be withdrawn. Accordingly, under cover of certified letter dated August 22, 1985, and received by respondent on August 26, 1985, the application was returned. At that time respondent was warned that it could not operate subject to the PACA without holding a valid and effective license.

8. Despite being warned that it could not operate without holding a valid and effective license, respondent continued to operate as a dealer, as that term is defined in section 1 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499a). Such operation continued until on or about February 26, 1986.

9. Even before receiving the August 22, 1985, warning letter, respondent had operated as a dealer as that term is defined in section 1 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499a), but without holding a valid and effective PACA license in that, since at least August 22, 1983, it purchased numerous lots of perishable agricultural commodities in interstate and foreign commerce in sufficient quantities to require being licensed.

10. The acts of August Battaglia Company, Inc. in failing to truly and correctly account and make full payment promptly for consignment transactions as found in paragraph 5 above, constitute willful, repeated and flagrant violations of the PACA and also constitute practices of a character prohibited by the PACA.

11. The acts of respondent in operating as a dealer as that term is defined in section 1 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. § 499a), without holding a valid and effective license in violation of section 3 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. § 499c), from August 22, 1983, through February 26, 1986, and in particular during the 45-day period, January 22, 1986, through March 7, 1986, when the license of August Battaglia Company, Inc., was suspended, as found in paragraphs 9 and 10 above, constitute willful, repeated and flagrant violations of the PACA and also constitutes a practice of a character prohibited by the PACA.

CONCLUSION

The acts of August Battaglia Company Inc. referred to in paragraph 10 of the Findings of Facts as well as the acts of respondent referred to in paragraph 11 of the Findings of Facts, in particular respondent's in operation as a dealer as that term is defined in section 1 of the PACA without holding a valid and effective license during the period January 22, 1986, through March 7, 1986, when it was barred from so operating as a consequence of the suspension of its sister corporation August Battaglia Company, Inc., constitutes a willful, repeated and flagrant violation of the PACA, and also constitutes a practice of a character prohibited by the PACA. In view of this, the following order is issued.

ORDER

The respondent's application for a PACA license shall be granted on the effective date of this order.

Respondent's license is suspended for 90 days from the effective date of this order.

The effective date of this order is June 30, 1986.

Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. Campbell retains jurisdiction of this matter until 120 days after the effective date thereof. During this 120 day period, the complainant may file a motion seeking revocation of respondent's license on the basis that respondent, any of its responsibly connected individuals, or any entity with which its responsibly connected individuals, are employed as that term is defined in section 1(10) of the "PACA" (7 U.S.C. § 499a(10), has violated the terms of the 90 day suspension order.

If the respondent and/or any of its responsibly connected persons and/or any entity which employs its responsibly connected persons violate the terms of the 90 day suspension ordered above, the respondent consents to the revocation of its PACA license.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION DECISIONS

MIC BRUCE, INC., a/t/a SINGER'S, v. CHIQUITA BRANDS, INC., PACA Docket No. 2-6608. Decided May 1, 1986.

Uniform Commercial Code—Custom of the industry—course of conduct—good delivery standards for bananas—proof of damages—reparation awarded.

Although there are no published standards to determine whether bananas make good delivery, the Secretary has jurisdiction to make such a finding, and will do so by applying a reasonable test. Where respondent claims it is not liable for damages because the custom of the industry is to settle on basis of f.o.b. price plus costs, it must prove such custom by showing specific instances. Since respondent failed to do so, and failed to prove acquiescence in such method by complainant, it is liable for damages in those cases in which complainant proved the bananas did not make good delivery.

Dennis Becker, Presiding Officer.
Stephen P. McCarron, Esquire, Silver Spring, MD, for complainant.
John G. Ingram, Esquire, New York, NY and Richard J. Reisert, Esquire, New York, NY, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation in the amount of $66,697.25, plus interest, in connection with fourteen transactions involving the purchase and sale of bananas during the months of March through May, 1983, in interstate and foreign commerce.

A copy of the Department's report of investigation was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto admitting that it owed complainant $9,286.00, and denying any liability to complainant with respect to the remaining $57,411.25. An order requiring respondent to pay complainant the undisputed amount was issued on September 18, 1984, leaving the question of liability for the remainder to be resolved in an oral hearing. Depositions were taken in which both parties were represented, and an oral hearing was held in Montvale, New Jersey, on June 11, and 12, 1985. Both parties were represented by counsel. Thereafter, both parties filed briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Mic Bruce, Inc., also trading as Singer's, hereinafter referred to as respondent or Singer's, is a corporation with an address at Unit 26, 4000 Orange Avenue, Northern Ohio Food Terminal, Cleveland, Ohio 44115. At the time of the transactions at issue in this proceeding complainant was licensed under the Act.

2. Respondent, Chiquita Brands Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondent or Chiquita, is a corporation with an address at 15 Mercedes Drive, Montvale, New Jersey, 07645. At the time of the transactions involved in this proceeding respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. Complainant and respondent had engaged in business with each other for at least two years prior to the date of the transactions involved in this proceeding. In those prior transactions complainant purchased bananas from respondent on frequent occasions. On three occasions prior to the transactions at issue in this proceeding complainant notified respondent that the bananas which it purchased were not in accord with contract specifications. Respondent afforded complainant adjustments for each of those transactions based upon what has been its longstanding practice in making adjustments when bananas arrived at their destination in other than a condition which is in accordance with contract specifications. Complainant accepted the amounts of money offered by respondent with respect to each of those transactions. However, with respect to two transactions which occurred in November 1982, complainant accepted the allowances under protest. Complainant stated in a letter dated December 29, 1982, that it did not have time to contest what it believed to be unfair settlements with respect to the two transactions, but that it would not permit such alleged unfairness to occur in the future. It also stated that one way or the other respondent would end up having to pay for its supposedly arbitrary method of settling contract disputes.

4. There are no published federal standards with respect to the quality or condition which bananas must manifest at shipping point or destination in order to make good delivery. Respondent, however, has developed and applied for many years its own method of granting adjustments to purchasers of its bananas based on the free on board price paid by the purchaser plus the purchaser's expenses, such as trucking, sorting and other handling, as computed by respondent. Respondent has not granted any adjustments based upon lost profits because the bananas did not meet contract specifications. Respondent applied its usual method with respect to the three transactions which occurred prior to 1983 in which complainant filed claims for adjustments. Respondent also utilized its own method of computing adjustments with respect to the fourteen transactions at issue in this proceeding, but did not specify in its accountings to complainant how it arrived at its final computation as to what the adjustments should be.

5. Commercial bananas are not grown in the United States. Rather, they are grown in Latin America, and shipped from the various countries to ports in the United States aboard vessels, where they are unloaded for further transportation to ultimate destination. Transportation from Latin America to port in the United States normally takes less than one week.

6. When bananas are loaded and shipped their skin has a dark green color. Respondent performs an inspection at shipping point in Latin America. The bananas are shipped under controlled temperature conditions in the vessels, so as to assure that they arrive in good commercial condition. At the port of destination the bananas are inspected again as they are unloaded to ascertain that their condition has not deteriorated during transit. This is called a discharge inspection. In addition, a sample of bananas is taken from the full shipment, and set aside by respondent for further inspection at a later time so as to determine whether after shipment from port to ultimate destination the bananas should have continued to be in good commercial condition. This is called an after-ripe inspection.

7. After the inspection on unloading the bananas from the vessel, bananas are reloaded aboard trucks or other transport for transportation to their ultimate destination. They are generally sold by respondent to the buyer free on board the port of discharge. Instructions are given to the transporters of the bananas as to the temperatures that are to be maintained during inland transit.

8. At destination, the bananas are unloaded by the receiver, and taken into its place of business for further ripening and eventual sale. Ripening occurs in special rooms for that purpose, and can be controlled so as to take as much as ten or twelve days to reach the desired amount of ripeness. Chiquita's practice has been that in the event the receiver or buyer determines that the bananas do not meet quality and condition standards under the applicable contract, the buyer must pay the full contract price, and wait for any potential refund from respondent. In order to prove that the bananas were not in accordance with contract specifications a receiver or buyer is required to notify respondent within 48 hours of their arrival that it believes the bananas have quality or condition defects. The receiver or buyer must also file a formal written complaint in which it specifies the amount of damages it claims within 60 days after it has received the bananas. Respondent provides its own inspector to ascertain the quality or condition of the bananas as soon after it receives notification as is possible. It is generally accepted that the inspections provided by respondent are excellent in terms of quality, and complainant acknowledged such is the case. It is the usual practice of Chiquita to inspect only for the defects complained about in the claim filed by the receiver or buyer within 48 hours of their receipt, although at times it may also look for defects complained about in the written complaint.

9. On March 23, 1983, the vessel Rio Babahoya docked at Albany, New York. It contained bananas shipped in foreign commerce by respondent. Respondent unloaded bananas from that ship on that date, and loaded three trucks for delivery to complainant in Cleveland, Ohio. The sale price was $10.00 per carton for each load, f.o.b., plus $1,038.00 as a fuel surcharge, $934.20 for handling, and $45.00 for temperature recorders, for a total contract price for the three transactions of $27,967.20. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent. Complainant also paid $1,742.31 for freight, bringing its total costs to point of destination to $29,709.51. One shipment with 875 cartons arrived on March 24, 1983, and the other two shipments arrived at respondent's place of business on March 25, 1985. They involved 870 and 850 cartons. The inspection at the port of discharge showed that the pulps of those bananas which were inspected ranged between 56 degrees and 58 degrees fahrenheit. The temperature recorders with respect to the load which arrived on March 24, 1983, and one of the loads which arrived on March 25, 1983, showed that the temperature of the carrying portion of the truck was 58 to 60 degrees fahrenheit and 64 to 66 degrees fahrenheit, respectively. The pulp temperatures of those two loads were recorded on arrival in Cleveland as 57 to 58 degrees fahrenheit and 62 to 63 degrees fahrenheit, respectively. The pulp temperature of the third truck on arrival was shown to be 54 to 58 degrees fahrenheit. Complainant received, accepted and unloaded the three truckloads of bananas. It also notified respondent within 48 hours of acceptance that it believed the bananas had difficulties, and stated orally that it believed that they were ripe and turning. Subsequently, complainant filed a written complaint in which it stated that "fruit was showing a chill effect w/out any other characteristics of chill except the grey cast to the peel. All temperatures w/in tolerance." In the remarks section of that same form respondent wrote "complaint on discoloration (and after ripening) on arrival. Customer requested our QC inspection." The bananas were inspected on March 28, 1983. The inspection showed with respect to the load which arrived on March 24, 1983 that eight percent of the bananas were ripe and turning or ripe. With respect to the truckload containing 850 cartons which arrived on March 25, 1983 it showed 14 percent of the cartons were ripe and turning or ripe. Complainant claimed to have lost $1,458.10 with respect to the load which arrived on March 24, 1983, and $2,598.50 and $1,710.25 with respect to the two loads which arrived on March 25, 1983. Its total claim with respect to the three loads was $5,766.85. Complainant conveyed these claims to respondent. Sometime thereafter respondent made a settlement offer of $4,000.00. Respondent did not explain to complainant how it arrived at the $4,000.00 settlement figure. Having previously paid the contract price for the three loads of bananas in full complainant accepted the $4,000.00 as a partial settlement.

10. On March 31, 1983, the vessel Rio Sulaco docked at Charleston, South Carolina. It contained bananas shipped in foreign commerce by respondent. The bananas were unloaded from the Rio Sulaco on March 31, 1983, and placed aboard trucks for shipment to various receivers. Four loads were destined for complainant. The sale price was $9.00 per carton for each load, f.o.b., plus $1,358.40 as a fuel surcharge, handling charges of $1,154.00 and $90.00 for temperature recorders, for a total contract price for the four transactions of $33,167.04. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent. Complainant also paid $3,483.99 for freight and $678.40 for handling, bringing its total costs to point of destination to $37,329.43. Two shipments arrived on April 2, 1983, one with 848 cartons and the other with 850. One shipment of 848 cartons arrived on April 4, 1983, and the fourth shipment with 850 cartons arrived on April 5, 1983. The bananas were inspected at the port of discharge and showed scorable defects between 3.4 percent and 4.1 percent with ripe and turning bananas between 0.8 percent and 1.5 percent. They showed pulp temperatures of 58 to 60 degrees fahrenheit. The pulp temperature on arrival on April 2, 1983 of one truck was 58 to 60 degrees fahrenheit. The pulp temperatures on arrival of the truck which arrived April 4, 1983 was 60 to 65 degrees fahrenheit. The temperature recorders with respect to the two loads which arrived April 2, 1983 showed carrying temperatures on the trucks of 55 to 56 degrees fahrenheit and 57 to 58 degrees fahrenheit, respectively. There were no temperature recordings shown with respect to the loads which arrived on April 4, 1983 and April 5, 1983. With respect to all four loads complainant made a request for inspection by respondent within 48 hours after the bananas arrived. With respect to the two loads which arrived on April 2, 1983, complainant based its initial claim for reimbursement on the fact that the bananas showed a grey color. With respect to the load that arrived on April 4, 1983, complainant filed its initial claim on the basis that the bananas were ripe and turning, and subsequently made its written claim on the basis that the bananas showed chill. All loads were inspected by respondent. The record shows specifically only with respect to the load of bananas which arrived on April 4, 1983, that it was inspected on April 13, 1983. However, all loads were inspected on or about that date. The inspection reports for all loads show that 30 percent of the bananas had underpeel discoloration. With respect to the two loads of bananas which arrived on April 2, 1983, complainant claimed it lost $918.50 and $2,328.75, respectively, for a total loss on the two loads of $3,247.25. Respondent declined to give any settlement with respect to these two loads, but did not state its reasoning in declining to do so. With respect to the loads which arrived on April 4, 1983, and April 5, 1983, complainant claimed it lost $2,597.64 and $2,148.02, respectively, for a total claim of $4,745.66. After inspection respondent offered $1,365.00 in settlement without explaining its reasons why. Having previously made full payment with respect to these two loads complainant accepted the $1,365.00 as a partial settlement.

11. On April 7, 1983, the vessel Chion Trader docked at Charleston, South Carolina. It contained bananas shipped in foreign commerce by respondent. Respondent unloaded bananas from the ship on that date, and loaded three trucks for delivery to complainant in Cleveland, Ohio. The sale price was $9.50 per carton for each load, f.o.b., plus $1,030.00 as a fuel surcharge, $875.50 for handling, and $67.50 for temperature recorders, for a total contract price for the three transactions of $26,435.50. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent. Complainant also paid $2,771.20 for freight, bringing its total costs to point of destination to $29,206.70. One truck carrying 875 cartons of bananas arrived on April 11, 1983, and the other two trucks, each carrying 850 cartons of bananas, arrived on April 12, 1983. The inspection at the port of discharge showed that the pulps of those bananas which were inspected ranged between 56 and 60 degrees fahrenheit. The temperature recorders with respect to the carrying portion of the trucks were 60 to 64 degrees for the load which arrived on April 11, 1983, and 58 to 66 degrees and 58 to 61 degrees, fahrenheit, respectively, for the loads which arrived on April 12, 1983. Inspections at the time of arrival show that the pulp temperatures of the bananas were 60 to 61 degrees, 59 to 61 degrees, and 59 to 60 degrees, respectively. Complainant received, accepted and unloaded the three truckloads of bananas. Complainant filed a complaint with respect to the condition of the three loads within 48 hours of their arrival, stating that they were mutilated, old, scarred, and of mixed grade. Subsequently, complainant filed a written complaint in which it stated that the reason for the complaint was that "upon ripening fruit was showing an off-color cast of grey as if to show chill without any other characteristics of chill and temperatures O.K. on arrival." In the remarks portion of that same form respondent wrote "QC inspection after ripening brown discoloration." The bananas were inspected on April 13, 1983. The inspection showed with respect to two of the three loads that 35 percent (for the load arriving April 11, 1983) and 42 percent (for one load arriving April 12, 1983), of the clusters did not meet specifications. The inspection also appeared to show there was considerable underpeel discoloration. Complainant claimed that it lost $1,419.26, $1,611.00, and $1,924.25 with respect to the three loads for a total claim of $4,954.51. Complainant conveyed these claims to respondent. Respondent offered $2,000.00 in settlement with respect to one of the three loads which contained 850 cartons because it knew the bananas in that load had come from a hold in which there was considerable underpeel discoloration. Having previously paid the contract price for the bananas, complainant accepted the $2,000.00 offered as a partial settlement.

12. On May 4, 1983, the vessel Rio Babahoya docked at Albany, New York. It contained bananas shipped in foreign commerce by respondent. The vessel had been on the seas for a period of 12 days. Respondent unloaded the bananas on that date and loaded three trucks from Hold No. 4 for delivery to complainant in Cleveland, Ohio. The sale price was $11.50 per carton for each load, f.o.b., plus $1,020.00 as a fuel surcharge, and $918.00 for handling, for a total contract price for the three transactions of $31,263.00. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent. Each truck contained 850 cartons. One truckload of bananas arrived at respondent's place of business on May 5, 1983, and two truckloads arrived on May 6, 1983. The inspection at port of discharge showed that the pulps of those bananas which were inspected ranged between 57 and 60 degrees fahrenheit. The bananas which came from Hold No. 4 showed that 3 percent were ripe and turning, and that there were a number of other condition defects. The pulp temperatures of the three loads on arrival in Cleveland were recorded as 57 to 60 degrees, 59 to 60 degrees, and 62 to 65 degrees fahrenheit, respectively. Complainant received, accepted and unloaded the three truckloads of bananas. Complainant notified respondent it was filing a claim on May 11, 1983. It filed a written complaint on or after that date in which it stated "These loads appeared to be old fruit. Upon arrival showed a slight discoloration, as if they were chilled, but temperatures were within tolerance. Upon ripening showed excessive discoloration and scarring with deep bruises—crown mold and occasional rot." The basis of its complaint was underpeel discoloration and the fact that the bananas were old. Respondent inspected the bananas on May 13, 1983. Its inspection resulted in findings that "fruit appears fairly decent at end, but after processing too many show poor color but most not from chilling, and "100 boxes examined—sample divided between 3 rooms and 3 loads all gassed—avg color of all clusters 3—3½ OC—scattered throughout—34% med/sev—5%—off color from chilling 15%—Med/sev. 4%. Mostly large full mature fruit, 5% of boxes clusters showing ugly brownish outer peel discoloration and excessive amounts of CM/CR—NI/NR very mixed appearance, poor to fair." With respect to the three truckloads of bananas complainant claimed a total loss of $10,608.20. Respondent granted no adjustment with respect to the three truckloads.

13. On May 27, 1983, the vessel Olancho docked at the port of Albany, New York. It contained bananas shipped in foreign commerce by respondent. Respondent unloaded bananas from that ship on that date, and loaded one truck on that date for delivery to complainant in Cleveland, Ohio. The sale price was $10.00 per carton for 850 cartons, f.o.b., plus charges for a fuel surcharge, handling and a temperature recorder of $678.00, for a total contract price of $9,178.00. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent. The shipment arrived at complainant's place of business on May 31, 1983. Complainant received, accepted and unloaded the bananas on that date. It immediately complained to respondent about the condition of the bananas. The inspection at port of discharge showed that the pulps of the bananas ranged from 58 to 60 degrees fahrenheit. It also showed that 90 percent of the clusters met specifications. The truckload arrived at complainant's place of business in Cleveland, Ohio on May 31, 1983, where it was received, accepted and unloaded. Upon arrival the temperature gauge for the carrying portion of the truck showed that the air temperature ranged during transit from 58 to 64 degrees fahrenheit. The pulps of the bananas on arrival were shown to be 61 to 62 degrees fahrenheit. Complainant filed an oral claim, and requested within 48 hours of their arrival that respondent inspect the bananas. The basis of its oral complaint was that the bananas showed mold, were old, ripe and turning, scarred and short. The basis of its written claim was the same. Complainant also said "This load was absolute garbage. The WORST load of bananas I ever received since entering the banana business." This complaint was filed on July 20, 1983. The bananas were inspected by respondent on June 1, 1983. The inspections showed that 45 percent of the bananas met specifications. Complainant claimed a loss with respect to the truckload of bananas of $6,369.10 based on costs of $9,178.00 less $3,424.50 fetched on resale as shown by its account of sale. Respondent offered $1,921.00 in settlement. Complainant accepted the $1,921.00 as partial payment in settlement of the claim.

14. The total amount claimed by complainant with respect to the 14 loads of bananas described in paragraphs 8 through 12, above, was $35,691.57. The total amount granted by respondent in settlement was $9,286.00, leaving $26,405.57 of the initial claims by complainant unsatisfied.

15. Subsequent to the denials of the claims in the amount of $26,405.57, and more than 60 days after delivery, complainant on the advice of counsel, claimed allegedly lost profits as part of its damages, thereby raising its total claim to $66,697.25 less the $9,286.00 which had been granted by respondent, leaving a net amount it claimed as owed to it of $57,411.25, plus interest.

16. A major basis for the claims of damages with respect to the 14 transactions was that the bananas showed underpeel discoloration. Other claim bases were stated to be chill effect, grade, color, chill, off color, discoloration, and rot. With respect to the load which was unloaded from the Olancho there does not appear to have been a claim as regards chill effect or underpeel discoloration. Chill effect is generally manifested by a grey tone to the outer skin of the banana or speckling on the underpeel side of the banana. With very rare exceptions these two physical characteristics only occur if the bananas have been chilled below proper temperatures. The evidence of record with respect to the 13 transactions for which chill damage or underpeel discoloration was claimed shows that to the extent they were available at hearing the pulp temperatures of the bananas on arrival at the complainant's place of business in Cleveland, Ohio were at or above the pulp temperatures of the bananas when the bananas were discharged at port from the vessels which carried them in foreign commerce, with the exception of the load from the Rio Babahoya which arrived at the port of Albany on March 23, 1983 and at complainant's place of business with 850 boxes on the truck on March 25, 1983. There, the temperature of the pulp of the bananas on arrival was 54 to 58 degrees fahrenheit, whereas the temperature of the pulp of the bananas at discharge was 56 to 58 degrees fahrenheit. With respect to two transactions on the Rio Sulaco which arrived at the port of Charleston on March 31, 1983, pulp temperatures on arrival were not shown. In addition, the temperature devices contained in the carrying portion of the truck with respect to seven of the thirteen transactions showed that the bananas were carried at temperatures at or above the minimum at which they must be carried to obviate the occurrence of chilling. Records were not provided with respect to the temperatures at which the bananas were carried from port of loading to port of discharge by respondent. Neither did complainant provide records as to the temperatures at which it ripened the bananas after it accepted delivery. The minimum temperature at which bananas may be held over a period of time without risk of chill effect, as manifested by grey color or underpeel discoloration, is 55 degrees fahrenheit. Even if the bananas were carried at a temperature slightly below 55 degrees fahrenheit for a period up to eight hours, it is unlikely that chill effect would occur.

17. A formal complaint was filed in this proceeding on April 3, 1984. An informal complaint was filed on September 21, 1983, which was within nine months of the time the causes of action herein accrued.

DISCUSSION

The issues in this proceeding are unique and difficult of resolution. This is particularly so because, although there were no federal inspections of the bananas either at port of discharge or at complainant's place of business with respect to the fourteen transactions at issue in this proceeding, it is clear that both parties accept the validity of inspections by respondent insofar as the accuracy of the findings is concerned. However, the parties differ as to the interpretation which should be placed upon those findings. The case is further compounded by the fact that there are no federal standards with respect to condition or quality factors for the bananas. Therefore, a necessary step in the resolution of the dispute is to determine whether, given the nature and kind of defects found in the bananas upon respondent's inspections both at point of discharge and at complainant's place of business the bananas made good delivery. In effect, the tribunal must engraft upon this case reasonable tests as to the percentage of condition defects bananas may have at destination for it to determine whether they made good delivery. We derive some help in this regard through the conduct of respondent in granting allowances. We are also helped to some extent by looking at federal standards for other fruit, and to a lesser degree by an analysis of complainant's accounts of sale, which show the extent to which complainant lost money when it resold the bananas. In addition, in those instances in which we may find the bananas did not make good delivery, we must determine whether the adjustments in price granted by respondent were appropriate.

Complainant contends that it is entitled to damages, based upon the condition of the bananas when they arrived at its place of business. Although originally it filed lesser claims based primarily on its actual costs less sales price, it now contends that it is entitled to the difference between the price the bananas would have fetched on resale at the market had they made good delivery and their actual value as manifested by the price fetched at resale. Respondent, on the other hand, contends that complainant cannot make such a claim. It offers three theories for why its computation and proffered allowances are proper. First, it claims that the custom of the trade with respect to bananas is such that the adjustments which are awarded when the shipper of the bananas finds that the receiver is entitled to an adjustment will be based on the free on board price plus expenses such as handling, trucking, and repacking that portion of the load which was not in suitable condition upon arrival. It also claims that insofar as complainant is concerned, by virtue of a course of conduct between complainant and respondent over a period of two years with respect to settlements, complainant has accepted respondent's methodology for the settlement of claims. Third, it claims that when it submitted its initial claims complainant engaged in a course of performance in which it used the delivered costs less the value of the bananas on resale, which course of performance restricted it to respondent's method of computing damages utilizing such delivered costs, which is the same as f.o.b. pricing plus other expenses.

Before discussing whether there are standards for condition defects which may be applied, we must address respondent's intriguing claim that since there are no federally published standards by which to determine whether bananas made good delivery Chiquita cannot be held to have violated section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. § 499b). Section 6(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499f(a)) provides that "Any person complaining of any violation of any provision of Section 2 of this Act . . . may "file a complaint with the Secretary." Section 6(c) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499f(c)) provides for investigations of such complaints, and if the investigation reveals there may have been a violation, a hearing on the issues. These are the provisions which trigger reparation proceedings such as the one with which we are concerned here.

Section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. § 499b) provides in pertinent part:

> It shall be unlawful in or in connection with any transaction in interstate or foreign commerce—
> * * * * * * *
> (2) For any dealer to reject or fail to deliver in accordance with the terms of the contract without reasonable cause any perishable agricultural commodity bought or sold or contracted to be bought, sold, or consigned in interstate or foreign commerce by such dealer.

It is the above-quoted provisions with which we are concerned in this proceeding.[1]

Section 6(a) of the PACA clearly contemplates that in order to initiate a reparation proceeding the complaining party must allege that there has been a violation of section 2. Complainant did so. Section 6(d) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499f(d)) provides in pertinent part that after oral hearing the Secretary shall determine whether a dealer has violated any provision of section 2 of the PACA. The Secretary has made such determination in prior cases involving bananas in which their condition was in issue. See Ecuadorian Fruit Import Corporation v. L & S Bananas, 18 Agric. Dec. 485 (1959); Ecuadorian Fruit Import Corporation v. Matthew Mercurio, 16 Agric. Dec. 1245 (1957). Respondent's argument that there must be published federal standards before there can be a violation of section 2 must necessarily fail. There is no requirement in the PACAthat standards be established for the largest amount of condition defects a commodity of a given grade may show and still make good delivery. Rather, the Department has established such standards, primarily for commodities which are grown domestically, as the need has arisen to assist in the federal inspection of fruits and vegetables. The lack of federal standards does not affect the principle of whether a commodity makes good delivery. Rather, such standards establish a method by which to apply the principle. The lack of such standards merely forces this tribunal to find alternative, fair methods by which to determine whether a commodity has made good delivery.

In the usual reparation case under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act in which a party claims that a fruit or vegetable has not made good delivery there are published standards with respect to the condition which such product must meet at point of destination, dependent upon its grade, in order to meet contract specifications. Proof of a breach of contract on the part of the seller because it did not ship goods which made good delivery is most easily done based upon a federal inspection. When the product has greater than a specified percentage of condition defects it is said not to have made good delivery, as a result of which the receiver or buyer can then claim damages based upon the differential between the price fetched on resale and the market price, or on some other formula. Here, where there are no published standards with respect to the condition of bananas at the point of destination, and where the general practice is not to obtain a federal inspection, the resolution of a dispute in which a party claims that the bananas did not make good delivery is much more difficult. Based upon the evidence in this proceeding, in which both parties acknowledge that the inspections performed by the respondent are very well performed, and accurately describe the condition of the bananas both at port and at their ultimate destination, with one exception we accept the findings in those inspection reports as being accurate, and sufficiently probative of the issue of the condition of the bananas for use in this proceeding. See Commonwealth Fruit & Produce Company, Inc. v. Idaho Falls Bonded Produce & Supply Co., 32 Agric. Dec. 1734 (1973); Henry Skeba v. Battleground Farms, 18 Agric. Dec. 183 (1959). However, our acceptance of such reports does not resolve the ultimate question with respect to condition, which is what standard should be applied.

In Ecuadorian Fruit Import Corporation v. L & S Bananas, supra, the issue as to how to deal with condition defects in bananas was raised indirectly. However, it is helpful in this proceeding. In that case the complainant complained that the bananas were green select, whereas respondent said that they were not. A witness testified that there were four grades of classification for bananas at that time; i.e., select, special (reject), turning, and ripe, and that there was a differential in price between each such grade. The witness defined select as "green, proper grade and finger size, clean and uniform". The evidence in this proceeding shows that the classification of bananas has progressed substantially from the period of time involved in Ecuadorian Fruit. However, it is important to acknowledge that purchasers and sellers of bananas have long known that there are various grades which result in price differentials. Indeed, in Ecuadorian Fruit the tribunal stated that "there was an implied warranty that the bananas would ripen properly under normal ripening procedures. Complainant knew from the nature of the business, as well as previous sales to respondent, that respondent intended to ripen the green bananas prior to selling to stores." (Id. at 489) Such is also the case here. The testimony of complainant, through its witness Michael Zurowski, showed clearly that complainant expected to receive green bananas of high quality (a condition as to which Chiquita prides itself), that it had ripening rooms of excellent quality for bananas, and that it utilized these ripening rooms after receipt of the bananas in order to get them to an appropriate stage for resale to other businesses. It is both upon the receipt of the bananas by complainant, and during the subsequent ripening process that the bananas underwent in complainant's ripening rooms, that the various condition defects of the bananas became clearly discernible.

One way to determine whether the bananas made good delivery is to ascertain the percentage of condition defects which is tolerable at the time of shipment to or receipt at the ultimate destination by complainant. Such resolution is consonant with applicable PACA procedures for commodities for which there are published condition standards. This method is consistent with the requirement that a seller must sell goods which are in suitable shipping condition. The warranty of suitable shipping condition placed upon a seller of goods is defined in section 46.24(j) of the regulations issued pursuant to the PACA (7 CFR § 46.24(j)) "to mean, in relation to direct shipments, that the commodity at the time of billing is in a condition which, if the shipment is handled under normal transportation service and conditions, will assure delivery at the destination specified in the contract of sale without abnormal deterioration." John M. Evans Produce Co. v. D. L. Piazza Company, 18 Agric. Dec. 1452, 1454 (1959). An inspection of the various allowances for condition defects with respect to certain kinds of fruit of U.S. No. 1 quality for which standards have been promulgated reveals that the percentage of condition defects permissible at shipping point ranges between 8 and 10 percent, with between 4 and 5 percent permissible serious damage at shipping point. At destination, for those commodities for which there are tolerances given the range tends to be between 10 and 12 percent with a range of 5 to 6 percent for serious damage. For U.S. No. 1 cantaloupes, at shipping point there may be 8 percent condition defects by count with not more than 4 percent serious damage, and at destination 12 percent condition defects with not more than 6 percent serious damage (see 7 CFR 51.476). For U.S. No. 1 melons there may be 10 percent condition defects by count at shipping point with not more than 5 percent serious damage. No tolerances are given at destination (See 7 CFR 51.3744). For U.S. No. 1 nectarines there may be 8 percent condition defects by count with not more than 4 percent serious damage at shipping point and 12 percent condition defects with not more than 6 percent serious damage at destination (See 7 CFR 51.3150). For U.S. No. 1 pineapples there may be 10 percent condition defects by count at shipping point with not more than 5 percent serious damage. No tolerances are given at destination. (7 CFR 51.1486). For U.S. No. 1 watermelons there may be 10 percent condition defects by count at both shipping point and destination with not more than 5 percent serious damage. (See 7 CFR 51.1973).

An analysis of the standards for the fruits and melons described above shows that 10 percent grade and condition defects, with not more than five percent involving serious damage, at shipping point, including not more than one percent decay (rot), is a reasonable standard for bananas. In order to determine whether the bananas in the 14 transactions involved in this proceeding made good delivery, we shall apply that criterion as one of the methods by which we can draw conclusions. Both parties implicitly agree that underpeel discoloration or ripe and turning bananas are serious condition defects. It is axiomatic that rot is a serious condition defect. Therefore, it is reasonable to conclude that up to eight percent serious damage by discoloration should be allowed for the bananas to make good delivery at destination on an f.o.b. sale, but not more than three percent of that amount may be decay (rot). We apply a more lenient standard at destination because tolerances for such defects are typically more lenient there than at the shipping point. See Pope Packing & Sales, Inc. v. Santa Fe Vegetable Growers Cooperative, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 101, 104–105 (1979); Denise & Filice Packing Co. v. Super Food Services, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 744, 746–747 (1979). Under such circumstances this tribunal has a basis by which to make the necessary threshold determination for most of the transactions as to whether the bananas made good delivery based upon percentages of condition defects.

In evaluating whether the parties agreed on the method by which damages would be computed we conclude that there is no written document which sets forth the full understanding of the parties. The invoice sent by respondent with respect to each transaction contains some terms and conditions with respect to filing claims, but does not contain a statement of the methodology by which allowances will be granted. The obverse of the invoice states in pertinent part:

> 5. Claims—Notice of every claim in respect of Products must be given, orally or in writing . . . within 48 hours after the Products arrive at Purchaser's ripening premises. Such Notice will specify the defect or defects complained of, the date of such arrival and the date the Products will leave the ripening premises, and must assure Company an opportunity to inspect the Products. A formal claim or Company Form SC–10 with supporting loss statement must be filed with local Company representative within 60 days after giving such notice. Purchaser shall make all reasonable efforts to minimize losses in respect of products claimed to be defective. . . .

6. Adjustments—Company agrees to investigate every claim made as provided above and will make prompt and fair adjustment thereof if found meritorious. Purchaser, however, shall in every instance pay to Company the full amount of the invoice without any deduction or set off whatsoever.

The above terms had been in effect for about 25 years prior to 1983. Complainant had received invoices from respondent containing those terms for at least the two years preceding the transactions in issue in this proceeding. Therefore, we conclude that it knew of them, and that even though complainant had not signed a document expressly agreeing to these terms, by course of conduct both parties have agreed to them with respect to the settlement of claims. However, other than those contained on the front of the invoices we also conclude that these are the only provisions to which the parties have agreed.

Complainant met both conditions set forth in paragraph 5, above, when it notified respondent of a claim in which it specified the defects in 11 of the 14 transactions within 48 hours of its receipt of the bananas in Cleveland. It also provided respondent with written claims for all 14 transactions in which it set forth the bases thereof along with a statement of losses within 60 days of its receipt of the bananas. In addition, complainant faithfully paid respondent the full amount of the invoices even though it had made the claims. This, of course, gave respondent a powerful tool by which to offer complainant an allowance on its own terms. Respondent also investigated each claim, and offered to make adjustments which it found to be appropriate. However, we do not read the language as to adjustments in paragraph 6 to imply that a receiver of bananas cannot challenge the validity of the allowances. Finally, complainant did not accept the amounts which were tendered as full settlement of the claims.

The above discussion provides the necessary backdrop to discuss respondent's contentions that complainant must accept the amounts tendered to it as full settlement of its 14 claims. Respondent set forth three alternative, but not necessarily mutually exclusive, reasons for its contention that pursuant to the Uniform Commercial Code, hereinafter U.C.C., complainant is precluded from recovering more than it was offered in settlement.[2] It claims that by virtue of usage of trade (industry practice), course of conduct, or course of performance, the complainant has accepted its methodology of granting allowances based on the f.o.b. price of bananas plus necessary expenses such as transportation and handling when the bananas have condition defects.

Section 1-205(2) of the U.C.C. defines usage of the trade as:

> . . . any practice or method of dealing having such regularity of observance in a place, vocation or trade as to justify an expectation that it will be observed with respect to the transaction in question. The existence and scope of such a usage are to be proved as facts.

Note 4 to 1-205(2) of the U.C.C. states that usage of trade is "a factor in reaching the commercial meaning of the agreement which the parties have made." It does not "displace or negate 'established rules of law.'" Pursuant to Note 5 a usage of trade need not be "ancient or immemorial." Rather, there must be "regularity of observance." As the proponent of the claim that by usage of the trade settlements for bananas that do not meet contract terms are based on f.o.b. price plus other necessary costs respondent has the burden of proof. International Produce Distributors, Inc. v. A & L Produce Co., Inc., 31 Agric. Dec. 356 (1972); Santelli v. Rubinstein, 21 Agric. Dec. 1053 (1962); Spada Distributing Co. v. Frank Kenworthy Co., 17 Agric. Dec. 347 (1958). Based on our analysis of the facts in this case we conclude that respondent has failed to prove that all banana dealers grant allowances for shipments which do not meet contract specifications based on f.o.b. price plus necessary expenses. Respondent provided testimony that it does so. It provided somewhat murky testimony that Castle and Cooke does so. The business of those two companies encompasses about 60 percent of the banana business in the United States. Even construing the testimony in the light most favorable to respondent we cannot conclude that respondent has proved that its allowance procedures with respect to bananas rise to the point where they are customary in the trade. At a very minimum such a conclusion could be drawn only after extensive review of testimony by buyers rather than self-serving statements made by sellers, and the custom would have to be established through numerous cases of actual practice, and not through the opinion of a witness. Coast Marketing Company v. World Wide Produce Company, 30 Agric. Dec. 1742 (1971); California Fruit Exchange v. Spracale Fruit Co., 89 F. Supp 580 (W.D. PA, 1950). Even more important is the fact that respondent failed to provide meaningful explanations as to why it gave allowances in the amounts it did, and in some instances denied them, with respect to the 14 transactions in issue here. It certainly did not prove that the trade grants allowances without giving fuller explanations than were given to complainant as to how the computations were arrived at, or that receivers are denied an opportunity to negotiate final settlements.

Section 1-205(1) of the U.C.C. defines course of dealing as:

> . . . a sequence of previous conduct between the parties to a particular transaction which is fairly to be regarded as establishing a common basis of understanding for interpreting their expressions and other conduct.

This provision should be read in conjunction with section 2-208(1) of the U.C.C. which provides that:

> Where the contract for sale involves repeated occasions for performance by either party with knowledge of the nature of the performance and opportunity for objection to it by the other, any course of performance accepted or acquiesced in without objection shall be relevant to determine the meaning of the agreement.

The parties dealt with each other on a weekly basis under the common contract provisions written by respondent for two years prior to the 14 transactions which are involved in this proceeding. However, that there were many prior transactions does not indicate that complainant accepted or acquiesced in the claims procedures followed by respondent. The record shows that complainant had an opportunity to object to those procedures on only three occasions prior to March 1983. It filed claims for allowances based on its belief the bananas involved did not meet contract specifications only on those three occasions. Furthermore, for the latter two claims, which arose in November 1982, complainant strongly expressed its dissatisfaction with respondent's settlement procedures in a letter to respondent dated December 29, 1982.[3] Even though it also accepted the settlement of another claim on respondent's terms after it made the 14 claims with which we are concerned, there are not sufficient claims in which complainant accepted re-

[3] Complainant stated:

> "It is with much regret that I return these 2 claim files accepting your ridiculous offer of settlement, and simply because we are closing our books for the fiscal year and I do not have the time, nor the accessability to the necessary records at this time, to be able to photostat the copies of each ticket to prove my loss, though at any other time I guarantee you I would subpoena all your records to make you prove how you arbitrarily amongst yourselves came up with a figure like you did."

spondent's proposed settlement for us to conclude it acquiesced in its methodology. This is particularly true in view of complainant's vociferous opposition to the two November settlements, and the fact it did not accept the proffers on the 14 transactions. Therefore, we conclude that there has not been a course of dealing or performance which gives rise to the conclusion that respondent's claim settlement procedures are acceptable to both parties.

Singer's requested damages in the amount of $66,697.25 in its formal complaint filed on March 15, 1984. In an Order dated September 18, 1984, the Secretary ordered respondent to pay $9,286.00, the amount it admitted it owed complainant. That left for resolution in this proceeding a claim of $57,411.25. However, paragraph 5 of the contract between the parties, as shown on the reverse side of every invoice for each of the 14 transactions provides that "a formal claim . . . must be filed . . . within 60 days after giving . . . notice [of a claim]". Having dealt with respondent for two years, during which period the same contract was always utilized for many transactions, complainant is charged with knowledge of the provision, and with having accepted it terms, thereby giving rise to a course of performance as provided in section 2-208(1) of the U.C.C. Since the last transaction involved in this proceeding occurred on May 31, 1983, more than 60 days elapsed with respect to all of them prior to the filing of the complaint. Therefore, complainant is limited to no more than it claimed in the formal written claims it filed with respondent within 60 days of the receipt of the bananas with respect to each transaction. The total amount of such claims was $35,691.57, less $9,286.00 already paid by respondent, or $26,405.57. The original individual claims, as lumped together by date of discharge of the bananas from each of five ships, appear to have been based on the difference between complainant's total costs, including contract price, fuel surcharge, transportation, temperature recorders and handling, and the total price fetched on resale, as shown by accounts of sale for each transaction. Under these circumstances complainant did not originally claim lost profits, and as discussed previously, cannot do so now.

In view of our findings that bananas are subject to regulation under the P.A.C.A. even though there are no published grade standards with respect to good delivery, and that certain provisions of the U.C.C. which would insulate the parties from coverage under the PACA are not applicable in this instance, it is necessary to determine the extent to which complainant is entitled to damages. Our analysis of Singer's claims follows.[4]

1. Transactions No. 1 through 3—Rio Babahoya; docked at Albany, New York with unloading March 23, 1983.

The Rio Babahoya docked at Albany, New York, and respondent's bananas were unloaded from that vessel on March 23, 1983. Three truckloads of bananas were sold to complainant, f.o.b. port of discharge. The sale price was $10.00 per carton with respect to each load. One truck carrying 875 cartons of bananas arrived at complainant's place of business March 24, 1983. The other two trucks, one with 870 cartons and the other with 850 cartons of bananas arrived on March 25, 1983. All three truckloads were received, accepted and unloaded by respondent on arrival. In addition to the $25,950 for the 2,595 cartons of bananas, respondent invoiced complainant $1,038.00 as a fuel surcharge, $934.20 for handling charges and $45.00 for temperature recorders for two of the three trucks, for a total contract price for the three transactions of $27,967.20. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent. In addition, complainant paid $1,742.31 for freight, bringing its total costs to point of destination to $29,709.51.

Respondent pursued its usual practice of inspecting the bananas for various defects when they were unloaded from the Rio Babahoya. The inspection showed that seven percent of the cartons were ripe and turning, thereby constituting a significant condition defect.

When the bananas had been unloaded into its ripening rooms from the trucks, complainant gave oral notice to respondent on March 25, 1983, that it believed they were not in accordance with contract specifications. Chiquita responded to the complaint by performing an inspection on March 28, 1983. After that date complainant filed its written complaint and statement of damages. It set forth as the basis for its claim that "fruit was showing a chill effect w/out any other characteristics of chill except the grey cast to the peel. All temperatures w/in tolerance." In the remarks section of [4] Respondent claimed that an adverse inference should be drawn from complainant's failure to provide temperature charts to show the temperatures at which the bananas were maintained after they were unloaded. We decline to do so because for the most part complainant filed prompt complaints with Chiquita, indicating that the problems existed at the time of delivery. While we are tempted to draw adverse inferences from respondent's failure to provide charts showing the temperatures on board the ship even though such charts were requested by Singer's prior to hearing, we shall not do so primarily because the issues can be decided without invoking adverse inferences.

that same form respondent wrote "complaint on discoloration (and after ripening) on arrival. Customer requested our QC inspection". The inspection showed with respect to the load which arrived on March 24, 1983 that 8 percent of the bananas were ripe and turning or ripe. With respect to the truckload containing 850 cartons which arrived on March 25, 1983 it showed 14 percent of the cartons were ripe and turning or ripe. The record does not show a quality control report at destination for the third truckload. However, based on the discharge inspection and the other two inspections at destination we find that the preponderance of the evidence shows it did not make good delivery, particularly since Chiquita granted a $4,000 allowance without distinguishing between the three loads. In addition respondent either did not look for or did not find any underpeel discoloration, which would reflect chill damage.

Complainant kept careful records of its sales with respect to the three truckloads involved. The accounts of sale showed that the bananas fetched $7,402.75 for the load which arrived March 24, 1983, and $8,846.00 and $8,056.25 for the other two loads for total sales of $24,305.00. This is $5,404.51 less than its computed costs for the 2,595 cartons of bananas. Complainant claimed $5,766.85 as its total losses on the three loads. The $362.34 difference is unexplained. Respondent offered $4,000.00 in full settlement without giving complainant the benefit of an explanation as to why it was doing so.

We find, based on our review of the evidence with respect to the three truckloads of bananas, that they did not meet contract specifications when they were delivered to complainant. Respondent dealt with the three loads as if they were one unit. It implicitly acknowledged that bananas that were at least 8 percent and as much as 14 percent ripe and turning or ripe at the time of delivery were defective when it granted a $4,000.00 allowance. While it provided a rationale for the amount granted at hearing in the form of a worksheet, this was not a document to which complainant was privy at the time the allowance was granted. Rather, it constituted respondent's unilateral determination as to the amount of the allowance it wanted to grant. The best evidence of the damages suffered by complainant are its three accounts of sale, which reflect the total prices fetched for the three transactions. The difference between its computed costs and the total price fetched on resale is the appropriate measure of damages in this instance. That amount is $5,404.51. We will disallow the additional claim of $362.34 as being unsupported by the evidence. Respondent has previously paid complainant a $4,000.00 allowance. Therefore, we shall award complainant $1,404.51 with respect to these three claims.

2. Transactions No. 4 through 7—Rio Sulaco; docked at Charleston, South Carolina with unloading March 31, 1983.

The Rio Sulaco docked at Charleston, South Carolina, and respondent's bananas were unloaded from that vessel on March 31, 1983. Four truckloads of bananas were sold to complainant, f.o.b. port of discharge. The sale price was $9.00 per carton with respect to each load. Two trucks arrived at complainant's place of business April 2, 1983. One truck carried 850 cartons of bananas, and the other carried 848 cartons. One truck carrying 848 cartons arrived at complainant's place of business on April 4, 1983, and the fourth truck, carrying 850 cartons, arrived on April 5, 1983. All four truckloads were received, accepted and unloaded by respondent on arrival. In addition to the $30,564.00 for the 3,998 cartons of bananas, respondent invoiced complainant $90.00 for four temperature recorders, a fuel surcharge of $1,358.40, and handling charges of $1,154.64 for a total contract price for the four transactions of $33,167.04. Complainant made timely payment of this amount.

Respondent pursued its usual practice of inspecting the bananas for various defects when they were unloaded from the Rio Sulaco. The inspection showed scorable defects ranging from 3.4 percent to 4.1 percent depending on the hold from which the bananas were taken. Ripe and turning bananas ranged between 0.8 percent and 1.5 percent of the cartons, which is not a significantly high percentage of defects.

When the bananas had been unloaded into its ripening rooms from the trucks complainant gave oral notice to respondent with respect to the truckloads which arrived on April 2, 1985 that it believed the bananas were not in accordance with contract specifications because they had a grey color, and with respect to the other two truckloads which arrived on April 4, 1983 and April 5, 1983, that they were ripe and turning. Respondent was not able to inspect the bananas immediately. Therefore, complainant kept them in its ripening rooms while it sold other bananas. Respondent performed an inspection on April 13, 1983.

After April 15, 1983, complainant filed its written complaint and statement of damages with respect to the two loads of bananas which arrived on April 2, 1983. It set forth as the basis of its claim that "upon ripening and some on arrival, the fruit was turning a grey color, as if to show chill, without any other characteristics of chill and temperatures within tolerance." In the remarks section of that same form respondent wrote "Soft and breaking fruit on arrival." The destination inspection showed with respect to these two loads that 30 percent of the bananas had underpeel discoloration.

After April 11, 1983 complainant filed its written complaint and statement of damages with respect to the two loads of bananas which arrived on April 4, 1983 and April 5, 1983. It set forth as the basis of its claim that "upon ripening fruit had a grey cast as if to show chill effects without any other characteristics of chilling and temperatures within tolerance." In the remarks section of that same form respondent wrote "ripe & turning". The destination inspection showed with respect to these two loads that 30 percent of the bananas had underpeel discoloration.

Complainant kept careful records of its sales with respect to the four truckloads involved. The accounts of sale showed that the bananas fetched $8,329.50 and $6,919.25 for the first two truckloads, and $6,459.00 and $6,959.50 for the second two loads for total sales of $28,667.25. This is $8,661.18 less than its computed costs for the 3,998 cartons of bananas, which includes $3,483.99 for transportation and $678.40 for handling in addition to the sales price and other fees paid to respondent. Complainant claimed $3,247.25 with respect to the first two transactions, and $4,745.66 with respect to the other two transactions, for a total claim of $7,992.91. Respondent granted no allowance with respect to the first two transactions, and offered $1,365.00 for the other two, leaving $6,627.91 as the total claim for which it did not grant an allowance. Respondent explained to complainant that it declined to grant an allowance for two truckloads, because there was no underpeel discoloration at discharge, and gave less of an allowance than complainant requested on the other two without an explanation.

We find based on our review of the evidence with respect to the four truckloads of bananas that the second two truckloads did not meet contract specifications when they were delivered to complainant. Respondent implicitly acknowledged that there were condition defects warranting the grant of an allowance when it offered complainant $1,365.00. Unfortunately, its reasons are murky, at best. The issue as to whether respondent should have granted more allowances turns on our determination of which party was responsible for the underpeel discoloration on these two loads.

Both parties agree that underpeel discoloration is a serious condition defect. Both parties agree that it arises only as a result of chill damage. It is also the case that underpeel discoloration is sometimes noticeable because the outer skins of the bananas have a dull grey cast to them. However, the best way to tell whether there is underpeel discoloration is to peel back the skin of the banana and look at its underside. Speckling or spots indicates there is underpeel discoloration.

That underpeel discoloration was not found when the Rio Sulaco was unloaded in Charleston does not mean the chill giving rise to this condition had not yet occurred. The condition does not appear immediately upon chilling the banana. Thre are no temperature records to show the hold temperatures on board ship. These records were requested of but not furnished by respondent.

With respect to the second two truckloads of bananas the pulp temperature when the bananas were unloaded was 58° to 60° fahrenheit. The pulp temperature on arrival of one of the two trucks was 60° to 65° fahrenheit. None was shown for the other truck. Temperature ranges for the two trucks while they were in transit were not provided.

Based on our review of all the evidence we conclude that the second two truckloads of bananas delivered to complainant from the Rio Sulaco did not make good delivery. The pulp temperatures at discharge from the ship were 58° to 60° fahrenheit. The pulp temperatures at the time of arrival of the trucks were at or above those at the time of unloading from the ship. Complainant filed complaints as to the condition of the fruit immediately upon accepting delivery. The inspection was not held until between eight and eleven days after the arrival of the fruit, during which time complainant carefully monitored the ripening process. While it is true the chill could have occurred during this period, we believe it is likely it occurred while the bananas were on the ship because by offering partial reimbursement respondent admitted there were problems with the bananas on arrival in Cleveland, and there was no showing of defects other than underpeel discoloration. Under the circumstances it should have granted a full allowance based on complainant's proved losses. The fact that the inspection was held 8 days after arrival is subsumed by respondent's grant of a partial allowance.

With respect to the two loads which arrived on April 2, 1983, respondent must prevail. The distinction in facts between these two loads and the two on which we have awarded damages is that there is no admission by respondent as to its liability. The inspection by Chiquita for all four loads was so distant in time from the arrival of the trucks at complainant's place of business that we cannot ascribe responsibility for the condition defects found to one party as opposed to the other. Therefore, having accepted the goods by unloading them, complainant had the burden to prove respondent was responsible for the defects. Theron Hooker Company v. Ben Gatz Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 1109, 1112 (1971); Rydell California Potato

Co. v. the Kaufman-Brown Potato Company, 16 Agric. Dec. 1055 (1957). It failed to sustain that burden.[5]

We accept complainant's accounts of sale and computations of costs as accurate. Complainant lost $4,745.66 on the two loads for which we are awarding damages. However, since respondent granted an allowance of $1,365.00 for them, we shall award damages of only the difference, or $3,380.66.

3. Transactions No. 8 through 10—Chion Trader; docked at Charleston, South Carolina with unloading April 7, 1983.

The Chion Trader docked at Charleston, South Carolina, and respondent's bananas were unloaded from that vessel on April 7, 1983. Three truckloads of bananas were sold to complainant, f.o.b. port of discharge. The sale price was $9.50 per carton with respect to each load. One truck carrying 875 cartons arrived at complainant's place of business on April 11, 1983, and two trucks, each carrying 850 cartons, arrived on April 12, 1983. All three truckloads were received, accepted and unloaded by respondent on arrival. In addition to the $24,462.50 for the 2,575 cartons of bananas, respondent invoiced complainant $1,030.00 as a fuel surcharge, $875.50 for handling, and $67.50 for temperature recorders, for a total contract price for the three transactions of $26,435.50. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent. In addition, complainant paid $2,771.20 for freight, bringing its total costs to point of destination to $29,206.70.

Respondent followed its usual practice of inspecting the bananas for various defects when they were unloaded from the Chion Trader. Among other findings the inspection showed that 18 percent of the cartons of bananas from hatch 3 showed underpeel discoloration.

When the bananas had been unloaded into its ripening rooms from the trucks, complainant gave oral notice to respondent that it believed they were in accordance with contract specifications. Respondent came to complainant's place of business, and performed an inspection on April 13, 1983. At some time after April 12, 1983 complainant filed its written complaint and statement of damages. It set forth as the basis for its claim that "upon ripening fruit was showing an off-color cast of grey as if to show chill without any other characteristics of chill and temperatures O.K. on arrival". In the remarks portion of that same form respondent wrote "QC inspection after ripening brown discoloration". The inspection showed with respect to two of the three loads that 35 percent (for the load arriving April 11, 1983) and 42 percent (for one of the loads arriving April 12, 1983), of the clusters did not meet specifications. This is very high in both instances. There was no quality control inspection shown for the third load of bananas. The certificates also appear to show that there was considerable underpeel discoloration.

[5] Complainant need not have waited for Chiquita's inspectors to arrive. Federal inspection service is available in Cleveland, Ohio. Complainant was free to secure and rely on the results of such an inspection. It should have done so under these circumstances.

Complainant kept careful records of its sales with respect to the three truckloads involved. The accounts of sale showed that the bananas fetched $8,561.00 for the load which arrived on April 11, 1983, and $8,062.00 and $7,748.75 for the loads which arrived on April 12, 1983, for total sales of $24,371.75. This is $4,834.95 less than its computed costs for the 2,575 cartons of bananas. Complainant claimed $4,954.51 as its total losses on the three loads. The $119.56 difference is unexplained. Respondent offered $2,000.00 in full settlement for one of the truckloads containing 850 cartons because the bananas for that load were known to have come from a hold in which excessive underpeel discoloration was found. The record does not reflect which truck was involved. The amount of money, however, most closely approximates the segregated claim by complainant for $1,924.25, and we will ascribe the allowance to that truckload. The inspection report which showed that 35 percent of the clusters did not meet specifications clearly related to the truck which arrived on April 11, 1983 with 875 cartons of bananas.

We find based on our review of the evidence with respect to the three truckloads of bananas that the two loads for which inspections were provided did not meet contract specifications when they were delivered to complainant. The inspections were made either one or two days after the bananas were received and accepted, with percentages and types of defects which were too high to be ascribed to deterioration while in transit and after delivery. With respect to the third load complainant has failed to meet its burden of proof that the bananas did not make good delivery, particularly since respondent treated each truckload separately, and our finding of liability is dependent on the results of inspections. Respondent has made full compensation with respect to one load which did not make good delivery, as discussed above. With respect to the third load involving 875 cartons we find complainant's claimed loss of $1,419.26 to be proved by the evidence, and we shall award complainant that amount.

4. Transactions No. 11 through 13—Rio Babahoya; docked at Albany, New York with unloading May 4, 1983.

The Rio Babahoya docked at Albany, New York, and respondent's bananas were unloaded from that vessel on May 4, 1983. Three truckloads of bananas were sold to complainant, f.o.b. port of discharge. The sale price was $11.50 per carton with respect to each load. Each truck contained 850 cartons. One truck arrived at complainant's place of business on May 5, 1983, and the other two trucks arrived on May 6, 1983. All three truckloads were received, accepted and unloaded by respondent on arrival. In addition to the $29,325.00 for the 2,550 cartons of bananas, respondent invoiced complainant $1,020.00 as a fuel surcharge, and $918.00 for handling, for a total contract price for the three transactions of $31,263.00. Complainant made timely payment of this amount to respondent.

Respondent pursued its usual practice of inspecting the bananas for various defects when they were unloaded from the Rio Babahoya. The inspection showed three percent of the cartons from hold number 4, the hold from which Singer's bananas were taken, were ripe and turning, and that overall there were a number of condition defects. The inspection at discharge did not reveal any underpeel discoloration.

After the bananas had been unloaded into its ripening rooms from the trucks, complainant gave oral notice to respondent on May 11, 1983, that it believed they did not meet contract specifications because they showed underpeel discoloration and were old. Respondent made an inspection of the three truckloads of bananas on May 13, 1983. On or after that date complainant filed its written complaint and statement of damages. It set forth as the basis for its claim that "These loads appeared to be old fruit. Upon arrival showed a slight discoloration, as if they were chilled, but temperatures were within tolerance. Upon ripening showed excessive discoloration and scarring with deep bruises—crown mold and occasional rot." Respondent did not enter comments in the "remarks" section of the complaint form.

The inspection showed "fruit appears fairly decent at end but after processing too many show poor color but most not from chilling", and "100 boxes examined—sample divided between 3 rooms of the 3 loads all gassed—avg color of all clusters 3—3½ OC—scattered throughout—34% med/sev—5%—off color from chilling 15%—Med/sev. 4%. Mostly large full mature fruit, 5% of boxes clusters showing ugly brownish outer peel discoloration and excessive amounts of CM/CR—NI/NR very mixed appearance, poor to fair." [6] The bananas were obviously not in good condition on May 13, 1983.

Complainant kept careful records of its sales with respect to the three truckloads involved. The accounts of sale showed that the bananas fetched $8,343.75, $7,086.00, and $7,061.50, for total sales of $22,491.25. This is $10,563.20 less than its computed costs for the 2,550 cartons of bananas, which is comprised of the $31,263.00 invoiced by respondent and $1,791.45 for hauling, or a total of $33,054.45. Complainant originally claimed $10,608.20 as its total losses on the three loads. The $45.00 differential is probably a deduction for unloading one of the trucks. Respondent declined to grant any allowance on the three loads on the grounds that:

> Discharge reports do not show any evidence of underpeel discoloration at discharge. Further, boxing dates indicate no excessive age of fruit at loading or at discharge.
> Although our Quality Control inspector did find off-color fruit at your location on May 13, 1983, it is our contention that the fruit was damaged by improper conditions during transit or ripening. To further support this, the carrier report on Lot 440 indicates that the load arrived in Cleveland on May 5, "but could not deliver due to cooler problems."

We find based on our review of the evidence with respect to the three truckloads of bananas that complainant did not prove they did not meet contract specifications when they were delivered to it. It did not file a claim within 48 hours of accepting the bananas, as required by the contract, which defense was not raised by respondent, but which is recognized here. Additionally, the record shows that the bananas were on board the Rio Babahoya for about 12 days, which is a long time. The pulp temperatures of the bananas were 57§ to 60° Fahrenheit when they were unloaded from the ship. On arrival at Singer's in Cleveland the pulp temperatures were 57° to 60°, 59° to 60°, and 62° to 65°, respectively. All these temperatures are all right, although those for the latter truck are somewhat high. Of great importance is the fact that respondent found a low percentage of ripe and turning and no underpeel discoloration at the time the bananas were unloaded from the ship, even though they had been in transit a long time. Furthermore, complainant did not file an oral complaint with respondent until May 11, 1983, six days after the first load had arrived, and five days after the other two arrived. The bananas were admittedly old when they were inspected. Some were off color, with 15 percent of them experiencing underpeel discoloration. Another five percent of the fruit had other condition defects. Unfortunately for Singer's, having accepted the bananas it has the burden to show that they did not make good delivery. Theron Hooker Company v. Ben Gatz Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 1109, 1112 (1971); Rydell California Potato Co. v. The Kaufman Brown Potato Company, 16 Agric. Dec. 1055 (1957). In this instance it did not provide enough evidence for us to conclude such was the case. We are particularly impressed by its failures to complain about the condition of the bananas when it received them or to provide temperature charts for the inland transit and the seven and eight day periods between the arrival of the fruit and when it was inspected. These charts were critical to its proof in this instance because the percent of defects of various kinds cannot be said to be of such a nature and amount that they could occur only prior to unloading from the ship, and not after arrival at complainant's place of business.

5. Transaction No. 14—Olancho; docked at Albany, New York with unloading May 27, 1983.

The Olancho docked at Albany, New York, and respondent's bananas were unloaded from that vessel on May 27, 1983. One truckload of bananas was sold to complainant, f.o.b. port of discharge. The sale price was $10.00 per carton for 850 cartons or $8,500.00, plus charges for a fuel surcharge, handling and a temperature recorder of $678.00, for a total cost of $9,178.00. The truck arrived at complainant's place of business on May 31, 1983, and was received, unloaded and accepted. Complainant immediately complained to respondent about the condition of the bananas. Subsequently, complainant made timely payment in full.

Respondent pursued its usual practice of inspecting the bananas for various defects when they were unloaded from the Olancho. It showed that 90 percent of the clusters met specifications.

After the bananas had been unloaded into its ripening rooms from the truck complainant immediately gave oral notice to respondent that it believed they did not meet contract specifications because they were old, had mold, were ripe and turning, were scarred, and were short. It filed its formal written complaint and statement of damages on July 20, 1983. It set forth as the basis of its claim that "This load was absolute garbage. The WORST load of bananas I ever received since entering the banana business."

Respondent inspected the bananas on June 1, 1983. The inspection showed that only 45 percent of the clusters of bananas met specifications. The report stated in pertinent part:

> R & T 4%, 1 Cluster in each of 2 boxes color 6+, balance of all clusters 2-2½, fruit breaking (Not gassed)—(5 boxes examined for PCMS—Score 45 Heavy SR 50%—Very large full mature fruit, very long fingers (difficult to pack)—about 5% C.M.—overall poor appearing quality, dull color and dirty appearance.

The bananas were obviously not in good condition on June 1, 1983, only four days after they were unloaded from the Olancho. Based on respondent's own inspection report we have no choice other than to conclude that the bananas did not make good delivery, particularly since the in-transit temperatures from dock to Singer's place of business were in the acceptable range, 58° to 64°, with the high temperatures occurring only for a short period.

Complainant kept careful records of its sales with respect to the truckload of bananas. The account of sales showed that the bananas fetched $3,424.50 on resale. This is $5,753.50 less than its computed costs of $9,178.00. Complainant originally claimed $6,369.10 as its total losses. Respondent granted an allowance of $1,921.00 without giving any explanation as to its reasons for doing so. Respondent is liable for the differential of $4,448.10.

In summary we have found that respondent has failed to grant allowances to complainant in the following amounts:

1.	Transactions 1-3	$1,404.51
2.	Transactions 4-7	3,380.66
3.	Transactions 8-10	1,419.26
4.	Transactions 11-13	0.00
5.	Transaction 14	4,448.10
	Total	$10,652.53

Its failure to pay complainant $10,652.53 in 11 transactions constitutes violations of section 2 of the PACA for which reparation should be awarded with interest.

As the prevailing party complainant is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and expenses. Bill Offutt, Inc. v. Marvin E. Berry, 37 Agric. Dec. 1218, 1225 (1978). It filed a timely request for reimbursement, and respondent did not file any objection to the claim. The total amount requested by complainant was $6,482.10, which included $4,375 for attorney's fees. We find the claim appropriate.

Therefore, complainant should be awarded $6,482.10 for fees and expenses.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $6,204.43, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum May 1, 1983 until paid.

Within 30 days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $4,448.10, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from July 1, 1983, until paid.

Within 30 days from the date of this order respondent shall pay fees and expenses to the complainant, as reparation, in the amount of $6,482.10, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from the date of this order until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

BARTON WILLOUGHBY d/b/a WILLOUGHBY FARMS, v. FRITO-LAY, INC., PACA Docket No. 2-6614. Decided May 1, 1986.

Agreement to grow potatoes—statute of frauds—oral modification of written contract—agency—apparent authority—estoppel—reparation awarded.

Where employees of respondent dealt exclusively with complainant regarding his crop of potatoes, and in doing so induced him to delay delivery beyond dates provided in written contract, the respondent is held to have given such agents apparent authority to modify the contract on its behalf. It is held that an oral modification of a written contract does not violate the statute of frauds. Further, having relied to his detriment on the promises of respondent's agents, complainant may claim that respondent is estopped to deny that the contract was modified.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499 et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $84,825.83 in connection with a transaction involving the sale and shipment of chipping potatoes in interstate commerce. Respondent filed a counterclaim in which it seeks a refund of an alleged overpayment for the potatoes it bought from complainant in the amount $1,790.15.

A copy of the formal report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

Since the amount claimed in the complaint exceeds $15,000.00, and respondent requested an oral hearing, such oral hearing was held in Washington, D. C., on April 16 and 17, 1984. One witness testified on behalf of complainant, and two witnesses testified on behalf of respondent at the hearing. In addition, several depositions were placed in evidence by the parties. Complainant amended its complaint after evidence had been taken, as a result of which the hearing was held open for a period of ninety days to enable respondent to determine whether it wished to offer other evidence. Respondent determined it did wish to do so, and the oral hearing was concluded on September 19, 1985. Subsequent to the hearing both parties filed briefs and claims for fees and expenses. Complainant filed an objection to respondent's request for fees and expenses.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Barton Willoughby, (hereinafter either "Mr. Willoughby" or "complainant") is an individual doing business as Willoughby Farms, with an address at P.O. Box 117, Gordon, Alabama. As a producer he was not subject to license under the Act during the period in issue in this proceeding.

2. Respondent, Frito-Lay, Inc., (hereinafter either "Frito-Lay" or "respondent"), is a corporation with an address at P.O. Box 35034, Dallas, Texas. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. In 1982 complainant and respondent initiated talks with respect to whether complainant would grow chipping potatoes for sale and delivery to respondent. As a result of those discussions a written contract was entered between complainant and respondent on January 24, 1983, under which complainant was to grow for sale to respondent 25,000 hundredweight of chipping potatoes at a price of $5.50 per hundredweight, f.o.b., U.S. Commercial, 90 percent U.S. No. 1, and which were to be size "A". 8,000 hundredweight were to be delivered to respondent during the week of June 13, 1983, 8,000 hundredweight were to be delivered to respondent during the week of June 20, 1983, and 9,000 hundredweight were to be delivered to respondent during the week of June 27, 1983. The contract further provided in pertinent part that:

"All potatoes shipped under this contract guaranteed to chip to Frito-Lay's satisfaction upon arrival. Frito-Lay reserves the option of not accepting deliveries which do not meet the above shipping schedules.

* * * * * * *

Purchaser may at any time return to seller at seller's expense any portion of goods listed herein, when in the opinion of purchaser in its sole discretion such goods do not chip to its satisfaction and purchaser, at its election, shall be entitled to receive from seller for such returned goods full credit therefor or replacement thereof with goods that do chip to purchaser's satisfaction. Seller guarantees proper loading according to carriers' tariff specifications and guarantees lowest through rate.

Seller's obligations hereunder shall not be mitigated or reduced in any way by virtue of seller's having obtained or purchased seed potatoes from purchaser to produce the potatoes to be shipped hereunder."

4. In late February and early March 1983 complainant bought sufficient quantities of seed potatoes from respondent to enable it to plant 103 acres of its fields with potatoes so as to be able to make delivery to respondent of 25,000 hundredweight in accordance with the contract terms set forth in paragraph 3, above. The seed potatoes were known as FL–162 Potatoes, which is a special type of potato developed by respondent because it chips well. In entering into the contracts for the purchase of such seed potatoes, complainant agreed that "the potatoes produced from the above seed cannot be sold or disposed of without the expressed permission (documented) by Frito-Lay, Inc." The contracts also provided that "Confirmation contingent upon grower having a 1983 Frito-Lay chip contract. . . ."

5. Respondent received two shipments of seed potatoes on February 26, 1983, and either February 28, 1983, or March 1, 1983, respectively. It is not known when other shipments of seed potatoes were received by complainant. Complainant let such potatoes lie for about two weeks so as to prepare them for planting. Some of the FL–162 seed potatoes had been planted by March 15, 1983.

6. Respondent eventually planted 103 acres of FL–162 seed potatoes. Complainant anticipated that it would harvest a yield of about 250 hundredweight of potatoes per acre. It takes between ninety and 110 days to grow FL–162 potatoes to a maturity at which they are size "A", which size is 1 and 7/8 inches in diameter or larger.

7. Harold Willingham was the regional representative of respondent. He was the primary individual during the period March through July 1983 with whom complainant dealt insofar as the contract was concerned. Complainant also dealt with Michael Anderson, a subordinate employee to Mr. Willingham, during a portion of the months of June and July 1983 because Mr. Willingham was on vacation. Mr. Anderson acted as Mr. Willingham's substitute during that period. Both Mr. Willingham and Mr. Anderson had authority to deal directly with complainant, although to an undetermined extent they in turn were supervised by their home office in Dallas, Texas. By virtue of their actions in dealing with Mr. Willoughby, he properly relied upon their representations as being binding upon respondent.

8. During the week of June 13, 1983, complainant and Harold Willingham discussed the contractual agreement under which complainant was to deliver 8,000 hundredweight of potatoes to respondent. Complainant stated that his potatoes could use more sizing because they were late in maturing, and that not more than 75 percent of them were size "A". He felt that if he waited until later in the month he would have a higher percentage of size "A" potatoes. Complainant could have delivered 8,000 hundredweight of potatoes during the week of June 13, 1983, had it been necessary for him to do so. However, in doing so he would have seriouly jeopardized his ability to deliver the remaining 17,000 hundredweight of potatoes in the ensuing two weeks because he would have had to dig too many acres of potatoes to make the total 8,000 hundredweight. Respondent, through Mr. Willingham, expressed its willingness to delay taking delivery of the potatoes because the crop in that area of the South was late in maturing due to weather conditions, and other plantings in which Frito-Lay had an interest needed to be harvested first. In particular, respondent had not taken delivery of a large quantity of potatoes from Baldwin County, Alabama. Those potatoes were grown in accordance with joint ventures between respondent and various farmers whereby both respondent and the farmers split the costs and profits. This business arrangement had been going on for several years prior to 1983. The parties mutually assented to a delay in delivery of the potatoes.

9. During the week of June 20, 1983, complainant and either Mr. Willingham or Mr. Anderson again discussed delivery of potatoes by complainant to respondent under the contract. Respondent's agent told Mr. Willoughby that respondent did not wish to take his potatoes during that week because there had been a further delay in the harvest of the potatoes in Baldwin County, Alabama, and respondent wished to clear out those potatoes first. Mr. Willoughby indicated that he was able to deliver 8,000 hundredweight of potatoes during the week of June 20, but agreed to delay delivery for the benefit of both parties because he knew that his potatoes could size up better if there were a delay. Respondent's agent assured him that Frito-Lay was interested in taking all of his potatoes.

10. Mr. Willingham went on vacation after the week of June 20, 1983, and Mr. Michael Anderson substituted for him during the time he was on vacation. During the week of June 27, 1983, complainant was willing to deliver as many potatoes as respondent would take. However, on Monday, June 27, 1983, in a discussion with Mr. Anderson in which he and Mr. Anderson discussed the status of complainant's crop, he expressed a willingness to delay harvest. This was done primarily for the benefit of respondent, although there was some benefit to complainant because the potatoes would grow a little more. Mr. Willoughby acceded to Frito-Lay's desires more than he sought the delay in the harvest. On June 29, 1983, however, Mr. Willoughby asked Mr. Anderson to send him purchase orders so that he could dig the potatoes and deliver them to respondent. Mr. Anderson said he would try to get purchase orders. Mr. Anderson was not able to do so after checking with Dallas, Texas, except for one order, and he and Mr. Willoughby agreed that the first load of potatoes should be dug on Thursday, June 30, 1983. Mr. Anderson provided a purchase order for this purpose. The potatoes were dug, delivered to respondent, received, and accepted. However, no other purchase orders were provided to complainant during that week.

11. It is the practice of Frito-Lay in Alabama that potatoes for which it has contracted should not be dug unless a purchase order is first provided to the farmer. This is necessary because potatoes in that region do not store well once they have been dug. Complainant knew that this was the practice of respondent even though he had never farmed potatoes previously. It was also the practice of respondent to work with a farmer with which it had contracted to assure that the potatoes which he had planted under contract were bought by Frito-Lay. It was not unusual for Frito-Lay to delay taking the potatoes from a specific farmer because of its own particular needs insofar as production of potato chips is concerned. Respondent was able to control its receipt of potatoes through use of the purchase order. Unless a farmer received a purchase order for a truckload of potatoes the farmer was not in a position to deliver them to respondent. Complainant was aware of the practice of Frito-Lay to delay receipt of potatoes which it had contracted for, and was willing to deal with the respondent on the verbal understandings that eventually respondent would accept his potatoes. During the week of June 27, 1983, complainant was ready and able to deliver all the potatoes to respondent. He was diligent in his request for the provision of purchase orders during that week. He was willing, however, because of the practice of Frito-Lay to extend the period of a contract, to wait to deliver them. Effectively, complainant was precluded from digging potatoes during the week of June 27, 1983, with the exception of the one load which was dug, by the actions of respondent in requesting him to delay, and because respondent did not provide him with purchase orders.

12. July 4, 1983, fell on a Monday. On July 5, 1983, Michael Anderson visited complainant at his farm to talk to him about his crop. Complainant was insistent on that date that respondent allow him to dig his potatoes and deliver them to the respondent because they were beginning to deteriorate in the field. Mr. Anderson told Mr. Willoughby that the Baldwin County potatoes had to be cleared out first, and that his potatoes would be next. Because the FL-162 variety of potato was protected by Frito-Lay, and could be delivered only to Frito-Lay unless respondent released them for delivery to someone else, complainant was in no position to dig the potatoes, or to sell them to anyone else.

13. During the week of July 5, 1983, respondent gave complainant six purchase orders. However, during this week it declined to deal with complainant to any further extent because it was clearing out the Baldwin County potatoes. Mr. Willingham had returned from vacation, and he promised Mr. Willoughby that once the Baldwin County potatoes were cleared out the complainant would be next to receive purchase orders. However, this did not occur. Mr. Willoughby discovered on or about July 11, 1983, that Mr. Willingham and Mr. Anderson went to Sand Mountain, Alabama, which is in the Northerly portion of the state, and began to place purchase orders there for delivery of potatoes to respondent. Effectively, complainant had been by-passed. Complainant knew that his potatoes were beginning to melt in the ground, and otherwise deteriorate. Whereas at one point he could have harvested as much as 250 hundredweight of potatoes per acre, his yield began to drop radically in the second week of July. Complainant demanded that his potatoes be harvested. During June and July 1983 he would have been able to load six trucks a day, with each load containing 450 or more hundredweight of potatoes. When he discovered that the Sand Mountain potatoes were being harvested before his he grew angry. He took what action he could to harvest and sell his potatoes. He sold some of the potatoes to other purchasers even though Frito-Lay had not released them for such sale.

14. Complainant delivered 18 loads of potatoes to respondent in June and July 1983, which comprised 8,588.64 hundredweight. 1,907.04 hundredweight of the potatoes delivered to respondent were rejected because they were not of satisfactory chipping quality, or otherwise did not meet respondent's needs. Complainant received net $35,508.97 for the 6,681.60 hundredweight of potatoes which were accepted, after deduction by respondent of $2,585.80 for its costs attendant on three of the four loads of potatoes which it rejected. Complainant also sold 3,329.93 hundredweight of potatoes to other purchasers in an effort to mitigate his damages. He received $14,580.00 for these potatoes. On July 18, 1983, respondent told complainant that his potatoes did not meet respondent's needs, and that complainant was free to dispose of them as he pleased.

15. With respect to the potatoes which complainant sold to respondent, respondent paid complainant $5.75 per hundredweight rather than the $5.50 per hundredweight called for in the contract signed on January 24, 1983.

16. The formal complaint in this matter was filed on March 6, 1984, which was within nine months from the time the cause of action herein accrued.

DISCUSSION

The most serious legal question presented by this case is whether a written contract between the parties may be varied by conduct on the part of the parties, or whether it must be strictly construed in such a manner that none of its provisions may be altered. There is a secondary question as to whether there was a separate contract entered between the parties under which respondent agreed to purchase and accept all of the potatoes grown by the complainant. Based upon the facts in this case, and our analysis of the applicable law, we conclude that the contract need not be strictly construed, but can be varied by the conduct of the parties. Therefore, we do not need to reach the secondary question.[1]

On January 24, 1983, complainant and respondent entered a contract under which complainant was to grow, sell, and deliver to respondent 25,000 hundredweight of chipping potatoes, which delivery was to be over a three week period, with 8,000 hundredweight delivered during the week of June 13, 1983, 8,000 hundredweight delivered during the week of June 20, 1983, and 9,000 hundredweight delivered during the week of June 27, 1983. The contract also provided that the potatoes were to be U.S. Commercial 90 percent U.S. No. 1, size "A", chipping potatoes. They were to be delivered free on board the Willoughby farm in bulk. They were to be shipped to "Any receiving location designated by Area Potato Buyer." Furthermore it was provided that "All potatoes shipped under this contract guaranteed to chip to Frito-Lay's satisfaction upon arrival. Frito-Lay reserves the option of not accepting the deliveries which do not meet the above shipping schedules." Finally, it was provided that "Seller's obligations hereunder shall not be mitigated or reduced in any way by virtue of seller's having obtained or purchased seed potatoes from purchaser to produce the potatoes to be shipped hereunder." The contract was signed by Barton Willoughby on behalf of complainant and by Arthur Goldstein on behalf of respondent. Arthur Goldstein was located in Dallas, Texas.

[1] If we were to consider this issue we would find that there was not a new contract because all of the essential elements of such contract must be clear, and they were not. Peters & Gorabedian v. Coyner-Evans Co., Inc., et al., 28 Agric. Dec. 752 (1969). There is lacking in any verbal agreement between the parties after June 30, 1983, certain required terms such as the price of the potatoes, the time for delivery, and the place for delivery.

As a direct result of entering the above contract for growing and selling potatoes, complainant entered four individual contracts for the purchase of seed potatoes from respondent. It did this because respondent had developed a brand of potatoes known as FL-162 which is a good chipping potato. The contracts provided, inter alia, that "the potatoes produced from the above seed cannot be sold or disposed of without the expressed permission (documented) by Frito-Lay, Inc." They further reflected that "Confirmation contingent upon grower having a 1983 Frito-Lay chip contract. . . ." The testimony reflects, and it is obvious by virtue of the above quoted provisions, that complainant would not have bought the seed potatoes unless their purchase was directly connected with the growth and sale of the 25,000 hundredweight of potatoes in the contract entered on January 24, 1983. It is also clear that both the January 24, 1983, contract to grow and sell potatoes and the purchase agreements with respect to the seed potatoes are contracts that are very favorable to Frito-Lay. Effectively, the seed potato contracts preclude the sale of potatoes grown therefrom to entities other than respondent, except with respondent's permission. The purchase and sale contract voids any obligation on the part of Frito-Lay which might arise as a result of the use of FL-162 seed potatoes by complainant. Furthermore, it gives respondent the option in its sole discretion to refuse to accept any potatoes which do not chip to its satisfaction. It allows Frito-Lay to reject the delivery of those potatoes which do not meet the shipping schedules set forth in the written contract. The seed potato contracts permit respondent to decline to deliver seed potatoes if complainant has not entered a growing contract with Frito-Lay. In short, the seed contracts and growing contract, when read together, tied complainant in knots. Furthermore, because of the cross references contained in the growing contract and seed contracts, we find that the contracts are interrelated, and were entered by both parties in contemplation of an exclusive means by which respondent could assure itself of a supply of chipping potatoes. We reject any claim by respondent that the seed potato contracts are not related to the growing contract.

A contract is not a one sided agreement. Rather, it is an agreement between two (or more) parties under which each party agrees to assume certain responsibilities in return for consideration from the other party. Just as complainant had a duty to deliver potatoes to respondent, respondent had a duty to take them. Frito-Lay would place an added burden on complainant that he demand respondent accept delivery or subject himself to a finding he breached the contract rather than place an equal duty on itself to request delivery. Such a result would mean Frito-Lay could not breach the contract unless such demand was made. We cannot subscribe to such a result since it would be one-sided and further enhance respondent's already very favorable position, and in any event is illogical.

Complainant testified that he could have delivered 8,000 hundredweight of potatoes during the week of June 13, 1983, had it been necessary for him to do so, but that it was in his self interest not to because only about 75 percent of the potatoes lying in the field were size "A", as a result of which he would have had to dig too many acres to be able to deliver all 25,000 hundredweight as provided for in the contract, having only planted about 103 acres of potatoes, and having expected a yield of about 250 hundredweight of potatoes per acre. Therefore, he acknowledged that he agreed to withhold delivery of potatoes during the week of June 13, 1983. Complainant also acknowledged that during the week of June 20, 1983, he agreed to withhold delivery of 8,000 hundredweight of potatoes because, while he could have delivered them, his field could still size a little more. The willingness of complainant in both of these weeks to withhold delivery of potatoes to respondent was based upon conversations with respondent's representative. We find complainant's version of what happened to be totally credible. Mr. Willoughby was a most forthright, earnest, and honest witness. He would not have agreed to delay delivery of the potatoes on the dates specified by the contract unless he had received assurances from respondent's agent that Frito-Lay was going to take the potatoes he had in the field. Mr. Willoughby is an experienced farmer with about 2,000 acres of farmland in production. He knows that crops in the field are perishable, and must be harvested in a timely fashion. He was bound by the seed contract not to sell the potatoes he grew to any party other than Frito-Lay.[2] Frito-Lay was obviously willing to delay receiving potatoes from complainant. We find that Mr. Willoughby's version of his conversations with Mr. Willingham is accurate. Among other things it reflects that respondent continually expressed a need to clear out potatoes from Baldwin County before dealing with complainant. Therefore, it is only logical to conclude that Mr. Willoughby acted upon the representations, as he suggested, of respondent's agent that Frito-Lay wanted to delay taking his potatoes.

Frito-Lay has claimed in this proceeding that Mr. Willoughby somehow acted improperly because he did not demand to deliver his potatoes to respondent on the contract dates. Respondent would put all burdens on complainant to assure that delivery occurred. We cannot draw a conclusion that this is a proper interpretation of the contract. As discussed above Frito-Lay has an equal responsibility to demand that complainant deliver potatoes in accordance with the contract terms. Indeed, had complainant not been able to deliver, Frito-Lay could have claimed damages. Therefore, we conclude the parties verbally agreed to a modification of the contract in both the weeks of June 13, 1983 and June 20, 1983, under which complainant, and respondent agreed to delay delivery of potatoes to a later date. The remaining question for resolution with respect to the 16,000 hundredweight of potatoes involved in the weeks of June 13, 1983, and June 20, 1983, is whether respondent's agent had authority to modify the contract, or whether the contract could not be modified because of the statute of frauds. This will be discussed subsequently.

The occurrences during the week of June 27, 1983, are even easier to resolve. By this time complainant's field effectively had sized to the maximum that it could. Mr. Willingham was on vacation during the week commencing on Monday, June 27, 1983. Therefore, Mr. Willoughby had to deal with Mr. Michael Anderson, Mr. Willingham's subordinate. The testimony shows conclusively that Mr. Willoughby was able to deliver the potatoes during the week of June 27, 1983, but that he knew they could probably size a little bit more. It is clear based upon the testimony in this case that it was more at the behest of Frito-Lay that on June 27, 1983, Mr. Willoughby acceded to Frito-Lay's desire to delay delivery of the potatoes. In effect, it was the respondent which did not meet the contract terms insofar as delivery dates are concerned. Mr. Michael Anderson testified that Mr. Willoughby indicated he was not yet ready to harvest the potatoes. We do not find Mr. Anderson's testimony in this regard to be credible.[3] Mr. Anderson, either constructively or actually, convinced complainant that it was all right to wait for a while longer before his potatoes were delivered to respondent. He reiterated what Mr. Willingham had said about the need to clear out the Baldwin County potatoes before taking Mr. Willoughby's crop. Our conclusion in this regard is supported, moreover, because in actuality purchase orders for Monday and Tuesday of a given week are issued on Thursday or Friday of the preceding week. There is no showing that Mr. Willoughby knew this. Mr. Willingham and Mr. Anderson did. In fact on June 27, Frito-Lay had no purchase orders to give for the early part of the week, at least.

[2] Mr. Willoughby's integrity is manifested by the fact he did not sell potatoes to any other party until he had to on July 14, 1983, because they were deteriorating in the field. Such action was appropriate as an effort to mitigate damages.

Two days later, however, Mr. Willoughby decided that he could not wait any longer because his potatoes were fully mature, and there was a danger they would begin to deteriorate if left in the field. Therefore, on June 29, 1983, he contacted Mr. Anderson and requested that he be allowed to dig his crop. Mr. Anderson attempted to put him off, saying that he did not know if he could get purchase orders. Obviously, Frito-Lay was in the position of denying to Mr. Willoughby the opportunity to harvest his crop by not providing purchase orders. Mr. Anderson eventually offered to provide several purchase orders to Mr. Willoughby for the week of June 27, beginning with June 30. Mr. Anderson, however, was only able to deliver one purchase order, and withdrew his promise to deliver more than that. He then convinced Mr. Willoughby that that one purchase order would be for a load of potatoes which would be used as the test load for the delivery of the rest of Mr. Willoughby's potatoes. Mr. Willoughby, lacking the ability to do otherwise, acceded to Mr. Anderson's representations in this regard. He delivered a load of potatoes which apparently were of very good chipping quality. Complainant was not provided purchase orders so as to be able to dig any more potatoes until after the end of June, 1983.

[3] We do not find Mr. Anderson's testimony, in general, to be particularly credible. There was a tendency throughout his testimony on the witness stand for Mr. Anderson to remember those points which were favorable to respondent, but to have a memory lapse when his testimony might be favorable to complainant. In addition, his testimony with respect to the July 5, 1983, visit that he made to Mr. Willoughby's farm is in direct contravention of what was happening during that period of time. To say that he was merely making a courtesy visit when Mr. Willoughby was demanding that he be given an opportunity to dig his potatoes is not credible testimony.

On Tuesday, July 5, 1983, while Mr. Willoughby was working in the field, Mr. Anderson paid what he called a courtesy visit. We find that such visit was not a courtesy visit. Rather, it was visit predicated upon the fact that Mr. Willoughby was strongly asserting his need to dig his potatoes, and respondent, acting in a businesslike fashion, was checking out the situation with respect to Mr. Willoughby's crop. On July 5, 1983, Mr. Anderson told Mr. Willoughby again that the Baldwin County crop was late, was not in as good condition as were Mr. Willoughby's potatoes, and had to be harvested first. Mr. Willoughby said he was ready to dig then. Mr. Anderson at least implied that his crop would be next, that all Mr. Willoughby had to do was to be patient. Further, the clear implication of Mr. Anderson's visit is that respondent did not consider its contract with complainant to have ended. Rather, the visit is consistent with Mr. Willoughby's claim the contract had been modified to carry over into July. Otherwise, respondent would have released Mr. Willoughby to sell to other buyers. It is totally inconsistent for respondent to claim the contract had ended, but not to have released Mr. Willoughby to sell the potatoes elsewhere.

As a result of Mr. Anderson's visit however, respondent did give Mr. Willoughby a series of purchase orders. Respondent gave complainant 12 purchase orders beginning with July 5, 1983, and ending on July 13, 1983, in which potatoes were delivered by complainant to respondent. All those potatoes were accepted. There was one purchase order on July 5, one on July 6, two purchase orders on July 7, one on July 8, one on July 11, three on July 12, and three on July 13, 1983. During this period of time Mr. Willoughby was insisting that he needed more purchase orders. He made it clear that he could dig six loads of chipping potatoes a day, each load approximating 450 hundredweight. In the meantime, because Frito-Lay was not giving him more purchase orders, and recognizing what was happening to his potatoes in the field, Mr. Willoughby began to look for other purchasers, despite the fact that the seed potato contracts would not allow him to sell such potatoes to others unless he were released from their prohibitory provisions. On July 14, 1983, he sold a load to a company known as Mid-State. On July 16, 1983, complainant got four more purchase orders, and four loads were delivered to Frito-Lay. Three of those loads were rejected because they could not meet Frito-Lay's requirements. On July 18, 1983, Frito-Lay took one last load from complainant, which load was rejected by respondent. On that same day Frito-Lay finally allowed Mr. Willoughby to sell his potatoes to other buyers. The load shipped to Frito-Lay on July 18 was resold to a third party. Complainant sought to mitigate his damages by the sale of eight more loads between July 18 and July 21, 1983. Two of these loads were rejected by the purchaser. After that period of time the crop was allowed to rot in the field because the potatoes had deteriorated too much to warrant harvesting.

Frito-Lay did not immediately begin to take complainant's potatoes after it finished digging in Baldwin County. Rather, Mr. Willoughby determined on or about July 11, 1983, that Mr. Willingham and Mr. Anderson had by-passed him and gone to Sand Mountain, Alabama, in the Northern part of the state. At that point he was fully aware that his potatoes were beginning to deteriorate, and that his yield per acre was going down rapidly. Respondent did not keep the promises made by its agents that it would take complainant's potatoes after the Baldwin County crop was cleared out.

Complainant did everything he could to mitigate his damages. Complainant acted responsibly during the entire contract period in his dealing with respondent. His actions in not delivering potatoes during the weeks of June 20, 1983 and June 27, 1983 were taken in reliance on representations made by the agents of respondent. He relied to his detriment on their representations that respondent wanted all of his crop, and that he would be next to receive purchase orders after the Baldwin County potatoes were harvested.

In view of the above the first question which must be resolved is whether Mr. Willingham and Mr. Anderson had actual or apparent authority to bind respondent. Frito-Lay claims it had given them no authority, actual or apparent, to bind it. While we believe that they had actual authority to do so, we need not reach that issue because we find, based upon the facts of this case, that they had apparent authority to do so, which is all that is required. Case law is abundant that when the agent of a principal has apparent authority to act on behalf of that principal, the other party to a contract has a right to rely upon such apparent authority in making his business decisions. George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Leonard O'Day Company, et al., 31 Agric. Dec. 1395 (1972), and cases cited therein. We have previously held that when a business permits a field representative, who is the only person with whom the other party to the contract can deal, to appear as its agent, and such person makes representations, such representative has apparent authority, and his principal is bound by his actions. A Levy and J.

Zentner Co. v. American National Growers, 19 Agric. Dec. 1022 (1960); Goldston v. Murlas Bros., 21 Agric. Dec. 542 (1962).[4] This is especially necessary when we are dealing with a perishable product because otherwise the other party to the contract cannot hope to recover his losses when promises are not kept. He does not have a product which can be sold to some third party at a later time.

We are drawn to the conclusion that Mr. Willingham and Mr. Anderson had at least apparent authority to bind Frito-Lay because of the way in which respondent operated. While the growing contract between Frito-Lay and Mr. Willoughby was signed by a Frito-Lay representative located in Dallas, all subsequent contacts between complainant and respondent were between Mr. Willoughby and either Mr. Willingham or Mr. Anderson. It is clear that respondent expected complainant to deal with those individuals. For respondent to argue that complainant could have got in touch with somebody in Dallas constitutes a denial of the way in which it was conducting its business operation. Frito-Lay further maintained control of its potato purchasing operation by providing purchase orders for four plants in the Southeast region of the United States out of its Dallas, Texas office. Mr. Willingham, and at times Mr. Anderson, had to get such purchase orders from Dallas, and give them to farmers who were under contract to sell potatoes to respondent. They clearly had input into who received the purchase orders, both by their own admission, and because out of necessity they were the only individuals with whom the farmers were dealing directly. The farmer was kept in the dark as to what was going on. Indeed, Mr. Anderson, in one of his more forthright statements, acknowledged that it was a practice of Frito-Lay not to tell the farmer any more then it had to. A farmer could not deliver potatoes to Frito-Lay unless he got a purchase order. That put the farmer into a subservient position in which he had to try to please the representatives of Frito-Lay in order to get what he was entitled to as of a date certain by virtue of the provisions of the contract. It is no wonder that Mr. Willoughby was willing to put off the harvest of his potatoes. Frito-Lay had him in a bind. For this reason, unless, as discussed below, the statute of frauds precludes changes in the contract dates by either Mr. Willingham or Mr. Anderson, we must find Frito-Lay breached its contract.

[4] We also find for complainant on the basis of estoppel. Tri-State Sales Agency v. Palmetto Fruit & Produce Co., 14 Agric. Dec. 1140 (1955). Respondent held Messrs. Willingham and Anderson out as its agent, complainant relied on their representations, and was injured as a result of such good faith reliance.

Respondent's principal defense in this proceeding is that because there was a written contract entered on January 24, 1983, with respect to the terms and conditions surrounding the delivery of the potatoes, including the specification of exact weeks in which exact amounts of potatoes were to be delivered, those provisions cannot be varied by subsequent oral modifications agreed to between the parties.[5] Section 7-2-201(1) of the Alabama Commercial Code states:

> Except as otherwise provided in this section a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract of sale has been made between the parties and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker.

Because the statute of frauds provision of Alabama states that it is not enforceable unless there is a writing when the contract is for more than $500, the holdings in Rothenberg v. H. Rothstein & Sons, 183 F.2d. 524 (3rd Cir. 1950), must be considered. The Third Circuit found with respect to transactions subject to the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act that state law was not necessarily controlling with respect to a contract subject to the statute of frauds. It found that if a state statute of frauds rendered an oral contract void because it was not in writing, then the Secretary of Agriculture could not look further to determine whether there had been a breach of contract. If, however, the state statute of frauds, as is the [5] Respondent raised numerous other defenses. They were essentially procedural in nature. It maintained, among other things, that complainant was inconsistent in his pleadings and testimony insofar as his theory of the case is concerned. We are not impressed by respondent's defense in this respect. While complainant did broach at least two different theories as to why the contract had been breached, i.e. that the contract time for delivery was extended by mutual agreement and that there were new contracts after July 1, 1983, between the parties, we do not believe that they are inconsistent with each other. Neither do we believe that respondent was put in any kind of difficult position by virtue of the fact that complainant amended its complaint during the hearing to reflect its belief that the contract provision had been amended to provide for delivery after July 1, 1983. This is particularly so because respondent was given and took advantage of the opportunity to have the hearing reopened to take further evidence. We would also note parenthetically that the fact that complainant's arguments on brief were not precisely attuned to his earlier theory of the case hardly lessens the credibility of Mr. Willoughby's testimony. The credibility of Mr. Willoughby's testimony is determined by the Presiding Officer based upon his observation of the witness, and the consistency with which Mr. Willoughby provided answers to questions, many of which were asked more than once. Mr. Willoughby at all times was a credible witness.

case for Alabama, is merely unenforceable if it is not in writing, it is only procedural and the Secretary of Agriculture can consider whether the oral contract was breached because pursuant to section 5 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499e) a party may sue either under state law or under the PACA.[6] Section 5 states in pertinent part as follows:

> (b) "Such liability may be enforced either (1) by complaint to the Secretary as hereinafter provided, or (2) by suit in any court of competent jurisdiction; but this section shall not in any way abridge or alter remedies now existing at common law or by statute, and the provisions this Act are in addition to such remedies."

Rothenberg, then, permits the Secretary of Agriculture to look at the facts standing behind an oral modification to a written contract to determine whether there has been a breach. This is extremely important in the perishable agricultural commodities industry because produce is perishable in nature, and if it is not rapidly disposed of, becomes worthless. The rule set forth in Rothenberg makes sense in terms of the industry which is to be regulated by the PACA. This industry is unique because the commodities are so perishable, frequently making it impossible for the seller to dispose of the commodity if it is rejected by a buyer who makes an oral promise to accept it.[7] Such is the case here. It is clear on the facts

[6] Complainant expressed some ambivalence as to whether the Texas or Alabama statute of frauds was applicable. Respondent dealt only with the Alabama statute. We find that the essential terms of the contract were entered in Alabama, and that the law of Alabama controls. In any event the statute of frauds of Texas renders contracts for the sale of goods of more than $500 unenforceable rather than void. See Hegel Branch v. Mission Shippers, 35 Agric. Dec. 726 (1976).

[7] Indeed, most contracts under the PACA are both for more than $500.00, and entered by oral communication which is subsequently memorialized by an invoice issued by the seller, but not assented to by the buyer except through acquiescence. The industry could be devastated if for each such contract the statute of frauds could be invoked to defeat enforceability.

Although there are factual distinctions, the principle set forth in Hegel Branch v. Mission Shippers, Inc., supra note 6, at pages 731-32 is apposite here. The Judicial Officer stated:

> In matters involving the statute of frauds under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, the Department has long followed the guidelines laid down in Joseph Rothenberg v. A. Rothstein & Sons, 183 F.2d 524 (3rd Cir. 1950), 9 A.D. 1272. In that case the court made it clear that a federal district court hearing a case on appeal from the Secretary under the Act does not sit as another court of the state and is not governed by the rule of Erie R. Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64 (1938). Such a case is rather "to be determined under the same rules of sub-in this case that respondent's agents, Willingham and Anderson, in discussions with complainant, agreed to a modification of the contract. Such modification included all pertinent contractual terms. While there was no discussion as to price, it was clear that the price was to be the same as that provided for in the written contract simply because the agents were talking only about an extension of time in which to have the goods delivered to respondent.[8] Further, we are not aware of any holding which precludes an integrated written contract subject to the statute of frauds from being modified by subsequent oral agreement. Indeed, the Restatement of Contracts appears to point in the other direction.[9] What has not stantive and procedural law as were involved in the Secretary's proceedings." (Rothenberg, supra). By the same token, Rothenberg also makes it clear that where the Act or regulations of the Secretary do not provide a solution to a problem of the validity of a contract, then state law is applicable. In the Rothenberg case the Court of Appeals, recognizing that since the statute of frauds of Pennsylvania was procedural rather thansubstantive it would not be applicable in a reparation proceeding. The court reasoned that "the federal act intends to grant a new remedy which is not dependent upon but is in addition to such other remedies as may be available to the parties at common law or by the statutes of any state", and that where the statute of frauds of a particular state only precluded enforcement of an oral contract as a remedy, but left it otherwise valid, though unenforceable, such a procedural statute would have no effect upon a proceeding before the Secretary of a subsequent appeal therefrom.

We feel that the substantive-procedural distinction as drawn in Rothenberg is valid and should remain applicable in reparation proceedings before the Secretary. There has always been a reluctance to apply the statute of frauds in reparation decisions, due to the simple fact that oral contracts are extremely common in the fruit and vegetable industry. Sales are commonly made interstate by phone, and where a broker is involved and issues a written confirmation, it is frequently not clear whose agent he was in the transaction. These factors combine to create situations where the application of the statute would work a fraud rather than prevent one. While the Secretary could by regulation provide that state statutes of frauds would not be applicable in reparation proceedings, he has not in fact done so. However, in the absence of such regulations we feel warranted in holding that in future cases the burden of showing that a particular statute of frauds is a part of the substantive law of a state in the sense that it renders an agreement null and void as a contract and not merely unenforceable should be upon the party claiming the benefit of the statute. (emphasis added).

[8] It is basic contract law that any modification to a contract must be assented to by both parties. Further it is basic contract law that all of the essential terms of a contract must be set forth in the modification. We find that both of these requirements have been met in this instance.

[9] See Restatement Of The Law Second, Contracts 2d, ALI, 1981; section 216 of which states:

been determined is whether respondent's agreement to the modification of the contract was of such a nature that it must be held liable for the value of the entire 25,000 hundredweight of potatoes, less those which it received, accepted and paid for, and those which were sold by complainant to other purchasers in mitigation of damages.

The evidence shows clearly that each truckload of potatoes could comprise approximately 450 hundredweight. The evidence further shows that complainant could dig six truckloads worth of potatoes a day. Thus, from June 27 through July 1, 1983, complainant could have dug and delivered 30 truckloads of potatoes. This amounts to 13,500 hundredweight of potatoes.[10] In addition, it is clear that between July 5, 1983, and July 13, 1983, all of complainant's potatoes which wer e delivered to respondent were received and accepted as meeting respondent's requirements. Assuming that no potatoes would have been dug over the Fourth of July weekend, there would have been as many as 54 truckloads of potatoes dug during the nine day period between July 5 and July 13. That would amount to 24,300 hundredweight of potatoes. When added to the previous 13,500 hundredweight we arrived at a figure of 37,800 hundredweight of potatoes which could have been dug by complainant by July 13, 1983. That is more than the contract called for. Given the high quality of the load dug on June 30, 1983, as acknowledged by Mr. Anderson, We must assume that all of complainant's potatoes would have been acceptable to respondent had they been delivered by July 13, 1983. That they were not is the fault of respondent, who did not provide complainant with enough purchase orders to be able to do so. As mentioned before complainant relied upon the

"(1) Evidence of a consistent additional term is admissible to supplement an integrated agreement unless the court finds that the agreement was completely integrated.

(2) An agreement is not complete integrated if the writing omits a consistent additional agreed term which is

(a) agreed to for separate consideration, or

(b) such a term as in the circumtances might naturally be omitted from the writing."

We find that the agreement herein was not completely integrated because it would be natural to omit an understanding that the actual dates for delivery of complainant's crop might vary in accordance with maturity and the needs of Frito-Lay for the potatoes. The agreement entered was a standard agreement for the purchase and sale of a crop.

[10] We are not impressed by the testimony by Mr. Anderson that complainant's equipment was consistently breaking down. Complainant explained that equipment on a farm always breaks down. He further stated that he keeps several thousand dollars worth of parts available to repair the equipment.

promises made by respondent's agents, who had at least apparent authority to make them, that his potatoes would be purchased, received, and accepted if they met the quality requirements of respondent. Therefore, complainant has met his burden of proof that all 25,000 hundredweight of potatoes were of the quality required by Frito-Lay. That leaves for resolution only the amount of damages which must be awarded.

The total contract price agreed upon between the parties for the 25,000 hundredweight of potatoes, at $5.50 per hundredweight, was $137,500.00. Respondent purchased, received and accepted 6,681.60 hundredweight of potatoes, and paid complainant $35,508.97, at the rate of $5.75 per hundredweight for those potatoes, less certain deductions pertaining to three loads which were reject. Complainant mitigated his damages by selling 3,329.93 hundredweight of potatoes to other purchasers in eight transactions, for total receipts of $14.580.00. Therefore, complainant suffered damages in the total amount of $87,411.03. Respondent's overpayment for the potatoes which it did receive at the rate of $.25 per hundredweight has been taken into account in the above computation. Since complainant only requested damages of $84,825.83 in its complaint, and damages were in an amount greater than that requested in the complaint, complainant's award shall be limited to the amount originally requested. Respondent's failure to pay complainant $84,825.83 is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded with interest.

As the prevailing party complainant is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and other expenses. Complainant claimed his attorney spent 16 hours preparing for the hearing at a rate of $100.00 per hour, and 15 hours at the hearing at a rate of $125.00 an hour, for a total charge of $3,475.00. Complainant's attorney also charged $100.00 per hour for 15 hours of time preparing for taking four dispositions for a total charge of $1,500.00. In addition, complainant's attorney spent 6½ hours taking the depositions at $125.00 an hour, for a total charge of $812.50. Total attorney fees, therefore, were $5,787.50. In addition, there was $600.00 claimed for attorney travel to take the depositions. $1,550.00 was claimed for travel by witnesses, and subsistence, in order to appear at the hearing. Finally, there was a claim of $535.89 for transcripts of the hearing and the depositions. The total claim for fees and expenses related to the hearing by complainant was $8,473.39. We find this sum to be reasonable, and an award in this amount should be made in favor of complainant, with interest thereon.

Respondent shall pay to complainant $84,825.83, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from August 1, 1983, until paid.

Respondent shall pay to complainant for attorney's fees and other expenses $8,473.39, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from the date of this order until paid.

The counterclaim is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Burden of proof as to breach and damages on respondent—breach of suitable shipping condition warranty—damages incurred by respondent deducted from contract price—reparation awarded.

Respondent sustained its burden of proving a breach of complainant's suitable shipping condition warranty regarding the truckload of peaches it accepted. Respondent incurred damages based on the difference between the contract price plus freight and the amount obtained upon resale. Respondent held liable for the contract price less its damages.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $4,323.00 in connection with a truckload of peaches sold to respondent and shipped, in interstate commerce, to respondent's customer.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Respondent submitted an answering statement, and complainant submitted a statement in reply. Respondent also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Fruit Marketing Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 399, Del Rey, California.

2. Respondent, Lofchie Inc., a/t/a Bruce Co., is a corporation whose address is 325 W. Shields, Suite 102, Fresno, California. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately September 7, 1984, complainant sold to respondent a truckload of peaches consisting of 660 cartons at $5.85 per carton, plus $.70 per carton for cooling and palletization, for a total contract price of $4,323.00, f.o.b. The peaches were to be shipped to respondent's customer, Finest Fruit Co., Inc., Bronx, New York.

4. On September 8, 1984, complainant loaded the truck with 660 cartons of peaches and prepared a bill of lading, showing the shipping date of September 8, 1984, the destination as New York City, and the temperature to be maintained enroute as 36° F.

5. The peaches arrived at the place of business of respondent's customer in Bronx, New York, on September 14, 1984. At 3:45 a.m. that same day they were subjected to a federal inspection, which found as follows, in relevant part:

> VARIOUS CONTAINERS Range 38° To 39°F.
> Peaches "Del Pak Summerset 48-50". . . Applicant States: . . . 660 cartons of peaches. . . .
> Condition: Peaches: Mostly firm ripe, some ripe. Yellow ground color. 4 to 18%, average 11% damage by bruising, scattered throughout pack, affecting all stages of ripeness. 6 to 20%, average 13% damage by external brown discoloration. No decay.

6. The Market News Service Reports for Bronx, New York on September 14, 1984, shows that the supply of such peaches were too few to enable the quoting of a market price.

7. Respondent resold the peaches to Finest Fruit Co., Inc., for a total of $4,747.50.

8. Respondent has paid complainant $1,810.00 for the load of peaches at issue.

9. A formal complaint was filed on March 21, 1985, which was within nine months from when the alleged cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent admits receiving and accepting the peaches, but claims that a federal inspection taken upon arrival showed they contained an excessive amount of condition defects, in breach of complainant's suitable shipping condition warranty. Complainant claims that it was not notified until September 25, 1984, 11 days after the peaches arrived, that the peaches had been inspected and found to contain condition defects. Complainant also contends that respondent has failed to prove that the temperature during transit was proper. Complainant further disputes respondent's claimed damages derived from its resale of the peaches.

Having accepted the peaches, respondent became liable for the agreed upon contract price, less damages arising from any breach of warranty by complainant. It is respondent's burden to prove the breach and damages by a preponderance of the evidence. Farm Market Service Inc. v. Albertson's Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 429 (1983). As this was an f.o.b. sale, complainant gave the implied warranty of suitable shipping condition, which is defined at 7 CFR 46.43(j) as meaning "that the commodity, at time of billing, is in a condition which, if the shipment is handled under normal transportation service and conditions, will assure delivery without abnormal deterioration at the contract destination agreed upon between the parties." The September 14, 1984, federal inspection (Finding of Facts 5) revealed an average of 11% damage by bruising and 13% damage by external brown discoloration, for a total of 24% condition defects, which constituted abnormal deterioration. Complainant appears to be claiming that transportation conditions were abnormal, therefore voiding the suitable shipping condition warranty. While we agree with complainant that in an f.o.b. sale it is respondent's burden to prove that transportation conditions were normal (Oneonta Trading Corporation v. Tommie's Cello-Pak, Inc., 40 Agric. Dec. 1798 (1981)), the evidence in the record shows that respondent has sustained this burden. The peaches were shipped from complainant in Del Rey, California on September 8, 1984, and arrived in Bronx, New York on September 14, 1984, six days later, which is a reasonable transit time for the distance covered. Further, the inspection report shows the temperature of the peaches as from 38° to 39°F., which is well within the normal range. The 11% damage by bruising was most likely caused by complainant loading some fruit that was softer than it should have been, as shown by the inspection report's description of the peaches as "mostly firm ripe, some ripe." In view of the abnormal deterioration exhibited by the peaches when they arrived at respondent's place of business, and considering that transportation conditions were normal, we conclude that complainant breached its warranty of suitable shipping condition with respect to these peaches.

As damages from complainant's breach of warranty, respondent is entitled to the difference, at the time and place of acceptance, between the actual value of the peaches and their value if they had been as warranted. Tom Bengard Ranch, Inc. a/t/a Kleen Harvest v. Garden State Farms, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 922 (1983). The actual value is determined by a prompt and proper resale. Respondent has provided evidence that it sold the 660 cartons of peaches to Finest Fruit Co., Inc., Bronx, New York, for $4,747.50. There is nothing in the record indicating that this resale was not prompt and proper. For the value of the peaches if they had been as warranted, respondent urges that reference be made to the Market News Service Reports at Bronx, New York. However, the Market News Service Reports contain no listings for California peaches on September 14, 1984, the date of acceptance. We will therefore use the contract price plus freight. The contract price for these peaches was $6.55 per carton, for a total f.o.b. contract price of $4,323.00. According to the account of sales of Finest Fruit Co., Inc., the freight was an additional $1.91 per carton or $1,260.60, for a total of $5,583.60. If we subtract the actual value of the peaches, $4,747.50, from their value if they had been as warranted, $5,583.60, we find respondent's damages to have been $836.10. Respondent has not claimed any incidental damages. Therefore, respondent's liability to complainant is the f.o.b. contract price of $4,323.00 less its damages of $836.10, resulting in $3,486.90. Respondent's failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $3,486.90, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from October 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

THOMAS B. SMITH d/b/a THOMAS B. SMITH FARMS, v. I. M. C. BROKERAGE & PRODUCE CO., INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6777. Decided May 5, 1986.

Acceptance by taking possession of, and reselling, produce—neutral inspection necessary to show condition of produce—open-ended allowance not proven—failure to submit accounting of resale precludes award of damages—accord and satisfaction by holding check not shown—reparation awarded.

In f.o.b. sale of tomatoes respondent accepted by taking possession and reselling. Testimonial evidence of poor condition on arrival was discounted, a neutral inspection being necessary to establish condition of perishable produce. Respondent alleged that it was granted an open-ended allowance, but failed to prove this allegation by a preponderance of the evidence. Respondent failed to submit an accounting, and therefore could not have established its loss even had the allowance been proven. Complainant's retention of respondent's check marked "paid in full" was not deemed an accord and satisfaction, because complainant failed an informal complaint shortly after receiving the check and requested that the Department secure the check's release as an undisputed amount.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $7,844.82 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of tomatoes. The formal complaint was later amended to request an award in the amount of $10,362.00 in connection with the same load.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, respondent filed an answering statement, and complainant filed a statement in reply. Respondent also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant is an individual, Thomas B. Smith, doing business as Thomas B. Smith Farms, whose address is Route 1, Box 129, Quincy, Florida.

2. Respondent, I. M. C. Brokerage & Produce Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 120 Lakeview Drive, Woolsey, Georgia. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about August 4, 1984, complainant sold to respondent, on an f.o.b. basis, one truckload of tomatoes having an invoice value, after deduction of an $800 credit on a previous load, of $10,362.00.

4. On or about August 4, 1984, complainant shipped the tomatoes from loading point in Quincy, Florida to respondent in Woolsey, Georgia by means of respondent's truck. Upon arrival at respondent's place of business in Woolsey, Georgia the tomatoes were accepted by respondent. Respondent tendered payment to complainant in the amount of $3,318.00, marking the check payment in full. Complainant returned this check to respondent.

5. The formal complaint was filed on January 28, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant brings this action to recover the full purchase price of a truckload of tomatoes sold to respondent. Although respondent contends that the tomatoes were not accepted, the record clearly shows that respondent took possession of the tomatoes and resold them. There is no credible evidence that respondent gave complainant any timely notice of rejection prior to unloading the tomatoes. See Santa Clara Produce v. Caruso Produce Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 2279 (1982). Since respondent accepted the tomatoes it became liable to complainant for the full contract price less any damages resulting from any breach of warranty by complainant. Respondent has the burden of proving the breach and damages by a preponderance of the evidence. J. Prettyman, Jr. v. D. J. LaMantia, 41 Agric. Dec. 1614 (1982).

Respondent contends that the subject tomatoes arrived in poor condition. Respondent also contends that it deducted substantial amounts from complainant's invoice because of poor deliveries on two other shipments of tomatoes which are referred to by complainant in his formal complaint. Respondent sought to establish by affidavit testimony that the tomatoes were in poor condition. We have held many times that testimonial evidence in regard to the condition of perishable produce must be discounted. An inspection by a neutral party conducted on the basis of scientific sampling and an accurate description of the percentage of grade defects, or condition defects, is necessary. See Mutual Vegetable Sales, v. Select Distributors, 38 Agric. Dec. 1359 (1979).

Respondent submitted an affidavit by one of its employees, J. Ron Howard, who stated that he was in charge of sales, purchasing, and receiving tomatoes. Mr. Howard stated that as to one of the two previous loads of tomatoes, that which was shipped on July 16, 1984, he had a conversation with a person identified only as "Bud" who he understood to be the person in charge of sales for complainant. Mr. Howard stated that Bud acknowledged that the July 16, load of tomatoes was of poor quality, and promised that "any loss as a result of the poor quality would be made up." Respondent asserts that the loss on the load was $2,028.00. Complainant submitted the affidavit of W. H. Fulford, Jr., who stated that on or about July 16, 1984, he spoke directly with Mr. I. M. Cartwright of respondent's firm about respondent's dissatisfaction with the July 16, 1984, load of tomatoes. Mr. Fulford states that, as the salesman involved, he was authorized by Mr. Smith to grant to Mr. Cartwright a 50 cents per box credit for the tomatoes which totalled $800. Mr. Fulford stated that this amount was deducted from the invoice for the tomatoes shipped on August 4, 1984. We find that respondent has failed to prove the open ended allowance which it has alleged. In addition we note that respondent failed to supply us with any accounting of the resale of the tomatoes shipped on July 16, 1984, and that consequently respondent would not have been able to recover the alleged loss of $2,028.00 in any event.

Mr. Howard also made essentially the same allegations in regard to tomatoes shipped on July 26, 1984. Mr. Fulford stated in his affidavit that he did not speak with Mr. Cartwright about any other complaints, and that there was a price adjustment on only one load, namely the load on July 16, 1984. Again, as to this load respondent did not submit an accounting of the resale of the tomatoes, and therefore we could not allow the alleged loss of $768.00 in regard to these tomatoes in any event.

In regard to the subject tomatoes shipped on August 4, 1984, Mr. Howard again alleged that he had conversations with "Bud" concerning the alleged poor quality of the tomatoes and resulting losses. Mr. Howard stated that "Bud" advised that the problem would be taken care of. This allegation is, of course, also answered by the affidavit of Mr. Fulford, and again, we note that respondent did not submit an accounting of the resale of this last load of tomatoes. Accordingly respondent could not have recovered the alleged loss of $4,248.00 in any event.

In its answer respondent raised as a defense the allegation that there had been an accord and satisfaction in regard to the August 4, 1984, shipment of tomatoes as a result of the retention by complainant of an August 20, 1984, check in the amount of $3,318.00 which had typed thereon the notation "paid in full all tomatoes". The record discloses that respondent did not return the check to complainant until February 8, 1985, when it filed its amendment to the formal complaint. However, the record also shows that complainant filed with this Department an informal complaint on October 3, 1984, and clearly stated therein that he was not accepting respondent's check for $3,318.00 marked paid in full. Respondent was given notice of the informal complaint by a letter from this Department dated October 16, 1984, and such letter specifically requested that respondent release the check to complainant as an undisputed amount without prejudice to the rights of either party regarding the balance in dispute. The Department asked that respondent reply by October 30, 1984. Respondent did not reply to the Department's letter until November 30, 1984, and in its reply made no reference whatever to the check being held by complainant. We do not believe that the record in this proceeding supports respondent's contention that there was an accord and satisfaction as a result of retention of the check by complainant.

As we stated earlier respondent accepted the tomatoes, and thus became liable to complainant for the full purchase price of $10,362.00. Respondent has not proven any breach on the part of complainant, or any modification of the original contract which would allow payment of a lesser amount. Accordingly, respondent is liable to complainant for the full purchase price of $10,362.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $10,362.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from September 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $53,166.00 in connection with several shipments of tomatoes in contemplation of movement in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto admitting liability to complainant in the amount of $50,574.00, and denying liability to complainant for the balance claimed. An order requiring respondent to pay complainant the sum of $50,574.00 as an undisputed amount was issued on August 26, 1985, pursuant to section 7(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499g(a)) and section 47.8(b) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.8(b)).

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeded $15,000.00, the parties waived oral hearing, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. However, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, G.A.C. Produce Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 1231, Nogales, Arizona.

2. Respondent, Otay Packing Co., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 3247, Chula Vista, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. Between September 17, and September 22, 1984, complainant sold to respondent 8,664 containers of tomatoes, 6×6 size and larger, approximately 85% U.S. No. 1 grade or better, for the total price of $53,166.00 f.o.b. complainant's warehouse in Chula Vista, California.

4. Between September 17, and September 22, 1984, complainant shipped the tomatoes from its warehouse in Chula Vista, California to respondent in Chula Vista, California in contemplation of subsequent movement in interstate commerce. Respondent accepted the tomatoes upon arrival.

5. At some time after arrival of the tomatoes complainant granted respondent an allowance of $1.00 per carton on two shipments containing 1,296 cartons each, or a total allowance of $2,592.00.

6. The formal complaint was filed on March 5, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent admitted liability to complainant, in its answer, in the total amount of $50,574.00. On August 26, 1985, an order was issued requiring respondent to pay complainant the amount of $50,574.00 as an undisputed amount. In its answer respondent's vice president, Earl Tachiki, stated that complainant had agreed to give respondent a credit of $1.00 per carton on two shipments containing 1,296 cartons each. The total amount of the alleged credit was $2,592.00. Complainant had the opportunity to rebut the statement by respondent's president but failed to do so. There is no evidence in the record which contradicts the statement by respondent's president. Accordingly, we conclude that complainant granted respondent an allowance of $1.00 per carton on the two shipments, or a total allowance of $2,592.00. The complaint should be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

NAPLES TOMATO GROWERS, INC., v. PETER G. PAPPAS and PHILIP G. PAPPAS d/b/a PETE PAPPAS & SONS, PACA Docket No. 2-6879. Decided May 5, 1986.

F.o.b. sale—special price agreement—reparation awarded.

Parties agreed that tomatoes were to be sold f.o.b. with price to be determined by "next week's market." Respondent contended that price was to be determined as of the day following shipment. It was held that the price term used required use of an average price for the whole business week following shipment.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $4,800.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Naples Tomato Growers, Inc., is a corporation whose address is Route 2, P.O. Box 1700, Naples, Florida.

2. Respondent, is a partnership composed of Peter G. Pappas and Philip G. Pappas doing business as Pete Pappas & Sons, whose address is 1401 Okie Street, N.E., Washington, D. C. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 20, 1985, complainant sold to respondent one truckload of mature green tomatoes consisting of 800 25 pound cartons of size 6×6, and 800 25 pound cartons of size 6×7, Beef Stake Brand, with the price to be established on the basis of "next week's market".

4. The tomatoes were federally inspected on January 20, 1985, at shipping point, and found to grade U.S. combination with at least 85% U.S. No. 1, and no decay.

5. Complainant shipped the tomatoes to respondent on January 20, 1985, and such tomatoes were accepted by respondent on arrival in Washington, D. C.

6. The average of the prices quoted for the Florida shipping point market during the week of January 21-25, 1985, was $15.33 for size 6×6, and $13.25 for size 6×7 tomatoes, 85% U.S. No. 1 or better. The average of the prices during the same period of time for the Washington, D. C. area (Jessup, Maryland) was $15.50 for size 6×6, and $13.50 for size 6×7 tomatoes of generally good merchantable quality and condition.

7. The formal complaint was filed on April 16, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant seeks to recover for the tomatoes sold to respondent on the basis of $14.00 per carton for the size 6×6 tomatoes, and $12.00 per carton for the size 6×7 tomatoes. This would amount to a total price of $20,800.00 for the truckload of tomatoes, and complainant also maintains that it should be allowed $240.00 for palletizing, or a total of $21,040.00, f.o.b., Naples, Florida. Respondent has remitted to complainant $16,240.00 for the truckload of tomatoes, which amounts to $11.00 for the size 6×6 tomatoes, and $9.00 for the size 6×7 tomatoes, plus $240.00 for palletizing. Both parties seem to be agreed that the term "next week's market" referred to the week beginning January 21, 1985, rather than the literal next week which would begin on Sunday January 27, 1985. Respondent submitted Market News Reports for Jessup, Maryland which not only showed tomato prices for that market, but also showed shipping point prices for South & Central Florida. The reports submitted by respondent covered Monday, January 21, through Monday, February 4, 1985. As stated in the Findings of Fact, the average price for the size 6×6 tomatoes during the week of January 21, through 25, at shipping point, was $15.33 per carton, and for the 6×7 tomatoes, $13.25 per carton. However, this is an average of only 3 days, namely January 21, 24, and 25, since there were no price quotations for January 22, and January 23. The prices shown at shipping point for January 21, for size 6×6 were $9.00 to 10.00, mostly $10.00, and for size 6×7 $7.50 to $8.00. The prices for January 24, and January 25, were $18.00 for the size 6×6, and $16.00 for the size 6×7. A corresponding rise in price was also shown for the Jessup, Maryland market, but such market additionally showed quotations for January 22, and 23. These prices were generally sustained for Monday, January 28, and began falling on January 29, 1985.

Respondent maintains that the price which it should pay to complainant should be based on the market price for January 21, 1985. However, although the record does not disclose when the tomatoes arrived, it is unlikely that respondent could have begun selling the tomatoes any earlier than January 22, 1985, at the earliest. We believe that the terms of sale used by the parties contemplated that the price would be set on the basis of the average price for the week of January 21, 1985. Such average price, both at shipping point and at Jessup, Maryland, was in excess of the price being asked in this proceeding by complainant. We conclude that the terms of sale require that respondent pay complainant at least such price, or the requested $14.00 per carton for the size 6×6, and $12.00 per carton for the size 6×7, plus $240.00 for palletizing, or a total for the truckload of $21,040.00. Respondent has already paid complainant $16,240.00 of this amount, which leaves a balance still due of $4,800.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $4,800.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from February 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

NICK DELIS COMPANY, INC., v. METRO PRODUCE INC., PACA Docket No. 2-6883. Decided May 5, 1986.

Contract price protected on arrival—with acceptance, buyer must pay contract price less damages proven—reparation awarded.

Buyer/respondent accepted potatoes but claimed agreement was that price was to be protected through sale. Complainant asserted contract term was that price was protected only until arrival. Conflicting affidavits could not be resolved but evidence showed market did not drop between shipment and arrival and that respondent's real concern was with the quality of potatoes. Respondent offered no evidence as to breach and damages as to quality nor no evidence to show it promptly and properly resold potatoes and the price it received. Therefore, respondent was liable for contract price less amount already permitted.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Act. A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,275.00 in connection with the sale of potatoes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint and a copy of the Department's report of investigation were served upon respondent. A copy of the report of investigation was served upon complainant.

In its answer, respondent denied liability claiming that the contract price was not to be determined until after sale, and asserting that it had paid complainant the amount respondent received after sale.

Since the amount claimed in damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided for in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) applies. Pursuant to such procedure, the parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements. Both parties filed opening statements. Both parties declined an opportunity to file briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant Nick Delis Company, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the complainant, is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 1089, Millbrae, California 94030.

2. Respondent Metro Produce, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondent, is a corporation whose mailing address is 12374 Helen, Southgate, Michigan 48195.

3. Both parties are, and at all times material herein were, licensed with the Secretary of Agriculture to do business under the Act.

4. On April 26, 1984, complainant sold to respondent 910 cartons of U.S. No. 1 White Rose potatoes at an invoice price of $6.00 per carton plus a temperature recorder at $22.50 for a total F.O.B. invoice price of $5,482.50. The goods were shipped in interstate commerce and received and accepted by respondent on May 2, 1984.

5. Respondent has remitted a total of $3,207.50 in payment for these potatoes.

6. The formal complaint was filed on March 4, 1985. An informal complaint was filed on November 2, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This case involves a dispute over the price term in the contract. Respondent claims that its agreement was that it was to be protected as to price through sale, that is that price was to be determined after sale. Complainant asserts, however, that the agreement was to protect respondent as to price only until arrival of the commodity. The invoice in question contains a notation "price protected on arrival." Respondent claims, however, that this was error and that it corrected the original of the invoice and returned it to complainant. Complainant, however, filed the affidavit of Paul Brown, its salesman at the time, in which he states that he agreed only to a protection of the price until arrival and specifically denies that he agreed to give protection of the entire load or to any other price adjustment. Significantly, respondent has not submitted the corrected invoice.

We are faced with two sworn statements asserting diametrically opposite stories. Whether there was a misunderstanding, or one party's statement is erroneous cannot be determined. An examination of the entire record, however, reveals several factors helpful to the resolution of this matter. First, there is no contention that the price of potatoes dropped while they were in transit. The $6.00 per carton, therefore, seems to be consistent with the prevailing market price. Second, respondent's real complaint seems to be that the potatoes were of only "fair" size and quality. However, respondent has offered neither a U.S.D.A. inspection nor any other evidence to demonstrate that the potatoes were of lesser quality than warranted. Finally, respondent has not submitted accountings showing what it received upon resale of the potatoes.

Having accepted the potatoes, respondent is liable for the contract price less any damages sustained. See Theron Hooker Company v. Ben Gatz Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 1109, 1112 (1971); Rydell California Potato Co. v. The Kaufman-Brown Potato Company, 16 Agric. Dec. 1055 (1957). As noted above, the evidence indicates that the market price was $6.00 per carton at the time the potatoes were accepted. Respondent is liable to pay this amount unless it can prove damages. Respondent, however, has submitted no evidence to support a contention that the potatoes were worth less than $6.00 per carton. A mere statement as to amount of money received upon the resale of the potatoes without the accountings and without evidence demonstrating prompt and proper resale is not sufficient to meet respondent's burden to prove damages.

Therefore, complainant is entitled to receive the value of the goods shipped plus the cost of the temperature recorder. It is entitled to receive $5,482.50, of which is has received $3,207.50, leaving a total of $2,275.00 still due and owing. Respondent's failure to pay that amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days of the date of this decision, respondent Metro Produce, Inc., shall pay complainant Nick Delis Company, Inc., the amount of $2,275.00 as reparation, plus interest at 13 per cent per annum from June 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this Order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $29,534.50 in connection with two shipments of carrots in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, Belridge Packing Co., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 1852, Bakersfield, California 93303. Respondent, Beacon Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is 1401 S.W. 2nd Street, Pompano Beach, Florida 33060. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $29,534.50. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $29,534.50, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from September 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Respondent accepted two loads of tomatoes and alleged that protection was granted after acceptance. Evidence was insufficient to show whether protection was granted by complainant or by broker acting on his own. In either event, respondent did not furnish records of resales and losses. Consequently, any protection agreement would be voided.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $972.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of two truckloads of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Roger Harloff Packing, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 1787, Bradenton, Florida.

2. Respondent, John Livacich Produce, Inc., is a corporation also trading as Vista Sales, whose address is 2231 Willow Brook Drive, Vista, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about December 2, 1983, complainant sold to respondent 1,008 25 pound boxes of Palmetto Beauty U.S. No. 2 5 ×6 cartons of tomatoes at $3.00 per carton, and 504 2 5 pound cartons of Palmetto Beauty U.S. No. 2 6 ×6 cartons of tomatoes at $2.00 per carton, plus $226.80 for palletizing, and $22.50 for a temperature recorder. Complainant later granted respondent a reduction in price of $1.00 per carton on 360 cartons of the 5 ×6 tomatoes, reducing the total price for the truckload to $3,921.30.

4. The tomatoes covered by Finding of Fact 3 were federally inspected at Palmetto, Florida on November 26, 27, and 28, 1983, and found to grade U.S. No. 2 with no decay. Complainant shipped the tomatoes from loading point in Palmetto, Florida to respondent in Vista, California on December 2, 1983.

5. On December 2, 1983, complainant sold to respondent 1368 25 pound boxes of Palmetto Beauty U.S. No. 2 6 ×6 tomatoes at $3.00 per carton 72 25 pound boxes of Palmetto Beauty U.S. No. 2 6 ×7 tomatoes at $2.00 per carton, and 144 25 pound boxes of Palmetto Pride U.S. Combination grade tomatoes at $2.00 per carton, plus palletizing in the amount of $237.60; and a temperature recorder in the amount of $22.50, for a total f.o.b. price of $4,796.10.

6. The tomatoes covered by Finding of Fact 5 were federally inspected at Palmetto, Florida on November 28, and 29, 1983, and the 1368 cartons of 6 ×6 tomatoes and 72 cartons of 6 ×7 tomatoes were found to grade U.S. No. 2 with no decay. The 144 cartons of 6 ×7 tomatoes were found to grade U.S. Combination with no decay. Complainant shipped the tomatoes covered by Finding of Fact 5 from Palmetto, Florida to respondent in Vista, California on December 2, 1983.

7. Respondent received and accepted the two truckloads of tomatoes and has paid complainant only $7,745.40 leaving a balance still due and owing of $972.00.

8. An informal complaint was filed on March 5, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent took possession of the two truckloads of tomatoes on arrival at destination and is therefore deemed to have accepted such tomatoes. However, respondent maintains that a protection agreement was entered into in regard to both loads of tomatoes after their arrival. This allegation by respondent seems to be confirmed by a letter contained in the report of investigation from the broker who negotiated the sale of the two truckloads of tomatoes. Such letter indicates that protection was granted in regard to both loads due to "excessive color". However the wording of the broker's letter does not make it clear whether the protection was granted by complainant or by the broker acting on his own.

Whether or not complainant authorized the protection agreement alleged by respondent, we have held that it is incumbent upon a receiver who has such an agreement to keep records which substantiate its resales and losses. See Dave Walsh Co. v. Liberty Fruit Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 533 (1979). Respondent did not supply any records which would adequately substantiate the resales, and losses resulting from such resales. As a consequence of such failure we must view any protection agreement as voided. See Demarco Produce Co., Inc. v. J. R. Cortes & Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 1256 (1980).

Since respondent accepted the tomatoes it became liable to complainant for the full purchase price thereof, less any damages resulting from any breach of contract on the part of complainant. Although it was alleged that the tomatoes arrived with excessive color, respondent supplied us with no arrival inspections which would substantiate this claim. Accordingly we find that respondent has failed to show any breach on the part of complainant. Respondent is liable to complainant for the full purchase price of the tomatoes less the adjustment in price which complainant has admitted it granted, or a total of $8,717.40. Respondent has already paid complainant $7,745.40 of this amount, which leaves a balance still-due and owing $972.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $972.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from January 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $4,234.80, in connection with the sale and consignment of two truckloads of melons to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as is the verified complaint. The answer, since it is not verified, is not considered part of the evidence. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs, but elected not to do so.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, I. R. Jerome Company, Ltd., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 1030, Parker, Arizona.

2. Respondent, Corgan & Son, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 161-162 N.Y.C. Terminal Market, Bronx, New York. At the times of the transactions involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately July 9, 1984, complainant sold to respondent a truckload of melons consisting of 540 cartons of honeydews and 714 cartons of cantaloupes. The honeydews were composed of 180 cartons of number 4's at $3.00 per carton, 180 cartons of number 5's at $3.60 per carton, and 180 cartons of number 6's at $3.60 per carton, plus $.40 per carton for palletizing, or $2,052.00, f.o.b. The cantaloupes were composed of 336 cartons of 15's at $4.50 per carton, and 378 cartons of 18's at $5.00 per carton, plus $.80 per carton for palletization, or $3,973.20, f.o.b. The contract price also included a brokerage fee of $.20 per carton, or $250.80, and $22.50 for a temperature recorder, for a total of $6,298.50. Frank Minardo, Yuma, Arizona, acted as the broker, and issued a confirmation of sale setting forth the contract terms, which he sent to both parties. The confirmation clearly stated that complainant was the seller and respondent the buyer. Neither party objected to this confirmation.

4. The July 9, 1984, load was shipped in interstate commerce to respondent, which received and accepted it upon arrival.

5. Respondent has paid complainant $5,098.50 for the July 9, 1984, load, but has failed to make any additional payments to complainant.

6. On approximately July 13, 1984, complainant sold to respondent a truckload of melons consisting of 96 cartons of casabas at $4.75 per carton, 96 cartons of crenshaws at $5.75 per carton, 420 cartons of cantaloupes at $2.50 per carton plus $.80 per carton cooling, and 480 cartons of honeydews at $3.50 per carton, plus $.20 per carton brokerage, for a total of $4,292.40, f.o.b. Frank Minardo acted as the broker in this transaction as well. The broker issued a confirmation of sale setting forth the contract terms and sent it to both parties. The confirmation clearly stated that complainant was the seller and respondent the buyer. Neither party objected to the confirmation.

7. On December 20, the broker wrote to the Department about the loads of melons in dispute, stating as follows:

> Please be informed that these loads were bought on a brokerage basis. We sent the normal and proper broker's confirmation to the shipper and our invoice for 20¢ brokerage. We reported the results of the federal inspection that Corgan relayed to us, and went on record with there [sic] sales man Mr. Ed Senini and sent a copy to the shipper.

8. The July 13, 1984, load of melons was shipped in interstate commerce to respondent, which received and accepted it. Respondent secured a federal inspection of the cantaloupes only.

9. Respondent has paid complainant $3,126.00 for the 1,092 cartons of melons, but has failed to make any additional payments to complainant.

10. A formal complaint was filed on January 19, 1985, which was within nine months from when the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant's assertions that it sold respondent the July 9, 1984, load and consigned to respondent the July 13, 1984, load are denied by respondent. Respondent claims that it purchased both loads on an f.o.b. basis from the broker, assuming he was the seller. Respondent also asserts that the melons were in bad condition on arrival and, consequently, the broker agreed to certain price adjustments.

While the record contains evidence supporting the positions of both parties, the most convincing evidence consists of statements and documents issued by the broker, who is presumed to be without bias. The broker's December 20, 1984, letter (Finding of Fact 7) and the enclosed confirmations of sale make it clear that he was engaged only as a broker between complainant, the seller, and respondent, the buyer. The letter says further that both loads were sold on an f.o.b. basis, and this is supported by his confirmations, to which neither party objected. According to these confirmations, the contract price was $6,298.50 for the July 9, 1984, load and $4,292.40 for the July 13, 1984, load. We believe the broker's confirmations reflect the agreed upon contract terms.

In respondent's unsworn answer, it does not deny receiving or accepting the two loads of melons and, therefore, is liable for the agreed upon contract prices therefor, less damages resulting from any breach of warranty by complainant. Respondent bears the burden of proving the breach and damages by a preponderance of the evidence. Farm Market Service, Inc. v. Albertson's Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 429 (1983).

Respondent has not presented any credible evidence to support its claim that it owes less than the full contract price of $6,298.50 to complainant for the July 9, 1984, load and is thus liable for that amount.

With respect to the July 13, 1984, load, respondent contends that the melons were in poor condition and, therefore, it agreed with the broker to adjust the prices to $3.50 per carton for the cantaloupes, $2.25 per carton for the honeydews, $4.00 per carton for the crenshaws, and $2.00 per carton for the casabas. The record does indicate that a federal inspection was taken on July 19, 1984, of the 420 cartons of cantaloupes contained in the July 13, 1984, load. Since respondent's claim that the adjusted price resulting from this inspection was $3.50 per carton, which is greater than the $3.30 per carton set forth in the broker's confirmation, we will accept respondent's admission of liability. There is no evidence whatsoever that any of the other melons comprising the July 13, 1984, load were in anything but good condition, and thus we will apply the price set forth in the broker's confirmation for all commodities except the cantaloupes. We, therefore, find the adjusted purchase price to have been $4,376.40.

Respondent incurred liability of $6,298.50 for the July 9, 1984, load and $4,376.40 for the July 13, 1984, load, for a total of $10,674.90. Having paid complainant $8,224.50, respondent owes an additional $2,450.40, and its failure to pay complainant this sum is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,450.40, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from August 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Burden of proof—special agreement as to price—reparation awarded.

In f.o.b. sale of tomatoes respondent alleged that the invoice prices were incorrect, and that instead the parties had a special agreement that price was to be based on the prices which respondent was paying to other packing houses for tomatoes. Respondent was found to have failed to prove its contentions by a prepondereance of the evidence.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $2,124.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of two truckloads of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which failed to file a timely answer, and was found to be in default. A default order was issued on March 20, 1985, and on April 1, 1985, respondent filed a petition to reopen this proceeding after default. On April 16, 1985, the default order of March 20, 1985, was stayed, and complainant was served with a copy of respondent's petition, and given 15 days in which to file an answer thereto. On May 24, 1985, after receipt of complainant's answer to respondent's petition, respondent's default was set aside, and respondent's answer which had been previously submitted was ordered filed. In its answer respondent denied any liability to complainant on the two tomato transactions.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, and respondent filed an answering statement. Respondent filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Four Star Tomato, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 470, Ellenton, Florida.

2. Respondent, Tomatoes, Inc., is a corporation whose address is New York City Terminal Market, 400-402 Room D, Bronx, New York. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about May 11, 1984, complainant sold to respondent 504 25 pound cartons of 5×6 and larger tomatoes at $9.00 per carton, and 1,080 25 pound cartons of 6×6 tomatoes at $7.00 per carton, plus $.15 per carton for palletizing, or a total of $12,333.60, f.o.b. The tomatoes were federally inspected at shipping point in Palmetto, Florida on May 11, 1984, and found to grade U.S. combination with at least 85% U.S. No. 1 quality, and no decay. Complainant shipped the tomatoes to respondent on May 12, 1984, and issued its invoice for such tomatoes on May 18, 1984.

4. On May 12, 1984, complainant sold to respondent 504 25 pound cartons of 5×6 and larger tomatoes at $9.00 per carton, 360 25 pound cartons of 6×6 tomatoes at $6.00 per carton, 216 25 pound cartons of 5×6 and larger U.S. No. 2 tomatoes at $7.50 per carton, 72 25 pound cartons of 6×6 U.S. No. 2 tomatoes at $4.50 per carton, 360 25 pound cartons of 5×6 and larger U.S. No. 3 tomatoes at $4.50 per carton, and 72 25 pound cartons of 6×6 U.S. No. 3 tomatoes at $3.50 per carton, plus $.15 per carton for palletizing, or a total of $10,749.60, f.o.b. On May 12, 1984, the tomatoes were federally inspected at Palmetto, Florida, and the 504 5×6 and larger tomatoes, and the 360 6×6 tomatoes were found to grade U.S. combination with at least 80% U.S. No. 1 quality, and no decay. The remaining tomatoes were found to grade in accord with the contract specifications with no decay. Complainant shipped the tomatoes from loading point in Florida to respondent on May 14, 1984, and issued its invoice covering such tomatoes on May 19, 1984.

5. Respondent accepted both shipments of tomatoes upon arrival at destination, and has paid complainant only $11,253.60 toward the shipment of May 12, and $9,705.60 toward the shipment of May 14, 1984. There remains due and owing from respondent to complainant a balance of $2,124.00.

6. The formal complaint was filed on October 15, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant brings this action to recover the balance of the purchase price of two shipments of tomatoes. Respondent alleges that complainant is charging the wrong prices for the tomatoes, and that "the prices were to be based on the Market price that was sold to us by other packing houses at that time." Respondent submitted copies of two invoices from another Florida packer in support of this contention. However, the two invoices are dated May 17, 1984, and May 18, 1984, and these dates do not correspond to the sale dates of the two loads of tomatoes in question here. Furthermore, the invoices submitted by respondent do not disclose the grade of the tomatoes that are listed thereon. Later in the proceeding respondent submitted one additional invoice dated May 11, 1985, but covering a shipment of May 9, 1985. This invoice shows 5×6 tomatoes selling at $4.50 per container, and 6×7 tomatoes selling at $2.00 per container. Again this invoice fails to show the grade of the tomatoes in question.

Complainant denied respondent's allegations in regard to the pricing method applicable to the two loads of tomatoes, and submitted a copy of a May 11, 1984, Market News Report covering f.o.b. prices of tomatoes in South and Central Florida which shows that the prices charged by complainant were in accord with the market prices disclosed thereon. Although respondent states that upon receiving the invoices sent by complainant, it called complainant on the telephone and complained, respondent did not object to such invoices in writing. On the basis of all of the evidence herein we conclude that respondent has failed to prove its contention in regard to the pricing of the tomatoes by a preponderance of the evidence. We also conclude that complainant has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that the prices listed in its invoices were the contract prices agreed upon by the parties. Respondent is liable to complainant for a balance of $2,124.00 on the two loads of tomatoes. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,124.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from June 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

LYN-DE FARMS, INC., v. MIDWEST PRODUCE BROKERAGE, INC., P&S Docket No. 2-6925. Decided May 16, 1986.

With acceptance burden shifts to respondent to show breach and damages—reparation awarded.

Respondent claimed that complainant had authorized deductions off the purchase invoice which complainant denied. A letter from complainant's salesman instructing respondent to pay the invoice price and he would make it up to him at some other time established that there was no agreement as to a price adjustment. Respondent therefore was required to pay invoice price unless it proved damages for which contention it offered no evidence. Respondent was ordered to pay invoice price less amount already remitted.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Act. A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $307.88 in connection with the sale of two loads of lettuce in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint and a copy of the Department's report of investigation were served upon respondent. A copy of the report of investigation was served upon complainant.

Respondent filed an answer in which it denied liability. It admitted the purchase of the lettuce, but alleged that with respect to the first load it was authorized a deduction off the invoice price because the lettuce was not of the size warranted. With respect to the second load, respondent alleged that complainant agreed to a $.25 per carton adjustment.

Since the amount claimed in damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided for in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) applies. Pursuant to such procedure, the parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements. Neither party submitted additional evidence, but complainant did file a brief. Respondent did not file a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant Lyn-De Farms, Inc., hereinafter referred to as complainant, is and at all times material herein was, a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box Drawer 1119, Blythe, California 92226.

2. Respondent Midwest Produce Brokerage, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondent, is, and at all times material herein was, a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 768, Meeker, Oklahoma 74855.

3. Both parties are, and at the time of the transactions involved herein were, licensed to do business under the Act.

4. On November 28, 1984, and on December 7, 1984, complainant sold to respondent two truckloads of lettuce, f.o.b. On November 28, 1984, complainant shipped 711 cartons of lettuce at a price of $2.50 per carton plus $.65 for cooling or a total contract price of $2,239.65. On December 7, 1984, complainant shipped 328 cartons at a per carton price of $2.75 plus $.65 for cooling or a total price of $1,115.20 for this transaction. The total contract price for the two loads was $3,354.85.

5. Respondent has remitted a total of $3,046.97 for these purchases.

6. The formal complaint was filed May 21, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This case involves a dispute over whether there was an agreement as to a price adjustment on each of the two shipments. Respondent contends that the size of lettuce in the first shipment was not as warranted, and that complainant authorized respondent to make an appropriate deduction. Respondent further alleges that it was given a $.25 per carton adjustment by complainant on the day of arrival of the second load. In support of its claim respondent attaches a letter from complainant's salesman. A review of the letter, however, demonstrates that Mr. Zinno, complainant's salesman, denied agreeing to any deductions or adjustments.

Having accepted the goods, respondent must pay contract price less any provable damages. The invoices are the best evidence of the contract price. Respondent has the burden of proving that an adjustment to the invoice price was agreed to. The letter from Mr. Zinno contains the following sentence: "In our last conversation I told him [respondent] to pay the invoices as they were billed and I would make it up to him at some other time." What Mr. Zinno might have agreed to do at some future time is unclear. However, the letter specifically states that Zinno expected respondent to pay full contract price. Respondent's own evidence demonstrates that no agreement as to an adjustment of the invoice price was reached. Respondent offers no evidence to support its claim that the lettuce on the first load was not of the size warranted. It has, therefore, failed to show any damages as to either load.

Respondent is liable to pay the entire contract price of $3,354.85. It has remitted only $3,046.97, leaving a deficiency of $307.88.

The failure of respondent to pay this amount to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act. Reparation should be awarded to complainant in the amount of $307.88, with interest.

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant $307.88 as reparation with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from January 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this Order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $6,150.50 in connection with a shipment of broccoli in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, Dew-Gro, Inc., a/t/a Central West Produce, is a corporation whose address is 1284 West Main Street, Santa Maria, California 93454. Respondent, Beacon Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is 1401 S.W. 2nd Street, Pompano Beach, Florida 33060. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $6,150.50. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation $6,150.50, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from September 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $16,798.50 in connection with two shipments of grapes in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, Mendelson-Zeller Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 450 Sansome Street, San Francisco, California 94111. Respondent, Beacon Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is 1401 S.W. 2nd Street, Pompano Beach, Florida 33060. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $16,798.50. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $16,798.50, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from October 1, 1985, until paid.

Contract terms changed—protection for labor and shrinkage—deductions reasonable—reparation awarded.

The evidence is clear that complainant granted respondent protection for labor and shrinkage after the cantaloupes arrived in a deteriorated condition. Respondent thus sustained its burden of proving that the original contract terms were changed to reflect this grant of protection. Respondent's deductions for labor and shrinkage were reasonable considering the condition of the cantaloupes. Respondent, therefore, held without liability to complainant.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $3,910.35 in connection of the sale and shipment of a trucklot of cantaloupes and green onions to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be a part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement and respondent submitted an answering statement. Complainant also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, J. A. Wood Co. - Vista, Inc. a/t/a J. A. Wood Co., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 9069, Phoenix, Arizona.

2. Respondent, Beacon Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is 1401 S.W. 2nd Street, Pompano Beach, Florida. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately October 30, 1984, complainant sold to respondent a trucklot of cantaloupes and green onions. The contract price for the 756 cartons of cantaloupes was $7.00 per carton, plus $.80 per carton for cooling and palletizing. The contract price for the 75 cartons of green onions was $5.95 per carton, plus $.65 per carton for hydrocooling, and $8.00 for top ice. An additional $124.65 was charged for brokerage, for a total contract price of $6,524.45 f.o.b. for both commodities. John M. Baum, Atlantic Beach, Florida, acted as the broker in the proceeding, and both parties communicated through him.

4. The truckload of cantaloupes and green onions was shipped by complainant in interstate commerce to respondent, where it arrived on November 5, 1984, and was subjected to a federal inspection. The inspection found no condition problems with the green onions, but with respect to the cantaloupes found as follows:

> VARIOUS CONTAINERS Range 38° To 42°
> SHIPPER: J. A. Wood
> Cantaloupes—"Copperhead Brand" marked to denote count (15's 18's and 23's noted).
> Applicant States 210 ctns 15, 420 ctns 18's, 126 ctns 23's.
> CONDITION: Firm. Green color. Decay in most cartons 1 to 5 melons (6 to 22%) in some none, average 10% mostly Cladosporium Rot, some Fusarium Rot.

5. After receiving the inspection results, respondent contacted the broker and complained about the condition of the cantaloupes. The broker contacted complainant's employee, Jake McManus, and informed him of the condition problems. Mr. McManus agreed to grant respondent protection for labor and shrinkage on the cantaloupes. That same day, the broker sent a letter to complainant, with a courtesy copy to respondent, stating as follows:

> This will confirm our conversation with Mr. Jake McManus on 11/5/84, in which it was agreed that you are granting Beacon Produce Company, Pompano Beach, FL, protection for labor and shrinkage on 756 cantaloupes, shipped 10/31/84, via Jim McDonald Truck. Account USDA inspection 11/5/84, Pompano Beach, FL, shows temperatures 40–42°; range 1–5 melons per carton in most samples (6–22%) some more, average 10% damage by cladisporium [sic] and fusarium rot.

6. Respondent eventually paid complainant $2,614.10 for the green onions and cantaloupes. Along with its payment, respondent sent copies of the November 5, 1984, inspection and subsequent November 29, 1984, federal inspection of 297 cartons of cantaloupes showing 100% decay. Respondent also sent a statement explaining its deductions. The statement indicated that respondent had deducted $1.00 per carton, or $756, for handling, $3,133.35 for the value of 297 cartons of cantaloupes dumped at $10.55 per carton, and $21.00 for a dump certificate.

7. Respondent has failed to make any additional payment to complainant for the cantaloupes.

8. A formal complaint was filed on April 15, 1985, which was within nine months from when the alleged cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent contends that after the truckload of cantaloupes and green onions arrived, and the cantaloupes were found to be in a deteriorated condition, complainant agreed to grant protection and handling. Complainant denies ever changing the original contract terms, claiming that when it received notice of the November 5, 1984, inspection results, the parties mutually agreed that at a later date, following sales, a settlement would be made if determined to be necessary. Complainant also alleges that the cantaloupes were mishandled, evidenced by the fact that 297 cartons were still on hand and needed to be dumped over three weeks after they arrived at respondent's place of business.

The first issue to be determined is whether the contract terms were changed to allow respondent protection for labor and shrinkage, as respondent claims. It is respondent's burden to prove that the contract terms were altered. American Banana Co. Inc. v. Marvin Gray, 41 Agric. Dec. 539 (1981). The record contains a letter to complainant from the broker dated November 5, 1984, stating that on that same date, pursuant to a discussion with complainant's Jake McManus, complainant granted respondent protection for labor and shrinkage on the cantaloupes (Findings of Fact 5). That letter also related that the November 5, 1984, inspection showed temperatures of from 40 to 42°F, and decay in the melons from six to 22%, average 10%. Complainant's salesman, Bryan Sakata, asserts in the opening statement that no such allowance was granted. However, Mr. McManus, not Mr. Sakata, was the person who the broker claims granted the allowance. The credibility of the broker's statement is buttressed by the results of the inspection. Although complainant claims in its opening statement that the condition factors found by the inspection were "minimal", it is apparent that a level of 10% decay in cantaloupes when transportation conditions are normal, as here, constitutes severe condition problems. Therefore, having learned of this, it was quite reasonable for complainant's Mr. McManus to have granted respondent protection for labor and shrinkage. Therefore, in the absence of any statement from Mr. McManus disputing the broker's account, or any other significant evidence in this regard, we conclude that respondent has sustained its burden of proving it was granted protection for labor and shrinkage.

Respondent claims that it incurred expenses of $776.00 for resorting the cantaloupes, damages of $3,133.35 consisting of the contract price plus freight of the 297 cartons it had to dump, plus $21.00 for the cost of a dump certificate, totaling $3,910.35. Complainant argues that since 297 cartons of melons were not sold after three weeks and dumped, it is evident that respondent did not properly handle them. We believe that since the cantaloupes had been resorted, no more than 150 cartons should have been unsaleable. Respondent's damages are thus $3,910.35, less the contract price plus freight of $10.55 per carton for the 147 cartons it should have been able to resell, or $2,359.50, plus the charges for resorting and a dump certificate, totaling $3,156.50. Accordingly, complainant was entitled to receive the difference between the contract price of $6,524.45 and its damages of $3,156.50, or $3,367.95. Since respondent has already paid $2,614.10, it remains liable for an additional $753.85, and its failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $753.85, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from December 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

NICK DELIS COMPANY, INC., v. EARLES J. SCHMUCKER, and WAYNE A. SCHMUCKER d/b/a SCHMUCKER'S POTATO STORAGE, PACA Docket No. 2-6907. Decided June 2, 1986.

Effect of broker's statements—meaning of f.o.b. prices, delivered sale as to grade and condition—modification of contract by consent of parties—liability for freight—reparation awarded.

Where parties disagreed as to terms of contract the broker's statements were determinative of the actual terms. Since contract was f.o.b. as to price and delivered as to grade and condition; respondent/receiver was liable for freight, but seller was responsible for deterioration while goods were in transit. Where complainant agreed to a modification of the contract without conditions, but asked for an inspection which it did not receive, it was still held to the terms of the modified contract.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation in the amount of $6,329.89 in conjunction with a shipment of a rail car of potatoes in interstate commerce.

Copies of the report of investigation made by the Department were served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which filed an answer thereto in which it denied the allegations contained in the complaint. Because the amount claimed as damages is less than $15,000.00 the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure the verified pleadings of the parties are part of the evidence in the case as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition the parties were given the opportunity to file evidence in the form of verified statements. Complainant filed an opening statement and respondent filed an answering statement. Although given an opportunity to do so neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Nick Delis Company, Inc., is a corporation with an address at P.O. Box 1089, Millbrae, California 94030.

2. Respondent, Earles J. Schmucker, and Wayne A. Schmucker, d/b/a Schmucker's Potato Storage is a partnership with an address at Route 2, West Unity, Ohio 43570. At the time of the transaction involved in this proceeding respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On May 15, 1984, complainant sold to respondent a rail car of potatoes, free on board as to price with a delivered sale as to grade and condition. The load of potatoes consisted of 665 sacks of U.S. No. 1 White rose potatoes and 435 sacks of U.S. No. 2 White rose potatoes. A temperature recorder was also placed upon the rail car.

4. William Schaub & Company, Indianapolis, Indiana, acted as the broker with respect to this transaction. The broker issued an initial memorandum of sale which stated that the contract was "Price Arrival". The corrected memorandum showed that the price of the 665 sacks of U.S. No. 1 potatoes was $7.00 per sack and the price of the 435 sacks of U.S. No. 2 potatoes was $6.00 per sack. Both memorandums showed "Fob prices, delivered sale as to grade and condition at destination."

5. The potatoes were shipped in interstate commerce, and arrived at respondent's place of business on or about May 25, 1984, where they were received and accepted by respondent. Upon receipt of the potatoes respondent complained that they were not in good condition. Such complaint was conveyed to the broker, which conveyed the complaint directly to the complainant along with respondent's request for protection for shrinkage and labor as a result of decay. Complainant agreed with the request of respondent for protection for shrinkage and labor, and asked for a Railroad Perishable Inspection Agency (RPIA) inspection.

6. Respondent sorted and repacked the potatoes, and provided to complainant an accounting which showed that there were 8,475 pounds of culls, which should have been No. 1 potatoes, but which it valued at half price, claiming a credit of $448.00; that extra labor incurred over and above normal labor for sorting was $188.00; that 345 hundredweight at an average price of $6.40 per hundredweight of potatoes were dumped for a total cost of $2,208.00; that the freight for those potatoes which were dumped deducted from the total freight charge was $1,225.00; that it took a price adjustment of $1,765.00; and that pursuant to a separate agreement between itself and complainant it was deducting $500.00 for additional freight, for a total deduction of $6,334.00. Respondent paid complainant $2,722.61 as the difference between the total claimed as a credit and the invoice price of $9,052.50 of complainant.

7. A formal complaint was filed in this proceeding on March 4, 1985. An informal complaint was filed on November 9, 1984, which was within nine months of the time the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This proceeding involves a dispute as to several aspects of the contract, as originally entered, and subsequently as modified by the parties. Complainant contends that the contract was free on board as to price, and delivered as to grade and condition. It contends that the price charged for the potatoes was $9.00 per sack for 665 sacks of U.S. No. 1 potatoes and $7.00 per sack for 435 sacks of U.S. No. 2 potatoes, plus $22.50 for a temperature recorder, for a total contract price of $9,052.50. Respondent, on the other hand, contends that the price to be charged by complainant was $7.00 per sack for the U.S. No. 1 potatoes and $6.00 per sack for the U.S. No. 2 potatoes. Complainant also contends that although it accepted respondent's assertions upon its receipt of the potatoes that there was considerable decay, it only agreed to provide respondent protection for shrinkage because respondent is a repacker, and would have to repack the potatoes in any event. Respondent contends that it asked for and received protection both for shrinkage and labor. Complainant also claims that respondent deducted $500.00 more for freight than it should have from its final accounting, which $500.00 was not authorized as a deduction by complainant. Finaily, complainant contends that it asked for a Railroad Perishable Inspection Agency inspection, and that respondent failed to provide it sufficient evidence as to the condition of the potatoes based upon such asserted inspection, as a result of which respondent has not proved its damages.

Insofar as the terms of the contract are concerned we accept the statement of William Schaub & Company, the broker for this transaction, because as an ostensibly neutral third party its testimony must be given great weight. Homestead Tomato Packing Co. v. Mims Produce, Inc., 43 Agric. Dec. ____ (1984); Kern Ridge Growers v. T.J. Power & Co., 48 Agric. Dec. 425 (1981). The broker issued two broker's memoranda for this transaction. The first memorandum did not contain any prices, and stated the contract was "Price Arrival". The second memorandum, which contained the notation "CORRECTED COPY", stated that the prices for the potatoes were $7.00 per sack for the U.S. No. 1 potatoes and $6.00 per sack for the U.S. No. 2 potatoes. It also stated that the freight charge was $3,413.00. Both memoranda also stated that the terms of sale were "Fob prices, delivered sale as to grade a condition at destination". We accept the corrected memorandum of the broker as properly reflecting the terms of sale for the transaction in issue herein. Therefore, we conclude that the price for the U.S. No. 1 potatoes was $7.00 per sack and the price for the U.S. No. 2 potatoes was $6.00 per sack. We also conclude that the original freight charge was $3,413.00.

7 CFR 46.43(dd) is important to a resolution of the meaning of the terms "fob prices, delivered sale as to grade and condition at destination". That provision states:

> "F.O.B. inspection and acceptance arrival" means that the produce quoted or sold is to be placed by the seller free on board car or other agency of through transportation at shipping point, the cost of transportation to be borne by the buyer, but the seller to assume all risks of loss and damage in transit not caused by the buyer, who has the right to inspect the goods upon arrival and to reject them if, upon such inspection, they are found not to meet the specifications of the contract of sale at destination. The buyer may not reject without reasonable cause. Such a sale is f.o.b. only as to price and is on a delivered basis as to grade, quality, and condition." (Emphasis added)

Although the language contained in 7 CFR 46.43(dd) is not exactly the same as the language contained in the broker's memorandum we are drawn to the conclusion that this is what the broker meant because the language "f.o.b. inspection and acceptance arrival" plus the emphasized statements contained thereafter are so close in meaning to the language "f.o.b. prices, delivered sale as to grade and condition at destination." Therefore, we find that the respondent is liable for payment of the transportation costs, and that the prices set forth by the broker are the prices agreed upon between the parties. We further find that the complainant was responsible for any deterioration in grade, quality or condition during the period of transit. As a result respondent had a right to reject the goods on arrival if it found that they did not meet the specifications in the contract of sale. Respondent did not do so. Rather, as shown by the broker's statement, the respondent asked for protection as to both shrinkage and labor. According to the broker complainant agreed to grant such protection. Therefore, it is liable for any costs incurred by respondent with respect to shrinkage or labor.

Although complainant asked for a Railroad Perishable Inspection Agency inspection, and respondent gave it a handwritten piece of paper without date which purported to contain to results of such an inspection, we cannot give credence to that document because it lacks a date, and was not otherwise properly identified as being and actual Railroad Perishable Inspection Agency report. This, however, makes no difference since complainant accepted respondent's request for a modification of the contract, and guaranteed it protection with respect to labor and shrinkage. Insofar as complainant's argument that it would never grant protection with respect to labor is concerned because respondent is a repacker, we reject the claim. Respondent made it clear that it did not claim for normal repacking. Rather it claimed for extra labor charges incurred in the amount of $188.00 above and beyond those which were usual for repacking.

The 665 sacks of No. 1 potatoes at $7.00 per sack came to a total price of $4,655.00. The 435 sacks of U.S. No. 2 potatoes at $6.00 per sack came to a total price of $2,610.00. To those prices should be added $22.50 for a temperature recorder for a total contract price for the potatoes of $7,287.50. As stated above respondent is responsible for the payment of the freight. Therefore, respondent may not deduct the freight costs from the total contract price. Respondent had the burden to show that there was an agreement with respect to an adjustment for freight, and because there was no evidence other than its bald statement that complainant and respondent had such an agreement, we find it did not sustain that burden. We find that respondent's deduction of $448.00 for 8,475 pounds of culls which should have been No. 1 potatoes, but which it valued at half price, warranted a credit in that amount. We find that respondent did incur extra labor in the amount of $188.00 for sorting the potatoes. We also find that its accounting with respect to 345 hundredweight of potatoes which were dumped at $6.40 per hundred weight for $2,208.00 was reasonable. As damages respondent is also entitled to deduct the cost of freight with respect to the dumped potatoes. It computed this cost $1,225.00. However, that calculation was based upon a total freight charge or $3,913.00. We find that the total freight charge in this case which has been proved was $3,413.00. 435 hundredweight is 31.4 percent of 1,100 hundredweight. 31.4 percent of $3,413.00 is $1,071.68. That is the total amount of freight which may be deducted as damages for the dumped potatoes. Therefore, from the total contract price of $7,287.50 there should be deducted $448.00 for culls, $188.00 for labor, $2,208.00 for dumping, and $1,071.68 for freight, for a total deduction of $3,915.68, leaving $3,371.82 as respondent's total obligation with respect to this load of potatoes. Respondent has paid complainant $2,722.61 previously, leaving $649.21 which respondent has not paid complainant. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded, with interest thereon.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant $649.21 with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from June 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

FRESH WESTERN MARKETING, INC., v. CORGAN & SON, INC., PACA Docket No. 2-6885. Decided June 5, 1986.

Contract terms—f.o.b. terms supported by evidence rather than open price, price after sale, consignment—burden of proof on buyer to show breach of warranty and damages—breach of warranty not proven by buyer—reparation awarded.

Where the evidence supported the seller's contention that f.o.b. terms were in effect for all six loads of lettuce, and respondent failed to sustain its burden of proving a breach of warranty regarding these loads, respondent is liable for the unpaid contract price.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $13,958.28 in connection with the sale and shipment of six truckloads of lettuce to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which failed to file an answer thereto, and was held in default. The default was subsequently set aside and respondent filed an answer to the complaint, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as is the verified complaint. The answer, since it is not verified, is not considered part of the evidence. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Neither party submitted any additional evidence. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Fresh Western Marketing, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 5275, Salinas, California.

2. Respondent, Corgan & Son Inc., is a corporation whose address is 161-162 N.Y.C. Terminal Market, Bronx, New York. At the times of the transactions involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. From October 12, 1983, through December 24, 1983, complainant sold and shipped to respondent, in interstate commerce, six truckloads of lettuce on an f.o.b. basis. Bills of lading were prepared for each load, reflecting the quantity, truck number (except for the October 12, 1983, sale), and desired temperature range of 33°F to 36°F. The terms of sale and shipment for each load were as follows:

Date of Sale	Number of Cartons	F.O.B. Price	Truck Number
October 12, 1983	324	1,863.00	Not Listed
November 11, 1983	875	11,068.75	CABT03628
November 16, 1983	900	6,097.50	CRSZ550011
November 26, 1983	902	6,683.82	VA132012
November 30, 1983	1250	9,585.00	SFRC56002
December 24, 1983	825	8,916.25	CRAZ520629
	Total	$44,214.32

4. All six truckloads were accepted by respondent upon their arrival at its place of business.

5. On October 20, 1983, respondent had the October 12, 1983, load federally inspected, which resulted as follows:

Products Inspected:	LETTUCE, Iceberg type in cartons branded "Green Crest 2 doz. heads, California Coastal Farms, Inc., Salinas, California". Applicant States: 324 cartons.
Temperature of Product:	Ranges 37 to 38F.
Condition:	Heads or portions of heads not affected by condition defects are fresh and crisp. Wrapper Leaves: No decay. Head Leaves: 1 to 3 heads per carton, average 9% damage by discoloration following bruising scattered throughout pack. 2 to 4 heads per carton, average 13% Bacterial Soft Rot in various stages affecting 1 to 2 leaves.

Remarks:	Applicant states stock unloaded from AT-91328CA.

6. On November 15, 1983, respondent secured a federal inspection of what it claims to be the November 11, 1983, load. The inspection found as follows, in relevant part:

INITIAL & NO. IMSZ560123

VARIOUS CONTAINERS Range 38° To 39°F.

Lettuce Iceberg type in cartons branded "King O' Hearts Lettuce 2 Doz. Heads CA".

Applicant states 875 cartons.

Wrapper Leaves:	Average 2% Decay.
Head Leaves:	1 to 2 heads in most cartons none in some average 5% damage by discoloration following bruising. 1 to 4 decayed heads in most cartons, none in many average 8% Bacterial Soft Rot in various stages affecting from 1 to 2 leaves.

REMARKS Inspection restricted to initial 100 cartons being unloaded and in 2 incomplete stacks nearest rear doors.

7. On November 22, 1983, complainant had the November 16, 1983, load federally inspected. The inspection revealed as follows, in relevant part:

INITIAL & NO. CRSZ550011

VARIOUS CONTAINERS Range 40 To 43°F.

LETTUCE, Iceberg type "King O' Hearts, 2 dozen heads."

Applicant states: Approximately 500 cartons remaining on van.

Condition: 1 to 5 heads in most cartons, none in some, average 9% damage by Tipburn. 2 to 8 heads per carton average 20% Bacterial Soft Rot in various stages affecting 1 to 4 leaves mostly following Tipburn.

REMARKS Restricted to approximately 300 cartons being unloaded at time of inspection and 5 stacks nearest rear doors.

8. On December 12, 1983, respondent had the November 30, 1983, load federally inspected. The inspection revealed as follows, in relevant part:

INITIAL & NO. SFRC56002

VARIOUS CONTAINERS Range 38° To 39°F.

Lettuce, Iceberg type in cartons branded "King O' Hearts 2 Dozen Calif."

Applicant states approx. 700 cartons.

Condition: Wrapper Leaves: No decay. Head Leaves: 1 to 3 heads in most cartons none in some average 6% damage by Russet Spotting. 1 to 7 heads per carton average 15% damage by tipburn. 1 to 4 decayed heads in most cartons none in many average 7% Bacterial Soft Rot in various stages affecting 1 to 2 leaves.

10. Respondent has paid complainant a total of $30,256.04 for the six loads, consisting of $624.54 for the October 12, 1983, load, $7,568.75 for the November 11, 1983, load, $4,297.50 for the November 16, 1983, load, $6,314.00 for the November 26, 1983, load $5,835.00 for the November 30, 1983, load, and $5,616.25 for the December 24, 1983, load. Respondent has failed to pay any part of the $13,958.28 which complainant claims is still due and owing for the six truckloads.

11. An informal complaint was filed on April 23, 1984, which was within nine months from when the causes of action herein accrued. A formal complaint was filed on December 4, 1984.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent denies liability, claiming that the six loads of lettuce it admittedly received and accepted were severely deteriorated, and respondent was thus justified in remitting to complainant only the net proceeds obtained on resale. Respondent contends that after it informed complainant of the condition problems, complainant agreed to allow it to handle the November 11, 1983, and November 16, 1983, loads on consignment. Further, respondent contends that the November 13, 1983, load was sold on an open price basis, and the November 26, 1983, load had price after sale terms in effect.

The first issue to be resolved is that of the contract terms agreed to by the parties. In its sworn complaint, complainant asserts that f.o.b. terms were in effect for all six loads. Respondent's allegations that certain transactions had open price or price after sale terms are made in unsworn letters to the Department, which can be given little weight as evidence. We thus conclude that all six loads were sold on a f.o.b. basis. Respondent's contention that complainant agreed to a consignment for two loads after learning of the condition problems is set forth in an unsworn letter to the Department in which respondent states it was told to "do the best we could." As respondent's allegations are unsworn, they cannot be given significant weight. Further, we have stated in previous cases that language such as "do the best you can with it" does not constitute authorization for handling on consignment. Relan Produce Farms v. Rushton & Co., Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 1636 (1979).

Since respondent admittedly received and accepted the six loads of lettuce, it became liable for the contract price minus damages resulting from any breach of warranty, which respondent has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence. Growers Exchange, Inc. v. Central Carolina Grocers, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 666 (1983). As we have determined that these were f.o.b. sales, complainant gave the implied warranty of suitable shipping condition, which, as stated in 7 CFR 46.43(j), "in relation to direct shipments, means that the commodity, at time of billing, is in a condition which, if the shipment is handled under normal transportation service and conditions, will assure delivery without abnormal deterioration at the contract destination agreed upon between the parties." Respondent has submitted inspection reports which it contends prove that complainant breached its warranty with respect to five out of the six truckloads of lettuce. However, examination of these inspection reports does not bear out respondent's contentions.

The October 20, 1983, inspection of the October 12, 1983, shipment shows nine percent damage by discoloration following bruising and 13 percent decay, but was taken eight days after shipment. This is two to three days longer than the normal transportation time from complainant's location in Salinas, California, to respondent in Bronx, New York. We find that transportation conditions in this load were therefore abnormal, which voided the suitable shipping condition warranty.

The record contains a November 15, 1983, inspection, which respondent claims covers the November 11, 1983, shipment. However, the bill of lading for the 875 cartons shipped on November 11, 1983, shows that they were loaded onto truck number CABT03628, and the November 15, 1983, inspection submitted by respondent shows the 875 cartons inspected on truck number IMSZ560123. This casts doubt as to whether the lettuce inspected was the same as was loaded onto the truck by complainant. In any event, the inspection report make clear that the inspection was restricted to only 100 cartons being unloaded and two incomplete stacks nearest the rear doors. This is a small percentage of the 875 cartons contained in the load and cannot be considered to reflect the condition of the entire load. Therefore, no breach of warranty has been established by respondent for the November 11, 1983, load.

The November 22, 1983, inspection, which respondent secured on the November 16, 1983, shipment, was also restricted, as only 500 of the 900 cartons remained in the truck at the time of inspection, and the report states that the inspection was limited to only 300 cartons being unloaded and five stacks nearest the rear doors. Further, the pulp temperature was 40 to 43°F, which is too high and evidences improper handling by respondent. We thus do not accept the November 22, 1983, inspection as an accurate representation of the condition of the lettuce when it arrived at respondent's place of business, and find no breach of warranty by complainant.

There is no evidence of any inspection having been taken on the November 26, 1983, truckload, and we have held that this was an f.o.b. sale rather than a price after sale, as respondent contends. Therefore, respondent is liable for the contract price.

The record contains an inspection report dated December 12, 1983, covering the November 30, 1983, truckload. The 12 day span of time between the shipping date and the date of inspection is much too long and renders the inspection results completely without evidentiary value. Even if the inspection had been timely, the report makes clear that it was restricted to 125 cartons and two incomplete stacks out of the 1,250 cartons shipped, an insignificant percentage. There is no credible evidence of any breach of warranty in this transaction.

The January 4, 1984, federal inspection took place 11 days after shipment of the December 24, 1983, truckload, which is also an excessive period of time. Further, the inspection was restricted to only 100 cartons being unloaded at the time of inspection and two incomplete stacks nearest the rear doors, a small percentage of the 825 cartons contained in the December 24, 1983, truckload. Therefore, respondent has not proven a breach of warranty regarding this transaction as well.

We have concluded that respondent has failed to sustain its burden of proving a breach of warranty by complainant regarding any of the six shipments of lettuce at issue. Therefore, respondent was obligated to pay the entire contract price of $44,214.32 but paid only $30,256.04, leaving a balance due and owing of $13,958.28. Respondent's failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $13,958.28, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from February 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

KENT W. NORTHCROSS d/b/a NORTHCROSS DISTRIBUTING, v. GEORGE VILLALOBOS d/b/a TEKSUN BRAND INTERNATIONAL, PACA Docket No. 2-6824. Decided June 12, 1986.

F.o.b. sale and acceptance following arrival—affirmative defenses not proven by a preponderance of the evidence—condition of produce on arrival must be proven by neutral inspection—damages not awarded on basis of speculative profits—reparation awarded.

Complainant sold and shipped to respondent several loads of produce on an f.o.b. basis. Respondent raised several affirmative defenses which were not proven by a preponderance of the evidence. In particular, respondent's claim that the produce arrived in poor condition was not supported by neutral inspections. Respondent's counterclaim was based on the alleged destruction of respondent's business by complainant's shipment of inferior product, and was found to be not proven. In addition the damages sought for the alleged destruction of respondent's business were stated to be speculative and therefore were not recoverable in any event.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation in the amount of $51,425.26 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of six truckloads of tomatoes, one partial truckload of bell peppers and pickling cucumbers, and one partial truckload of red bell peppers.

A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which defaulted in the filing of an answer. Later respondent filed a motion to reopen after default, and such motion was served upon complainant. Complainant did not object to reopening, and on May 8, 1985, this proceeding was reopened, and a proposed answer previously submitted by respondent was ordered filed. Respondent's answer denied liability to complainant, and also included a counterclaim in the amount of $548,070 based in part on previous transactions with complainant. Complainant filed a reply to the counterclaim denying any liability thereunder. The Department did not file a report of investigation.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint and counterclaim exceeds $15,000.00, the parties waived oral hearing, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement and Respondent filed an answering statement. Complainant did not file a statement in reply. Respondent filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Kent W. Northcross, is an individual doing business as Northcross Distributing, whose address is Rio Rico Industrial Park, Nogales, Arizona. At the time of the transactions involved herein complainant was licensed under the Act.

2. Respondent, George Villalobos, is an individual doing business as Teksun Brand International, whose address is 1865 Decatur Drive, San Jose, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. Between February 23, and March 12, 1984, complainant sold to respondent and shipped from Nogales, Arizona to respondent in San Jose, California, six truckloads of tomatoes, one partial truckload of red bell peppers, and one partial truckload of mixed bell peppers and pickling cucumbers, for invoice prices totalling $73,981.25, f.o.b.

4. Respondent accepted all of the subject produce and has paid complainant a total of $12,997.59 therefor. In addition complainant has granted respondent allowances on the produce in the total amount of $14,216.40. There remains due and owing from respondent to complainant the sum of $46,767.26.

5. The formal complaint was filed on September 4, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent does not dispute the quantities of perishable produce which complainant alleges were sold to respondent, nor does respondent dispute the original invoice prices applicable to such produce. However, respondent set forth several affirmative defenses which he had the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence. See NewMiller Farms v. Nicolls, 36 Agric. Dec. 1230 (1977) and Walker & Hagen Packing House v. Amato Bros. Tomato Distributors, Inc., 27 Agric. Dec. 1543 (1968). Respondent alleges that on arrival the produce did not conform to the quality agreed upon between the parties when the contracts for the produce were entered. Respondent alleges that it agreed to purchase "number one product" but that complainant shipped inferior product. Respondent further alleges that it refused to accept the commodities as shipped, but at complainant's insistence agreed to receive the product "without obligation and without price." Respondent further alleges that it has "refused to pay for said balance, because of the devastating consequences, complainant's product had upon my business." Respondent then sets forth a counterclaim based upon complainant's alleged destruction of its business, and the speculative profits which respondent alleges its business would have realized over the next three years. This claim is easily resolved since it was established many years ago that damages cannot be awarded based on speculative profits. Heller Bros. Co. Inc. v. Associated Fruit Distributors of California, 4 Agric. Dec. 1002 (1945).

The documentation relative to the eight shipments of produce nowhere indicates that there was an agreement between the parties that the produce was to be U.S. No. 1, or any other specified quality. Respondent has presented us with no credible evidence that any such quality was agreed to. Furthermore respondent did not submit any federal inspection reports covering the produce, and has therefore failed to substantiate its allegations in regard to the poor condition or quality of the produce on arrival. See Mutual Vegetable Sales v. Select Distributors, 38 Agric. Dec. 1359 (1979). We find that respondent has failed to substantiate its allegations in regard to an agreement subsequent to arrival that the produce was received "without obligation and without price". In addition we find that respondent accepted the produce and has not proven any breach of contract on the part of complainant. Accordingly, respondent is liable to complainant for the full purchase price of the produce, less the amounts already paid and the amounts of the adjustments allowed by complainant, or a total of $46,767.26.

Respondent's counterclaim failed to demonstrate that complainant was responsible for the destruction of respondent's business. Neither did such counterclaim establish that any amount is due from complainant to respondent on the earlier transactions referred to in such counterclaim. We find that the counterclaim should be dismissed.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $46,767.26, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from April 1, 1984, until paid.

The counterclaim is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $804.00 in connection with a truckload of plums in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, Sunnyside Packing Company, is a corporation whose mailing address is P. O. Box 828, Selma, California 93662. Respondent, Inter-Tex Enterprises, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 727 Ceralvo Street, San Antonio, Texas 78207. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $804.00. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $804.00 with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from August 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $3,576.00 in connection with two shipments of mixed produce in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, D'Arrigo Bros. Co. of California, is a corporation whose mailing address is P. O. Box 850, Salinas, California 93902. Respondent, Inter-Tex Enterprises, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 727 Ceralvo Street, San Antonio, Texas 78207. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $3,576.00. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $3,576.00 with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from September 1, 1985, until paid.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $1,062.50 in connection with two truckloads of lettuce in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, Sonora Ranches, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 9123 North Cave Creek, Phoenix, Arizona 85020. Respondent, Inter-Tex Enterprises, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 727 Ceralvo Street, San Antonio, Texas 78207. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $1,062.50. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $1,062.50 with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from December 1, 1985, until paid.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation from respondent in the amount of $3,004.50 in connection with one transaction, in interstate commerce, involving lettuce, a perishable agricultural commodity.

Both parties were served with a copy of the Department's report of investigation. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any further liability to complainant. In addition, respondent counterclaimed against respondent in the amount of $2,336.00.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) has been followed. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence of the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to submit further evidence by way of verified statements. Complainant filed a verified opening statement, and respondent filed a verified answering statement. Also, respondent filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Merrill Farms, is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 659, Salinas, California 93902.

2. Respondent, J. Caruso Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 14 South Water Market, Chicago, Illinois 60608.

3. At all material times, each party was licensed under the Act.

4. On or about February 17, 1983, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant, by oral contract, sold to respondent 840 cartons of lettuce at an f.o.b. price of $2.75 per carton plus 65 cents per carton cooling, 15 cents per carton brokerage, and $22.50 for a

Ryan recorder, for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $3,004.50. The contract was negotiated through Fry Distributing Co., Inc., 2840 South Ashland, Chicago, Illinois 60608. The lettuce was shipped on that same date from a loading point in Arizona to respondent in Chicago on board van No. AXXZ 595754 which is owned and operated by Agricultural Express of America, 3409 West Pershing Road, Chicago, Illinois 60632. The van arrived in Chicago on Sunday, February 20, 1983, at 4:15 p.m. CST. As Monday, February 21, 1983, was observed as a legal holiday by the merchants on the South Water Market in Chicago, respondent did not open for business until 3:00 a.m. CST, February 22, 1983. At that time, it received notification of the van's arrival from the Flash Delivery Co. which had picked up the trailer from the unloading ramp of the Agricultural Express of America, and was further notified that the van would be delivered to respondent's location as soon as the South Water Market Association's rules permitted.

5. An employee of respondent was sent to check the van prior to its being delivered to respondent's loading dock. Upon arrival, the employee was advised that the refrigeration motor on the van was not running, and that the motor was out of fuel. The Flash Delivery Co. was contacted concerning this matter and advised respondent that the refrigeration unit had been operating when the van was delivered to the South Water Market Association lot at 1:00 a.m. on the morning of February 22, 1983.

6. The Ryan recording tape indicates that the instrument operated for about 108 hours. Since the bill of lading indicates that the loading was completed at 4:55 p.m. on February 17, 1983, this would indicate that the Ryan operated until about 6:00 a.m. on February 22, 1983. The tape further indicated that the temperature on board van No. AXXZ 595754 started at 75°F., quickly rose to 95°F. within the first two hours, dropped to about 42°F. two hours thereafter, dropped to 40°F. eight hours after that, and dropped to 35°F. at the end of the first 24 hour period. For the next 82 hours, the temperature was maintained in a 35°F. to 37°F. range and, for the last two hours in which the Ryan recording thermometer was operating, the temperature slowly rose to around 41°F. or 42°F. The company which supplied the Ryan recorder, Ryan Instruments, Inc., P.O. Box 599, Kirkland, Washington 98033, subsequent to this trip, recalibrated it and notified respondent as follows:

> Ryan #342656 returned to our Kirkland plant on Feb. 24, 1983. Upon testing, it was determined that the temperature sensor was reading 3 to 4° low throughout the entire temperature range. The chartdrive mechanism was accurate as to time. The hinge on the outer case was cracked.

I'd like to direct your attention to the 108 hour point of chart 82361. The dark markings at this point indicate the instrument sustained an impact, apparently while being removed from the vehicle. This impact appears to be responsible for the error factor noted in our testing. In view of this, the recording prior to the point of impact is an accurate reflection of temperatures encountered on the trip. If we may be a further assistance, please advise.

7. On February 22, 1983, at 8:50 a.m. CST, the lettuce on board van No. AXXZ 595754 was inspected while still on board the van which was located in the truck lot at the South Water Market in Chicago, Illinois. The inspection certificate issued thereafter (F 010523) indicates that the temperature control unit was not operating, that respondent had unloaded approximately 150 cartons of the total 840 cartons shipped, and that the pulp temperature of the lettuce was as follows: "Near ⅔ length of trailer: Top 70°F, 3rd layer 68°F, 4th layer 88°F, floor 63°F." The inspection certificate further indicates that the condition of the lettuce was as follows:

Heads or portions of heads not affected by condition defects are fresh and crisp. Wrapper leaves only; [sic] Serious damage by decay, in most samples 2 to 12 heads, in many none, average 17%. Head leaves; [sic] Decay ranges from 12 to 24 heads per cartons [sic], average 83%, Bacterial Soft Rot, in advanced stages.

8. The load of lettuce was the subject of a second Federal inspection on February 24, 1983, at 1:05 p.m. CST. The inspection certificate issued thereafter (F 010668) indicates that the lettuce was inspected while on board the van which was located in the truck lot of the South Water Market in Chicago, Illinois, and that the temperature control unit on the truck was not running. The temperature of the lettuce is recorded as follows: "Rear doors: Top 78°F, 3rd layer 63°F., 4th layer 65°F., Floor 58°F. Rear ½ length: Top 59°, 3rd layer 68°, floor 55°F. Rear ¼ length: Top 54°, 3rd layer 64°, floor 60°F." In addition, the inspection certificate notes the condition of the lettuce as follows:

Heads or portions of heads not affected by condition defects are fresh and crisp. Wrapper leaves only: Serious damages by decay, in most samples 2 to 16 heads, in some none, average 33%. Head leaves: Decay ranges from 3 to 24 heads per carton, average 57%, Bacterial Soft Rot, in advanced stages.

9. On February 24, 1983, the lettuce on board van No. AXXZ 595754 was dumped by the C Post Disposal Service, 1439 South 58th Court, Cicero, Illinois 60650, at a cost of $300 to the respondent.

10. On February 24, 1983, the respondent sent complainant the following telegram at 1:09 p.m. EST:

> BE ADVISED AXXZ595754 ARRIVED IN DETERIORATED CONDITION PER USDA INSPECTION WE HAVE ATTEMPTED TO HAVE FUEL PUT IN REFRIGERATED UNIT WITHOUT SUCCESS. WE BELIEVE THE CONDITION OF THIS LETTUCE REQUIRES IT TO BE DUMPED AS IT HAS NO COMMERCIAL VALUE WE HAVE BEEN ATTEMPTING TO OBTAIN A DISPOSAL COMPANY TO TAKE THE LETTUCE TO DUMP BUT HAVE BEEN UNSUCCESSFUL SO FAR WE ACCEPT NO RESPONSIBILITY FOR THIS LETTUCE AND WILL HANDLE IT ONLY FOR THE ACCOUNT FOR WHOM IT CONCERNS FOR THE PURPOSE OF HAVING IT DUMPED AS SOON AS POSSIBLE FOR THE PURPOSE OF MINIMIZING THE LOSS. PLEASE BE GOVERNED ACCORDINGLY WE WILL KEEP YOU ADVISED.

11. The complainant sent the respondent the following telegram at 6:03 p.m. EST on February 24, 1983:

> RECEIPT IS ACKNOWLEDGED OF YOUR FEBRUARY 24, 1983 TELEGRAM IN REFERENCE TO VAN AXXZ 595754 SHIPPED FEBRUARY 17, 1983. PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT AT THIS TIME MERRILL FARMS DOES NOT CONSIDER CARUSO RELEASED FROM ITS RESPONSIBILITY OF THIS F.O.B. CONTRACT. FURTHER THE CONTRACT WILL STAY IN FORCE UNTIL DETERMINATION CAN BE FOR THE HIGH PULP TEMPERATURE AT DESTINATION. AS THIS WAS AN F.O.B. SHIPMENT ALL DOCUMENTS MUST BE RECEIVED TO DETERMINE WHERE LIABILITY SHOULD BE PLACED. UPON RECEIPT OF DOCUMENTS WE WILL REVIEW THIS MATTER SO IT CAN BE CONCLUDED PROPERLY.

12. The United States Department of Agriculture Market News Report for February 22, 1983, covering the Chicago wholesale market indicates that the lettuce had a minimum value of $6 per carton, and that the prices were steady.

13. The formal complaint was filed on June 13, 1983, which was within nine months of when the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

There is no dispute in this case about certain material facts, viz, that the parties entered into an agreement whereby complainant would sell respondent 840 cartons of lettuce for a total f.o.b. price of $3,004.50, that the lettuce was shipped by complainant, and that the lettuce was received and accepted by respondent. Accordingly, having accepted the lettuce, respondent became obligated to complainant for the full contract price less any provable damages. Rocky Ford Dist. Co. v. Angel Produce, 29 Agric. Dec. 93 (1970). The respondent has the burden of proof as to such matters. The Growers-Shipper Pot. Co. v. Southw. Pro. Co., 28 Agric. Dec. 571 (1969). In this case, therefore, the respondent must prove that the complainant breached the parties' contract, and that it was damaged as a consequence thereof.

The respondent has alleged that the lettuce which complainant shipped was not of the quality called for by their contract. As this was an f.o.b. sale, the lettuce was to be placed on board the van by complainant, at the shipping point, in suitable shipping condition. 7 CFR § 46.43(i). This means that the complainant was obligated to load lettuce on board the van which would arrive at the contract destination without abnormal deterioration if the shipment was handled under normal transportation service and conditions. 7 CFR § 46.43(i). R. C. Walter & Son v. Gatz, 31 Agric. Dec. 655 (1972). Respondent has alleged that the complainant failed in this regard, and that the complainant breached its warranty of suitable shipping condition. As noted above, respondent has the burden of proof on this issue, i.e., it must show that the lettuce showed abnormal deterioration upon arrival and that transportation conditions were normal. Valley Packing Co. v. Nicholas J. Zerillo, Inc., 28 Agric. Dec. 1352 (1969). There is no dispute between the parties about whether the lettuce was abnormally deteriorated; the first Federal inspection, on February 22, 1984, makes that clear. Thus, the dispositive issue in this case is whether or not there were abnormal shipping conditions as was alleged by the complainant.

The only substantive evidence on transportation service and condition is the tape from the Ryan recording device.[1] However, the

[1] The record also contains the affidavit of complainant's salesperson who is based in California, and who claims the load was properly pre-cooled. Since the load was efficacy of this evidence is in dispute. Respondent argues the tape proves that the temperature on board the van was normal; complainant argues that the device was damaged and it therefore proves nothing. However, substantial evidence in the record indicates that this device operated properly throughout the entire trip. There is evidence that it was damaged after having operated for 108 hours. Considering the indication, on the bill of lading, that the loading was completed on February 17, 1983, at 4:55 p.m., the Ryan device operated until about 6:00 a.m. on February 22, 1983. Since this was about the time when respondent's employees opened the van, we concluded that the damage to the device did not occur until an attempt was made to remove it from the van. Such a conclusion is consistent with that made by the Ryan Instruments, Inc., personnel who inspected the device shortly thereafter.

In view of the above, we conclude that the tape from the Ryan device properly recorded the temperature on the van. The tape showed that the temperature in the van was normal throughout the trip, i.e., after the first few hours, the tape shows the temperature on board the truck to be about 36°F. This is exactly the temperature which the bill of lading required the air temperature to be.

In spite of this evidence to the contrary, complainant maintains, however, that the carrying temperature on the van was too high. However, since we conclude that the Ryan recording device was operating correctly throughout the trip, and the tape from the trip indicates that the temperatures were maintained in a proper order throughout it, we conclude that complainant's allegation is unsupported by any record evidence. The complainant is apparently relying on the result of the recalibration of the recording device subsequent to the trip to support its claim that the temperatures on the van were too high. However, Ryan Instruments, Inc., which recalibrated its device after the trip, indicated that, while at the time of the recalibration the device was recording temperatures 4°F. lower than the actual temperature, it was expected this fault was not in effect during the trip, but rather resulted from some damage which shipped from Arizona, it is difficult to understand how this person was in a position to attest to this fact. Moreover, the evidence he points to, a sheet titled "Operator's Daily Report," which ostensibly is a report from the complainant's pre-cooler in inconclusive at best. In the worst light for complainant, the "Operator's Daily Report" supports respondent's contention that the lettuce was not properly pre-cooled since it only reflects that 600 cartons of "Merrill Farms" lettuce were cooled, while complainant shipped 840 cartons. The Ryan tape, see below, shows a sharp temperature rise after the lettuce was loaded. Such a rise could have occurred if complainant only pre-cooled 600 of the 840 cartons loaded on the van.

occurred in removing the device from the van at the 108 hour point. Even had the temperature range been 4°F. higher than was reported on the Ryan tape, this temperature of about 40°F. would not have been the primary cause for the pulp temperature of the lettuce to rise to a temperature range of 63°F. to 88°F. as is reflected on the first Federal inspection certificate issued on February 22, 1983. Even had the cooling device not been properly functioning for several hours before the lettuce was inspected, since the temperature in mid-February in Chicago is not likely to be very high, such a failure would not account for the high temperature of the lettuce (63°F–88°F) reflected at 8:50 a.m., February 22, 1983, federal inspection. On the basis of all of the evidence in the record, we find that there were no abnormal shipping conditions in effect during the trip. James Macchiaroli Fruit Co. v. Thos. Caito Sons, 21 Agric. Dec. 525 (1962).

Since we have found that there were no abnormal shipping conditions, the complainant's warranty of suitable shipping conditions is maintained in effect. Inasmuch as the condition of the lettuce upon arrival was so poor as to indicate that the lettuce which complainant loaded in the van was in unsuitable shipping condition, we must hold that complainant breached its contract with respondent. As a result thereof, respondent is entitled to damages. The measure of damages for breach of warranty as to accepted goods is the difference at the time and place of delivery between the value of the goods delivered and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted, together with incidental damages. U.C.C. section 2–714; Ritepak Produce v. Green Grove Markets, 29 Agric. Dec. 165 (1970). We may accept the market news price for lettuce on the date of delivery as the value of the lettuce if delivered as warranted. Anaya Farms v. Produce Distributors, 20 Agric. Dec. 58 (1961). That price was $6.00 per carton, or a total of $5,040.00 for the 840 cartons. The goods delivered, in the instant case, had no value inasmuch as the whole lot of lettuce had to be dumped. Respondent's damage is thus $5,040.00. The contract price for the 840 cartons of lettuce was $3,004.50. Respondent is thus due $2,035.50 ($5,040.00 less $3,004.50) plus the $300 cost of dumping the lettuce, or $2,335.50, from the complainant. Complainant's failure to pay respondent this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

ORDER

Within 30 days of the date of this order, complainant shall pay respondent $2,335.50, as reparation, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from April 1, 1983, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

THOMAS G. VALENZUELA d/b/a T. G. VALENZUELA PRODUCE, v. TEDDY BERTUCA d/b/a TEDDY BERTUCA COMPANY, PACA Docket No. 2-6710. Decided June 23, 1986.

Consignment—breach of duty by respondent consignee—reparation awarded.

Where respondent accepted seven lots of cantaloupes on consignment from complainant, he breached his duty as a consignee by failing to provide accounts of sale and remit the net proceeds of the sales. Respondent's liability does not extend to loads where the evidence supports his claim that the cantaloupes were in very poor condition upon arrival at his place of business.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $26,178.19 in connection with the consignment of seven lots of cantaloupes to respondent in interstate and foreign commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability. Respondent subsequently amended its answer and asserted a counterclaim in the amount of $6,321.39 in connection with the subject matter of the complaint. Complainant filed a reply, denying liability.

The amount claimed as damages exceeds $15,000.00 and respondent requested an oral hearing. Therefore, an oral hearing took place in Tuscon, Arizona, on November 19, 1985. At the hearing, only respondent was represented by legal counsel, as complainant elected to proceed without counsel. Three witnesses testified for complainant and six witnesses testified for respondent. Respondent also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Thomas G. Valenzuela, d/b/a T. G. Valenzuela Produce, is an individual whose address is P.O. Box 2280, Nogales, Arizona. At the times of the transactions alleged in the counterclaim, complainant was licensed under the Act.

2. Teddy Bertuca d/b/a Teddy Bertuca Produce, is an individual whose address is P.O. Box 2896, Nogales, Arizona. At the times of the transactions alleged in the complaint, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately January 22, 25, 28, 30, and 31, 1984, complainant, by oral contract, consigned to respondent seven loads of cantaloupes consisting of sizes 15, 18, 23, 30, 36 and 42. The contract provided that respondent was to receive a 10% commission after sale. Respondent also gave complainant a $20,000.00 cash advance.

4. The cantaloupes comprising the seven loads were shipped from Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico, to the Mexican/American border on January 20, 1984 (hereinafter "transaction 1"), January 22, 1984 (hereinafter "transaction 2"), January 25, 1984 (hereinafter "transaction 3"), January 26, 1984 (hereinafter "transaction 4"), January 28, 1984 (hereinafter "transaction 5"), January 28, 1984 (hereinafter "transaction 6"), and January 29, 1984 (hereinafter "transaction 7"). Upon their arrival at the border, four of the loads were subjected to a federal inspection. Transaction 3 was inspected on January 28, 1984, and found to contain "1136 half crate . . . defects 22 to 50%, average 35%, including from 11 to 39%, average 26% decay. Pulp temperature 60 F." Transaction 5 was inspected on January 30, 1984, and found to contain "1088 half crate . . . defects 13 to 39%, average 22%, including 9 to 39%, average 19% decay. Pulp temperature 45 F." Transaction 6 was inspected on January 30, 1984, and found to contain "598 half crate . . . defects 4 to 22%, average 14%, including from 4 to 22%, average 11% decay. Pulp temperature 48 F." Transaction 7 was inspected on January 31, 1984, and found to contain "992 half crate . . . defects 11 to 28%, average 16%, including 3% bruises, 3% sunburn, 3% scars and in most samples none, in many from 6 to 11% average 3% decay. Pulp temperature 40 F."

5. The cantaloupes arrived at respondent's place of business, and were found to contain the following numbers of crates for each size of cantaloupe:

Date Received	Transaction No.	15's	18's	23's	30's	36's	42's	Total
1/22/84	1	0	78	285	64	120	1	548
1/25/84	2	0	113	564	96	218	0	991
1/28/84	3	0	203	671	87	175	0	1136
1/28/84	4	32	224	633	57	187	0	1133
1/30/84	5	0	0	597	0	0	0	597
1/30/84	6	24	367	356	60	281	0	1088
1/31/84	7	0	252	546	15	169	0	982

6. Respondent accepted the cantaloupes for handling on consignment and disposed of them, but never provided complainant with accounts of sale or returns from the sale of the consigned cantaloupes.

7. A formal complaint was filed on August 22, 1984, which was within nine months from when the causes of action herein accrued. A counterclaim was filed on June 5, 1985, in connection with the subject matter of the complaint.

CONCLUSIONS

The complaint concerns seven loads of cantaloupes which respondent agreed to handle on consignment for complainant's account. Complainant complains that he never received any accounts of sale or notice of problems, and has not been paid anything by respondent. It is respondent's position that the cantaloupes were defective and difficult to sell. Respondent contends that his net proceeds were less than the $20,000.00 it advanced to complainant and has filed a counterclaim for the difference.

Since respondent was handling the cantaloupes on consignment, he was obliged to adhere to the requirements of section 46.29(a) of the Department's regulations (7 CFR § 46.29(a)), which states as follows, in pertinent part:

> It is a violation of section 2 of the Act to fail to render true and correct accountings in connection with consignments or produce handled on joint account. Charges which cannot be supported by proper evidence in the records of the commission merchant or joint account partner shall not be deducted. The commission merchant or joint account partner may be held liable for any financial loss and for other penalties provided by the Act, due to his negligence or failure to perform any specification or duty, express or implied, arising out of any transaction subject to the Act.

Complainant, as the party alleging that respondent was in breach of duty as a consignee, has the burden of proving his allegations by a preponderance of the evidence. John Livacich Produce, Inc. a/t/a Vista Sales v. Auster Company, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 657 (1983).

Complainant bases his case on a report of personal investigation prepared by two Department of Agriculture investigators, which is in evidence in this proceeding. The report states that between May 10 and 16, 1984, the investigators examined respondent's records, and found that he had received 6,475 crates of cantaloupes from complainant. The investigators found that respondent had prepared recaps of sale for each load, but discovered that respondent's records of sales did not fully support his recaps. The investigators prepared an audit accounting, accepting only those sales supported by respondent's records. Where the sales evidenced by the records differed from the sales set forth in respondent's recap, the investigators raised or lowered the total number of crates to correspond with the quantity received by adding or subtracting crates at the average sales price for the crates for which there existed evidence of sales. The investigators reviewed all adjustments and credit memos to determine whether there was justification for any allowances granted. Adjustments granted due to condition problems were not allowed unless supporting evidence was found. All prices at less than one dollar per crate which respondent claimed to have received were eliminated from the audit accounting as unjustified. The investigators found that respondent's claimed gross proceeds were $37,061.23, but the actual gross proceeds totaled $71,469.81. The investigators deducted $2,639.82 from the gross proceeds as permissible adjustments, leaving adjusted gross proceeds of $68,829.99. Another $15,768.80 was deducted for legitimate expenses and $6,883.00 (10% of the adjusted gross proceeds) were deducted for commission, for net proceeds of $46,178.19. After subtracting respondent's advance of $20,000.00, respondent was found to owe complainant an additional $26,178.19.

Respondent claims that although he did not have inspection reports in his possession when the Department's investigators conducted their audit, he was subsequently able to secure copies of such reports showing the poor condition of the melons, therefore establishing that respondent's disposition of them was proper. The record contains several inspections taken at the Mexican/American border. Respondent's salesman, Dan Mandel, testified to a January 28, 1984, inspection which allegedly covered transaction 3.

That inspection (respondent's exhibit 22) revealed an average of 26% decay and a pulp temperature of 60°F. (Finding of Fact 4). Mr. Mandel also testified to an inspection that allegedly occurred at the border on transaction 4, but the inspection report upon which he based his testimony, respondent's exhibit 23, on close examination is merely a photocopy of respondent's exhibit 22, the inspection pertaining to transaction 3. Mr. Mandel testified concerning inspections of transaction 5, which found an average of 11% decay and a pulp temperature of 48°F., and transaction 6, showing an average of 19% decay and a 45°F. pulp temperature (Finding of Fact 4). These three inspection reports clearly indicate that the cantaloupes were severely decayed at the border. Transaction 7 was inspected at the border on January 30, 1984, which found a total of 16% damage including 3% decay, with a pulp temperature of 40°F. (Finding of Fact 4). Mr. Mandel explained (transcript at 172–173) that this inspection was much more restricted than the other border inspections and, therefore, the actual decay experienced by the load was much greater than that revealed by the inspection. However, there is nothing in the record to support this claim and we, therefore, will accept the inspection at face value.

The inspection reports provided to the Department after the investigators prepared their audit accounting establish that the cantaloupes in transactions 3, 5 and 6 were in extremely poor condition before respondent ever received them. We ordinarily consider the findings of the Department's investigators to be extremely strong evidence. However, the investigators were not shown any inspection reports by respondent at the time of their investigation. We are sure that the investigators would have taken these reports into account if they had been informed of their existence. Accordingly, we have considered these reports in our evaluation of the reasonableness of respondent's returns, and made appropriate adjustments in the audit accounting. The remaining transactions do not affect the audit accounting, as there is no evidence of border inspections of transactions 1, 2 and 4, and the inspection of transaction 7 does not show sufficient deterioration to warrant any alteration of the conclusions of the Department's investigators.

Respondent has also placed into evidence federal inspections allegedly taken at the places of business of respondent's customers. None of these inspections will be given any significant weight. Respondent's Mr. Mandel testified (transcript at 141) that with respect to transaction 2, a January 26, 1984, inspection was taken on 84 crates of melons at the place of business of Buttke-Klahr, Inc., Phoenix, Arizona, one of respondent's purchasers. However, respondent's returns from the sales to Buttke-Klahr, Inc., $1.80 per crate for 42 crates of 18's and 42 crates of 23's, were accepted by the Department's investigators and are not disputed by complainant. Mr. Mandel testified (transcript at 163–164) that a February 2, 1984, inspection of 966 crates of melons at West Coast Produce Co., Inc., San Antonio, Texas (respondent's exhibit 20) which showed decay, covered melons from transaction 5. However, the February 2, 1984, inspection was of both 23's and 18's, and transaction 5 contained only 597 crates of 23's. Therefore, even assuming the 966 crates inspected included the 597 crates of transaction 5, we cannot determine from the inspection the degree of deterioration exhibited by the melons from transaction 5 alone. With respect to the February 2, 1984, inspection of 79 crates at Solari-Aliaga Co., San Francisco, California (respondent's exhibit 18), which Mr. Mandel testified covered melons from transaction 6 (transcript at 162), it is not necessary to subject that inspection to any substantial analysis, as it is evident from the border inspection of transaction 6 that the cantaloupes were in such poor condition that any reasonable disposition by respondent would be consistent with his broker's duty. With regard to the February 6, 1984, inspection taken at Serra Brothers Inc., Detroit, Michigan, Mr. Mandel claims that such inspection covered melons from transactions 3 through 7 (transcript at 163). We believe this inspection to be unnecessary to justify respondent's handling of cantaloupes from transactions 3 and 6, as the border inspections show they were substantially decayed before they arrived at respondent's place of business. We do not believe the February 6, 1984, inspection should be given any significant weight regarding transactions 4, 5 and 7 for several reasons. First, the identity of the cantaloupes inspected is called into question by the fact that the inspection covered 335 crates, and respondent's recaps of sales show that respondent received only 314 crates. In addition, the date of the inspection, February 6, 1984, is nine days after delivery of transaction 4 on January 28, 1984, eight days after delivery of transaction 5 on January 29, 1984, and seven days after delivery of transaction 7 on January 30, 1984. These time periods are too long for the inspection to be considered an accurate reflection of the condition of the melons on the delivery dates. Further, the temperature of the cantaloupes inspected, 45 to 46°F., was high, which also detracts from the validity of the inspection results.

Respondent claims that his rejection of an eighth load of cantaloupes at the border on February 1, 1984, is evidence of the poor condition of the seven loads at issue. However, this claim is completely without merit, as the condition of each of the seven loads of cantaloupes must stand on its own.

We have not found any significant evidence of problems regarding transactions 1, 2, 4 and 7. We, therefore, accept the findings of the audit accounting as representing what respondent should have remitted to complainant for these transactions. However, we have concluded that the cantaloupes from transactions 3, 5, and 6 were in very poor condition upon arrival at respondent's place of business and we thus will analyze the audit accounting with this in mind.

The audit accounting for transaction 3 did not accept respondent's claim that eight crates of 18's and 164 crates of 23's were sold to Serra Brothers, Inc., for $.75 each, or $129.00; 42 crates of 23's, 72 crates of 30's, and 175 crates of 36's were sold to Solari-Aliaga for $.50 per crate, or $144.50; and 420 crates of 23's were sold to W. W. Rogers for $.75 per crate, or $315.00. The audit also did not accept respondent's claim that one crate of 23's was lost to General Produce on repacking and one was given to W. Fay as a sample. In view of the obvious poor condition of the melons from transaction 3, we accept all these claims as valid except for the one crate given as a sample, which is not associated with condition problems. For transaction 5, the audit accounting did not accept respondent's claim that he had to pay $.015 per crate on 547 crates of 23's sold to West Coast Produce, for a charge of $8.20, and received $.75 per crate for 41 crates sold to Serra Brothers Inc. for $30.75. While we accept respondent's returns of $30.75 for the crates sold to Serra Brothers, Inc., we cannot accept that the 547 cartons sold to West Coast Produce were completely without value. It is stated in section 46.22 of the Department's regulations (7 CFR § 46.22) that a dump certificate or other adequate evidence must be provided to prove that produce is without commercial value when more than 5% of a consigned load is dumped. While the January 30, 1984, border inspection shows that transaction 5 experienced severe condition problems, the degree of deterioration, 11% decay, was not so great to permit a conclusion that virtually the entire load of 597 cartons was completely without commercial value. Since the melons of transaction 6 were so greaty decayed at the border, we will accept respondent's returns for the sale to W. W. Rogers of two crates of 18's at $.75 per crate, or $1.50, 84 crates of 18's, 138 crates of 23's, 31 crates of 30's and 65 crates of 36's to Solari-Aliaga at $.50 per crate, or $159.00, and 24 crates of 15's and 5 crates of 23's to Serra Brothers, Inc., for $.75 per crate, or $21.75. Respondent also claims that he incurred a loss of $.015 per crate for 239 crates sold to West Coast Produce, for an indebtedness of $3.59, and had to dump an additional 64 crates of 23's and 55 crates of 36's. We will accept the returns alleged in transaction 6 from sales to Solari-

Aliaga and Serra Brothers, Inc. We will also accept the dumping in this load, as we believe the results of the border inspection, an average of 19% decay, are consistent with respondent's claim that 358 of the 1,088 crates in transaction 6 were completely without value. We will not allow respondent a claim of $3.59 for the 239 crates sold to West Coast Produce in the absence of any evidence explaining such a charge.

It is our conclusion that the audit account of sales prepared by the Department's investigators, as revised in accordance with the above analysis, is an accurate reflection of the obligations of the parties with respect to the seven loads of cantaloupes at issue. The audit account of sales found justification for the sale of only 22 crates of 15's for $374.00, with 34 crates unaccounted for. As we have accepted the $18.00 reported by respondent for the sale of 24 crates in transaction 6, we find that 46 crates sold for $392.00. This gives an average sales price of 8.5217391 for the ten remaining crates, or $85.22, for a total of $477.20. Regarding the 18's, the audit account of sales found sales of 657 crates for $9,173.54, but could not account for 580 crates. We have accepted respondent's claim that eight crates were sold for $6.00 in transaction 3, and that 239 crates were dumped and 86 crates sold for $43.50 in transaction 6. We thus find that 990 crates of 18's sold for $9,223.24. This gives an average sales price of $9.31640 for the 247 remaining crates, or $2,301.15, for a total of $11,524.39. Regarding the 23's, the audit account of sales found sales of 1,685 crates for $19,855.09, but could not account for 1,967 crates. We have accepted respondent's claims that in transaction 3, one crate was dumped, and 627 sold for $429.00; in transaction 5, 41 crates were sold for $20.75; and in transaction 6, 200 crates were sold for $72.75. We thus find that 2,560 crates sold for $20,417.59. This gives an average sales price of $7.975621 for the 1,092 remaining crates, or $8,709.38, for a total of $29,126.97. Concerning the 30's, the audit account of sales showed 358 crates sold for $3,535.50, but it could not account for 21 crates. It is not clear how the Department's investigators determined that only 21 crates were not accounted for, since the record indicates that 103 crates were reported sold at less than $1.00 per crate, which the investigators indicated they would not accept. We have accepted the validity of respondent's claims that in transaction 3, 72 crates sold for $36.00, and in transaction 6, 31 crates sold for $15.50, for a total of $51.50 for the 103 crates. Therefore, in order to determine what value to assign to the 21 crates, we will use the average sales price respondent obtained for the 103 crates of $.50 per crate, or $10.50. We thus find that the 379 crates of 30's sold for $3,535.50 plus $10.50, or $3,546.00. Regarding the 36's, the audit account of sales accepted sales of only 446 crates for $2,500.60, but could not account for 704 crates. We have accepted respondent's claims that for transaction 3, 175 crates sold for $87.50 and for transaction 6, 55 crates were dumped while 65 crates sold for $32.50. We thus find that 741 crates sold for $2,628.60. This gives an average sales price of $3.5473684 for the 409 remaining crates, or $1,450.87, for a total of $4,079.47. There is no dispute over the $1.50 reported for the one crate of 42's. The revised audit accounting for all sizes of cantaloupes in the seven loads is thus $477.22 for the 15's, $11,524.39 for the 18's, $29,126.97 for the 23's, $3,546.00 for the 30's, $4,079.47 for the 36's, and $1.50 for the 42's, for total gross proceeds of $48,755.55. The Department's investigators allowed adjustments of $2,639.82, which leaves $46,115.73 as the adjusted gross proceeds. The investigators also found $15,768.80 in allowable expenses, which also should be deducted. In addition we must subtract a commission of 10% of the adjusted gross proceeds, or $4,611.57, which leaves net proceeds of $25,735.36. After deducting respondent's advance to complainant of $20,000.00 we are left with $5,735.36 as the net proceeds underreported and unpaid to complainant. Respondent's failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

Respondent has filed a counterclaim which is based on the premise that the investigators' report was in error with respect to the seven transactions at issue, since all loads were in poor condition when they reached respondent. As we have determined, this is only the case with respect to transactions 3, 5 and 6 but not with respect to transactions 1, 2, 4 and 7. Therefore, respondent's counterclaim is dismissed.

Complainant is the prevailing party herein and is entitled to an award of fees and expenses in accordance with section 7(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499g(a)). Complainant has filed a claim for $1,650.00 to which respondent has objected. Complainant's claim consists of $900.00 for three trips to the Los Angeles, California, P.A.C.A. office, $600.00 for one trip to the Washington, D.C. P.A.C.A. office, and $150.00 for miscellaneous expenses. This claim will not be granted, as complainant has not shown that these expenses were "necessarily incurred in connection with the oral hearing." 7 CFR § 47.19(d)(2)(v). Further, complainant has not presented any receipts to support his claim.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $5,735.36, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1984, until paid.

Respondent's counterclaim is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award of $11,125.52, which has since been amended to $10,459.46, in connection with the sale and shipment of three truckloads of watermelons to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability. Respondent also filed a counterclaim and set-off in the amount of $13,230.47. Complainant filed a reply, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Respondent submitted an answering statement and complainant submitted a statement in reply. Both parties filed briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, F & J Produce Sales, is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 545, Lake Hamilton, Florida. At the time of the transaction involved in the counterclaim, complainant was licensed under the Act.

2. Respondent, Hrdlicka Dairy Cattle Inc., a/t/a/ Hrdlicka Bros. Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is Route 7, Box 142, Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin. At the times of the transactions involved in the complaint, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On June 5, 1984, complainant sold to respondent a truckload of watermelons at $5.00 per hundredweight, f.o.b., consisting of 43,280 pounds, for a total of $2,164.00. Complainant prepared an invoice (number 2017) containing this information and sent it to respondent, who never objected to the fact that the invoice purported to represent one distinct transaction.

4. The June 5, 1984, truckload was shipped in interstate commerce to respondent, where it arrived on June 8, 1984. Upon arrival, only 43,060 pounds of melons were accepted by respondent. Respondent has failed to pay complainant any part of the contract price for this truckload.

5. On June 21, 1984, complainant sold to respondent two truckloads of watermelons at $9.15 per hundredweight, delivered, consisting of 50,910 pounds and 47,030 pounds, for contract prices of $4,658.27 and $4,303.25, respectively. Complainant prepared invoices H120 for the 50,910 pound load and H121 for the 47,030 pound load, reflecting the contract terms, and sent them to respondent, who never objected to the fact that they purported to represent distinct transactions.

6. The June 21, 1984, truckload represented by invoice H120 was shipped in interstate commerce to respondent. When it arrived on June 23, 1984, respondent paid an unloading fee of $100.00 and accepted 46,398 pounds. Respondent has failed to pay complainant any part of the contract price for this truckload.

7. The June 21, 1984, truckload represented by invoice H121 was shipped in interstate commerce to respondent. When it arrived on June 25, 1984, respondent paid an unloading fee of $50.00 and accepted 45,910 pounds. Respondent has failed to pay complainant any part of the contract price for this truckload.

8. An informal complaint was filed on February 11, 1985, which was within nine months from when the causes of action alleged in the complaint accrued.

9. Respondent filed a counterclaim and set-off on June 24, 1985, which did not involve the transactions alleged in the complaint. The counterclaim was filed in excess of nine months from when the cause of action therein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In this complaint, complainant alleges that respondent is liable for the unpaid purchase price of three loads of watermelons sold to respondent in the amount of $11,125.52. Complainant has since amended its complaint to $10,459.46, taking into consideration the weight of the watermelons accepted by respondent and deducting the unloading fees charged respondent for the June 21, 1984, loads. Respondent admits purchasing, receiving and accepting these three loads, but claims that they were installments of one purchase made on June 5, 1984. Respondent alleges in its counterclaim and set-off that on June 5, 1984, it ordered three loads of watermelons scheduled for shipment on June 5, June 12, and June 21, 1984, and that complainant's improper handling of the June 12, 1984, load caused respondent to incur a substantial loss.

Respondent's counterclaim and set-off were filed along with its answer on June 24, 1985. Complainant claims that the counterclaim is not timely, as it was filed more than nine months after the alleged cause of action accrued in June 1984. Counterclaims not based on the subject matter of a complaint must be filed within nine months from when the causes of action thereof accrued. 7 CFR 47.3(a); Bianchi & Sons Packing Co. v. Kelvin S. Ng d/b/a Kin Yip Company, 42 Agric. Dec. 292 (1983). It is apparently respondent's position that the June 12 load and the three loads alleged in the complaint, were all part of one transaction entered into on June 5, 1984. Therefore, according to respondent, its counterclaim was based on the subject matter of the complaint, and thus within the Department's jurisdiction. However, the only evidence offered by respondent to support this is a sworn statement by Joseph Hrdlicka, its president, which is directly refuted by an affidavit from complainant's agent, R. W. Snyder, who insists that the complaint concerns three separate purchases; one made on June 5, 1984, and two others on June 21, 1984. The report of investigation contains copies of three invoices relating to the loads alleged in the complaint which appear to represent three distinct transactions. Respondent received these invoices, as they state thereon "reinvoice 10 JAN. 85", which implies that respondent was sent them on two occasions. In addition, respondent has included in its answering statement a copy of complainant's invoice for the June 5, 1984, shipment. Respondent does not deny having received these in-voices, or allege that it objected to their representation of the watermelon loads as distinct transactions. Therefore, we conclude that the invoices accurately reflect the agreement between the parties that the three loads of watermelons set forth in the complaint were sold to respondent in three distinct transactions, and that the June 12, 1984, transaction alleged in the counterclaim was not one of these three transactions. As the counterclaim was not filed until June 24, 1985, in excess of nine months from when the alleged cause of action therein accrued in June 1984, the counterclaim is not within the Department's jurisdiction and must be dismissed.

Other than the allegations of this counterclaim, respondent has offered no defense to complainant's amended claims for the transaction of June 5, 1984, and the two transactions of June 21, 1984, in the amount of $10,459.46. Respondent is, therefore, liable for this sum, and its failure to make payment is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $10,459.46, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from August 1, 1984, until paid.

The counterclaim and set-off is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

CRISP COUNTY VEGETABLE PACKERS, INC., v. DIAMOND-T PRODUCE CORP., PACA Docket No. 2-6631. Decided June 23, 1986.

Evidence—failure to submit sworn statement with knowledge of facts—payment allegations not rebutted—accounting for produce billed on an open basis deemed adequate—complaint dismissed.

Complainant claimed that respondent failed to pay in full for 12 shipments of produce. Respondent adequately demonstrated that payment had been made or was not due as to each of the shipments. Complainant failed to submit evidence by a party with knowledge of the facts and failed to otherwise adequately rebut respondent's allegations.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $22,294.62 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of numerous trucklots of mixed perishable produce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant in part, and admitting liability in connection with some of the transactions in the total amount of $5,583.62.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000, the parties waived oral hearing, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant did not file an opening statement. Respondent filed an answering statement. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Crisp County Vegetable Packers, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 352, Cordele, Georgia.

2. Respondent, Diamond-T Produce Corp., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 308, Pompano Beach, Florida. At the time of the transactions involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about June 15, 1983, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped to respondent's customer, 78 cartons of small cucumbers at $6.65, and 752 cartons of super cucumbers at $8.25, or a total price of $6,722.70 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 624 dated June 22, 1983. Respondent has paid complainant $4,723.70 as an undisputed amount on this invoice.

4. On or about June 22, 1983, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped to respondent's customer, 850 cartons of super cucumbers at $5.00, or a total price of $4,250.00 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 810 dated June 22, 1983. This load was rejected by respondent on arrival, and such rejection was acquiesced in by complainant. Respondent does not owe any balance to complainant on this load.

5. On or about July 2, 1983, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped to respondent's customer, 200 cartons of super cucumbers at $6.25, or a total price of $1,250.00 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 821 dated July 2, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load by its check number 01251 on December 2, 1983.

6. On or about July 18, 1983, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped to respondent's customer, 200 cartons of medium Vidalia onions in 50 pound containers at $4.25, or a total price of $850.00 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 791 dated July 18, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load by its check number 01251 on December 2, 1983.

7. On or about July 25, 1983, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 296 cartons of fancy eggplants at $5.50; 9 containers of yellow squash at $8.50; 16 containers of zucchini squash at $4.00; and 8 containers of No. 2 yellow squash at $4.00; or a total of $1,800.50 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 794 on July 25, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load by check number 01251 on December 2, 1983.

8. On or about July 27, 1983, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 350 cartons of fancy eggplants at $5.00, or a total price of $1,750.00 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 797 dated July 27, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load by its check number 01251 on December 2, 1983.

9. On or about July 28, 1983, complainant sold and shipped to respondent, 350 cartons fancy eggplants at $4.00, or a total price of $1,400.00 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 808 dated July 29, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load by its check number 01251 on December 2, 1983.

10. On or about August 5, 1983, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 120 cartons of fancy eggplants at $2.00, or a total price of $240.00 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 813 dated August 18, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load by its check number 01251 on December 2, 1983.

11. On or about August 10, 1983, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 25 cartons of fancy eggplants at $3.75, and 40 cartons of choice eggplants at $2.75, for a total price of $203.75 f.o.b. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 814 dated August 18, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load by its check number 01251 on December 2, 1983.

12. On or about November 24, 1983, complainant sold to respondent and shipped to respondent's customer, 158 cartons of super cucumbers; 77 cartons of select cucumbers; 188 cartons of fancy eggplants; and 55 cartons of small cucumbers; all on an open basis. Complainant billed respondent for this produce on an open basis by its invoice number 907 dated November 30, 1983. Respondent accounted to complainant for this load by showing total returns of $929.47, from which it deducted $119.50 commission, and $761.30 for freight, leaving a balance of $48.67 which it paid to complainant as an undisputed amount.

13. On or about November 30, 1983, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped to respondent's customer, 99 cartons of super cucumbers at $4.75, or a total of $470.25 delivered. Complainant billed respondent for this amount by its invoice number 908 on December 1, 1983. Respondent paid complainant in full for this load as an undisputed amount.

14. In connection with the shipment of a load of cucumbers by complainant to respondent on June 15, 1983, respondent secured complainant's permission to deduct $786.00 when making payment. However, respondent deducted the $786.00 amount twice. Respondent admitted making the double deduction, and has paid complainant the balance due as an undisputed amount.

15. The formal complaint was filed on February 24, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant's informal complaint concerns 12 invoices for product shipped between June 15, 1983, and September 29, 1983, having a total alleged value of $20,580.40. When complainant filed its formal complaint seven of the invoices which constituted part of the informal complaint were dropped, three were added, and nine remained the same. The formal complaint claimed a total of $22,294.62. However the transactions exclusive of the open invoice (see Finding of Fact 12) totalled only $19,723.20. Apparently complainant was claiming that the open invoice had a value of $2,571.42. However, nowhere did complainant state how this figure was arrived at.

Complainant's formal complaint was subscribed and sworn to by H.E. Reynalds who signed himself as "Director" of complainant corporation. Respondent asserted in its answering statement that H.E. Reynalds was at no time involved in any of the negotiations or transactions between complainant and respondent, and that instead complainant was always represented by a Mr. James Oglesby. Complainant made no reply to this allegation, nor to any of respondent's other allegations in the answer or answering statement. Thus we are faced with a record which contains a sworn answer and a sworn answering statement by Glen C. Thomason, president of respondent, who claims to have been involved in all of the transactions, and no sworn statement by Mr. James Oglesby whom complainant apparently admits to have been the party that always represented complainant in the subject transactions.

In its sworn answer, respondent admitted liability to complainant in connection with several of the transactions, and subsequently paid complainant for these admitted amounts pursuant to an order of this Department. As to seven of the invoices (those covered by Findings of Fact 5 through 11) respondent claims that payment was made in full to complainant by its check number 01251 dated December 2, 1983. The copy of this check which was submitted as evidence in this proceeding shows that such check was in an amount more than adequate to cover the invoices which were the subject of Findings of Fact 5 through 11, and also shows that such invoices were specifically referenced on the face of the check. Since complainant has made no reply to respondent's allegation we have concluded that each of these invoices has been paid in full.

In regard to Finding of Fact 3 it is clear that respondent has paid complainant a balance of $4,723.70 after deducting a total of $1,999.00 for freight, storage, brokerage, and USDA inspections incurred in connection, not with invoice no. 624, but with invoice 810 which is covered by Finding of Fact 4. Respondent demonstrated that invoice 810 covered a load of cucumbers which was rejected by respondent on arrival. Respondent contends that the rejection was justified as shown by an USDA inspection, and that following rejection Mr. Oglesby asked respondent to help complainant place the load. Respondent maintains that it was unable to place the load, and that the original consignee, C.H. Robinson, in Dallas, Texas, stored the produce and subsequently dumped it. C.H. Robinson Co. charged back to respondent the storage fees, inspection fees, and freight charges. In addition to the invoice number 810 to respondent covering this load, the record also contains complainant's invoice number 683 to C.H. Robinson covering the same identical load of cucumbers. We conclude that respondent does not owe complainant any balance in connection with the produce covered by Finding of Fact 3 or Finding of Fact 4.

In connection with the produce covered by Finding of Fact 12, and complainant's invoice number 907, both parties agree that the produce covered by such invoice was billed on an open basis. Complainant did not submit any evidence concerning the fair market value of this produce. Although the accounting data which respondent has submitted in this proceeding in connection with this invoice is inadequate in that it does not give a per package breakdown of the gross sales of the produce, in view of complainant's failure to submit evidence of the fair market value of the produce, and in view of complainant's failure to respond to respondent's allegations, we find that respondent owes complainant no further balance in regard to this invoice.

In regard to the produce covered by Findings of Fact 13 and 14 respondent has admitted owing the amounts claimed by complainant, and has made payment in full pursuant to our order for payment of the undisputed amount.

We find that there is no balance remaining due by respondent to complainant on any of the produce covered by the complaint. Consequently, the complaint should be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is dismissed.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $35,815.20 in connection with shipments of melons in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant, except that respondent claimed the amount it owed to complainant was $30,592.20. Respondent further stated in its answer that payment arrangements had been made. Complainant was given an opportunity to dispute the fact that payment arrangements had been made and that the amount owed to it by respondent was $30,592.20. By letter dated May 13, 1986, and received by the department on May 15, 1986, complainant agreed that the amount owed to it was $30,592.20, but denied that payment arrangements had been made. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, A.T.B. Distributing Co., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 2683, Turlock, California 95381. Respondent, Freshville Produce Distributing, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1367 Viele Avenue, Bronx, New York 10474. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $30,592.20. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $30,592.20, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from October 1, 1985, until paid.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $23,852.25 in connection with shipments of mixed vegetables in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Respondent further indicated in its answer that payment arrangements were being made with the complainant. Complainant was given until May 22, 1986, to dispute the fact that payment arrangements had been made. Complainant, in a letter dated May 12, 1986, and received by the Department on May 16, 1986, denied that any agreement as to payment arrangements had been made. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complainant, O&E Growers, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 215, Elba, New York 14058. Respondent, Freshville Produce Distributors, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1367 Viele Street, Bronx, New York 10474. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $23,852.25. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $23,852.25, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from February 1, 1986, until paid.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $5,727.65 in connection with two shipments of mixed vegetables in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Watsonville Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 38 Bluff Road, Watsonville, California 95076. Respondent, Weinstein Produce Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondents in the amount of $2,682.00 in connection with a transaction, in interstate commerce, involving grapes, a perishable agricultural commodity.

A copy of the Department's report of investigation was served on all parties. Each respondent also was served a copy of the complaint, and each filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

Since the amount claimed as damages did not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was followed. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file further evidence by way of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, respondent So. Central Brokerage, Inc., filed an answering statement, and complainant also filed a statement in reply. In addition, respondent So. Central Brokerage, Inc., filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant is a partnership composed of Don Davies, Charles Enoch, Dennis Vartan, and Lee Yeramian, doing business as Agri-Pak Food Company, whose mailing address is P.O. Box 399, Del Rey, California 93616.

2. Respondent Nicho Produce Co., Inc. ("Nicho") is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 1136, Edinburg, Texas 78539.

3. Respondent So. Central Brokerage, Inc., ("So. Central") is a corporation whose mailing address is 1500 South Zarzamora Street, San Antonio, Texas 78207.

4. At all material times, each respondent was licensed under the Act.

5. On or about October 25, 1983, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant by oral contract sold to Nicho 360 lugs, wrapped, U.S. No. 1, Thompson seedless grapes, labeled "WE-4," a perishable agricultural commodity, at an agreed f.o.b. price of $8.00 per lug, plus 70 cents per lug for precooling and palletization, for a total f.o.b price of $3,132.00. The transaction was brokered by So. Central. The grapes were shipped to Nicho as part of a truckload of grapes which the complainant had sold to three Texas buyers (including Nicho) through So. Central. On the same day as the sale of the grapes, October 25, 1983, So. Central issued a broker's memorandum, No. 6775-1083, which confirmed the multiple sales to the three Texas buyers and indicated that all three shipments were to be loaded on the same truck. The truckload of grapes was shipped by complainant to the three Texas buyers on October 25, 1983, the same day as the sales to them. The bill of lading required that the temperature in the truck be maintained at 36°F. There was no temperature recorder on the truck.

6. On October 31, 1983, or six days after they were shipped from California, Nicho received its partial truckload of grapes consisting of 360 lugs. As its employees unloaded the grapes, they noted that the grapes seemed to have problems and ceased unloading them. After speaking to employees of So. Central, Nicho called for a federal inspection. The inspection was conducted on October 31, 1983, at 3:35 p.m., at the location of Nicho. The inspection certificate issued thereafter, E 188251, indicates that, at the time of the inspection, the temperature controls on the truck were still in operation. It further indicates that the load was partially unloaded but that some of the grapes remained in the nose of the trailer. The temperature range of the grapes is noted as being 45°F to 46°F in the rear, and 44°F to 45°F for the grapes which were still loaded in the nose of the truck. The condition of the grapes was noted as follows:

> Berries mostly firm and firmly attached to capstems. In most lugs from 2 to 6%, in some 14%, average 6% shattered berries. Stems mostly turning brown, many brown and pliable. Average 2% sulfur dioxide injury. In most lugs from 2 to 6%, in some 13%, average 6% serious damage by discolored berries. Average 1% crushed and leaking berries. Decay ranges from 1 to 4%, and 2% Gray Mold Rot in all stages.

7. Based on the inspection, Nicho told So. Central that it was rejecting the grapes. So. Central reported this to complainant, specifically to a Mr. Bob Stockton ("Stockton") with whom the broker had been dealing on these transactions. After being advised of the results of the inspection, and that the temperature of the grapes "was fine," Stockton accepted the rejection. Eventually, the grapes were handled on consignment by Boler Farms, Pharr, Texas. The latter company returned proceeds to complainant in the amount of $450.00 and also indicated that 200 of the 360 lugs were dumped.

8. The normal transit time between complainant's location and that of Nicho is four days.

9. An informal complaint was received by the Department on June 4, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The dispositive issue in this case focuses on whether or not Nicho had the right to reject the load of grapes on arrival. The complainant's position is that, since this was a f.o.b. sale and Nicho undertook the risks of transportation, the high temperature of the grapes as shown on the federal inspection certificate indicates that it had lost this right. In an f.o.b. transaction, a buyer accepts the risk of abnormal transportation conditions. J.J. Crosetti Co. v. Yeckes-Eichenbaum, 30 Agric. Dec. 287 (1971); 7 CFR § 46.43(i). Thus, the existence of abnormal transportation conditions voids a shipper's warranty of suitable shipping condition. Ventura v. Regan, 31 Agric. Dec. 443 (1972).

In the instant case, there is evidence that the load of grapes was not handled under normal transportation service and conditions: first, it appears that the shipment took about 48 hours longer than normally expected to reach Nicho's location from that of complainant; [1] and second, the temperature of the grapes was higher than normal, i.e., the bill of lading called for a temperature of 36°F. to be maintained en route, but the federal inspection reflected that the temperatures of the grapes ranged from 44°F to 46°F.[2] In view

[1] Pursuant to 7 CFR § 47.25(f), we take official notice of this fact which is a commercial fact of established character. See Finding of Fact 8.

[2] Respondents argue that the 44°–46°F. temperatures which the grapes showed upon Federal inspection occurred because the unloading of the grapes was stopped when their alleged deterioration was discovered, and the grapes sat for a considerable length of time awaiting the Federal inspector. This explanation does not satisof this, we hold that Nicho's rejection was without reasonable cause. Ventura v. Regan, supra, 31 Agric. Dec. 443. Cf. R.C. Walter & Sons v. Gatz, 31 Agric. Dec. 655 (1972), in which the rejection was determined not to be unreasonable where transit time was normal, and the low temperatures of the grapes indicated normal carrying temperatures.

The measure of damages where a shipment is rejected without reasonable cause is the difference between the contract price and the amount realized from resale, provided the resale is made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner. See, C. J. Prettyman, Jr. Inc. v. J. K. Packing Co., 28 Agric. Dec. 1476 (1969); U.C.C. § 2-706. The contract price in the instant case was $2,682.00, and the complainant received $450.00 from the resale of the grapes. As there is no allegation or proof that this resale was not prompt or properly conducted, we hold the sale to have been made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner. Accordingly, we hold that Nicho is obligated to complainant in the amount of $2,232, or the contract price ($2,682.00) less the proceeds on resale ($450.00). Nicho's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

Complainant alleged that So. Central failed to carry out its duties as a broker, however, there are no facts alleged or proven by complainant by which we could so conclude. In view of that, the complaint is dismissed against So. Central.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, Nicho Produce Co., Inc., shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,232.00 with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from December 1, 1983, until paid.

The complaint against So. Central Brokerage, Inc., is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

factorily explain the high temperatures because the grapes which were still loaded on board the truck with the cooling unit operating registered virtually the same temperatures as the grapes which had been unloaded. Had there been a temperature recorder on board the truck, perhaps respondents could have been sustained their argument. However, apparently respondents chose not to use a recorder on the truck.

Consignment sales—failure to keep adequate records—audit accounting by Department official basis for reparation award.

Respondent failed to keep adequate records of consignment sales. Department's audit revealed lack of documentation in form of federal inspections to support very low returns relative to current market price as to numerous sales. Audit accounting, which assigned price to these sales based upon average gross price or other sales, was made basis for award of reparation in complainant's favor. Respondent was given credit on two sales for which documentation was supplied after commencement of formal proceedings.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $11,060.66 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of 13 truckloads or partial truckloads of eggplants.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. However, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Bodegas Rancho San Valetin, S. de R.L., is a corporation whose address is 3566 Bentley Drive, Spring Valley, California.

2. Respondent, Otay Packing Co., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 3247, Chula Vista, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about September 30, through November 5, 1983, complainant consigned to respondent to be sold for complainant's account 13 truckloads or partial truckloads of "Buty Hybrid" eggplants, of various sizes, all to grade U.S. No. 1. The eggplants were shipped from complainant's place of business in Mexico and were received by respondent at its receiving docks in Chula Vista, California.

4. Complainant's shipping manifests show a total of 10,574 cartons of eggplants shipped to respondent. Respondent's receiving records show receipt of a total of 10,572 cartons. Respondent rendered accountings to complainant showing the resale of 10,607 cartons of eggplants for gross proceeds of $48,128.95, and net proceeds of $34,990.50. Additional expenses in connection with the packing, transportation, and sale of the eggplants totaled $11,014.20. Respondent paid complainant total net proceeds, after all expenses, of $23,976.50.

5. A personal investigation was made by an employee of this Department at the place of business of respondent between September 24 and October 4, 1984. Such investigation disclosed that respondent had failed to keep adequate records in that "(1) the respondent's invoices did not indicate specific lots; (2) there was an overlapping of lots on hand; and (3) sizes shown shipped did not correspond with exact sizes received." The audit accounting found that the amount of $11,060.66 remained due to complainant as underreported and underpaid "due primarily to adjustments of the sales prices to eliminate prices which were unusually low without supporting papers to substantiate them, such as inspection certificates or dump certificates." The audit accounting disclosed that 3,815 cartons were sold at unusually low prices, below $2.25 per carton, and assigned to such cartons the average gross price of $5.604018, or a total of $21,379.33. The gross proceeds on the remaining 6,757 cartons were accepted as shown by respondent's records in the total amount of $37,866.35, for total gross proceeds of $59,245.68. Total expenses, including a 12% commission allowance, amounted to $24,208.72, leaving net proceeds of $35,036.96. Subtracting the amounts previously paid by respondent to complainant, a remainder was computed as still due in the amount of $11,060.66.

6. Respondent granted a credit to one of its customers, Horwath & Associates, Inc. of Rohnart Park, California on 420 cartons of eggplants shipped October 22, 1983, in the total amount of $2,029.00. This credit was not taken into account by the audit accounting, but was supported by a federal inspection. Respondent allowed an additional credit in the amount of $1,204.00 on 215 cartons of eggplants, also sold to Horwath & Associates Inc., and shipped on October 24, 1983. This credit was also supported by a federal inspection.

7. The informal complaint was filed on December 7, 1983, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent maintains that it actually overreported to complainant the amounts which it realized from the resale of the eggplants. However, as disclosed by the audit of respondent's records by an investigator from this Department, respondent failed to keep adequate records, and in addition reported many sales which were far below market price levels without inspection certificates or dump certificates to support such sales. However, respondent, in its answer, supplied two inspection certificates to support credit allowances in the total amount of $3,233.00 in connection with the resale of 635 cartons of eggplants. Although these two inspections covered a smaller number of cartons than those on which respondent granted credits, the inspections disclosed quality defects averaging 12% in one case, and 14% in the other, with a high range in one case of 17%, and 22% in the other. The high range of defects in each case shows that the total lot of eggplants would be out of grade even though the inspection did not cover the total lot. We find that respondent has adequately supported the credits granted in the total amount of $3,233.00. We also find that due to respondent's general failure to support the extremely low sale prices with adequate documentation it is liable to complainant for the $11,060.66 balance which the audit accounting found due, less the $3,233.00 credit which we have found to be allowable, or a net amount of $7,827.66. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $7,827.66, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from December 1, 1983, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $1,157.65 in connection with a shipment of strawberries in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00. Therefore, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. The respondent filed a verified answering statement. It also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Finucane Gilson & Foster, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 3500 West 75th Street, Suite 100, Prairie Village, Kansas 66208.

2. Respondent, Deardorff-Jackson Co., is a corporation whose mailing address is 1120 Mountain View Avenue, Oxnard, California 93030. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about April 4, 1984, respondent, by oral contract, sold to complainant 864 trays of strawberries at an agreed upon f.o.b. price of $4.50 per tray plus 60 cents per tray for cooling and palletizing, $18.50 per unit for nine units of controlled atmosphere, and $11.25 for a recording thermometer, for a total f.o.b. price of $4,584.15. Respondent, in turn, sold the strawberries to the Fleming Companies, Inc. (Fleming), Topeka, Kansas 66601, for shipment to its establishment in Joplin, Missouri, for a price of $6.85 per tray plus $20.00 per unit for nine units of palletizing and artificial atmosphere, for a total f.o.b. price of $6,098.40.

4. Upon arrival in Joplin, Missouri, these strawberries were found, by a Federal inspector, to be somewhat deficient in quality. Respondent was contacted by the complainant and agreed to provide the complainant with protection against the handling of the strawberries by Fleming. Sometime thereafter, respondent's employees inquired of complainant as to the handling of the strawberries by Fleming. On or about May 1, 1984, complainant's employee, Earl Pearson, told respondent's salesman, David Cook, that Fleming was only seeking a $55.50 adjustment. Respondent agreed to permit complainant to deduct the same $55.50 from its invoice to complainant. Thereafter, complainant paid respondent's invoice less $55.50 or $4,528.65. Respondent accepted complainant's check in the amount of $4,528.65 as full and final settlement on the shipment of strawberries.

5. On or about May 8, 1984, complainant received notification from Fleming that it was deducting the cost of 169 trays of strawberries ($1,157.65) from its payment for an unrelated invoice.

6. The formal complaint was filed on November 26, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant seeks reimbursement from respondent of $1,157.65 it allegedly overpaid respondent with respect to a transaction in interstate commerce involving a shipment of strawberries. The alleged overpayment occurred because Fleming, subsequent to an agreement between the parties limiting an adjustment on the shipment to $55.50, deducted a further $1,157.65 from an unrelated shipment claiming it as a further loss on the subject shipment of strawberries.

The evidence reflects that, on or about May 1, 1984, the parties renegotiated their contract, and that, at that time, they agreed to a new price which was $55.50 less than the original contract price. Complainant paid respondent the amount agreed upon ($4,528.65) at the time, and respondent accepted it in full settlement of the parties' contractual agreement. Accordingly, complainant is precluded from seeking further damages from respondent as to this shipment. Bell City Brands v. Western Tomato, 25 Agric. Dec. 402 (1966). Thus, the complaint should be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is dismissed.
Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

RULING ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on March 7, 1986, awarding reparation to complainant in the amount of $1,008.00, plus interest. On March 17, 1986, respondent filed a petition for reconsideration. Pursuant to section 47.24(a) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.24(a)), the filing of the petition automatically operated to set aside the Decision and Order pending final action on the petition.

In its petition, respondent argues that the Decision and Order erroneously concluded that an accord and satisfaction did not occur because respondent's check did not indicate that it was being offered in full satisfaction of the transaction for which it was given in payment. Respondent asserts that the evidence shows that when respondent gave its $5,012.10 check to complainant, complainant was in possession of an invoice which complainant had sent to respondent, who had returned it with the notation "less allowance per Geo. Depaoli" and a deduction of $1,008.00. Respondent claims that complainant therefore was informed from sources other than the check itself that such check was being tendered in full payment.

Respondent's argument is completely without merit. We have often stated that "the mere fact that the creditor receives less than the amount of his claim, with knowledge that the debtor claims to be indebted to him only to the extent of payment made, does not necessarily establish an accord and satisfaction. Half Moon Fruit & Produce Company v. North American Produce Distributors, Inc., 40 Agric. Dec. 1610, 1613 (1981); Louis Caric & Sons v. Ben Gatz Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 1486 (1979); Mendelson-Zeller v. Season Produce, 31 Agric. Dec. 1288 (1972). On two occasions, we held that an accord and satisfaction did not take place even though the creditor was informed in writing that the check was in settlement of the disputed transaction. See, Half Moon Fruit & Produce Company v. North American Produce Distributors, Inc., supra; Horvitz Brothers v. David Goldsamt, 20 Agric. AMENDMENT TO DECISION AND ORDER

On May 1, 1986, a Decision and Order was issued in this proceeding. Through inadvertence the "Order" portion of the Decision and Order did not set forth the statutory time periods within which the reparation award and attorney's fees must be paid. The Decision is not being changed. The Order is amended to provide the dates by which payment must be made, which is within 30 days of the issuance of this Amendment.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant as reparation $84,825.83, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from August 1, 1983, until paid.

Within 30 days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant for attorney's fees and other expenses $8,473.39, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from the date of this order until paid.

The counterclaim is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

STAY ORDER

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499 et seq.), an Order Upon Rehearing was issued on April 9, 1986, awarding reparation to the complainant and against respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc., in the amount of $7,522.00 plus interest at the rate of 13 percent per annum from December 1, 1982, until paid. By petition received May 8, 1986, respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc., has moved that this matter be reconsidered.

Accordingly, the order of April 9, 1986 is hereby stayed. Complainant may have fifteen (15) days from receipt of this order to file an answer to the petition to reconsider.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties. A copy of respondent's petition shall be served upon the complainant and respondent H. Schnell & Company, Inc.

ORDER VACATING STAY ORDER, REOPENING PROCEEDING

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent and California Marketing of Bakersfield, Inc., in the alternative, in the amount of $705.00 in connection with a transaction involving the shipment of carrots in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint was served on respondents, but respondent Koster Enterprises failed to file an answer thereto. However, the Department was notified that respondent Koster Enterprises had filed a petition in bankruptcy. Accordingly, on May 9, 1984, this matter was stayed pending completion of respondent Koster Enterprises' bankruptcy.

On January 22, 1985, a Decision and Order was issued dismissing the complaint against California Marketing. The Decision and Order stated that the complaint against Koster Enterprises was unaffected by this ruling. In March 1986, the Department received copies of orders of discharge supposedly affecting respondent Koster Enterprises. However, those orders were found to be applicable only to certain individuals, not the respondent corporation. In a letter dated March 19, 1986, the Department gave respondent Koster Enterprises 20 days from its receipt of such letter to show cause why the May 9, 1984, Stay Order should not be vacated and the reparation proceeding reopened. Koster Enterprises did not respond to this letter.

Accordingly, the May 9, 1984, Stay Order is hereby vacated and the reparation proceeding is reopened against respondent Koster Enterprises. Respondent shall have 20 days from its receipt of this Order to file in triplicate an answer to the complaint, a copy of which is attached to this Order.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER GRANTING PETITION FOR RECONSIDERATION AND AMENDING PRIOR ORDER

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), an order was issued on August 22, 1985, awarding reparation to complainant against respondent. On September 3, 1985, respondent filed a petition for reconsideration, and on October 1, 1985, the order of October 22, 1985, was stayed and complainant was served with a copy of respondent's petition and given 15 days from date of receipt thereof in which to file an answer to the petition. Complainant did not file an answer.

In its petition respondent contends that our order of August 22, 1985, was in error in the factual determination that the tomatoes were originally shipped to respondent in Visalia, California and then diverted by respondent following shipment, to respondent's customer in Norfolk, Virginia. Respondent contends that the shipping documents indicating that the original destination was Visalia, California, were in error, did not reflect the agreement between the parties, and were not in accord with what actually happened. In support of this contention respondent quotes from paragraph 6 of the complaint which refers to "arrival of said truck at destination", as proof that complainant knew of the Virginia destination prior to shipment. Of course, this statement by complainant, while it may be taken as indicative of the inference which respondent urges, does not have to be so understood. Complainant could be referring to the ultimate Virginia destination without any necessary inference that complainant knew of that destination prior to shipment. Indeed this is the way we interpreted the statement at the time our original order was written. However, we have carefully reviewed the record in this matter, and two considerations lead us to the conviction that respondent is correct, and that our order of August 22, 1985, is in error. First, in a letter to this Department dated April 12, 1984, complainant's Dan Delgado stated that he had a discussion with respondent's Jim Stewart prior to the truck being loaded, in which complainant was informed that respondent's "customer was being quoted" a lower price by competitors. While the customer is not named, the statement does lend credence to respondent's position. Second, complainant has nowhere in this proceeding advanced the position that the tomatoes were originally destined for Visalia, California, and then diverted by respondent to the Virginia customer. We conclude that we were unduly swayed by the destination stated on the shipping documents, and that complainant did in fact know prior to shipment that the tomatoes were destined for Norfolk, Virginia.

Of course this determination necessitates additional and substantial alteration in the conclusions relative to this case. First, we must now conclude that the suitable shipping condition warranty was applicable to the shipment of the subject tomatoes. Under that warranty (see 7 CFR § 46.43(j)) complainant was required to ship tomatoes which would arrive at the contract destination without abnormal deterioration provided transportation services and conditions were normal. The pulp temperatures of 50 to 51 degrees shown by the federal inspection following arrival are not much higher than the 46 degree ambient air temperature specified by complainant for the truck, and are not excessive for tomatoes. The inspection was made on the fourth day following shipment. This is not indicative of an excessive period of time in transit. We conclude, therefore, that transportation services and conditions were normal. The inspection showed the condition of the tomatoes as "average approximately 80% light red and red. 8 to 52% in most cartons, none in some, average 19% soft. Average 2% decay." Tomatoes, to make good delivery at destination, should not contain more than approximately 8% soft and/or decayed tomatoes. See 7 CFR § 51.1861(a)(2)(i); (b)(2)(i); (c)(2)(i); and (d)(2)(i); see also Denice & Filice Packing Co. v. Super Food Services, 38 Agric. Dec. 744 at 746–747 (1979). The high percentage of soft tomatoes present in this load clearly shows that complainant breached the warranty of suitable shipping condition.

The measure of damages for breach of warranty in regard to accepted goods is the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted. See UCC § 2–714. In this case respondent's customer rejected following unloading of the tomatoes. This was an act of acceptance. See Crown Orchards Co. v. Mid-Valley Prod. Corp., 34 Agric. Dec. 381 (1975). Complainant took back 660 cartons of the tomatoes which respondent's customer made available, and resold them in New York, but failed to submit any data in regard to the proceeds of the resale. This of course makes it impossible for us to compute damages in the normal manner. The primary burden of proof in regard to damages would, in this situation, normally fall upon respondent, and respondent could, in theory have subpoenaed complainant's records in an effort to meet this burden. However, we feel that his would in fact be an extraordinary burden to place upon respondent in the context of a shortened procedure case, especially where, as here, respondent was not represented by counsel. On the other hand, complainant also was not represented by counsel, and much the same objection applies to penalizing complainant for failing to submit the necessary data for computation of damages. All in all, the most equitable solution to this problem, in our opinion, is to require that the cost of freight from Nogales, Arizona to Norfolk, Virginia be borne by complainant for those tomatoes which complainant repossessed and resold. Respondent paid this freight, but received no economic benefit from the tomatoes. Complainant did presumably receive economic benefit from the resale of the tomatoes, and it is therefore fitting, especially in view of complainant's breach, that complainant be made responsible for the freight. That freight amounted to $1.75 per flat, or $1,155.00 for the 660 flats which complainant took back. The reparation in the amount of $2,514.60 which we previously awarded should be reduced by this amount.

The order of August 22, 1985, insofar as it is in conflict with this order, is superseded. The stay order of October 1, 1985, is hereby vacated.

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay complainant, as reparation, $1,359.60, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (U.S.C. 499a et seq.), an order was issued on January 16, 1986, awarding reparation to complainant against respondent. On February 3, 1986, and within the time allowed by the Rules of Practice, respondent filed a petition for reconsideration. The order of January 16, 1986, was automatically stayed pending issuance of a further order in this proceeding. See 7 CFR 47.24(a).

In its petition respondent contends that the order of January 16, 1986, is in error in several respects. We have reconsidered the order and find that respondent's contentions are without merit, and that the order is supported by the evidence and by the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, respondent's petition should be and hereby is dismissed without prior service upon complainant. The order of January 16, 1986, is hereby reinstated, and the reparation awarded to complainant in that order shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this order.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

By petition received May 13, 1986, complainant has moved that this matter be reconsidered.

Accordingly, the order of May 1, 1986, is hereby stayed. Respondent shall have fifteen (15) days from receipt of this order to file an answer to the petition to reconsider.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on April 17, 1986, dismissing the complaint. On May 8, 1986, complainant petitioned for reconsideration of the April 17, 1986, order. In its petition, complainant asks us to rule that a buyer who receives produce in poor condition is required to have the temperature recording instrument, the tape of which shows acceptable in transit temperatures, recalibrated for accuracy. This burden has never been placed on a receiver, and should not be done so now. Had complainant wanted the instrument recalibrated, it should have taken the steps necessary to do so.

Upon review of the record, we are of the opinion that complainant's claims are without merit, and we conclude that our order of April 17, 1986, is amply supported by the evidence and by the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, complainant's petition for reconsideration is dismissed without prior service upon respondent.

The order of April 17, 1986, is reinstated.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), an order was issued on May 5, 1986, dismissing the complaint. The dismissal had been preceeded, on August 26, 1985, by an order requiring respondent to pay complainant $50,574.00 plus interest which it had admitted it owed complainant. Dismissal of the complaint regarding the $2,592.00 remaining in dispute was ordered because complainant had failed to respond to respondent's sworn answer in which it alleged that complainant had granted it a $2,592.00 allowance. Thus, we concluded that respondent's assertion was a true statement of fact.

In its petition for reconsideration, complainant submits that it had not agreed to give respondent the $2,592.00 allowance. Complainant had sufficient opportunity to respond to this allegation before the record was closed and the May 5, 1986, decision was issued. Accordingly, its unsworn denial of the respondent's allegation at this time has no merit and, in any event, is untimely filed. 7 CFR § 47.24(b).

Upon review of the record, we are of the opinion that complainant's claims are without merit, and we conclude that our order of May 5, 1986, is amply supported by the evidence and by the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, complainant's petition for recommendation is dismissed without prior service upon respondent.

The order of May 5, 1986, is reinstated.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER DENYING PETITION FOR REOPENING

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on April 24, 1986, requiring respondent to pay complainant $1,861.00, plus interest, as reparation. The order became final on May 24, 1986. See 7 U.S.C. § 499g. From that date forward, since respondent did not file a timely appeal of the order, neither the Secretary nor a court has jurisdiction to hear such an appeal. American Fruit Growers v. Lewis D. Goldstein F&P Corp., 78 F. Supp. 309 (E.D. Pa. 1948).

On May 28, 1986, by a May 15, 1986, letter, respondent has requested reconsideration of the Decision and Order. In view of the above, we have no jurisdiction to consider the matter. Moreover, it should be noted that the filing of this untimely petition does not in any way stay the effective date of the April 24, 1986, Decision and Order, nor does it stay any sanction which may accrue to respondent for failing to satisfy the April 24, 1986, Decision and Order.

Respondent's petition is dismissed.

MISCELLANEOUS REPARATION DEFAULT ORDERS

SUNRISE PRODUCE, INC., v. RUSS ELLIS, d/b/a EVERYBODY'S PRODUCE, PACA Docket No. RD-86-201. Decided May 2, 1986.

Bankruptcy—Automatic Stay—Continuance.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation of $10,618.75 against respondent in connection with transactions in interstate commerce involving shipments of onions. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, and respondent has failed to file an answer thereto.

Complainant, Sunrise Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 306, Quincy, Washington 98848. Respondent, Russ Ellis, doing business as Everybody's Produce, is an individual whose address is P. O. Box 1170, Clearlake Park, California. Respondent was licensed or was subject to license under the Act at the time of the transactions involved herein.

Prior to the default in this proceeding, the Department was advised that respondent had filed in the United States Bankruptcy Court, Northern District of California, a voluntary petition for reorganization pursuant to Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. §§ 1101–1174). The Department also was advised that a discharge in the bankruptcy proceeding would be a release of the claim before the Department.

11 U.S.C. § 362 provides for an automatic stay against continuing an action involving a debt once a party has filed a petition under the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 362, this reparation proceeding is hereby continued until the Department receives proper notification that the Chapter 11 proceeding now pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court has been closed, dismissed, or converted to straight bankruptcy, or that the debts have been discharged through confirmation of a Plan of Arrangement.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

KERMIT CHAPMAN & SONS, INC., v. AL NAGELBERG & CO., INC., PACA Docket No. RD–86–219. Decided May 2, 1986.

Full settlement—dismissed.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in the amount of $37,045.08 in connection with transactions involving the shipment of perishable agricultural commodities in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint was served on respondent. By letter dated March 28, 1986, complainant notified the Department that respondent tendered to complainant a check in full settlement of complainant's claim. Complainant, in its letter of March 28, 1986, authorized dismissal of its complaint filed herein.

Accordingly, the complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a eq seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in the amount of $1,664.60 in connection with transactions involving the shipment of perishable agricultural commodities in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint was served on respondent. By letter dated April 11, 1986, complainant notified the Department that respondent tendered to complainant a check in full settlement of complainant's claim. Complainant, in its letter of April 11, authorized dismissal of its complaint filed herein.

Accordingly, the complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

FOUR STAR TOMATO, INC., v. REM BROKERAGE CO., INC., PACA Docket No. RD-86-129. Decided May 27, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER REOPENING AFTER DEFAULT

In this proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the respondent failed to file a timely answer. However, subsequent to the issuance of a Default Order, respondent filed a motion to reopen the proceeding after default and allow the filing of an answer pursuant to section 47.25 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.25(e)).

The record has been carefully considered and it is concluded that the motion to reopen was filed within a reasonable time, and that good reason has been shown why the relief requested in the motion should be granted. Mendelson-Zeller Co. v. United Fruit Distributors, 16 A.D. 790 (1957). Respondent's claim that the complaint was signed for by someone from L. R. Clark Company, which has an office in respondent's building, and not respondent, is borne out by the signature on the return receipt card. Therefore, the complaint was not properly served. Accordingly, respondent's default in the filing of an answer is set aside. Respondent will have 10 days from receipt of this order to file an answer.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

SARGENT PRODUCE COMPANY v. BOLER FARMS, PACA Docket No. RD-86-275. Decided May 27, 1986.

TOM LANGE COMPANY, INC., v. DIXIELAND PRODUCE INC., PACA Docket No. RD-86-256. Decided June 25, 1986.

Petition to reopen—claim untimely filing due to paperwork—denied—Reparation awarded.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

RULING ON PETITION TO REOPEN, AND DEFAULT ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in connection with a transaction involving vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent and respondent has not filed an answer thereto. By letter dated April 23, 1986, received by the Department on April 29, 1986, respondent petitioned for reopening of its default. In support of its petition, respondent claimed that, although it had received the complaint, due to a "paper-work [back] up" the complaint was not located until after it received the Department's April 15, 1986, notice that it was in default. The record reflects that respondent was served with a copy of the complaint on February 26, 1986, by certified mail. We cannot accept its claim that a "paper-work [back] up" caused it to misplace official correspondence received by certified mail until it received the April 15, 1986, letter. While these matters are handled in a somewhat less formal manner than court proceedings, nevertheless the members of the produce industry cannot choose to ignore them. Some modicum of formality must be followed. It appears that respondent elected to deal with this matter in a cavalier fashion. Somewhat more is required of persons who get served with copies of formal reparation complaints by certified mail which are accompanied by a Departmental letter calling for a response thereto within 20 day of receipt. In view of this, respondent's petition to reopen is denied. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate pursuant to Section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.8(d)).

Complaint, Tom Lange Company, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 4701, Springfield, Illinois 62708. Respondent, Dixieland Produce Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is Box 5474, Birmingham, Alabama 35207.

Respondent was licensed under the Act at the time of the transaction involved herein. The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as the findings of fact of this order and constitute a violation or violations by respondent of Section 2 of the Act (& U.S.C. 499b). Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, the amount stated below, which we find to be the amount of damages to which complainant is entitled as a result of the violation found herein, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from the following date, until paid.

REPARATION AWARD: $4,402.60, with interest thereon from June 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

H. SCHNELL & COMPANY, INC., v. MEDINA FRUITS & VEGETABLES, INC., PACA Docket No. RD–86–169. Decided June 26, 1986.

Default set aside.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER REOPENING AFTER DEFAULT

In this proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the respondent failed to file a timely answer and a Default Order was issued on March 3, 1986. However, subsequent to the issuance of a Default Order, respondent filed a motion to reopen the proceeding after default and allow the filing of an answer pursuant to section 47.25 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.25(e)).

The record has been carefully considered and it is concluded that the motion to reopen was filed within a reasonable time, and that good reason has been shown why the relief requested in the motion should be granted. Mendelson-Zeller Co. v. United Fruit Distributors, 16 A.D. 790 (1957). Accordingly, respondent's default in the filing of an answer is set aside. Pursuant to 7 CFR 47.25(e), respondent will have 10 days from receipt of this order to file an answer, in triplicate. If respondent fails to do so, the Default Order will be reinstated.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

CAL-MEX DISTRIBUTORS, INC., v. P. J. PRODUCE CO., PACA Docket No. RD-86-229. Decided June 26, 1986.

Denied—untimely.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER DENYING PETITION FOR REOPENING

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a default order was issued on April 29, 1986, requiring respondent to pay complainant $726.00, plus interest, as reparation. The order became final on May 29, 1986. See 7 U.S.C. § 499g. From that date forward, since respondent did not file a timely appeal of the order, neither the Secretary nor a court has jurisdiction to hear such an appeal. American Fruit Growers v. Lewis D. Goldstein F&P Corp., 78 F. Supp. 309 (E.D. Pa. 1948).

On June 2, 1986, by a May 30, 1986, telegram, respondent has requested reopening of its default. In view of the above, we have no jurisdiction to consider the matter. Moreover, it should be noted that the filing of this untimely petition does not in any way stay the effective date of the April 29, 1986, Default Order, nor does it stay any sanction which may accrue to respondent for failing to satisfy the April 29, 1986, Default Order.

Respondent's petition is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served on the parties.

ORDER REOPENING AFTER DEFAULT

In this proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the respondent failed to file a timely answer. However, prior to the issuance of a Default Order, respondent filed a motion to reopen the proceeding after default and allow the filing of an answer pursuant to section 47.25 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.25(e)).

DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: SUPER BROTHERS EXOTIC NURSERY, INC., PQ Docket No. 203. Decided May 2, 1986.

Shipment of nursery stock—not inspected—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Fronda Woods, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

On March 4, 1986, this proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151 - 164a, 167), and the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 150aa-150jj) (Acts), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated the Acts and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR §§ 301.75-301.75-8). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, the respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Super Brothers Exotic Nursery, Inc., respondent, is a corporation whose address is 17190 S.W. 216th Street, Goulds, Florida 33170.

2. On or about April 9, 1985, at Miami, Florida, the respondent offered to Eastern Airlines, for shipment to Puerto Rico, two cartons of Florida citrus nursery stock on airbill number 49-46-9792.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent has admitted the jurisdictional facts and has agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding. Therefore, such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent Super Brothers Exotic Nursery, Inc. is assessed a civil penalty of three hundred seventy-five dollars ($375). The respondent shall send, payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" a certified check or money order, to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day of this order is served upon the respondent.

Offered uninspected plants for shipment—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Terry Medley, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended, and the Federal Plant Pest Act (7

U.S.C. §§ 151–164a and 167, and 150aa et seq.) (Acts) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Bao Chan d/b/a Hawaii Tropical Products, respondent, violated the Acts and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 318.13 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) any further procedure;

(b) any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) all rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in the proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980, as amended (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Bao Chan d/b/a Hawaii Tropical Products, respondent, is a company whose address is P. O. Box 618, Kurtistown, Hawaii 96760.

2. On or about February 14, 1984, the respondent offered for shipped to a common carrier from Hilo, Hawaii, to San Francisco, California 240 pounds of breadfruit and 140 pounds of green jackfruit.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding, such order will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Terry L. Medley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, 12th and Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon the respondent.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. § 111), by a complaint filed by the Acting Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Iberia Airlines, respondent, violated the Acts and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 94.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Iberia Airlines, respondent, is a business having its principal place of business at Luis Munoz Marin International Airport, Isle Verde, Puerto Rico 00913.

2. On or about May 23, 1985, the respondent brought a shipment of meat products within the territorial limits of the United States at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00). The respondent shall send a certified check or money order for $500.00 payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. In re: RENE VALLALTA. PQ Docket No. 138. Decided June 17, 1986.

Importation of prohibited seed pod—Prohibition unknown—Civil penalty.

The Judicial Officer affirmed Judge Weber's decision and order assessing a civil penalty of $250 against respondent for importing one cacao pod from El Salvador into the United States in violation of the Plant Quarantine Act and regulations. Respondent's request for a hearing to show that a relative had placed the article in his bags without his knowledge was properly denied since a $250 civil penalty would still be appropriate.

Kris Ikejiri, for complainant.
Robert Bernstein, Fairfield, California, for respondent.
William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a proceeding under the Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-167), in which Administrative Law Judge William J. Weber (ALJ) filed an initial Decision and Order on April 15, 1986, assessing a civil penalty of $250 against respondent for importing one cacao pod from El Salvador into the United States in violation of the Act and regulations.

On May 2, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR

§ 2.35).[1] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on June 9, 1986.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This proceeding was instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. The complaint alleged, inter alia, that Rene Vallalta, respondent, violated the Plant Quarantine Act, as amended (PQA) (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.), and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR Part 319). Paragraph II of the complaint alleged that the respondent imported from El Salvador into New Orleans, Louisiana, approximately one (1) cacao seed pod in violation of section 319.56 of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56), because the importation of cacao seeds is prohibited.

In his answer, the respondent admitted all of the material facts in the complaint. However, the respondent claimed that he did not know that he had the prohibited article. Respondent stated that a relative had placed the article in his bags without his knowledge. Respondent requested a hearing.

Complainant objected to respondent's request for a hearing because, by respondent's admission, there were no material issues of fact. Complainant further requested that the civil penalty of $250, as requested in the complaint, be imposed. In light of the Judicial Officer's decision in, In re Richard Duran Lopez, P. Q. Docket No. 59, I certified the following questions to the judicial officer:

1. Should respondent's motion for hearing be denied?

2. If no hearing is appropriate and if complainant files a motion for a decision on the pleadings, should that decision be entered finding a violation and assessing a $250.00 civil penalty against respondent Rene Vallalta?

The certification was necessary to determine if "unintentional" as used in the Lopez decision is to be construed to include "unknowing". The Judicial Officer answered that respondent's motion for hearing should be denied and that the $250.00 civil penalty should be imposed.

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

WHEREFORE, in light of the Judicial Officer's answer and the complainant's motion for a decision on the pleadings, the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions, and Order shall be issued.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Rene Vallalta, respondent herein, is an individual whose mailing address is 2214 Burgundy Way, Fairfield, California 94533.

2. On or about August 26, 1985, the respondent imported from El Salvador into New Orleans, Louisiana, approximately one (1) cacao seed pod, in violation of section 319.56 of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56) because the importation of cacao seed pods is prohibited.

CONCLUSIONS

By reasons of the facts alleged herein, respondent violated the PQA and regulations promulgated thereunder. Therefore, the following order shall be issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

This case is governed by the principles set forth in In re Lopez, 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (Oct. 7, 1985), a copy of which is attached as an appendix.

Respondent contends that this case is distinguishable from Lopez because in Lopez, the respondent knew that he had one piece of sugarcane in his possession, but did not know that it was unlawful to bring it into the United States, whereas here, respondent's relative placed the prohibited cacao pod in his luggage, without his knowledge. However, that distinction is not material. As explained in Lopez, in order to achieve the congressional purpose and to prevent the importation into the United States of items that could be disastrous to the United States agricultural community, it is necessary to take a hard-nosed approach and hold violators responsible for any violation irrespective of lack of evil motive or intent to violate the quarantine laws. If that policy were not followed where forbidden items were placed in luggage by relatives or friends of the violator, a loophole would be created that could prove disastrous to American agriculture. Accordingly, the Lopez doctrine will be followed here.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Rene Vallalto is assessed a civil penalty of $250, which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and it shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within 30 days from the service of this order.

In re. PAULINE ANGELA HUDSON, PQ Docket No. 141. Decided March 19, 1986.

Imported fruit without permit—Civil Penalty—Default.

Fronda Woods, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (Act) (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a and 167), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated section 319.56-2(e) of the regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.56-2(e)). Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed within twenty days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer would constitute an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under 7 CFR § 1.136(c). The respondent was also informed that failure to file an answer would constitute a waiver of hearing, as provided in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

The respondent filed no answer during the twenty-day period allowed. Respondent's failure to file an answer within the time provided constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Respondent's failure to file an answer also constitutes a waiver of hearing under section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Since respondent is deemed to have admitted the material allegations of fact in the complaint, they are adopted and set forth as the Findings of Fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Pauline Angela Hudson, respondent, is an individual whose address is 112-39 203rd Street, St. Albans, New York 11412.

2. On or about April 26, 1985, at John F. Kennedy International Airport, respondent imported ten mangoes from Jamaica into the United States in violation of 7 CFR § 319.56-2(e), because the fruit was not accompanied by a permit, as required.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file any answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By her silence respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following order is therefore issued.

ORDER

Respondent Pauline Angela Hudson is hereby assessed a civil penalty of two hundred fifty dollars ($250), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded toFronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal* to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

In re: GLOBAL VAN LINES, PQ Docket No. 241. Decided June 25, 1986.

Movement of household articles interstate—Civil Penalty—Consent.

Clement McGovern, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912 as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 318.13 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulation:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision.

2. Respondent waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Global Van Lines, respondent, is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of California and having its principle place of business at #1 Global Way, Anaheim, California 92803.

2. On or about September 4, 1985, respondent moved outdoor household articles from Stoney Brook, Suffolk County, New York to San Diego, California.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of three hundred and seventy-five dollars ($375.00). The respondent shall send, payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," a certified check or money order to Clement J. McGovern, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this Order.

This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

In re: MANUEL NORIEGA, PQ Docket No. 143. Decided May 1, 1986.

Fruit imported without permit—Civil Penalty.

Fronda Woods, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (Act) (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a and 167), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated section 319.56-2(e) of the regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.56-2(e)). The Office of the Hearing Clerk mailed to respondent, by certified mail, copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act. The Postal Service returned the documents unclaimed. The Hearing Clerk then remailed the documents by regular mail. This constitutes service under section 1.147(b)(3) of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding. (7 CFR § 1.147(b)(3)).

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136), respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed within twenty days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer would constitute an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under 7 CFR § 1.136(c). The respondent was also informed that failure to file an answer would constitute a waiver of hearing, as provided in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

The respondent filed no answer during the twenty-day period allowed. Respondent's failure to file an answer within the time provided constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Respondent's failure to file an answer also constitutes a waiver of hearing under section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Since respondent is deemed to have admitted the material allegations of fact in the complaint, they are adopted and set forth as the Findings of Fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Manuel Noriega, respondent, is an individual whose address is 1840 Rockwood, Apt. 67, Calexico, California 92331.

2. On or about October 23, 1984, at Calexico, California, respondent imported 26 limes and two plums from Mexico into the United States in violation of 7 CFR § 319.56-2(e), because the fruit was not accompanied by a permit, as required.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file any answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By his silence respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following order is therefore issued.

ORDER

Respondent Manuel Noriega is hereby assessed a civil penalty of two hundred fifty dollars ($250), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

PREFATORY NOTE

It is the purpose of this official publication to make available to the public, in an orderly and accessible form, decisions issued under regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The decisions published herein may be described generally as decisions which are made in proceedings of a quasi-judicial character, and which, under the applicable statutes, can be made by the Secretary of Agriculture, or an officer authorized by law to act in his stead, only after notice and hearing or opportunity for a hearing. These decisions do not include rules and regulations of general applicability which are required to be published in the Federal Register.

The principal statutes concerned are the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.), the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Animal Quarantine and Related Laws (21 U.S.C. 111 et seq.), the Animal Welfare Act (7 U.S.C. 2131 et seq.), the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Grain Standards Act (7 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Horse Protection Act (15 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921 (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.), the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930 (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the Plant Quarantine Act (7 U.S.C. 151 et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 451 et seq.), and the Virus-Serum-Toxin Act of 1913 (21 U.S.C. 151–158).

The decisions published herein are arranged alphabetically by statute and within the statute section by date of issue or date the decision became final after expiration of the appeal period. They may be cited by giving the volume and page, for illustration, 1 A.D. 472 (1942). It is unnecessary to cite the docket or decision number. Prior to 1942 the Secretary's decisions were identified by docket and decision numbers, for example, D–578; S. 1150. Such citation of a case in these volumes generally indicates that the decision is not published in Agriculture Decisions.

Current court decisions involving the regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture are published herein.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

ORDER

For the reasons stated therein, complainant's motion to dismiss is granted. It is, therefore, ordered that the complaint in this proceeding is hereby dismissed without prejudice.

In re: WALDMAN'S MEATS, INC. FMIA Docket No. 101. PPIA Docket No. 17. I & G Docket No. 81. Decided on August 4, 1986.

Altering and forging USDA certificate—Denial of Services—Consent.

Harold Reuben, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

STIPULATION AND CONSENT DECISION

These are proceedings under Title I of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (FMIA) as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 601 et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (PPIA) (21 U.S.C. §§ 451 et seq.) and the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (AMA) as amended (7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.) to withhold and deny inspection and grading services under the above Acts to respondent. These actions were initiated by complaints filed on July 10, 1986. Respondent has waived its right to answer the complaints.

The parties have agreed that these proceedings should be terminated by the entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulation:

1. For purposes of this Stipulation and the provisions of the Consent Decision only, respondent admits all of the jurisdictional allegations set forth herein, and waives:

(a) Any further procedural steps;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law or discretion, as well as, the reasons or bases thereof; and

(c) All rights to seek judicial review or otherwise to challenge or contest the validity of this decision.

2. Respondent waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture, under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980, Pub. L. 96-481, which went into effect October 1, 1981, for fees and other expenses incurred by Respondent in connection with this proceeding.

3. This Stipulation and Consent Decision are for settlement purpose in this proceeding only and do not otherwise constitute an admission by respondent that it has violated the regulations or statutes involved.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I

1. Waldman's Meats, Inc., ("Respondent") is, and at all times material herein, was, a corporation which operates a meat packing establishment at 809 Sampson Street, New Castle, Pennsylvania 16103.

2. At all times material herein, respondent has requested and received Federal meat inspection and Federal meat grading and acceptance services at its place of business in New Castle, Pennsylvania.

3. Joseph P. Milifried is, and at all times material herein was, employed by respondent as a production foreman and as such is "responsibly connected" with Waldman's Meats, Inc.

4. On October 11, 1985, Joseph P. Milifried was convicted, in the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania of two counts of willfully altering and forging an official United States Department of Agriculture certificate in violation of 7 U.S.C. § 1622(h).

CONCLUSIONS

Inasmuch as the parties have agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Consent Decision in disposition of this proceeding, such Order will be issued.

ORDER

Inspection services under FMIA and PPIA, and grading and acceptance Services under the AMA are withdrawn from and denied to respondent; its officers, directors, partners, affiliates, successors, assigns, directly or through any corporate device, for a period of one year. However, said withdrawals and denials, with the exception of a 120 day period of withdrawal of Federal meat grading and acceptance services, shall be held in abeyance and all inspection and grading services shall be provided to respondent so long as the conditions set forth in paragraphs 1-9 below are met. During the period this Stipulation and Consent Decision is in effect, the Secretary shall have the right to summarily withdraw inspection service upon a finding by appropriate national headquarters staff of a violation of any special condition set forth in paragraphs 1-9 below. The summary withdrawal of inspection service shall be effective pending final determination of a violation in accordance with the applicable Rules of Practice. Such summary withdrawal shall have no relevance with respect to the final determination in the proceeding and will not preclude the respondent from requesting an expedited hearing.

1. Joseph P. Milifried shall not have any responsibilities with regard to USDA Meat Grading and Acceptance Certificates nor shall he issue or sign any reports or documents which may be received by FSIS. Nor shall Joseph P. Milifried become an officer, director or shareholder of respondent during the period of this Stipulation and Consent Decision; and

2. Respondent shall not knowingly employ or hire any individual, with the exception of Joseph P. Milifried, who has been convicted, in any Federal or state court, of any felony or more than one violation of any law other than a felony, based upon the acquiring, handling, or distribution of unwholesome, mislabeled or deceptively packaged food, or fraud in connection with transactions in food; and

3. Respondent shall immediately terminate its connection with any such individual when that individual's conviction becomes known; and

4. Respondent shall not knowingly or willfully alter or forge any United States Department of Agriculture document or certificate issued by any program employee in the course of their duties at its establishment, and

5. Respondent shall not prepare, handle, or store custom exempt articles or game, whether for customers, employees, the owner, friends or relatives; and

6. Respondent shall not reprocess, recondition, or rework any returned or off-condition product without prior approval by, the assigned USDA inspector; and

7. Respondent shall maintain full, complete, and accurate written records of all business activities applicable to and required by the FMIA, PPIA and AMA, which are available for review by USDA personnel; and

8. Respondent shall make a detailed semiannual written report in a format approved by the Director, Evaluation and Enforcement Division, to the Meat and Inspection Office's Area Supervisor, specifically addressing its adherence to this Stipulation and Consent Decision with a copy to the assigned USDA inspector. The first such report is due December 1, 1986. All following semiannual written reports shall be submitted to the Area Supervisor on June 1 and December 1 of each calendar year that this Consent Decision and Order is effective; and

9. Respondent shall afford duly authorized personnel of the USDA an opportunity to examine and to copy all records, reports, and other documents required of the respondent in this Consent Decision and Order, at reasonable hours and upon reasonable notice.

This Order shall not preclude the USDA from taking any other actions available should repondent violate the FMIA, PPIA, AMA, or regulations promulgated thereunder.

This Consent Decision and Order shall become effective after being signed by an Administrative Law Judge and filed with the Hearing Clerk. Federal meat grading and acceptance services shall be withdrawn from and denied to respondent, for a 120 day period commencing, the first day of the month following the effective date of the Consent Decision and Order.

This Stipulation and Consent Decision shall expire 3 years after date of issuance below.

In re: DAKOTA CHEESE, INC. AMA Docket No. M76-4. Decided August 20, 1986.

E. Steeves Smith, for complainant.
M. Bradley Flynn, for respondent.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

STIPULATION FOR DISMISSAL OF PETITION

Comes now Petitioner, Dakota Cheese, Inc., by and through its attorneys, Tinan, Smith & Taylor, and the United States Department of Agriculture through its office of General Counsel, who hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

1. That on or about April 25, 1986, the Honorable Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge, entered his Order of indefinite continuance in the above-entitled administration action pending completion of a settlement agreement between Petitioner and United States Department of Agriculture.

2. That items 1 through 5 of the Settlement Agreement filed in this administration action have been completed.

3. That insofar as the administrative action is concerned the only matter remaining to be completed is dismissal, with prejudice, of the Petition giving rise to this administrative action.

4. That the parties specificially agree that the Administrative Law Judge may enter, without further hearing or notice, his Order dismissing, with prejudice, the Petition of Dakota Cheese, Inc., filed herein.

In re: DR. DANE O. PETTY. V.A. Docket No. 21. Decided on July 3, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

REMOVAL OF STAY ORDER

The stay order previously issued in this proceeding pending the outcome of proceedings for judicial review is hereby lifted. The Decision and Order previously issued on October 31, 1984, shall become effective on the 30th day after service of this order on respondent.

In re: PATRICK L. MURPHY. A.Q. Docket No. 236. Decided on May 27, 1986.

Violation of regulation on importation and slaughtering swine—Civil penalty—Consent.

Respondent imported 94 Swine from Canada in violation of regulations and then failed to deliver the 94 swine to consigned slaughtering establishment and have the swine slaughtered within required 14 days. Civil penalty of $1,000 assessed.

Clement McGovern, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the importation of swine from Canada (9 CFR §§ 92.22 and 92.23 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 9 CFR §§ 70.1 et seq. and 7 CFR §§ 1.130 et seq.

This proceeding was initiated by a complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Acting Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that on or about June 24, 1985, the respondent imported from Canada, ninety-four (94) swine, in violation of sections 92.22 and 92.23 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 92.22 and 92.23). The respondent failed to deliver the swine to the consigned slaughtering establishment and also failed to have the swine slaughtered at the consigned slaughtering establishment within two (2) weeks from the date of importation, as required by the regulations. The respondent has failed to file an answer or otherwise respond to any of the material allegations contained in the complaint, thereby, for the purposes of this proceeding, being deemed to have admitted the allegations and waive a hearing. (see 7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the Findings of Fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding. (See 7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Patrick L. Murphy, is an individual whose address is Route 2, Newell, Iowa 50568.

2. On or about June 24, 1985, respondent imported ninety-four (94) swine from Canada, in violation of sections 92.22(b) and 92.23 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 92.22(b) and 92.23), in that the swine were not directly delivered to the slaughter establishment as consigned from port of entry, as required.

3. On or about June 24, 1985, respondent imported 94 swine from Canada, in violation of section 92.23 of the regulations (9 CFR § 92.23), in that the swine were not slaughtered at the consigned slaughtering establishment within two weeks from date of entry, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated sections 92.22(b) and 92.23 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 92.22(b) and 92.23)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ORDER

Respondent, Patrick L. Murphy, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of one thousand dollars ($500.00 per violation). This penalty shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Clement J. McGovern, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order. This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after a full hearing and shall be final and effective thirty five (35) days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

In re: JOHNNY DOBSON, SULPHUR SPRINGS LIVESTOCK COMMISSION COMPANY, O.L. COLLEY LIVESTOCK COMMISSION COMPANY and GREENVILLE LIVESTOCK COMMISSION COMPANY. A.Q. Docket No. 265. Decided July 15, 1986.

Movement of cattle interstate—Civil penalty—Consent.

Kris Ikejiri, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER AS TO GREENVILLE LIVESTOCK COMMISSION COMPANY

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Greenville Livestock Commission Company and others violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR Part 71 and Part 78). Respondent Greenville Livestock Commission Company and the complainant agree that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth and agree to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, Greenville Livestock Commission Company admits specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Greenville Livestock Commission Company also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by it in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Greenville Livestock Commission Company, respondent, is a company whose address is Post Office Box 1043, Greenville, Texas 75401.

2. On or about June 25, 1985, the respondent moved interstate from Greenville, Texas to Omaha, Nebraska, approximately 33 cattle.

3. On or about July 16, 1985, the respondent moved interstate from Greenville, Texas to Omaha, Nebraska, approximately 48 cattle.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Greenville Livestock Commission Company is assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00) which shall be payable to, "The Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, on or before June 30, 1986.

This Decision and Order shall become effective on the day of service upon the respondent.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended, (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 71.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by the entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, the respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in this proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Dr. Dean Christianson, respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 1, Box 57A, Eureka, South Dakota.

2. On or about May 31, 1985, the respondent, Dr. Dean Christianson, caused the interstate movement of thirty-six (36) cows from Herreid, South Dakota to Annawan, Illinois.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding, such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250). The respondent shall send, payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" a certified check or money order, to Robert L. Broussard, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day this order is served upon the respondent.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AS TO RUSSELL M. TRACEY, D.V.M.

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended, (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Jobe Whaley, respondent, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent, Russell M. Tracey, D.V.M., specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) any further procedure;

(b) any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) all rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Russell M. Tracey, D.V.M., respondent is an individual whose address is 11718 Grant Road, Cypress, Texas 77429.

2. On or about December 4, 1984, the respondent caused the movement interstate of six (6) bulls from Crockett, Texas, to Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding with respect to respondent Russell M. Tracey, D.V.M., such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of two hundred dollars ($200.00). The respondent shall make payment by sending a certified check or money order payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon respondent.

In re: DOMINICANA DE AVIACION AIRLINES. A.Q. Docket No. 96. Decided on June 11, 1986.

Operating without a license—Civil penalty.

Respondent imported 33 birds from the Dominican Republic to San Juan, Puerto Rico, without being licensed. Civil penalty of $1,000 was assessed.

Clement McGovern, for complainant.
Mr. Russo (In-house), for respondent.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that respondent Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines, violated the Act and sections 92.2(a) and 92.4(a) of the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR §§ 92.2(a) and 92.4(a)).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines on September 17, 1984. Copies of the amended complaint and rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act were also served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent on December 7, 1984.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent, Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines, was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer to, or plead specifically to, any allegation in the complaint would constitute an admission of such allegation pursuant to section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines was also informed that failure to file an answer would constitute a waiver of hearing, as provided in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines has not filed an answer to this date. Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines asked for and received two extensions in order to adequately answer the amended complaint. No answer has been filed since the deadline for the second extension, January 31, 1985. Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines' failure to file an answer within the time provided constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint pursuant to section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines' failure to file an answer also constitutes a waiver of hearing under section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Since Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines is deemed to have admitted the material allegations of fact in the complaint, they are adopted and set forth as the Findings of Fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines is a corporation under the laws of the Dominican Republic, is doing business in the United States, including the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and whose agent in the United States is Mr. Celestino Pena, whose address is Iberia Airlines, 9777 Queens Boulevard, 11th Floor, Rego Park, New York 11374.

2. On or about May 5, 1984, respondent imported 33 birds (32 finches and 1 parrot) from the Dominican Republic to San Juan, Puerto Rico, in violation of sections 92.2(a) and 92.4(a) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 92.2(a) and 92.4(a)) because no permit was applied for or obtained prior to the importation of the birds, as required.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts in the findings of fact set forth above, respondent, Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. Therefore the following order is issued.

ORDER

Respondent, Dominicana de Aviacion Airlines, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, which shall be payable by certified check or money order, made payable to "Treasurer of the United States," and sent to Clement J. McGovern, at the following address:

USDA

Office of the General Counsel

Room 2422 South Building

14th & Independence Avenue, S.W.

Washington, D.C. 20250-1400

This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant within 30 days of service to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

[This Decision and Order became final on July 22, 1986—ED.]

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 71 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Dr. Kirk S. Kothmann, respondent, is an individual whose address is 535 Greer Boulevard, Pittsburg, Texas 75686.

2. On or about October 25, 1985, the respondent caused the interstate movement of three cattle from Pittsburg, Texas, to Auburn, Georgia.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order to Clement J. McGovern, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon the respondent.

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondents violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent, Big Springs Cattle Company, specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Big Springs Cattle Company, herein referred to as the respondent, is a partnership whose business mailing address is Box 324, Picayune, Mississippi 39466.

2. On or about March 19, 1985, the respondent moved at least three (3) cattle, over twenty-four months of age, interstate from Picayune, Mississippi, to Powderly, Texas.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding with respect to respondent Big Springs Cattle Company, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of three hundred fifty dollars ($350.00). Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding instituted by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, under the regulations promulgated under the Animal Quarantine and Related Laws (21 U.S.C. § 111 et seq.). The Administrator (complainant) seeks to suspend respondent's accreditation as a veterinarian authorized to perform official duties under State-Federal disease eradication programs for a period of 6 months.

On June 17, 1986, Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. Campbell (ALJ) issued an initial Default Decision and Order revoking respondent's accreditation as a veterinarian authorized to perform official duties under State-Federal disease eradication programs for a period of 6 months.

On June 11, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer,[1] to whom final administrative authority has been delegated to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 (7 CFR § 2.35).[2] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on July 22, 1986.

Oral argument before the Judicial Officer, which is discretionary (7 CFR § 1.145(d)), was requested by respondent, but is denied inasmuch as the issues are not novel or difficult and oral argument would seem to serve no useful purpose.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Default Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, except that the effective date of the order is changed in view of the appeal. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the regulations governing the Accreditation of Veterinarians and Suspension or Revocation of such Accreditation (9 CFR § 160.1 et seq.), by a Complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The Complaint was filed with the Hearing Clerk on March 12, 1986. The Complaint alleged that Respondent violated the Standards for Accredited Veterinarians (Standards) (9 CFR § 161.2).

[1] Respondent's appeal was filed after respondent received complainant's motion for adoption of the proposed decision that was not issued by the ALJ until 6 days after the appeal, but the premature appeal was accepted by the Judicial Officer as an appeal from the ALJ's decision.

[2] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c-450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

Copies of the Complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent on March 24, 1986.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, Respondent was informed in the Complaint and the letter of service that an Answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the Complaint, and that failure to file an answer either denying or otherwise responding to the allegations in the Complaint and requesting an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. On April 17, 1986, Respondent was sent, by regular mail, a notice that his Answer has not been received by the Hearing Clerk in the allotted time. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since Respondent was served with the Complaint in question. Respondent has not filed an answer to date. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the Complaint, which are admitted by Respondent's failure to file an Answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Dr. Jerome H. Schwartz, Respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is 200 West Sherman Avenue, Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin 53538.

2. Respondent is now, and at all times material herein was, a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine and an Accredited Veterinarian in the State of Wisconsin under the provisions of the regulations of Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 160–162.

3. On or about August 7, 1984, the Respondent violated paragraph (b) of the Standards (9 CFR § 161.2(b)) by failing to report the results of tuberculosis tests, read on or about April 12, 1984, for Larry Pint, Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, to the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture within seven (7) days after the making of such tests, in accordance with instructions issued to the Respondent by the Veterinarian in Charge or the State Animal Health Official, or both.

4. On or about April 2, 1985, the Respondent violated paragraph (b) of the Standards (9 CFR § 161.2(b)) by failing to report the results of tuberculosis tests, read on or about January 26, 1985, for Maple Tree Farm, Johnson Creek, Wisconsin, to the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture within seven (7) days after the making of such tests, in accordance with instructions issued to the Respondent by the Veterinarian in Charge or the State Animal Health Official, or both.

5. On or about May 21, 1985, the Respondent violated paragraph (b) of the Standards (9 CFR § 161.2(b)) by failing to report the results of Johne's calfhood vaccinations performed on or about November 12, 1984 (Report No. 14915), December 20, 1984 (Report No. 14916), January 18, 1985 (Report No. 14917), and March 21, 1985 (Report No. 14918) for Meyers Brothers, Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, to the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture within fifteen (15) days after the date of making such vaccinations, in accordance with instructions issued to the Respondent by the Veterinarian in Charge or the State Animal Health Official, or both.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts in the findings of fact set forth above, Respondent has violated the Standards for Accredited Veterinarians. Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days after service of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§1.136(a)–(c), 1.139):

> § 1.136 Answer.
> (a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .
>
> (b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or
> (2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or
> (3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall he served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical in all material respects to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that complainant was seeking a 6-month suspension order. The complaint advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days, as follows (Complaint at 2–3):

WHEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that for the purpose of determining whether the respondent has, in fact, violated the Standards, this complaint shall be served upon the respondent. The respondent shall have twenty (20) days after receipt of this complaint in which to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250–1400, in accordance with sections 162.1 and 1.136 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (9 CFR § 162.1 and 7 CFR § 1.136). Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this > complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Failure to file an answer within the time allowed therefor shall constitute an admission of the allegations in this complaint and a waiver of hearing.

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days. The letter states:

> In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and four copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.
> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

The return receipt card shows that respondent was served with a copy of the complaint on March 24, 1986. Respondent's answer was, therefore, required to be filed with the Hearing Clerk by April 14, 1986. However, respondent filed no answer or other document until his appeal was filed on June 11, 1986. Since respondent failed to file an answer, the Default Decision and Order was properly issued in this case. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[3] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[4]

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 421 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer (who does not have a law clerk) disposed of 45 cases (including one on remand from the Seventh Circuit that required a 529-page decision to justify an 8-month suspension order and a $10,000 civil penalty for 14 separate livestock violations based on circumstantial evidence). In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk. The Department does not have the time or resources to hold a hearing at this late date for this respondent, who did not file a timely answer and did not contest the allegations of the complaint in its untimely answer.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present these matters at this time.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent's veterinarian accreditation is hereby suspended for a period of 6 months, provided that, if the respondent performs any actions during such suspension for which veterinary accreditation is required, the respondent's veterinary accreditation shall be revoked. Before such action is taken, respondent will be afforded an opportunity for a hearing concerning the matter.

This order shall be effective 30 days after service on respondent.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§111, 120, and 122), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent admits specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, admits the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

2. Respondent also stipulates and agrees that the United States Department of Agriculture is the "prevailing party" in this proceeding and waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (9 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Mark A. Gibbs, respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is Route 1, Box 255, Ranburne, Alabama 36273.

2. On or about March 29, 1985, the respondent moved interstate three (3) cows from Carrollton, Georgia, within a Class B state, to Ranburne Livestock Sales, Inc. located in Ranburne, Alabama.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Decision and Order will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Sally Ogelby Stratmoen, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422-South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this Order.

This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 2131 et seq.) ("Act") by a Complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service ("APHIS"), United States Department of Agriculture, charging that respondents violated the regulations and standards issued under the Act (9 CFR § 1.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice spplicable to these proceedings (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations contained in the complaint, specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, and waive oral hearing and further procedure. Complainant and respondents agree for the purpose of settling this procedure to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondents are individuals whose mailing address is Route 2, Box 87, La Plata, Missouri 63549.

2. At all times material herein, respondents were licensed and doing business as dealers under the Act.

CONCLUSION

Respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision and order, this decision and order will be entered.

ORDER

1. Respondents shall comply with each and every provision of the Animal Welfare Act (7 U.S.C. § 2131 et seq.) and the standards and regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 1.1 et seq.) and shall cease and desist from any violation thereof, and in particular shall not deliver dogs eight weeks of age or under to intermediate handlers for shipment in commerce.

2. Respondents' license as a dealer under the Act is suspended for forty-five (45) days.

3. Respondents are assessed a civil penalty of $1,000.

This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall become effective on the first day after service of this Decision and Order on the respondents.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. §§2131-2156, herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent willfully violated the Act and regulations and standards promulgated thereunder, 9 CFR §§1.1-3.142.

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice, 7 CFR §§1.130-1.151, governing proceedings under the Act were served upon respondent by the Hearing Clerk by certified mail. Respondent was informed in the letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as Findings of Fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice, 7 CFR § 1.139.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Bryan E. King, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual and his address is Rt. 1, Box 131, Quapaw, Oklahoma 74363.

2. The respondent, at all times material herein, was a dealer as defined in the Act and held a Class B license (No. 73-DM) under the Act.

3. At the time of respondent's application for a license, he received a copy of the regulations and standards promulgated under the Act and agreed in writing to comply with them.

4. Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) personnel inspected the respondent's facilities on May 17 and June 5, 1985. Each inspection revealed numerous violations of the regulations and standards issued under the Act. At the conclusion of each of these two inspections, APHIS inspectors explained to the respondent the requirements of the Act and the regulations and standards.

5. On June 12, 1985, an inspection conducted by APHIS officials of respondent's facilities disclosed that the respondent was in violation of section 2.100 of the regulations, 9 CFR § 2.100, and the standards specified below:

(a) Respondent failed to provide an indoor facility with adequate lighting and interior surfaces substantially impervious to moisture for dogs in violation of 9 CFR §§ 3.2 (c) and (d);

(b) Respondent failed to provide shelter against inclement weather for dogs in violation of 9 CFR § 3.3(b);

(c) Respondent failed to provide adequate space for dogs in violation of 9 CFR § 3.4(b);

(d) Respondent failed to provide adequate water and clean water receptacles for dogs in violation of 9 CFR § 3.6;

(e) Respondent failed to keep primary dog enclosures clean in violation of 9 CFR § 3.7(a) and to keep his premises free of debris in violation of 9 CFR § 3.7(c); and

(f) Respondent failed to provide veterinary care for two dogs with mange and a dog with a lesion and lame leg in violation of 9 CFR § 3.10(b).

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts set forth in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has willfully violated section 2.100 of the regulations, 9 CFR § 2.100, and the specified standards.

ORDER

Respondent Bryan E. King, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from failing to:

(1) Provide an indoor facility with adequate lighting and interior surfaces substantially impervious to moisture for dogs in accordance with 9 CFR §§3.2 (c) and (d);

(2) Provide shelter against inclement weather for dogs in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.3(b);

(3) Provide adequate space for dogs in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.4(b);

(4) Provide adequate water and clean water receptacles for dogs in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.6;

(5) Keep primary dog enclosures clean in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.7(a);

(6) Keep premises free of debris in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.7(c); and

(7) Provide veterinary care for two dogs with mange and a dog with a lesion and lame leg in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.10(b).

Respondent Bryan E. King is assessed a civil penalty of $1,000 which shall be paid by a certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. The check or money order shall be mailed to Robert M. Frisby, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Room 2014-South Building, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400.

Respondent's license is hereby suspended for thirty (30) days and thereafter until he demonstrates to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) that his operation is in compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder. When respondent demonstrates to APHIS that he is in compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding, upon the motion of APHIS, terminating this suspension.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after this decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice, this decision becomes final without further proceedings 35 days after service as provided in sections 1.142 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice, 7 CFR §§1.142 and 1.145.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. §§ 2131–2156, by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act, 9 CFR §§ 1.1–3.142. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding, 7 CFR § 1.138.

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent Efton Pendergrass is an individual doing business at Route 2, Box 176, Aurora, Missouri 65605.

2. Respondent at all times material herein was a dealer within the meaning of that term as defined in the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder.

3. The respondent at all times material herein was licensed as a Class A dealer under the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

1. Respondent Efton Pendergrass and his agents and employees shall comply with each and every provision of the Animal Welfare

Act, 7 U.S.C. §§ 2131-2156, and the regulations and standards issued thereunder, 9 CFR §§ 1.1-3.142, and shall cease and desist from any violation thereof. Specifically the respondent shall cease and desist from:

(a) Failing to maintain primary enclosures so as to protect dogs from injury as required by 9 CFR § 3.4.

(b) Failing to provide adequate lighting for inspection and cleaning as required by 9 CFR § 3.2.

(c) Failing to keep watering receptacles clean and sanitized as required by 9 CFR § 3.6.

(d) Failing to keep primary enclosures clean as required by 9 CFR § 3.7.

2. Respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $250 to be paid by certified check or money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

3. Respondent's license (43-A047) is suspended for thirty (30) days and thereafter until respondent demonstrates to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) that his facilities comply with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder. When respondent demonstrates to APHIS that he is in compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder, a supplemental order will be issued upon the motion of APHIS in this proceeding terminating this suspension.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on August 1, 1986.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION (CONSENT)

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 2131 et seq.), by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act (9 CFR § 1.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The respondent, Leonard Kiser, is an individual doing business as Kiser Wildlife Ranch, RD #1, Box 117, Crainbrook, Pennsylvania 15924. The respondent, at all times material herein, was an exhibitor within the meaning of the Act, and was licensed thereunder (Class C, No. 23E34).

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

The respondent, his agent and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

(1) Operating as a licensee under the Animal Welfare Act and the regulations issued thereunder without maintaining cages and fencing that meet the structural strength requirements for the animals involved as required by 9 CFR § 3.125(a);

(2) Failing to provide adequate drinking water as required by 9 CFR § 3.130;

(3) Failing to provide sanitation, cleaning, and housekeeping of the pens as required by 9 CFR § 3.131.

Respondent is assessed a civil penalty of $1,000.00 of which $100.00 shall be paid by a certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. The remaining $900.00 is hereby suspended and shall be held in abeyance, provided that within ninety (90) days from the date this order becomes effective the respondent builds around his animal facility an eight-foot high perimeter fence of sufficient strength to prevent animals from escaping.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

Dealers—Violation of regulations and standards of the Act—License revoked—Civil penalty—Consent.

Robert Frisby, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Dorethea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER (CONSENT)

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. §§ 2131-2156 (1982), by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act, 9 CFR §§ 1.1-3.142 (1985). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding, 7 CFR § 1.138.

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Glen and Shirley Thompson are individuals whose address is P.O. Box 1, Valley Center, Kansas 67147.

B. The respondents, at all times material herein, were dealers within the meaning of that term as defined in the Act and were licensed as Class B dealers (No. 48-BC-24) under the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondents Glen and Shirley Thompson shall comply with each and every provision of the Animal Welfare Act, 7 U.S.C. §§2131-2156, and the standards and regulations issued thereunder, 9 CFR §§1.1-3.142, and shall cease and desist from any violation thereof.

In particular, the respondents shall cease and desist from failing to:

(1) Repair dog houses as required by 9 CFR §§3.1 and 3.4;

(2) Provide protection from inclement weather for dogs as required by 9 CFR § 3.3;

(3) Repair dog runs and provide adequate drainage as required by 9 CFR §§3.1 and 3.3;

(4) Provide adequate space for dogs, when chained, as required by 9 CFR § 3.4;

(5) Provide clean food and water dishes as required by 9 CFR §§3.5 and 3.6;

(6) Remove accumulations of debris from their facility as required by 9 CFR § 3.7;

(7) Control flies as required by 9 CFR § 3.7; and

(8) Provide proper care for emaciated and apparently malnourished dogs as required by 9 CFR §§3.5 and 3.10.

Respondents are assessed a civil penalty of $2,000, $1,000 of which is suspended provided the respondents do not engage in any business requiring a license under the Animal Welfara Act for a period of three (3) years. After this 3 year period has expired the respondents may apply for a license. The remaining $1,000 civil penalty is payable by certified check or money order nade to the order of the Treasurer of the United States.

Respondents' license (No. 48-BC-24) is revoked.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER (CONSENT)

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 2131 et seq.), by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act (9 CFR § 1.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only' to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent Julien Bronson is an individual doing business as Bronson's Tropical Birds.

2. The respondent, at all times material herein, was located at 700 Cross River Road, Katonah, New York.

3. The respondent, as all material times herein, was a licensed Class B dealer under the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

1. Respondent, his agents and employees, directly or indirectly through any corporation, trust, or other device whatsoever, shall cease and desist from violating the provisions of the Animal Welfare Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder, and in particular, respondent shall cease and desist from:

a. Filing annual reports which do not correctly indicate the number of animals the respondent bought and sold during the period of time covered by the report;

b. Otherwise violating section 2.7 of the regulations (9 CFR § 2.7);

c. Failing to make, keep, and maintain records that fully and correctly disclose required information concerning animals which were purchased, acquired, owned, held, or possessed by the respondent;

d. Failing to provide a copy of the information required by 9 CFR § 2.75(b)(1) for each shipment of any animal;

e. Otherwise violating section 2.75 of the regulations (9 CFR § 2.75);

f. Failing to provide with each shipment of a non-human primate a health certificate executed and issued by a licensed veterinarian; and

g. Otherwise violating section 2.79 of the regulations (9 CFR § 2.79).

2. Respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $2,000, to be paid by certified check or money order made to the order of the Treasurer of the United States.

3. Respondent's Class B license is hereby suspended for one year and thereafter until respondent demonstrates to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) that he is in full compliance with the Animal Welfare Act and the regulations and standards issued pursuant thereto. When respondent demonstrates to APHIS that he is in full compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards issued pursuant thereto, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding, upon the motion of APHIS, terminating this suspension.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

In re: RICHARD SMITH. AWA Docket No. 373. Decided on June 24, 1986.

Operating without a license—Civil penalty.

Respondent was ordered to cease and desist from operating a dog kennel without being licensed and violating the Act and regulations and standards issued thereunder. A civil penalty of $2,000.00 was assessed.

Howard Haas, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§2131-2156), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and regulations and standards promulgated thereunder (9 CFR §§1.1-3.142).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR §§1.130-1.151) governing proceedings under the Act were served upon respondent by the Hearing Clerk by certified mail. Respondent was informed in the letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as Findings of Fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 C F.R. § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Richard Smith is an individual whose address is P.O. Box 230, Vian, Oklahoma.

2. The respondent, at all times material herein, was operating a dog kennel and was a dealer within the meaning of the Act. The respondent, at all times material herein, was not licensed as required by the Act.

3. In March 1984, the respondent was aware of the requirement that he be licensed, and in August 1984, the respondent received a copy of the regulations and standards promulgated under the Act. No application was made.

4. In violation of § 4 of the Act and 9 CFR § 2.1, the respondent engaged in business as a dealer in that during March and April 1984, the respondent sold at least nineteen dogs to Julia Gray, a licensed dealer in Texas.

5. On July 10, 1985, the respondent's premises were inspected and as described below the respondent was found to be in violation of section 2.100 of the regulations and the specified standards.

(a) In violation of 9 CFR § 3.1(a), the facilities for dogs were not structurally stable and sound.

(b) In violation of 9 CFR §§ 3.1(b) and 3.6, adequate potable water was not supplied.

(c) In violation of 9 CFR § 3.1(c), food was stored in open containers not providing protection against infestation.

(d) In violation of 9 CFR §§ 3.1(d) and 3.7 (a), (b), animal waste and other filth was piled up and not properly disposed of.

(e) In violation of 9 CFR § 3.3, shelter was inadequate to protect dogs from excessive heat from sunlight.

(f) In violation of 9 CFR § 3.4(b), dogs were overcrowded to the extent that six to ten dogs were housed in small cages only large enough for two dogs.

(g) In violation of 9 CFR § 3.7(c), grounds contained many truck bodies.

(h) In violation of 9 CFR § 3.9, dogs were not maintained in compatible groups.

(i) In violation of 9 CFR § 3.10, adequate veterinary care was not provided in that dogs were allowed to freely roam around the grounds causing a potential rabies problem, and all nineteen dogs sold by the respondent to J. Gray were found to be diseased.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts set forth in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has willfully violated § 4 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 2134), section 2.100 of the regulations (9 CFR § 2.100), and the specified standards.

ORDER

Respondent Richard Smith, his agent and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

(1) Operating on any capacity for which a licensee is required under the Animal Welfare Act and the regulations issued thereunder without having applied for and obtained a license in accordance with the Act and the regulations.

(2) Operating as a licensee under the Act without maintaining facilities for dogs that are structurally stable and sound in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.1(a);

(3) Operating as a licensee under the Act without supplying adequate water in accordance with 9 CFR §§ 3.1(b) and 3.6;

(4) Operating as a licensee under the Act without storing food in containers that provide protection against infestation in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.1(c);

(5) Operating as a licensee under the Act without properly disposing of animal waste and other filth in accordance with 9 CFR §§ 3.1(d) and 3.7 (a), (b);

(6) Operating as a licensee under the Act without providing shelter that is adequate to protect dogs from excessive heat in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.3;

(7) Operating as a licensee under the Act without ensuring that dogs are not overcrowded in cages in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.4(b);

(8) Operating as a licensee under the Act without ensuring that grounds are kept clean and free of accumulations of trash in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.7(c);

(9) Operating as a licensee under the Act without maintaining dogs in compatible groups in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.9; and

(10) Operating as a licensee under the Act without providing adequate veterinary care in accordance with 9 CFR § 3.10.

The respondent Richard Smith is assessed a civil penalty of $2,000.00 which shall be paid by a certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. The check or money order shall be mailed to Howard B. Haas, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Room 2014-South, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after this decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice, this decision becomes final without further proceedings 35 days after service as provided in sections 1.142 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR §§ 1.130-1.151).

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

In re: DANNY and LINDA LYONS, and SANTA'S LAND. AWA Docket No. 394. Decided on August 29, 1986.

Violation of provisions of the Animal Welfare Act—Civil penalty—Consent.

M. Bradley Flynn, for complainant.
Fred Moody, Jr., Bryson City, North Carolina, for respondent.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER (CONSENT)

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 2131 et seq.), by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act (9 CFR § 1.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Danny and Linda Lyons are owners and officers of Santa's Land, a corporation.

B. The respondents, at all times material herein, were located at Route 1, Box 134A, Cherokee, North Carolina 28719.

C. The respondents, at all times material herein, were licensed exhibitors (License No. 55-C-40).

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

1. The respondents, their agents, employees, and assigns, acting directly or indirectly, or through any corporation, trust, or any device whatsoever, shall cease and desist from violating any and all provisions of the Animal Welfare Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder, and in particular the respondents shall cease and desist from:

(a) Failing to provide housing facilities for non-human primates which are structurally sound and in good repair;

(b) Otherwise violating any of the provisions of sections 3.75 and 3.78 of the standards (9 CFR §§ 3.75, 3.78 (1986));

(c) Failing to store food for any animal in covered containers so as to protect the food from contamination and infestation by vermin;

(d) Otherwise violating any of the provisions of sections 3.50, 3.75, and 3.125 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 3.50, 3.75, 3.125 (1986));

(e) Failing to provide a suitable means of draining excess water from any animal enclosure; and

(f) Otherwise violating any provision of section 3.127 of the regulations (9 CFR § 3.127 (1986)).

2. Respondents are hereby assessed a civil penalty of $1,000, paid by check or money order, and made to the order of the Treasurer of the United States.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondents.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

In re: LEVONIAN BROTHERS, INC. FMIA Docket No. 85. Decided on July 8, 1986.

Meat processor, wholesale distributor—Felony conviction for adulterated food.

Respondent is recipient of federal meat inspection services but operated a wholesale distribution warehouse which is not federally inspected. Respondent was convicted of handling and storing adulterated food. Inspection services under Title I withdrawn for one (1) Year, 50 weeks will be held in abeyance if provisions of this stipulation and consent order are met.

Kevin Thiemann, for complainant.
Peter O. Safir, for respondent.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

STIPULATION AND CONSENT DECISION

This is a proceeding under the Federal Meat Inspection Act, as amended (21 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the FMIA, and the Applicable Rules of Practice (9 CFR § 335.1 et seq.), to withdraw federal meat inspection services from Levonian Brothers, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the respondent. This proceeding was commenced by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Food Safety and Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, who is responsible for the administration of the FMIA. The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision as set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purpose of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision, respondent admits all of the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint, admits the Findings of Fact, and waives:

(a) Any further procedural steps;

(b) Any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof; and

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision.

2. This Stipulation and Consent Decision are for purposes of settlement in this proceeding only and do not otherwise constitute an admission or denial by the respondent that it has violated the regulations or statutes involved.

3. The respondent waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Levonian Brothers, Inc., is a business, incorporated in the State of New York, which operates a meat processing establishment at 27 River Street, Troy, New York 12180.

2. Levonian Brothers, Inc., is, and at all times material herein was, a recipient of federal meat inspection services under Title I of the Act at 27 River Street, Troy, New York 12180 (Establishment No. 5065).

3. Levonian Brothers, Inc., operates a wholesale distribution warehouse facility, which is not federally inspected, at 41 River Street, Troy, New York 12180.

4. On or about September 11, 1984, Levonian Brothers, Inc., was convicted, in the United States District Court for the Northern District of New York, of one felony for handling and storing food products in a manner which caused them to become adulterated with rodent fecal materials, in violation of the FMIA (21 U.S.C. §§ 601(m)(3), 610(d), 661(c), and 676(a)).

CONCLUSIONS

Inasmuch as the parties have agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order and Consent Decision in disposition of this proceeding, such decision will be issued.

ORDER

1. Inspection services under Title I of the FMIA are withdrawn from and denied to the respondent, its owners, officers, directors, successors, affiliates, or assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device for a period of one (1) year beginning on June 18, 1986. Two (2) consecutive weeks of actual suspension will begin December 21, 1986 and end on January 3, 1987. During this two consecutive week period respondent will only be permitted to perform general maintenance, sanitation, and renovation work at its federally inspected facility. This Order will not effect normal operations at the respondent's wholesale distribution warehouse facility. The remaining fifty (50) weeks of the one (1) year withdrawal period will be held in abeyance and will not become effective:

(a) For so long as, within one (1) year of the effective date of this Consent Decision, respondent, or any of its officers, employees, or agents do not violate (as that term is defined in paragraph 2 infra) any section of the FMIA (21 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.) involving the preparation, sale, transportation, or attempted distribution of any adulterated or misbranded products; and

(b) For so long as respondent, within one (1) year of the effective date of this Consent Decision:

(1) Does not knowingly hire, in any capacity, any individual who has been convicted of any felony; and

(2) To the extent permitted by New York law, dismisses from its employment any such individual, hired after the effective date of this Consent Decision, when that individual's conviction becomes known.

2. The violation of any provision in paragraph 1 of this Order will result in the immediate withdrawal of inspection services under Title I of the FMIA. The term "violation" means a final decision in a formal adjudicatory proceeding before the Secretary of Agriculture or a conviction in federal or state court. This shall not preclude the referral of any such violation to the Department of Justice for possible criminal or civil proceedings.

3. If any provision of this Order is declared to be invalid, such declaration shall not affect the validity of any other provision herein.

4. This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

Livestock dealer—Insolvency—Suspension pending compliance—Consent.

Andrew Y. Stanton, for complainant.
Daniel Olsen, Kansas City, Missouri, for respondent.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

(CONSENT) DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) by a Complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the financial condition of the respondent did not meet the requirements of the Act, and that the respondent willfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR 201.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR 1.138).

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the Complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Hub City Livestock Sales, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is a corporation with a business mailing address at P.O. Box 1735, Aberdeen, South Dakota 57401.

2. The respondent is and at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of selling livestock on a commission basis; and

(b) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock on a commission basis in commerce.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent, its officers, directors, agents and employees, shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in business as a market agency while its current liabilities exceed its current assets;

2. Failing to deposit in any "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" within the time prescribed by section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42) amounts equal to the proceeds receivable for the sale of consigned livestock; and

3. Failing to otherwise maintain its "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" in strict conformity with the provisions of section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42).

Respondent, Hub City Livestock Sales, Inc., is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of 14 days and thereafter until it demonstrates that it is no longer insolvent and that the deficit in its custodial account has been eliminated. When respondent demonstrates that it is no longer insolvent and that the deficit in its custodial account has been eliminated, a supplemental order will be issued terminating this suspension after the expiration of the 14 day period of suspension.

The provisions of this Order shall become effective on the 30th day of July, 1986.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Leroy H. Hottle and Deborah M. Hottle, hereinafter referred to as the respondents, are individuals doing business as Owego Livestock Sales with a business mailing address at Box 202, RD 3, Owego, New York 13827.

2. The respondents are and at all times material herein were:

(a) Engaged in the business of selling livestock in commerce on a commission basis and buying and selling livestock in commerce for their own account; and

(b) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock on a commission basis in commerce, and as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for their own account.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondents individually, or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in business as a market agency or dealer while their current liabilities exceed their current assets;

2. Failing to deposit in any "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" within the time prescribed by section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42) amounts equal to the proceeds receivable from the sale of consigned livestock;

3. Failing to otherwise maintain their "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" in strict conformity with the provisions of section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42);

4. Issuing checks in payment for livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit in the bank account upon which they are drawn to pay such checks; and

5. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock.

The respondents, in connection with their operations as a market agency and dealer, shall keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose their transactions subject to the Act and the regulations, including but not limited to: purchase and sales invoices, copies of issued scale tickets, bank notices of insufficient funds checks, cancelled checks, deposit slips, bank statements, and monthly reconcilations of their bank accounts.

The respondents are suspended as registrants under the Act for a period of 14 days and thereafter until they demonstrate that they are no longer insolvent and that the deficit in their "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" has been eliminated. When the respondents demonstrate that they are no longer insolvent and that the deficit in the "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" has been eliminated, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension after the expiration of the 14 day period of suspension.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the sixth day after service of this order on the respondents.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers snd Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent's financial condition does not meet the requirements of the Act and that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder by the Secretary of Agriculture (9 CFR § 202.1 et seq.).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served on the respondent by certified mail. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Delmar R. Mills, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual doing business as Mills Neoga Livestock Auction. Respondent's principal place of business is located in Neoga, Illinois, and his business mailing address is Box F, Neoga, Illinois 62447.

(b) The respondent, at all times material herein, was:

(1) Engaged in the business of a market agency selling livestock in commerce on a commission basis;

(2) Engaged in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(3) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock in commerce on a commission basis, and as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for its own account.

2. (a) As of March 29, 1985, respondent's current liabilities exceeded his current assets. As of that date, the respondent had current liabilities in the amount of $210,783.00 and current assets in the amount of $2,288.67, resulting in an excess of current liabilities over current assets of $208,494.33.

(b) The respondent's current liabilities presently exceed his current assets.

3. The respondent, in connection with his business as a market agency selling livestock on a commission basis, failed to maintain and use properly his Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds, hereinafter referred to as the custodial account, thereby endangering the faithful and prompt accounting therefor and payment of the portions thereof due the owners and consignors of livestock, in that:

(a) As of March 29, 1985, the respondent had outstanding custodial account checks in the amount of $55,698.59, an overdraft in the amount of $1,350.87, and proceeds due shippers of livestock in the amount of $11,035.79, and had, to offset these amounts, cash on hand in the amount of $8,645.26, resulting in a shortage in the amount of $59,439.99 in funds available to pay shippers their proceeds.

(b) This shortage was due, in part, to the failure of the respondent to deposit in his custodial account, within the time prescribed by the regulations, an amount equal to the proceeds receivable from the sale of consigned livestock.

4. (a) The respondent, in connection with his business as a market agency subject to the Act, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph IV of the complaint, and at various other times between February 4, 1985, and March 18, 1985, issued custodial account checks to consignors of livestock in purported payment of the net proceeds due from the sale of livestock which were returned unpaid by the bank upon which they were drawn because the respondent did not have and maintain sufficient funds on deposit and available in his custodial account to pay such checks when presented.

(b) The respondent, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph IV of the complaint, and at various other times between February 4, 1985, and March 18, 1985, sold consigned livestock and failed to remit to the consignors of such livestock, when due, the net proceeds resulting from the sale of their livestock.

(c) As of August 7, 1985, the respondent had failed to remit a total of $62,462.40 to consignors due from the sale of their livestock.

5. (a) The respondent, in connection with his operations as a dealer subject to the Act, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph V of the complaint, purchased livestock and in purported payment therefor, issued checks which were returned unpaid by the bank upon which they were drawn because the respondent did not have and maintain sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks were drawn to pay such checks when presented.

(b) The respondent, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph V of the complaint, purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, for such livestock purchases.

(c) As of August 7, 1985, there remained unpaid a total of $3,511.06 for such livestock purchases.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, the financial condition of the respondent does not meet the requirements of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 204).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 3 herein, the respondent has wilfully violated sections 307 and 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 208, 213(a)), and section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 4 herein, the respondent has wilfully violated sections 307 and 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 208, 213(a)), and section 201.43(a) of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.43(a)).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 5 herein, the respondent has wilfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b).

ORDER

Respondent Delmar R. Mills, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with his operations subject to the Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Failing to deposit in his Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds, within the time prescribed in section 201.42(c) of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42(c)), an amount equal to the proceeds receivable from the sale of consigned livestock;

2. Failing to otherwise maintain his Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds in strict conformity with the provisions of section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42);

3. Issuing checks in payment of the proceeds resulting from the sale of consigned livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the bank account upon which they were drawn to pay such checks when presented;

4. Failing to remit to the owners and consignors of livestock, when due, the net proceeds resulting from the sale of consigned livestock;

5. Failing to remit to the owners and consignors of livestock the net proceeds resulting from the sale of consigned livestock;

6. Issuing checks in payment for livestock purchased without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks are drawn to pay such checks when presented;

7. Failing to pay, when due, for livestock purchases;

8. Failing to pay for livestock purchases; and

9. Engaging in business subject to the Act while his current liabilities exceed his current assets.

The respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of five (5) years, provided, however, that a supplemental order will be issued terminating this suspension at any time after the expiration of forty-five (45) days upon demonstration by the respondent that all unpaid livestock sellers have been paid in full, the shortage in his Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds has been eliminated and that his financial condition meets the requirements of the Act. This suspension may be further modified upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration to permit respondent's salaried employment by another registrant after the expiration of the forty-five (45) day period of suspension.

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR §§ 1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

Jory Hochberg, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder by the Secretary of Agriculture (9 CFR § 202.1 et seq.).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were personally served on the respondent. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Jerry L. Finley, d/b/a River Valley Cattle Co., Cattlemen's Shipping and Receiving Center, Southern Cross Cattle Co., Centennial Cattle Co., and Frontier Cattle Co., hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is 3038 Edinburg, Fort Smith, Arkansas 72903.

(b) The respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(2) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account.

2. Respondent was notified by mail that the $10,000 surety bond which he maintained to secure the performance of his livestock obligations under the Act was inadequate and that it was necessary to increase his bond to $100,000.00. Respondent was further notified that if he continued his livestock operations under the Act without providing adequate bond coverage or its equivalent, he would be in violation of section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a)), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations. Notwithstanding such notice, respondent has continued to engage in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account without maintaining an adequate bond or its equivalent as required by the Act and the regulations.

3. The respondent, in connection with his operations as a dealer, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III of the complaint, and on various other occasions, issued checks or drafts in purported payment for livestock purchased in commerce from Bagby Land & Cattle Co., which checks or drafts were returned unpaid by the banks upon which they were drawn because respondent did not have and maintain sufficient funds on deposit and available in the accounts upon which such checks or drafts were drawn to pay such checks or drafts when presented.

4. (a) The respondent, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III of the complaint, and on various other occasions, in connection with his operations as a dealer, purchased livestock in commerce and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock.

(b) As of January 26, 1986, there remained unpaid in excess of $1,000,000.00 for livestock purchased.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, the respondent has willfully violated section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 213(a)), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR §§ 201.29, 201.30).

By reason of the facts found in Findings of Fact 3 and 4 herein, the respondent has willfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a), 228(b)).

ORDER

Respondent Finley, his agents, employees, representatives, successors and assigns, directly or indirectly, or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act, as amended and supplemented, and the regulations, without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required under the Act and regulations;

2. Issuing checks or drafts in purported payment for livestock purchased without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks or drafts are drawn to pay such checks or drafts when presented; and

3. Failing to pay, when due, for livestock purchased.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of five years and until such time as he complies fully with the bonding requirements under the Act and the regulations. Once respondent has complied fully with the bonding requirements of the Act and the regulations, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension after the five year period, provided, however, that upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration a supplemental order may be also be issued terminating this suspension after the expiration of 180 days upon demonstration by respondent that he has complied fully with the bonding requirements of the Act and the regulations and that all unpaid livestock sellers have been paid in full, and provided further that this order may be modified upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration to permit respondent's salaried employment by another registrant after the expiration of the 180 day period of suspension.

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR §§1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Robert Hibberd, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is Valley View Trailer Park # 192, Kearney, Nebraska 68847.

2. The respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of a market agency, buying livestock in commerce on a commission basis and the business of a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(b) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for his own account and as a market agency to purchase livestock in commerce on a commission basis.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent Hibberd, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with his operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Issuing checks in payment for livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the bank account upon which they are drawn to pay the checks when presented;

2. Failing to pay, when due, for livestock purchases; and

3. Failing to pay for livestock purchases.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of five years, provided, however, that upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration, a supplemental order may be issued terminating this suspension at any time after the expiration of 90 days upon demonstration that (a) all unpaid livestock sellers have been paid in full; and (b) that respondent is in full compliance with the bonding requirements of the Act and regulations, and provided further that this order may be modified upon application to the Packers and Stockyards Administration to permit the salaried employment of respondent by another registrant after the expiration of the 90 day period of suspension.

Insofar as respondent is now in full compliance with the bonding requirements under the Act and the regulations, no suspension is warranted.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)), respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($750.00).

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the sixth day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served on the parties.

DECISION WITH RESPECT TO DIXIE NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, d/b/a ABRAHAM CATTLE COMPANY, DR. LEROY ABRAHAM AND JEFFREY JACKSON

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockysrds Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the financial condition of respondents Ozark County Cattle Company, Inc., and National Order Buying Company of St. Joseph, Missouri, does not meet the requirements of the Act and that the respondents wilfully violated the Act. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

Respondents Dixie National Stockyards, Inc., d/b/a Abraham Cattle Company, Dr. LeRoy Abraham and Jeffrey Jackson admit the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint as they pertain to them and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent Dixie National Stockyards, Inc., d/b/a Abraham Cattle Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent Dixie, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Tennessee. Its mailing address is 1460 Wardford Street, P.O. Box 8447, Memphis, Tennessee 38108.

2. Respondent Dixie at all times material herein was:

Respondent has now demonstrated that it is no longer insolvent and that the deficit in its custodial account has been eliminated. Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the suspension provision of the order issued July 15, 1986, is terminated. The order shall remain in full force and effect in all other respects.

REPARATION DECISIONS

JAMES M. MORRIS v. TED LEWIS, BILL LARGENT, and BENTONVILLE LIVESTOCK AUCTION, INC. P&S Docket No. 6448. Decided on July 15, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) begun by a complaint received on September 7, 1983, and amended on August 6, 1984, alleging in substance unilateral refusal to deal. The amount claimed was $20,000.00.

Copies of the complaint, and of an investigation report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of this Department and filed in this proceeding pursuant to the Rules of Practice, were served on respondents on October 3, 1984. A copy of the investigation report was served on complainant on September 28. An answer was received from respondents on October 9. A copy thereof was served on complainant on October 22. A request for oral hearing was received from complainant on November 6.

An oral hearing as requested was held on February 26, 1985 in Bentonville, Arkansas before John J. Casey of the Office of the General Counsel of this Department. Complainant was represented by John A. Skaggs II, Esq., Bentonville. Respondents were represented by Jerry B. Dossey, Esq., also of Bentonville. Fifteen witnesses testified. Four exhibits were received. Thereafter briefs were filed by both sides.

It is undisputed that, beginning in August 1983, respondents refused to deal with complainant at their livestock auction market, this was in violation of the Act unless justified, and respondents had the burden of establishing justification. Also, on refusal to deal, by a livestock market subject to the Act, as a violation of the Act, see U.S. v. Am. Livestock Co., 279 U.S. 435 (1928) and Farmers' Livestock Commission Co. v. U.S., 54 F.2d 375 (7 C. 1931).

When respondents refused to deal with complainant, they brought an action, No. E-83-1332-1, Chancery Court, Benton County, Arkansas, to enjoin him from entering the market property. After trial, he was so enjoined. However, the Court did not consider the Act, and specified that any contrary determination under the Act would take precedence over its order. Also, see Chicago Mercantile Exchange v. Deaktor, 414 U.S. 113 (1973); Ricci v. Chicago Mercantile Exchange, 409 U.S. 289 (1973); and Iowa Beef Processors v. Ill. Central Gulf R. Co., 685 F.2d 255 (8 C. 1982). "It is basic that administrative procedure requires that an agency be given the opportunity to address a question before resorting to the courts." Governor v. Rehab. Hosp. Services Corp., 285 Ark. 393, 688 S.W.2d 272 (1985).

Respondents, in partial justification of their refusal to deal with complainant, accused complainant of making unjust accusations against them to various authorities. The evidence in this record about complainant's complaints to authorities is not sufficient to justify the respondents' refusal to deal with him, as explained hereinafter.

Shortly before respondents refused to deal with him, complainant complained to the Packers and Stockyards Administration (P&S) about possible misweighing of livestock sold at that market on a weight basis, and possible selling of like consignments in sequence other than as received. In July 1983, a P&S Industrial Specialist appeared at the market without prior notice, checkweighed some livestock, that is, reweighed livestock which had just been sold and weighed, and reviewed the sequence in which some consignments had been sold. This "spot check" inspection did not uncover any material violations, nor did it uncover sufficient basis for further investigation.

Complainant also complained to the Benton County Sheriff and the Bentonville Police about respondents. Mr. Don Rystrom, who was Sheriff in 1983, testified (Tr. 170–1):

> Q. Did Mr. Morris, the complainant in this case, come to you and talk to you about Bentonville Livestock Auction?
>
> A. Yes, sir.
>
> Q. What did he say to you?
>
> A. He was complaining about the weighing procedures at the Bentonville Livestock Auction. That he was going to file a complaint with the Packers and Stockyards Commission (sic), wanted us to investigate it as to them weighing cattle heavy and light, this type of situation.
> Q. Did he make any allegations to you about underground money being used to operate the Bentonville Livestock Auction?

A. Yes, sir. It was—this was mentioned to myself and also Captain Clark, who was the other Sheriff, as to underground money and underworld money financing Mr. Lewis and Mr. Largent, that they were crooked and somebody was behind them.

Mr. Rystrom's testimony was vague as to the time of this. Complainant testified (Tr. 83 et seq.) that he complained to the Sheriff but denied saying anything about "underworld money." He also testified (Tr. 199-200) that this complaint was earlier than the P&S inspection.

About "underworld money," nothing was established by a preponderance of the evidence. As to whether complainant complained to the Sheriff or the Police about respondents after the P&S inspection, there was no evidence of this.

The record does not support a finding either that violations were or were not taking place at the market before respondents refused to deal with complainant. Neither does it support a finding that complainant acted in bad faith in complaining to the authorities against them. Complainant acted pursuant to a good faith belief so far as the record shows.

Complainant testified (Tr. 53) in substance that, at the time when respondents first refused to deal with him, one of them or an employee of theirs accused him of making an unjust complaint against them to a Missouri State official relating to Brucellosis control. Respondent Largent testified (Tr. 196) that he concluded this from the fact that respondents were investigated by the Missouri official, and that complainant shortly before then had followed him and one McNelly on the highway when they were transporting a load of cattle in the direction of the Arkansas/Missouri State line. Complainant (Tr. 200) denied either following them or making any such complaint. Nothing about this was established by a preponderance of the evidence.

Mr. Marvin Spencer, who was then the weighmaster at respondents' market, testified (Tr. 163 et seq.) about complainant's telling him to keep his hands off the scale when weighing. On cross examination he testified that this happened once.

It is undisputed that complainant, before the P&S inspection, spoke to other customers of respondents about possible violations by respondents. In view of the vagueness of respondents' evidence of this, and complainant's testimony, we must conclude that in this respect facts which would justify the refusal to deal were not established by a preponderance of the evidence.

Respondents' witness Mr. George Dwight Hill testified (Tr. 128) that complainant "just said them damn scales is not right." Mr. Freddie Trentham testified (Tr. 160) that complainant from time to time would say the scale was inaccurate. Mr. Larry Foster, who in 1983 worked for respondents, testified on direct examination (Tr. 181 et seq.):

> A. * * * I've known Mr. Morris for quite some time and on numerous occasions I've heard him say things about the way the [respondents' sale] barn was run.
> Q. What did you hear?
> A. Okay. Specifically, that Marvin Spencer was not weighing the cattle correctly, that he was crooked, that the sale barn was crooked and just along the same line like——.

Mr. Foster could not remember when this was. He also testified that it was not unusual to hear people criticize the way a sale barn is operated but that complainant seemed more angry than most. He also testified that he believed that complainant was honest and sincere about his belief.

Complainant testified that his statements to other customers, before the P&S inspection, about possible violations by respondents, were made only to a few people, and amounted to no more than a recommendation to observe the facts and draw their own conclusions.

Complainant promised respondents, after the P&S inspection, not to say any more about the matters complained about to the authorities, and at the time of the first refusal to deal had kept this promise, so far as the record shows.

In partial justification of respondents' refusal to deal with complainant, respondent Larqent testified that, after the P&S inspection, Mr. Marvin Shipman told him that complainant was making allegations against them again.

Mr. Shipman testified (Tr. 166 et seq.) that he overheard complainant at the auction market talking with five or six others who were there to sell cattle, and saying in substance that cattle prices were higher elsewhere. We take official notice that prices vary from place to place, and that persons in the livestock business know this.

Mr. Shipman, on direct examination by respondents' counsel, also testified (Tr. 167):

Q. Did you hear anything else in that conversation that Mr. Morris was saying about the Bentonville Livestock Auction?

A. He wasn't talking too highly of it. I heard him saying that——

Q. Were his comments generally derogatory? In your opinion were they derogatory, running the business down?

A. Right.

Mr. Shipman did not testify more specifically as to what he heard complainant say. He also testified that this incident was late in 1983, which would be several months after respondents first refused to deal with complainant.

Respondents, in partial justification of their refusal to deal with complainant, cited certain NSF checks he had given to them. There were only two or three such checks, they were caused by failures of others to wire transfer money as promised to complainant, they were made good promptly, and each time respondents told him not to worry about it, so far as the record shows. Also, if respondents had good reason to doubt whether complainant's checks were good, they could have told complainant that they would deal with him on a "cash only" basis. See Vance v. Nashville Lvsk. Comm. Corp., 34 Ag. Dec. 1680 (1975). It is undisputed that they did not.

Respondents, also in partial justification of their refusal to deal with complainant, cited a certain assault and battery involving complainant which disrupted a sale at their market. There was lengthy testimony about this, which shows clearly that the incident took place in April 1984, many months after respondents first refused to deal with complainant. The testimony also shows clearly that complainant's only activity in that connection was an attempt to restore order.

For a refusal of an auction market to deal with someone, more justification is needed than is shown on this record.

In the matter of damages, complainant testified that the only business he did at respondents' market which he could not do elsewhere was to purchase 190–210 pound hogs for a certain small packer. Complainant's Exhibit 2, his tickets showing purchases in 1983 up to August 27, show hogs in that weight range as follows (each column showing date, number of head, and pounds of weight):

August:		May:
27	1 205	14	5 990 (198 avg.)

28	1 190			1 200
	1 200
25	1 200

However, the record does not show the basis on which, or the amount, complainant was paid for such purchases.

Complainant introduced his purchase tickets, his sale tickets, and a page from his income tax return, to show his gross business done at respondents' market in 1983 before the refusal to deal, and his total income, figuring his damages as a percentage of his gross business. However, a computation of his lost profits attributable to the refusal to deal should be limited to the business which he might have done at that market and could not have done just as well elsewhere. The record does not support a finding as to this.

On compensation for lost profits, see AmJur2d Damages §§ 171 et seq.; Bone v. Refco, Inc., 774 F.2d 235 (8 Cir. 1985); Rogers v. Allis-Chalmers Credit Corp., 679 F.2d 138 (8 Cir. 1982); Red Lobster Inns, Etc. v. Lawyers Title Ins. Corp., 656 F.2d 381 (8 Cir. 1981); Hyde v. C.M. Vending Co., Inc., 288 Ark. 218, 703 S.W.2d 862 (1986); and First Service Corp. v. Schumacher, 16 Ark. App. 282, 702 S.W.2d 412 (1985).

In conclusion, respondents did not establish justification for refusing to deal with complainant, but complainant did not establish his damages. On that basis, this complaint must be dismissed but, if the refusal to deal continues, complainant can recover such damages as he can establish in another such proceeding.

An issue was raised as to whether a sufficient complaint was filed within 90 days of accrual of the cause of action as required by the Act to begin such a proceeding. On September 7, 1983, the Packers and Stockyards Administration received a brief letter from complainant (Investigation Report Exhibit 128) which clearly identifies in writing what was complained about and who was complained against. That letter was sufficient to stop the running of the 90-day. limitation for such complaints in the Act.

An issue was raised as to jurisdiction over the persons of the individual respondents. It was undisputed that they were at the times material herein engaged in the buying and selling of livestock at the market as agents of the corporate respondent. They are "dealers" as defined, and subject to the reparation provisions, in the Act, on that basis. A reparation order against a dealer was upheld in Rice v. Wilcox, 630 F.2d 586, 39 Ag.Dec. 883 (8 Cir. 1980).

This order is the same as an order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, being issued pursuant to delegated authority, 7 CFR § 2.35, as authorized by Act of April 4, 1940, 54 Stat. 81, 7 U.S.C. 450c–450g. See also Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 5 U.S.C., 1976 ed., app. p. 764.

JJ&T TRUST, SHIRLEY A. BOLLINGER, TRUSTEE v. NEVADA LIVESTOCK AUCTION COMPANY, INC., and LAVERNE SCOTTEN. P & S Docket No. 6403. Decided on August 6, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) begun by a complaint received on March 30, 1984, alleging in substance an overcharge for care of certain livestock. The amount claimed was $1,006.00.

Copies of the complaint, and of an investigation report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of this Department and filed in this proceeding pursuant to the Rules of Practice, were served on respondents on June 25, 1984. A copy of the investigation report was served on complainant on June 26. An answer was received from respondent on or about June 27. A copy thereof was served on complainant on July 6.

By agreement of the parties a written hearing was held as provided in the Rules of Practice. John J. Casey of the Office of the General Counsel of this Department acted as Presiding Officer. Complainant was not represented by counsel. Respondents were represented by William G. McCaffree, Esq., Nevada, Missouri.

The following is undisputed. On Sunday, January 15, 1984, David Loyd, Manager of the JJ&T Ranch, caused 98 animals in poor condition to be moved from the Ranch to respondents' market, to be cared-for until the following Saturday, January 21, and then sold at the regular weekly auction. The weather at the time was severe. On Friday, January 20, Mr. Loyd's employer Mrs. Bollinger appeared at respondents' market with trucks to remove the animals. Respondents would not permit the animals to be removed until they were paid $1,006.00, which they itemized at the time as follows: "advertisement, yardage, caring for livestock, hired help, they were billed in ready for sale, help gathering cattle at farm." Mrs. Bollinger paid the $1,006.00 under protest and removed the animals.

The record shows the following. Mr. Loyd either violated instructions or acted without authority of his employer Mrs. Bollinger on January 15 in moving the animals to respondents' market. He was authorized to move them off the JJ&T Ranch but not to consign them for sale. Shortly after January 20, when Mrs. Bollinger removed the animals from respondents' market, litigation ensued between her and Mr. Loyd.

Complainant contends that the $1,006.00 was exorbitant and should be repaid in full except for yardage in accord with respondents' tariff on file with the Department.

Respondents filed affidavits of Mr. Loyd and respondent Scotten. In Mr. Loyd's affidavit he states that he acted as agent for complainant in engaging the services of respondents. The record does not contain any evidence that respondents knew of his lack of authority or violation of instructions at the time of the events in dispute. In Mr. Scotten's affidavit he gives an itemization of the $1,006.00 charge, for yardage, feed necessary since Mr. Loyd did not supply enough, medication necessary, straw for bedding since the weather was severe, and a total of $421.00 pay (approximately 10 man-days at $42.50 per day) for respondents' employees' labor needed for care of the 98 animals.

The record does not contain any testimony of persons who observed the animals after Mrs. Bollinger removed them from respondents' market, as to their condition or the care they needed at that time. Nor does it contain any specific information as to the weather during the time of the events in dispute.

In view of the undisputed facts that the animals were in poor condition and the weather was severe, and the lack of specific information as to their condition and the weather, a finding that the $1,006.00 charge was exorbitant or unreasonable is not supported by the record.

This order is the same as an order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, being issued pursuant to delegated authority, 7 CFR § 2.35, as authorized by Act of April 4, 1940, 54 Stat. 81, 7 U.S.C. 450c–450g. See also Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 5 U.S.C., 1976 ed., app. p. 764.

On a petition to reopen a hearing, to rehear or reargue a proceeding, or to reconsider an order, see Rule 17 of the Rules of Practice, 9 CFR § 202.117.

On a complainant's right to judicial review of such an order, see 5 U.S.C. 702-3 and United States v. I.C.C., 337 U.S. 426.

The complaint herein is hereby dismissed.

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

ALFRED MARSCHELL v. CASSIDY LIVE STOCK COMMISSION COMPANY and SAINT LOUIS NATIONAL STOCKYARDS COMPANY. P & S Docket No. 6407. Decided on August 6, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) begun by a complaint received on February 9, 1984 and amended February 24, alleging in substance a mixup of animals shipped to the stockyard and consigned to the commission firm for sale. The amount claimed was $1,141.32.

Copies of the complaint, and of an investigation report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of this Department and filed in this proceeding pursuant to the Rules of Practice, were served on respondent commission firm on June 11, 1984, and on respondent stockyard company June 21. A copy of the investigation report was served on complainant on June 9. Answers were received from respondent commission firm on or about June 20, and from respondent stockyard company on or about June 28. The latter requested an oral hearing. Complainant filed letters on July 8 and 26. Copies of each of these items were promptly served on each party other than the one filing it.

An oral hearing as requested was held on November 1, 1984 in St. Louis, Missouri, before John J. Casey of the Office of the General Counsel of this Department. No party was represented by counsel. Five witnesses testified. One exhibit was received. No brief was filed.

The following is undisputed. Thirteen animals were loaded by complainant on a truck of Mr. Dale Hackmann. Thirteen animals were delivered by Mr. Hackmann to the National Stockyards with instructions that they were to be consigned to respondent Cassidy for sale there for complainant's account. Thirteen animals were so consigned. Thirteen animals were so sold. The issue is, were they all the same animals?

The account of sale issued to complainant shows animals as follows (in order by weight):

Steers		Heifers
Number	Pounds of weight	Number	Pounds of weight
1	910
1	910
1	770	1	650
1	630
1	540
2	910 (455 avg.)
1	370
2	705 (352.5 avg.)	1	240
1	180

Thus the five lightest steers had an average weight of 342 pounds (180+705+370+455=1,710 /5=342) according to the account of sale.

Mr. Henry Bunge, complainant's father-in-law, was not present at the loading. However, he testified in substance as follows. He was familiar with the 13 animals in dispute, and with four others which were kept, and those 17 were the only ones in the particular field. The 13 animals consisted of 10 Herefords plus three which were Holstein/Angus cross. Five of the Herefords were two-year-olds, and the other five were about 14 months old.

Complainant testified in substance as follows. The smallest of the 13 animals in dispute were five Hereford steers about 14 months of age. He kept four Hereford heifers which he called the "sisters" of those steers, the same age, born at the same time and place, and kept with them their entire lives. He caused those heifers to be weighed at a scale near his home, a few days after the events in dispute, and those heifers weighed a total of 2300 pounds (the average of that would be 575 pounds). The lightest steers would have been at least as heavy as those heifers.

Mr. Dale Hackmann testified in substance as follows. He delivered to the stockyard the same 13 animals which complainant loaded on his truck. The smallest weighed about 450 pounds each by his estimate. The only other animals on his truck on the same trip were pure Holsteins, which would not be confused with the 13 animals in dispute.

At the hearing, Mr. Leonard Wittich, then Vice President of the stockyard company, was the only witness to testify for either respondent. Mr. Michael Henderson, who owned the commission firm at the time of the events in dispute, appeared for the commission firm but introduced no evidence. Complainant called Mr. Henderson as a witness. Neither Mr. Wittich nor Mr. Henderson ever saw the 13 animals in dispute.

Mr. Wittich testified that stockyard company records showed as follows. About 11:00 P.M., when the animals were unloaded from Mr. Hackmann's truck, the 13 in dispute and the Holsteins, a stockyard company employee received them and moved them to chute pen number 148. During the same shift of that stockyard company employee, only eight drafts came in, of which only one other was consigned to the Cassidy commission firm. The one other draft consigned to the Cassidy firm was driven by its owner down to a pen, and consisted entirely of Angus animals, which would not be confused with the 13 in dispute. About 5:30 the next morning, the Crain Driving Agency moved the 13 to sale pen 106F, which is assigned to the Cassidy firm, and moved the Holsteins to another sale pen, assigned to another commission firm, McCall-Runyon. The Crain firm is separate from either of the respondents.

The record does not contain any evidence as to who mixed complaint's animals with others before they were sold. There is precedent for shifting the burden to respondents in a case to furnish information to exonerate themselves, and for holding liable any who do not. However, in such a case, the persons who are made respondents must include every person who could have caused the damage. See Graff v. United Stockyards Corp., 37 Ag. Dec. 529 (1978); Loizzo v. St. Francis Hospital, 121 Ill. App. 3d 172, 76 Ill. Dec. 677, 459 N.E.2d 314 (1984); and McGowen v. Tri-County Gas Company, 483 S.W.2d 1 (Mo. 1972).

This order is the same as an order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, being issued pursuant to delegated authority, 7 CFR §2.35, as authorized by Act of April 4, 1940, 54 Stat. 81, 7 U.S.C. 450c–450g. See also Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 5 U.S.C., 1976 ed., app. p. 764.

On a petition to reopen a hearing, to rehear or reargue a proceeding, or to reconsider an order, see Rule 17 of the Rules of Practice, 9 CFR § 202.117.

On a complainant's right to judicial review of such an order, see 5 U.S.C. 702–3 and United States v. I.C.C., 337 U.S. 426.

The complaint herein is hereby dismissed.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS, ELEVENTH CIRCUIT

Petition for Review of an Order of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Before FAY, JOHNSON and CLARK, Circuit Judges.
PER CURIAM: AFFIRMED. See Circuit Rule 25.

DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: BEACON PRODUCE COMPANY. PACA Docket No. 2-7129. Decided on May 28, 1986.

Failure to pay—License revoked—Default.

Respondent purchased, received and accepted perishable commodities without making full payment of agreed purchase prices, which is a violation of Section 2 of the Act. There was no appeal from respondent and license is revoked.

Ben E. Bruner, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on March 17, 1986, by the Acting Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period March 1985 through October 1985, respondent purchased, received and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 28 sellers, 72 lots of fruits and vegetables all being perishable agriculture commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the total amount of $414,205.95.

A copy of the complaint was served upon respondent which complaint has not been answered. The time for filing an answer having run, and upon the motion of the complainant for the issuance of a default order, the following Decision and Order is issued without further investigation or hearing pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Beacon Produce Co., is a corporation, whose address is 1401 S.W. 2nd Street, Pompano Beach, Florida 33060.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 207880 was issued to respondent on May 3, 1965, was renewed annually, presently is in effect, and was next subject to renewal on or before May 3, 1986.

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period March 1985 through October 1985 respondent purchased, received and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce, from 28 sellers, 72 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $414,205.95.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 72 transactions set forth in Finding of Fact No. 3, above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's license is revoked.

This Order shall take effect on the eleventh day after this Decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice governing procedures under the Act, this Decision will become final without further proceedings thirty-five days after service hereof, unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within thirty days after service as provided in sections 1.139 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 C.F.R. 1.139 and 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

[This Decision and Order became final on July 16, 1986-ED.]

In re: UNITED PROVISIONS, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-7018. Decided on May 2, 1986.

Failure to pay promptly—License terminated—Default.

Respondent failed to make payment on transactions with 58 sellers, constituting violations of Section 2 of the Act. License was terminated after failure to pay required annual fee. Respondent did not appeal.

Ed Silverstein, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on December 2, 1985, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period August 1984 through March 1985, respondent purchased, received, and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 58 sellers, 584 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, in the total amount of $985,535.66.

A copy of the complaint was served upon respondent which complaint has not been answered.[1] The time for filing an answer having run, and upon the motion of the complainant for the issuance of a Default Order, the following Decision and Order is issued without further investigation or hearing pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, United Provisions, Inc., is a corporation, whose last known mailing address was P.O. Box 266596, Houston, Texas 77207.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 681718 was issued to respondent on April 2, 1968. This license was renewed annually, but terminated on April 2, 1985, pursuant to Section 4(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499d(a)) when respondent failed to pay the required annual license fee.

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period August 1984 through March 1985, respondent purchased, received, and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce, from 58 sellers, 584 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, in the total amount of $985,535.66.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 584 transactions set forth in Finding of Fact No. 3, above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

A finding is made that respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C.

[1] It is noted that the Hearing Clerk was unable to make service on respondent by certified mail. Accordingly service was accomplished by regular mail as permitted by the Rules of Practice. 7 CFR § 1.147. Further, it is noted that complainant attempted to make personal service on the complainant but was unable to do so.

499b), and the facts and circumstances set forth above, shall be published.

This order shall take effect on the 11th day after this Decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice governing procedures under the Act, this Decision will become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within 30 days after service as provided in sections 1.139 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139 and 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon parties.

DECISION AND ORDER (CONSENT)

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.; hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), instituted by a Complaint filed on June 23, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

The Complaint alleges that during the period April 1985 through February 1986, Respondent failed to make full payment promptly to 31 sellers of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $649,342.66 for 58 lots of perishable agricultural commodities, which it purchased, received and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce. A copy of the Complaint was served upon Respondent. Respondent filed an Answer admitting the material allegations of the Complaint. The Respondent and Complainant have now agreed to the entry of a Decision and Order as set forth herein. Therefore, pursuant to Section 1.138 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.138), the following Decision and Order is issued without further procedure or hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Bakker Sales Incorporated (hereinafter "Respondent"), is an Ohio corporation, whose mailing address is 16000 Pearl Road, Strongsville, Ohio 44136.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the PACA, license number 841753 was issued to Respondent on July 27, 1983. This license has been renewed annually, and is next subject to renewal on or before July 27, 1986.

3. The Secretary has jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter involved herein.

4. As set forth more fully in paragraph 5 of the Complaint, during the period April 1985 through February 1986, Respondent failed to make full payment promptly to 31 sellers of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $649,342.66 for 58 lots of perishable agricultural commodities purchased, received and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b), by failing to make full payment promptly with respect to the transactions set forth in Finding of Fact No. 4 above, for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's license is revoked.
This order shall become effective August 11, 1986.
Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

In re: JOHN SLOUGH d/b/a/ SLOUGH'S FARM FRESH MUSHROOMS.
PACA Docket No. 2-7082. Decided on June 30, 1986.

Failure to pay promptly—License revoked—No appeal.

Respondent failed to pay for perishable agricultural commodities purchased, received and accepted from 27 sellers over a period of twelve (12) months. Such failure to pay constitutes violation of Section 2 of the Act. Respondents license is revoked. There was no appeal.

Andrew Stanton, for complainant.
Nathan M. Schenker, Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Acting Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period June 1984 through June 1985, respondent purchased, received and accepted, in interstate commerce and in contemplation of resale in interstate commerce, from 27 sellers, 492 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the total amount of $349,146.05. Complainant further alleged that such actions were willful, flagrant and repeated violations of section 2 of the PACA, and requested that respondent's license be revoked.

On March 5, 1986, respondent filed an answer in which in effect admitted the allegations of the complaint. Complainant has moved for a decision on the pleadings and changed its requested sanction to a finding of repeated and/or flagrant violations of the PACA, and publication of such finding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, John Slough d/b/a Slough's Farm Fresh Mushrooms, is an individual, whose address is P.O. Box 219, West Grove, Pennsylvania 19390.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 841019 was issued to respondent on April 4, 1984. The license terminated on April 7, 1986, when respondent failed to pay the required annual license fee.

3. The Secretary has jurisdiction in this proceeding.

4. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period June 1984 through June 1985 respondent purchased, received and accepted in interstate commerce and in contemplation of resale in interstate commerce, from 27 sellers, 492 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $349,146.05.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent has admitted in his answer that he failed to make full payment promptly with respect to the 492 transactions alleged in the complaint and set forth in Finding of Fact No. 4, above. Respondent's admitted failures to pay constitute repeated and/or flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent has committed repeated and/or flagrant violations of Section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. § 499(b)).

The facts and circumstances as set forth herein shall be published.

This Order shall take effect on the eleventh day after this Decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice governing procedures under the Act, this Decision will become final without further proceedings thirty-five days after service hereof, unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within thirty days after service as provided in sections 1.139 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139 and 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.)

hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period March through August 1984, respondent purchased, received, and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from four sellers, 80 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, in the total amount of $121,103.70.

A copy of the complaint was served upon respondent which complaint has not been answered. The time for filing an answer having run, and upon the motion of the complainant for the issuance of a Default Order, the following Decision and Order is issued without further investigation or hearing pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Metro Produce, Inc., is a corporation, whose address is 1901 Powers Ferry Road, Suite 250, Marietta, Georgia 30067.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 830913 was issued to respondent on May 3, 1983. This license was renewed, but terminated on May 3, 1985, pursuant to Section 4(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499d(a)) when respondent failed to pay the required annual license fee.

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period March through August 1984, respondent purchased, received, and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce, from four sellers, 80 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, in the total amount of $121,103.70.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 80 transactions set forth in F. ding of Fact No. 3, above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

A finding is made that respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), and the facts and circumstances set forth above, shall be published.

This order shall take effect on the 11th day after this Decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice governing procedures under the Act, this Decision will become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within 30 days after service as provided in sections 1.139 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139 and 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon parties.

DECISION AND ORDER (CONSENT)

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.; hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), instituted by a Complaint filed on June 12, 1986 , by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

The Complaint alleges that during the period May 1984 through October 1985, Respondent failed to make full payment promptly to 33 sellers of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $1,859,863.82 for 789 lots of perishable agricultural commodities, which it purchased, received and accepted in interstate commerce. A copy of the Complaint was served upon Respondent. Respondent filed an Answer admitting the material allegations of the Complaint. The Respondent and Complainant have now agreed to the entry of a Decision and Order as set forth herein. Therefore, pursuant to Section 1.138 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.138), the following Decision and Order is issued without further procedure or hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Sam Compton Produce Company Incorporated, (hereinafter "Respondent") is a Tennessee corporation, whose business address is 2208 Forest Avenue, N.W., Knoxville, Tennessee 37916.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the PACA, license number 672197 was issued to Respondent on May 31, 1967. This license has been renewed annually, and is next subject to renewal on or before May 31, 1986.

3. The Secretary has jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter involved herein.

4. As set forth more fully in paragraph 5 of the Complaint, during the period May 1984 through October 1985, Respondent failed to make full payment promptly to 33 sellers of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $1,859,863.82 for 789 lots of perishable agricultural commodities purchased, received and accepted in interstate commerce.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. 499b), by failing to make full payment promptly with respect to the transactions set forth in Finding of Fact No. 4 above, for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's license is revoked.
This order shall become effective September 8, 1986.
Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

REMOVAL OF STAY ORDER

The stay order previously issued in this proceeding pending the outcome of proceedings for judicial review is hereby lifted. The Decision and Order previously issued on August 26, 1985, shall become effective on the 30th day after service of this order on respondent.

REPARATION DECISIONS

RITCLO PRODUCE INC. v. MICHIGAN REPACKING and PRODUCE CO.
PACA Docket No. 2-6774. Decided on July 9, 1986.

Evidentiary material submitted with brief excluded—Notice of rejection—Acceptance by unloading—Adjustment, proof of.

Two loads of tomatoes were sold and shipped by complainant to respondent. Following arrival respondent's complaint to broker that tomatoes were "unacceptable" did not amount to clear and unmistakable notice of rejection. Also there was insufficient proof that notice was promptly conveyed by broker to seller. In addition the record indicated that the tomatoes on one load had been unloaded prior to Federal inspection, but not for purpose of inspection, thus constituting acceptance. Complainant adequately demonstrated that the parties agreed, following arrival, to a new adjusted price for the tomatoes.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $11,709.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of two truckloads of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complainant was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, respondent filed an answering statement, and complainant filed a statement in reply. Both complainant and respondent filed a brief. Respondent's brief contained evidentary material which complainant objected to. Such evidentary material, to the extent that it was not already properly in evidence, has not been considered in arriving at our decision in this case. Respondent also filed a reply brief which is not permitted under the Rules of Practice. This brief has not been considered.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Ritclo Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 794, Nogales, Arizona.

2. Respondent, Michigan Repacking and Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is Rooms 106–112, 7201 W. Fort Street, Detroit, Michigan. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about March 14, 1984, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped from loading point in Arizona to respondent in Detroit, Michigan, one truckload containing 1,296 lugs of medium-large (6X6) tomatoes, Ritz label, at $6.00 per lug, plus $.50 per lug for palletizing and cooling, and $22.50 for a temperature recorder. On the following day when contracting for a second shipment of tomatoes the parties agreed to a reduction in price for the March 14, shipment of $1.00 per lug, down to $5.00 per lug, or a total invoice price of $7,150.50.

4. Following arrival of the tomatoes shipped March 14, 1984, respondent unloaded such tomatoes into its warehouse, and on March 19, 1984, at 1:05 p.m., the tomatoes were federally inspected. The inspection showed that the temperatures of the tomatoes were 46°F to 50°F, and the condition was stated to be as follows:

> Average approximately 5% turning to pink, and 80% light red to red color. Soft from 4 to 12%, average 9%. Decay in most samples from 2 to 12%, some none, average 5% Bacterial Soft Rot and Gray Mold Rot in mostly early, some advanced stages. Serious damage by Internal Discoloration averages 2%. Damage by sunken discolored areas over shoulders averages 2%.

The parties through their respective brokers negotiated an adjustment in price of $1.00 per carton to $4.00 per carton.

5. On or about March 15, 1984, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped from loading point in Arizona to respondent in Detroit, Michigan, one truckload containing 1,296 lugs of medium-large size tomatoes (6X6), Ritz label, at $5.00 per lug, plus $.50 cents per lug for palletization and cooling, and $22.50 for a temperature recorder, or a total of $7,150.50.

6. The truck containing the second shipment of tomatoes arrived after respondent's closing time on March 19, 1984, and when the driver called respondent he was told to deliver the tomatoes the following morning. When the tomatoes arrived on March 20, respondent instructed the driver to take the load to a different terminal in order to have the tomatoes inspected. The driver became lost, and by the time he arrived at the place for inspection the inspectors had left for the day. The load was inspected on the following morning, March 21, 1984, at 6:00 a.m. Such inspection was made on the truck, and was restricted to product and lading in all layers of 5 pallets nearest the rear doors which was made accessible by the applicant. The temperatures at the rear doors were stated to be 45° for the top layer, and 45° for the floor layer. Condition was stated to be as follows:

> Average approximately 10% green to breakers, 25% turning to pink, 50% light red to red. Soft from 4 to 18%, average 12%. Decay average 3%. Damage by sunken discolored areas, generally occurring over shoulders, from 2 to 8%, average 4%.

Following the inspection of the second truckload of tomatoes complainant and respondent agreed through their respective brokers to an adjustment in price of $1.00 down to $4.00 per carton.

7. The formal complaint was filed on December 7, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant brings this action to recover the adjusted purchase price of two truckloads of tomatoes. Respondent alleges that no adjustment in the purchase price (other than the initial adjustment referred to in finding of fact 3) was made, and that both loads were rejected. Respondent took possession of both loads of produce, resold them, rendered an accounting showing only the gross proceeds, and claims that no proceeds are due to complainant.

Respondent's claim that both loads of produce were rejected is not substantiated by the evidence herein. As to the first load, respondent's Robert Tringale, who negotiated the transactions on behalf of respondent, stated only that following the government inspection he "contacted Mott and Simmons (respondent's broker) and told them that the shipment was unacceptable." According to Mr. Tringale Mott and Simmons then conveyed to him an offer by complainant's broker, Nickademos Distributing Company, to adjust the price by $1.00 per box. Tringale alleges that he refused this offer, and countered it with an offer to take the shipment on open account with a "price after sale" arrangement. Mr. Tringale states that this offer was refused. Subsequently respondent resold the tomatoes.

Even if we accept all of respondent's allegations recited above as true, such allegations do not prove a rejection of the tomatoes on the part of respondent. This is true for at least two reasons. We have held numerous times that notice of rejection must be given in clear and unmistakable terms, and that a mere complaint regarding a shipment is insufficient. See Verd's Fruit Market v. Zaccone, 36 Agric. Dec. 1603 (1977), and Saikhon v. Russell Ward Co., Inc., 34 Agric. Dec. 1940 (1973). In Beamon Brothers v. Cal. Sweet Potato Growers, 38 Agric. Dec. 71 (1979) we specifically held that notice to a shipper that produce received was "not acceptable" did not amount to clear notice of rejection because such words could be interpreted as merely an expression of displeasure with the condition of the produce. We further stated that "The need for a clear and unmistakable rejection is doubly necessary where there is a subsequent unloading of the produce by the receiver, with a claim that the produce was to be handled for the shipper's account." Second, the evidence in this proceeding is not sufficient to show that even respondent's terminology "unacceptable" was clearly communicated to the seller. A rejection is not effective unless the buyer promptly notifies the seller, and the burden of proving prompt notice rests upon the buyer. See San Tan Tillage Co., Inc. v. Kaps Foods, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 867 (1979). In addition we have held that notice to a broker is not sufficient. See Hatcher v. White, 37 Agric. Dec. 800 (1978). It is also clear that as to the first load respondent's communications with the broker, which it characterizes as a rejection, took place following the federal inspection. The federal inspection indicates that the tomatoes had already been unloaded into respondent's warehouse at time of inspection. We have held many times that even a partial unloading of a shipment, unless it is purely for the purpose of facilitating an inspection, will constitute sufficient control over perishable goods to constitute and acceptance thereof. See Crown Orchard Co. v. Mid-Valley Prod. Corp., 34 Agric. Dec. 1381 (1975). In regard to the second shipment of tomatoes, respondent's Mr. Tringale did not even allege that the broker was informed that such tomatoes were "unacceptable". We conclude that neither of the loads of tomatoes where rejected by respondent.

Since respondent accepted the tomatoes it became liable to complainant for the full purchase price thereof less any damages shown to have resulted from any breach of contract on the part of complainant. However, although the inspections of the tomatoes indicate that the tomatoes may not have made good delivery, it is not necessary for us to consider this issue because complainant has alleged, and we think adequately proved, that the parties agreed to an adjustment in price on both loads of tomatoes, following the inspections. Both of the brokers who negotiated the two tomato contracts, and who were involved in negotiations subsequent to the arrival of the tomatoes, affirmed on oath that respondent agreed to pay an adjusted price of $4.00 per lug, plus the $.50 per lug palletizing and cooling charge, following the inspections of the tomatoes. This has also been the consistent allegation of complainant. We note that during the informal stages of this proceeding respondent wrote to the Department and submitted copies of the two invoices covering the two shipments of tomatoes. These invoices show the type written $5.00 price struck through in ink, and also in ink written thereunder "per Mott & Simmons $4.00". Complainant pointed this fact out in its opening statement, but respondent never gave any explanation as to why the adjusted prices appeared on its own copies of the invoice. We conclude on the basis of all of the evidence that complainant has adequately shown that there was an agreement, following arrival and inspection of the two loads of tomatoes, that respondent would pay for such tomatoes at the adjusted $4.00 rate, plus palletization and cooling and temperature recorders, or a total for both loads of $11,709.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $11,709.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from April 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ANTHONY PODESTA, INC. v. FOPPIANO PACKING CO., INC. a/t/a JMB PACKING CO. PACA Docket No. 2-6916. Decided on July 9, 1986.

Whether firm was responsibly connected with respondent, not for consideration in reparation proceeding—Grower's agent, authority to negotiate adjustments—Adjustments by grower's agent, not supported by adequate inspections.

The contention of a firm which filed an answer on behalf of respondent that it was not responsibly connected with respondent was not a proper issue for determination in a reparation proceeding. Respondent acted as agent for complainant in disposing of its apples and in connection with such disposition granted a substantial adjustment in the negotiated contract price. It was found that there was insufficient evidence of authority to grant such adjustments, and that adjustments were not adequately supported by inspections at destination.

Mark L. Epstein, San Francisco, California, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $5,449.91 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of apples.

A copy of the Report of Investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which defaulted in the filing of an answer. On May 1, 1985, a default order was issued against respondent. On May 6, 1985, Alvin Cortopassi, a stockholder in respondent firm, submitted an answer on behalf of respondent. On May 24, 1985, the default order, of May 1, 1985 was stayed, and respondent was given days from its receipt of the order to furnish good reason why the proceeding should be reopened, and why the answer was not filed in a timely fashion. On June 18, 1985, a response to the stay order was filed by Jacobs, Malcolm & Burtt, a California corporation that was also a stockholder in respondent firm at the time of the transaction involved herein. This reply disclosed lack of notice to such party of the complaint, and good reason why the proceeding should be reopened. Alvin Cortopassi also filed a reply to the stay order on June 13, 1985. On August 13, 1985, an order was issued reopening after default, and respondent's answer, previously submitted, was ordered filed.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure the verified formal complaint is considered a part of the evidence in this case, as is the Department's report of investigation. Respondent's answer, since it was not verified, is not a part of the evidence herein. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement and two answering statements were filed on behalf of respondent, one by Alvin Cortopassi, and one by Jacobs, Malcolm & Burtt. Complainant also filed a statement in reply. Both parties filed briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Anthony Podesta Inc., is a corporation whose address is 4001 North Duncan Road, Linden, California.

2. Respondent, Foppiano Packing Co., Inc., is a corporation, doing business as J M B Packing Co., whose address is 14993 E. Highway 26, Linden, California. At the time of the transaction involved in this proceeding respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about October 1, to October 5, 1983, pursuant to an agreement between complainant and respondent complainant picked, and delivered to respondent for packing and selling on behalf of complainant, a quantity of Granny Smith apples. Respondent sorted and packed the apples, and on or about October 10, 1983, sold the apples which it had sorted and packed to Fruitco in Bronx, New York, in the following quantities, and for the following prices, on an f.o.b. basis:

125 size 72 at $16.00 or $2,000.00
469 size 80 at $16.00 or $7,504.00
140 size 88 at $16.00 or $2,240.00
178 size 100 at $16.00 or $2,848.00
21 size 113 at $12.00 or $252.00
2 size 125 at $10.00 or $20.00

On October 11, 1983, at 4:15 p.m., the apples were shipped to Fruitco in Bronx, New York by truck. A prelimary restricted inspection report was issued covering an inspection made at the place of business of Fruitco on October 17, 1983, at 6:30 a.m., of apples in cartons. The report stated that the inspection took place at the applicant's store, and covered "California apples, 80, 88, 72, 100 J M B Packing-CA." Such inspection stated in addition as follows:

> Grade defects average 1% mostly firm ripe, some firm. 11 to 24% average 16% damage by Bruising scattered throughout the pack. No decay. Meets quality requirements but fails to grade U.S. No. 1 only account of condition.
> TEMPERATURES: 40 to 43° F.

An additional preliminary restricted inspection was made on October 20, 1983, at 10:15 a.m., at the place of business of Fruitco, and was stated to cover apples in cartons "J M B Packing California Apples 80, 88, 100." Such inspection stated in addition as follows:

> Grade defects average 1%. Mostly ripe & firm. 6 to 20% per carton, average 11% damage by Bruising, scattered throughout pack, affecting all stages of ripeness. 6 to 18%, average 12% Bitter pit. No decay. Grade: U.S. No. 1. Bruising & Bitter Pit being factors of condition.

TEMPERATURES: 42 to 43°F.

5. Respondent allowed an adjustment to its customer on the 100 size and larger apples of $5.88 a box, on the 113 size apples of $3.75 per box, and on the 125 size apples of $4.30 a box, for a total adjustment of $5,449.91. Respondent's customer remitted to respondent on the basis of the original purchase price less the adjustment. Respondent deducted a packing fee in the amount of $4.50 per carton, the adjustment in the total amount of $5,449.91, cooling in the amount of 50 cents per carton, of 25 cents per carton, and remitted net proceeds to complainant of $4,505.34.

6. The informal complaint was filed on July 9, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant brings this action to recover the amount by which respondent adjusted the invoice price. The submissions made in this proceeding on respondent's behalf by Jacobs, Malcolm & Burtt deal almost totally with reasons why such firm should not be considered to be responsibly connected with respondent. This is not, of course, a subject for consideration in this proceeding. Alvin Cortopassi, who was the person principally responsible for operating respondent firm at the time of the transaction which is the subject of this proceeding has stated at several points in the record that in his opinion the apples were in good condition when shipped, and that he personally objected to making any allowance to Fruitco in regard to the apples. However, Mr. Cortopassi stated that the broker who negotiated the sale of the apples between respondent at Fruitco urged that an adjustment be made, and that Fruitco insisted on an adjustment. Respondent, as an agent for complainant, was obligated not only to get the best possible price for the apples, but also not to allow an adjustment unless such adjustment was warranted. While frequently an agent in this type of situation is allowed discretion in the granting of adjustments there is no evidence that there was any specific agreement between respondent and complainant herein giving respondent the authority to grant adjustments without consultation with complainant. See Regulations, § 46.32 (7 CFR § 47.32). However, even assuming that respondent had such discretion there are a number of reasons why respondent cannot be allowed to take credit for the adjustments which were made in this case. First, and most importantly, the inspections made at destination do not disclose the quantity of apples inspected. We have no way of knowing whether the quantity inspected was representative of the whole of the shipment of apples or merely covered a very small amount of such apples. Second, the first inspection on October 17, 1983, discloses temperatures in the apples that are somewhat high, and if made on the day of arrival, shows that there was at least a one day delay in transit. The inspection also is somewhat borderline as far as showing a failure of the apples to make good delivery. The second inspection is too remote in time to show the condition of the apples on arrival, but it is strong evidence that the Bitter Pit was not present in the apples on arrival. We conclude that respondent has not furnished sufficient evidence to support the adjustment which was made in the price of the apples. Respondent is therefore liable to complainant for the amount of the adjustment, or $5,449.91. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $5,449.91, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from November 1, 1983, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

STEVCO, INC. v. C.B. MARCHANT & CO., INC. PACA Docket No. 2-7162. Decided on July 16, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER REQUIRING PAYMENT OF UNDISPUTED AMOUNT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely informal complaint was filed on September 3, 1985, and a formal complaint was filed on January 16, 1986. Complainant seeks to recover $21,835.50 which amount is alleged to be the total purchase price for grapes sold to and accepted by respondent on or about July 3, 4, 6, and 9, 1985. Respondent filed an answer to the formal complaint on April 22, 1986, admitting that $10,780.50 of the amount claimed by complainant was due and owing to complainant on account of the transaction(s) involved herein.

Section 7(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499g(a)) provides in part:

> If after the respondent has filed his answer to the complaint, it appears therein that the respondent has admit> ted liability for a portion of the amount claimed in the complaint as damages, the Secretary . . . may issue an order directing the respondent to pay the complainant the undisputed amount . . . leaving the respondent's liability for the disputed amount for subsequent determination.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,635.00 in connection with shipments of yellow onions in interstate commerce. The formal complaint was served upon respondent, and respondent submitted as an answer a document that failed to comply with 7 CFR § 47.8(b). Respondent was given an opportunity to submit a proper answer but failed to do so. Therefore, respondent is considered to have failed to file an answer, which constitutes a waiver of hearing and an admission of the facts alleged in the complaint, pursuant to 7 CFR § 47.8(c). Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Nat Feinn Sales Corporation, is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 848, Fresno, California 93712. Respondent, Berryman Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 3120 Produce Row, Houston, Texas 77023. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $2,635.00. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,6350.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from July 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,436.00 in connection with shipments of kiwifruit in interstate commerce. The formal complaint was served upon respondent, and respondent submitted as an answer a document that failed to comply with 7 CFR § 47.8(b). Respondent was given an opportunity to submit a proper answer but failed to do so. Therefore, respondent is considered to have failed to file an answer, which constitutes a waiver of hearing and an admission of the facts alleged in the complaint, pursuant to 7 CFR § 47.8(c). Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Sun World International, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 9110, Bakersfield, California 93389. Respondent, Berryman Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 3120 Produce Row, Houston, Texas 77023. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $2,436.00. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,436.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from September 1, 1985, until paid.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $179,507.30 in connection with shipments of mixed vegetables in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting indebtedness to the complainant in the amount of $162,402.10. Respondent also claimed that payment arrangements had been made. Complainant was given an opportunity to dispute that the amount due was actually $162,402.10 and to further dispute the fact that payment arrangements had been made. Complainant filed a response indicating that the amount due had in fact been reduced to $162,402.10, but disputed the fact that payment arrangements had been made. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Bud Antle, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 1759, Salinas, California 93902. Respondent, Freshville Produce Distributors, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1367

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $162,402.10. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $162,402.10, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from February 1, 1986, until paid.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant originally sought a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $6,293.00 in connection with a transaction, in interstate commerce, involving onions, a perishable agricultural commodity. Subsequent to the filing of the complaint, the complainant notified the department that it had received a check in the amount of $4,193.00 from the respondent, and that it was therefore only seeking $2,100.00 as reparation from respondent.

A copy of the department's report of investigation was served on both parties. Respondent also was served with a copy of the complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

Since the amount claimed as damages did not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was followed. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence of the case, as is the department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file further evidence by way of sworn statements, but neither of them did so. Also, neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Pro-Veg, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 727, Lamont, California 93241-0727.

2. Respondent, M & M Produce Farms & Sales a/t/a Zygmund Rogowski & Sons, is a partnership consisting of Matthew Rogowski, Mark Rogowski, and Sigmund Rogowski, Jr., whose mailing address is Route 2, Goshen, New York 10924. At all material times, although the respondent was not licensed under the Act, it was operating subject to license.

3. On or about July 7, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant, by oral contract, sold to the respondent 899 50 pound sacks of prepack yellow onions at an agreed price of $10.50 per sack delivered. Subsequent thereto, it was agreed that the respondent would pay the transportation costs at $3.15 per bag and would pay the complainant $7.00 per bag. 599 sacks were "Triple S" brand, and the remaining 300 were "Bunny Luv" brand onions.

4. The onions were shipped on July 7, 1984, from California to respondent in New York. Upon arrival on July 12, 1984, the respondent accepted the onions. On July 17, 1984, some of the onions were the subject of a federal inspection. The Preliminary Restricted Report issued by the inspector at that time (Serial No. A 95767) indicates that only 46 bags of prepacked onions were inspected but that these bags showed an average of 72% decay. The report also indicates that the inspector inspected 150 bags of medium onions which showed an average of 64% decay as well as 2% damage by dry sunscald. The inspector noted that all of the onions bore the "Bunny Luv" brand label.

5. On or about August 28, 1984, the respondent sent the complainant a check in the amount of $4,193.00.

6. On April 8, 1985, the department received a letter from the complainant in which in pertinent part it states:

> Mr. Alexis M. Estevez, Acting Regional Director of NE Region, PACA Branch, was unable to obtain a release of Check 4896, for $4,193.00, issued to us by M & M Produce Farms & Sales, a Partnership, in which Zygmund Ro-gowski is a Partner. Mr. Estevez mailed the check to us and we had placed it "out-for-collection" on 1-29-85. The check has cleared the bank the amount $4,193.00, was deposited to out bank account on 2-11-85.

7. The formal complaint was filed on November 30, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This case presents a multitude of issues for resolution. However, the dispositive issue in this case is whether or not the complainant accepted the respondent's $4,193.00 check in accord and satisfaction for the indebtedness arising out of the subject shipment of onions. The respondent in its answer alleged that complainant did so. The complainant, after being served with the answer, never responded thereto although it was given an opportunity to do so during the course of the procedure followed in this case.

In order for there to be an accord and satisfaction, there must exist a bona fide dispute between the parties, one party must tender an amount in satisfaction of the disputed debt accompanied by such actions and declarations as notify the other party that the tender, if accepted, would be accepted in full satisfaction thereof, and an acceptance of the tender. Blue Goose Growers v. Boler Fruit, 23 Agric. Dec. 115 (1964).

In the instant case, it appears that respondent offered to settle the dispute between the parties for $4,193.00, and that complainant, at first, rejected this tender. However, it further appears that, after the Department failed to gain respondent's agreement to release the respondent's $4,193.00 check as an undisputed amount, complainant accepted respondent's offer and negotiated the check. In view of this, all of the prerequisites of accord and satisfaction are present in this case. Our conclusion is supported by the acknowledgement in the complainant's April 2, 1985, letter to the Department that, although an attempt had been made to get respondent to release the check as an undisputed amount, complainant was aware that respondent refused to do so, and nevertheless the complainant negotiated the check and received payment thereon. In view of this, we must conclude that the complainant was aware that respondent offered the check in full satisfaction of the alleged indebtedness, and that the complainant accepted it as such. In Florida Fruit Growers, Inc. v. Fleisher Bros. & Danziger, P.A.C.A. Docket No. 400 (January 16, 1933), we held that acceptance of a check accompanied by a letter indicating that the check was tendered in full satisfaction for the disputed transactions resulted in an accord and satisfaction. The law does not appear to have changed in the 53 years since that decision was issued. See Potter v. Pacific Coast Lumber Co. of California, 234 P. 2d 16, 37 C.2d 592 (1951); Venzie Corporation of Ohio v. Riethmiller, 145 N.E. 2d 460, 103 Ohio App. 343, 3 0. Ops. 2d 369 (1957). Cf. Mendelson-Zeller v. Season Produce, 31 Agric. Dec. 1288 (1972), wherein it was held that no accord and satisfaction occurred where respondent, neither on its check nor in its accompanying letter indicated that acceptance of its check was conditional upon complainant's accepting it in full satisfaction of its claim; and Pruden Packing Co. v. Hager's Wholesale Frts., 12 Agric. Dec. 264 and 12 Agric. Dec. 1195 (1953), wherein no accord and satisfaction was held to result when complainant refused to accept the check tendered by respondent and the Department held the check in escrow during the pending of the reparation proceeding.

In this case, we conclude that respondent tendered its $4,193.00 check in full satisfaction of the disputed transactions, that complainant was aware of this when it accepted it, and that an accord and satisfaction has taken place. Accordingly, we have no choice but to dismiss the complaint. Rocky Ford v. Vita-Wellbrock-Kearney, 31 Agric. Dec. 306 (1972).

Evidence, failure to rebut.

Complainant sought to recover balances alleged due on 11 lots of produce. Complainant failed to rebut respondent's explanations and justifications for failure to pay the alleged balances and such balances were found to be not due to complainant as to all but one transaction. On that transaction it was found that even though respondent and complainant concurred in turning over a portion of the shipment to other receivers to be handled on a consignment basis, respondent failed to furnish any justification for accounting on a consignment basis for the remainder which it kept.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $11,696.44 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of 11 lots of cucumbers and squash.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant is a partnership composed of Harold E. Trask, James H. Trask, William D. Trask, Margaret S. Trask, and Harold E. Trask, Jr., doing business as G.W. Trask & Sons, whose address is P.O. Box 4010, Burton, South Carolina.

2. Respondent, H.M. Shields, Inc., is a corporation whose address is State Farmers Market, Room 8-4, Pompano Beach, Florida. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about May 12, 1984, under its invoice No. 4692, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 100 containers of zucchini squash at $6.00, 100 containers of yellow squash at $6.00, and 50 containers of large zucchini squash at $8.00, for a total price of $1,600.00. Respondent has paid complainant $1,359.65 after deducting $240.35 for freight on two previous lots of produce with complainant's permission.

4. On or about May 18, 1984, under its invoice no. 4707, complainant sold and shipped to respondent, or respondent's customer, 218 containers of zucchini squash at $8.50, 109 containers of yellow squash at $8.50, and an additional 10 containers of zucchini squash at $8.50, for a total price of $2,864.60. On arrival the shipment was short by 6 boxes of zucchini squash, and 4 boxes of yellow squash. In addition the boxes were slack. Respondent contacted complainant, and complainant agreed to the boxes being reworked. The boxes were reworked, and yielded 162 containers of zucchini squash, and 84 containers of yellow squash. Respondent paid complainant on this basis a total of $2,176.00.

5. On or about May 26, 1984, under its invoice no. 4723, complainant sold and shipped to respondent or respondent's customers 200 containers of zucchini squash at $5.00, and 100 containers of yellow squash at $5.00, for a total price of $1,500.00. After arrival complainant agreed to the rejection of the yellow squash, and billed respondent $1,000.00 for the remaining 200 containers of zucchini squash. Seventy-eight containers of the yellow squash were actually taken back by complainant, and sent to another firm for sale. Respondent remitted to complainant on the basis of $2.25 for the 200 containers of zucchini squash, and $2.25 for the 22 containers of yellow squash, or a total of $499.50.

6. On or about June 2, 1984, under its invoice no. 3819, complainant sold and shipped to respondent, or respondent's customer, 90 containers of select cucumbers at $4.00, and 45 containers of pickling cucumbers at $15.00, for a total price of $1,035.00. After arrival of the produce complainant and respondent agreed to a change in the price of the pickling cucumbers to $6.00. Respondent has remitted to complainant on this basis.

7. On or about May 28, 1984, under its invoice no. 3813, complainant sold and shipped to respondent's customer 200 containers of extra fancy zucchini squash at $5.50, 50 containers of fancy zucchini squash at $3.50, 200 containers of extra fancy yellow squash at $5.50, and 50 containers of fancy yellow squash at $3.50, for a total of $2,550.00. Complainant's invoice erroneously totaled the amount due as $5,400.00. On arrival at the place of business of respondent's customer trouble in the squash was reported, and complainant agreed to 100 containers of extra fancy zucchini squash, and 85 containers of extra fancy yellow squash being rejected and sent to Al Nagleberg Co., Inc., in New York to be sold for complainant's account. On arrival at the place of business of Al Nagleberg Co., Inc., such firm refused the squash, and it was then turned over to Yeckes-Eichenbaum for sale for complainant's account. Complainant rebilled respondent for 100 containers of extra fancy zucchini squash at $5.50, 50 containers of fancy zucchini squash at $3.50, 125 containers of extra fancy yellow squash at $5.50, and 50 containers of fancy yellow squash at $3.50, or a total of $1,587.50. Respondent paid complainant $917.00.

8. On or about May 31, 1984, under its invoice no. 3825, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 40 containers of extra fancy zucchini squash at $5.00, and 40 containers of extra fancy yellow squash at $5.00, for a total of $400.00. Respondent has paid complainant $300.00 pursuant to complainant's agreement following arrival of the produce.

9. On or about June 13, 1984, under its invoice no. 3844, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 125 containers of select cucumbers at $8.10, for a total of $1,012.50. Respondent has paid complainant $343.75 pursuant to complainant's agreement with respondent following arrival of the produce.

10. On or about June 16, 1984, under its invoice no. 3854, complainant consigned to respondent, and shipped to various brokerage houses at respondent's direction, 100 containers of super select cucumbers, 200 containers of select cucumbers, 185 containers of super select cucumbers, 140 containers of select cucumbers, 22 containers of small cucumbers, 127 containers of select cucumbers, and 67 containers of large cucumbers. Complainant requested that the cucumbers be handled on a consignment basis because they would be the last harvested and were in poor condition. Federal inspections at the various destinations confirmed that the cucumbers were in poor condition on arrival. Respondent, without taking a commission, remitted all the net proceeds on these cucumbers in the total amount of $2,640.62 to complainant, and no balance is now due to complainant.

11. On or about June 16, 1984, under its invoice no. 4002, complainant consigned to respondent, and shipped to Finest Fruits, Inc., in Bronx, New York, for sale on consignment, 179 containers of super select cucumbers and 144 containers of select cucumbers. Complainant requested that these cucumbers be handled on a consignment basis because they would be the last harvested, and were in poor condition. At complainant's request, in order to reduce expenses, no inspections were taken on these cucumbers. Respondent, without taking a commission, remitted all the net proceeds on these cucumbers, in the total amount of $656.45, to complainant, and no balance is due to complainant.

12. On or about June 19, 1984, complainant shipped to respondent for sale on consignment by a brokerage house to be selected by respondent, 100 packages of super select cucumbers, 200 containers of select cucumbers, 19 containers of small fancy cucumbers, and 241 containers of large cucumbers. The cucumbers were delivered to, and sold by, Yeckes-Eichenbaum in New York for net proceeds of $1,318.05. Respondent remitted this entire amount to complainant.

13. On or about June 22, 1984, complainant consigned to respondent to be placed with brokerage houses selected by respondent, containers of 101 super select cucumbers, 75 containers of select cucumbers, 75 cartons of cucumbers, 101 cartons of super select cucumbers, 80 cartons of select cucumbers, 69 cartons of large cucumbers, and 106 cartons of cucumbers. Approximately one-half of the cucumbers were resold by Kaleck Brothers in Philadelphia for net proceeds of $378.09, and the remaining cucumbers were resold by M. Trombetta & Sons, Inc., in New York for net proceeds of $348.55. The entire net proceeds were remitted to complainant by respondent. Federal inspections taken shortly after arrival at the places of business of Kaleck and Trombetta showed that the cucumbers were in generally poor condition.

14. The informal complaint was filed on October 11, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In this proceeding complainant seeks to recover balances alleged to be due on the alleged purchase prices of 11 lots of cucumbers and/or squash sold to respondent. Complainant, in its informal complaint, claimed balances in connection with 19 lots, but for unspecified reasons dropped its claims as to eight invoices when it filed its formal complaint.

In its unverified informal complaint, which is attached as an exhibit to the report of investigation, and again in its brief (which is not in evidence), complainant alleges that respondent made no complaints concerning any of the produce until two or three weeks after shipment. However, this allegation is not repeated in complainant's sworn complaint, its only verified submission in this proceeding. Respondent's verified contentions to the contrary relative to specific lots of produce have therefore been accepted as true.

Complainant's evidence in support of its contention that balances are due on the 11 invoices which are the subject of the formal complaint consists only (except for the sworn allegation itself) of copies of invoices attached to the informal and formal complaints. Many of these invoices are heavily marked up and altered, and are obviously not the original. On the other hand respondent has submitted sworn statements in regard to each invoice in which it attempts to set forth its justification for paying less than the amounts billed. Respondent has also submitted reams of its own copies of the relevant (and some irrelevant) invoices, also heavily marked up and altered, and in each case there are two or more versions of each invoice.

Due to complainant's failure to counter in any way any of respondent's justifications and explanations, respondent's claims must in almost all instances be taken at face value and considered to be accurate. Our task would have been relatively easy were it not for the fact that many of respondent's explanations and justifications are quite sketchy, and in some cases difficult to comprehend.

In regard to the produce covered by Finding of Fact 3, shipped under invoice no. 4692, respondent has alleged that complainant's Mr. Trask granted a credit to cover the cost of freight paid by respondent on a prior shipment of produce. Complainant has not rebutted this contention by respondent with any credible evidence. We conclude that the $1,359.65 payment made by respondent relative to this invoice extinguishes respondent's debt to complainant thereon.

The May 18, 1984, shipment under invoice no. 4707, covered by Finding of Fact 4, was billed by complainant in the amount of $2,864.50, and paid for by respondent in the amount of $2,176.00. Complainant claims a shortage of $688.50. Respondent explained that when the shipment arrived it was noted that the boxes were not fully packed. Respondent states that Mr. Trask was notified of this problem, and agreed that the receiver "should work the squash out." Respondent states that no charge was to be made for the repacking cost, and all remaining squash would be paid for in full. Respondent further states that remittance was made in accord with this agreement. Complainant did not offer any rebuttal evidence to these contentions of respondent. We conclude on the basis of all of the evidence that respondent's payment was in accord with the agreement between the parties, and that complainant is not due any balance on this shipment.

In regard to the squash covered by Finding of Fact 5, and shipped under invoice no. 4723, respondent has contended that an inspection on arrival showed excessive decay, and that Mr. Trask agreed to a portion of the squash being sent to a firm in Boston to be sold for complainant's account. Respondent states that Mr. Trask also agreed to the adjusted price of $2.25 for the remaining squash. Complainant submitted no rebuttal evidence to these contentions by respondent, and we conclude that respondent does not owe complainant any further payment on this shipment.

The produce shipped on June 2, 1984, on the complainant's invoice no. 3819, is stated by respondent to have had a problem on arrival. Respondent states that Mr. Trask was notified, and that an inspection was taken. In regard to the 90 containers of select cucumbers covered by this invoice complainant changed its invoice to reflect the exact amount that respondent remitted. In regard to the remaining 45 containers of pickling cucumbers respondent states that Mr. Trask agreed by telephone to remittance on the basis of $6.00 per container for 41 containers, and complainant has not submitted rebuttal evidence to this allegation. We conclude on the basis of all of the evidence that there is nothing remaining due from respondent to complainant on this shipment.

As to the squash covered by complainant's invoice no. 3813 (Finding of Fact 7) complainant claims a balance due of $670.50 based apparently on the fact that complainant agreed to the placement of 100 containers of extra fancy zucchini squash, and 75 containers of extra fancy yellow squash, elsewhere. However, complainant's own notation on the invoice shows that 85 containers of extra fancy yellow squash were actually placed elsewhere, so that the amount should have been reduced by an additional $55.00 to $1,532.50. Respondent in its submission alleged that the squash showed problems on arrival, and that complainant was notified of this. Complainant then is alleged to have asked that the receiver "work out any portion that he could", and that the balance be sent to Al Nagleberg & Co., Inc., in New York to be sold for complainant's account. Respondent states that when the truck got to New York, Nagleberg "refused to unload all the squash due to its poor quality and condition". Respondent alleges that complainant then contacted respondent, and asked if respondent could arrange the sale of the squash. Respondent states that "the remaining squash was sent to Yeckes-Eichenbaum, and the returns forwarded to complainant". As stated earlier, due to complainant's lack of response to respondent's allegations we are bound to take all the above as true. However, from none of respondent's allegations can we infer that any of the squash other then the 100 extra fancy zucchini, and 85 extra fancy yellow, were dealt with other than by respondent, and respondent has given us no justification for its accounting to complainant on a consignment basis for the squash which it kept. In addition it is not clear from respondent's statements what portions of the squash were handled by any of the receivers. We conclude that respondent owes complainant the full contract price for the remainder of the squash, or $615.50. See Genbroker Corp. v. Super Food Services, 38 Agric. Dec. 83 (1979).

In regard to the produce covered by Findings of Fact 8 and 9, complainant has failed to submit any rebuttal evidence to respondent's contention that complainant agreed, following arrival, to the payments that respondent eventually made. We conclude that respondent does not owe complainant any balance relative to the produce covered by Findings of Fact 8 and 9.

In regard to the produce covered by Findings of Fact 10 and 11, the facts as set forth in the Findings of Fact were not rebutted in any way by complainant, and accordingly we have concluded that no balance is due to complainant in regard to this produce.

In regard to the produce covered by Findings of Fact 12 and 13, respondent alleges that in spite of Mr. Trask's prior assertion that he would harvest no more cucumbers following June 16, 1984, Mr. Trask called respondent on June 21, 1984, stating that he intended to strip a different field in order to keep his labor busy through that week and perhaps be able to cover his expense. Respondent states that complainant carried through with this intention in spite of respondent's urging that complainant not do so, and then prevailed upon respondent to place these last cucumbers for sale in various terminal markets. Respondent supplied arrival inspections, covering most of the cucumbers, showing that they arrived in poor condition, and also supplied detailed accountings rendered by the terminal market firms which handled the cucumbers. Respondent passed along the entire net proceeds of the cucumbers to complainant without deducting any commission. Complainant has not submitted any rebuttal evidence to any of the allegations of respondent, and we find on the basis of all of the evidence that respondent does not owe complainant any balance as to these cucumbers.

In summary we have found that there remains due and owing from respondent to complainant only the sum of $615.50 in connection with invoice no. 3813. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, the sum of $615.50, with interest thereon at the rate of thirteen percent per annum from July 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

STANDARD FRUIT & STEAMSHIP CO. v. R. THEODORE, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6908. Decided on July 18, 1986.

Unverified statements cannot be given evidentiary value—Acceptance occurs when product unloaded—Damages, burden of proof on respondent—Produce presumed to have some commercial value—Dump certificate needed to prove disposition.

Respondent received and unloaded three truckloads of bananas. Because transaction was free on board it had burden to show it suffered damages because goods did not meet contract specifications. It failed to do so since mere statements that goods were dumped are not sufficient to overcome presumption goods have some market value.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint filed in which complainant's seeks an award of reparation in the amount of $8,376.41 in connection with the sale and shipment of three truckloads of bananas in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant, and which in addition filed a counterclaim. Since the amounts claimed in the formal complaint and the counterclaim do not exceed $15,000.00 the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in this case, as is the Department's report of investigation. The parties were given the opportunity to file additional evidence in the form of verified statements. Complainant filed an opening statement which was verified. Respondent filed an answering statement which was not verified, and therefore cannot be given evidentiary value. Frank W. Prillwetz, Jr. v. Sheehan Produce, 19 Agric. Dec. 1213 (1960). Complainant filed a statement in reply which was verified. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Standard Fruit and Steamship Company, is a corporation with an address at P.O. Box 3080, Boca Raton, Florida 33431-0980. At the time of the transactions involved in this proceeding complainant was licensed under the Act.

2. Respondent, R. Theodore, Inc., is a corporation with an address at 52 Elm Street, Manchester, New Hampshire 03101. At the time of the transactions involved in this proceeding respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about February 8, 1984, complainant sold to respondent three truckloads of bananas, which bananas were shipped from port in New York, New York to respondent at its place of business in Manchester, New Hampshire. The three truckloads consisted of 2,696 cartons of bananas. They were sold for $7.50 a box plus a fuel charge of $1,024.48, and handling of $1,132.32, for a total contract price of $22,376.80, f.o.b. The three truckloads arrived in Manchester, New Hampshire on or about February 9, 1984, where they were received, unloaded and accepted by respondent.

4. On February 9, 1984, respondent notified complainant that the bananas showed pulp temperatures of mostly 54°F, with some as high as 57°F, and therefore that the bananas would not ripen properly because they had been chilled as a result of which, respondent believed that they were not in merchantable condition when received.

5. Respondent dumped all 2,096 cartons of bananas. However, respondent did not procure dump certificates with respect to its action. Its claim that the bananas were disposed of to a "pigman" were not fully substantiated. Complainant granted respondent an adjustment of the full contract price of $14,000.39, leaving unpaid $8,376.41.

6. A formal complaint was filed in this proceeding on April 8, 1985. An informal complaint was filed in this proceeding on November 6, 1984, which was within nine months of the time the causes of action involved herein arose.

DISCUSSION

This proceeding involves three truckloads of bananas shipped in interstate commerce on or about February 8, 1984 from port in New York to Manchester, New Hampshire. They were all part of the same contract, but each truckload constitutes a separate transaction under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act. However, for purposes of this Decision and Order it is not necessary to deal with each truckload separately since the facts are exactly the same. Complainant claims that respondent received, unloaded and accepted the three truckloads of bananas, but has failed to pay it $8,376.41 of a total contract price of $22,376.80, after complainant granted it an adjustment of $14,000.39 as a result of respondent's assertions that the bananas were chilled upon arrival. Respondent, on the other hand, claims that the bananas had to be dumped because they were totally unmerchantable upon arrival. It further claims that it is entitled to damages in the amount of $7,933.86 as a result of its efforts to save the bananas. Based upon our analysis of the evidence in this proceeding we must rule for complainant.

The difficulty with respondent's contentions is that respondent has not submitted sufficient evidence for us to conclude that the bananas were not merchantable when they were received. We find that respondent accepted the bananas in these free on board transactions when it unloaded them from the trucks. Theron Hooker Company v. Ben Gatz Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 1109, 1112 (1971); Pandol Brothers, Inc. v. Tropic Banana, 43 Agric. Dec. — (1984). Because it accepted them it has the burden of proof to show damages, which as mentioned above, it has failed to do. Rydell California Potato Co. v. The Kaufman-Brown Potato Company, 16 Agric. Dec. 1055 (1957); Lester Distributing Co. v. A. Levantino Produce Corporation, 43 Agric. Dec. — (1984). Essentially, respondent submitted statements that the bananas were received with pulp temperatures of 54°F, which is below that temperature at which bananas usually suffer chill damage. See Mic Bruce, Inc. v. Chiquita Brands, Inc., PACA Docket No. 2-6608 45 Agric. Dec. — (1986). However, it did not submit any extrinsic evidence other than its statement in support of this claim. Complainant apparently accepted respondent's claim that the bananas were chilled upon arrival, and assumed responsibility to at least a partial degree because it was willing to grant a large adjustment with respect to the three truckloads involved. However, complainant insisted that the bananas were not totally unmerchantable.

In support of its claim that the bananas had no value when received respondent submitted its own sales tickets with notations reflecting that a certain number of cartons of bananas had been dumped, or otherwise disposed of to what it called a "Pigman". We believe that a pigman in the jargon of the industry is someone who is feeding such fruits or vegetables to swine because they are not fit for human consumption. However, respondent had a greater burden to show that such was the case, and to show clearly that whatever bananas were furnished to the "Pigman" were the ones involved in the three transactions herein. It did not do so. It merely made an assertion that that is how it disposed of all of the bananas. Even had it proved that all 2,696 cartons of bananas were disposed of to the "Pigman", it would not have met its burden of proof that they were not fit for human consumption. The presumption is that fruits and vegetables when received have some commercial value. Respondent has the burden to show that the bananas had no commercial value. See Growers Produce v. Star Produce, 33 Agric. Dec. 693, 696 (1974); Homestead Pole Bean Co-op, Inc. v. Wayne F. Jones d/b/a Jones Produce Co., 43 Agric. Dec. — (1984). In order to show that they did not it was necessary either to have secured a federal inspection, which may not have been possible since there are no federal inspectors in the State of New Hampshire, or alternatively, a statement from a reliable third party that it had inspected the bananas and found them not to be merchantable in their entirety. See Mutual Vegetable Sales v. Selec Distributors, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 1359 (1979); Tyre Farm, Inc. v. Dandrea Produce, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. — (1986). Respondent failed to do so. Furthermore, as required by 7 CFR § 46.22, it was necessary to procure a dump certificate as to their ultimate disposition. See A.J. Elggren & Sons Co. v. J.A. Wood Co., 11 Agric. Dec. 1032 (1952); Nationwide Produce Distributors v. Lewis H. Astrin et al., 43 Agric. Dec. — (1984).

In view of the above we have no alternative other than to conclude that respondent has failed to carry its burden of proof that the bananas were totally without commercial value. Therefore, complainant must prevail, and respondent's counterclaim in this proceeding must be dismissed. Respondent's failure to pay complainant $8,376.41 with respect to the three transactions discussed above is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $8,376.41, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1984, until paid.

The counterclaim in this proceeding is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation from respondent in the amount of $5,239.30 in connection with one transaction, in interstate commerce, involving strawberries, a perishable agricultural commodity.

Both parties were served with a copy of the Department's report of investigation. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) has been filed. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence of the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to submit further evidence by way of verified statements. Complainant filed a verified opening statement, respondent filed a verified answering statement, and complainant filed a verified statement in reply. Also, each party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Well-Pict, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 973, Watsonville, California 95076.

2. Respondent, C.H. Robinson Company, is a corporation whose mailing address is 7525 Mitchell Road, Eden Prairie, Minnesota 55344. Respondent has a branch office in Miami, Florida, whose mailing address is P.O. Box 420833, Miami, Florida 33242. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On August 13, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant, by oral contract, sold to respondent 768 flats of strawberries, a perishable agricultural commodity, at an agreed price of $6.00 per flat ($4,608.00), plus 60 cents per flat cooling ($460.80), 8 units of tectrol at $18.50 per unit ($148.00), and $22.50 for a temperature recorder, for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $5,239.30. On August 14, 1984, complainant invoiced respondent in accordance with this agreement.

4. The strawberries which respondent purchased from complainant were shipped from complainant's location in California on August 13, 1984, to respondent in Miami, Florida. These strawberries were destined for respondent's customer, International AG, Inc., 1930 Northwest 23rd Street, Miami, Florida 33142. Also on board the truck were 96 flats of strawberries which the respondent had purchased from another shipper and which were destined for respondent's customer Associated Grocers of Florida, Inc., whose mailing address is P.O. Box 520695, Miami, Florida 33152.

5. The tape of the temperature recorder which was on board the truck, reflects that the air temperature on board the truck, except for some minor variations at the beginning and end of the trip, remained in the 35°F. range.

6. The subject strawberries were received at the location of International AG on August 18, 1984, and were the subject of a federal inspection. The inspector found that the temperature of the strawberries was 42° to 45°F. As to quality, the inspector noted grade defects averaging 4%. The inspector further noted the condition of the strawberries as follows: "Berries are mostly ripe and firm. Decay ranges from 8 to 17% average 12% Rhizopus Rot in various stages." The strawberries were again inspected on August 21, 1984. Their temperature was noted as being 40°, and their condition was reported as follows: "From 6 to 18% per sample average 11% serious damage by wet and leaking berries. Decay ranges 9 to 63% per sample average 32% Rhizopus Rot in advanced stages." The strawberries were again inspected on August 24, 1984. Their temperature was again recorded as being 40°, and their condition was reported as follows: "From 6 to 48% per sample average 25% serious damage by wet and leaking berries. Decay ranges 27 to 82% per sample average 56% Rhizopus Rot in advanced stages." The August 24, 1984, inspection certificate further notes that the applicant (International AG) stated that the lot was to be dumped. Subsequently 671 flats of strawberries from this particular lot were dumped.

7. On August 20, 1984, the respondent sent to complainant a "CONFIRMATION OF ADJUSTMENT" which contained the following note: "per our conversation on 8-18-1100 AM and on 8-20 1130 AM we mutually agreed to have Int. AG handle for your account 768 Berries due to USDA. We will advise when amount of claim is known. USDA. temp. 42° mostly ripe & firm Decay range 8-17% avg. 12% Rhizopus Rot in various stages."

8. On August 24, 1984, the respondent sent to complainant the following mailgram:

> ON MONDAY, 8-13-84, 768 STRAWBERRIES WERE SHIPPED TO INTERNATIONAL AG IN MIAMI. THE SHIPMENT ARRIVED 8-18-84. ON 8-18-84 AT 930 AM INTERNATIONAL AG INFORMED US STRAWBERRIES WERE MOLDY AND THEY WERE GETTING THEM INSPECTED. WE REPORTED THE PROBLEM TO YOU AT 11 AM EDT, 8-18-84. YOU WANTED THE RYAN TAPE WHICH WE SENT 8-20. WE INFORMED YOU INTERNATIONAL AG WOULD GET THE INSPECTION AND WE WOULD INFORM YOU OF THE RESULTS ON 8-20-84. ON 8-20-84 AT 1130 AM WE INFORMED YOU OF THE RESULTS OF THE INSPECTION. YOU ASKED IF INTERNATIONAL AG WOULD HANDLE FOR YOUR ACCOUNT. WE REPLIED YES AND THAT WE WOULD KEEP YOU INFORMED TO WHICH YOU AGREE. ON WEDNESDAY 8-22-84, AT 11 AM, WE INFORMED YOU OF THE RE-INSPECTION TO WHICH YOU WANTED TO KNOW WHY THEY WERE GETTING ONE. WE REPLIED THAT THEY WERE HAVING TROUBLE SELLING THE STRAWBERRIES DUE TO THE DETERIORATION OF THEM. ON FRIDAY, 8-24, AT 430 PM, WE INFORMED YOU THAT INTERNATIONAL AG WAS DUMPING 671 STRAWBERRIES. WE WILL SEND YOU THE FOLLOWING SUPPORTING DOCUMENTATION: THE ORIGINAL INSPECTION, THE RE-INSPECTION, AND THE DUMP CERTIFICATE. WE WILL BE SENDING YOU A BILL FOR 671 STRAWBERRIES AT $1.50 EACH FOR FREIGHT.

9. On August 27, 1984, the complainant sent respondent the following telegram: "THIS IS YOUR OFFICIAL NOTICE THAT WELL-PICT, INC., IS SEEKING PAYMENT IN FULL AS INVOICE. IT HAS COME TO OUR ATTENTION THAT THE ABOVE REFERENCED LOAD OF STRAWBERRIES WAS TOTALLY MISHANDLED. TO ENABLE WELL-PICT TO COMPLETE THIS MATTER, PLEASE FORWARD YOUR CHECK IN THE AMOUNT $5,239.30."

10. On August 27, 1984, respondent sent complainant the following message: "Your invoice indicates the merchandise was 'sold' to us, whereas in reality we acted as your broker in this transaction and have invoiced the merchandise as an accommodation for your account. Please reinvoice, showing us as agents on your invoice."

11. On August 30, 1984, the respondent sent the complainant the following telegram:

> IN RESPONSE TO YOUR MAILGRAM DATED 8/27/84 C.H. ROBINSON IS TAKING THE FOLLOWING POSITION.
> THE STRAWBERRIES WERE NOT IN SUITABLE SHIPPING CONDITION AS EVIDENCED BY THE EXCESSIVE DETERIORATION BETWEEN SATURDAY 8/18 THE DAY THEY ARRIVED AND WERE INSPECTED AND TUESDAY 8/21 WHEN THE RE-INSPECTION WAS TAKEN. BECAUSE OF THIS EXCESSIVE DETERIORATION INTERNATIONAL A.G. WAS UNABLE TO SELL THE STRAWBERRIES. DURING THIS TIME AS EVIDENCED BY THE USDA A TEMPERATURE WAS MAINTAINED AT 40 DEGREES. THUS THE STRAWBERRIES WERE KEPT AT A CONSTANT TEMPERATURE. IT IS OUR CONTENTION THAT THE STRAWBERRIES WERE NOT IN SUITABLE SHIPPING CONDITION AND THAT THERE IS A BREECH [SIC] OF WARRANTY ON THE ART [SIC] OF WELL-PICT INCORPORATED.

12. On August 30, 1984, the complainant sent the respondent the following letter:

> With reference to your purchase order No. 11244, this note is to acknowledge the receipt of your incorrect confirmation of sale received by this office on August 30, 1984, for the amount of 768 strawberries shipped from Watsonville on August 13, 1984.
> You were the buyer, as reflect by your purchase order #11244. We do not understand the Broker's standard Memorandum Of Sale postmarked August 27, 1984 and wish to advise you that your records should be corrected to reflect C.H. Robinson as the buyer as agreed on at the time of the sale.

13. On September 6, 1984, the respondent sent the complainant the following telegram:

IN REFERENCE TO YOUR LETTER DATED AUGUST 30TH 1984 WE TAKE THE FOLLOWING EXCEPTION:

1. THE CONTRACT WAS BREACHED AT THE TIME OF NOTIFICATION THAT THE STRAWBERRIES FAILED U.S.D.A. INSPECTION AS PER THE CONVERSATION DATED 8/20/84 AT 11AM WITH MR. MURPHY.

2. THE PURCHASE ORDER WAS CANCELLED AT THE SAME TIME AS ACKNOWLEDGED BY MR. MURPHY. MR. MURPHY ASKED US IF INTERNATIONAL A.G. WOULD HANDLE THE STRAWBERRIES FOR WELL-PICT'S ACCOUNT TO WHICH WE REPLIED YES THEY WOULD.

3. PLEASE CHANGE YOUR RECORDS TO SHOW THAT OUR PURCHASE ORDER HAS BEEN CANCELLED AND THAT C.H. ROBINSON IS NOT ACTING AS AGENT AS INDICATED BY OUR MEMORANDUM OF SALE.

14. On September 7, 1984, the following mailgram was sent to complainant by respondent: "THIS MAILGRAM IS TO CORRECT THE MAILGRAM SENT ON 9-6-84 IT SHOULD BE CORRECTED TO READ AS FOLLOWS: PLEASE CHANGE YOUR RECORDS TO SHOW THAT OUR PURCHASE ORDER HAS BEEN CANCELLED AND THAT C.H. ROBINSON IS NOW ACTING AS AGENT AS INDICATED BY YOUR MEMORANDUM OF SALE."

15. The strawberries which respondent had purchased from another shipper which were also on board the truck carrying the subject shipment, and which were delivered to Associated Grocers of Florida, Inc., arrived in good condition. According to a sworn statement received from the buyer: "There was no undue decay and the strawberries met good delivery standards and did not deteriorate rapidly after arrival, and were paid for in full by me." The buyer further noted that he had occasion to look at the truck and did not observe any problems with the carrier or its refrigeration equipment. He further stated that "a review of [his] records indicated T&T Trucking, Inc., had protected the strawberries adequately during shipment. The strawberries arrived showing good pulp temperatures."

16. No account of sales with respect to this shipment was ever sent to complainant by either respondent or International AG.

17. The formal complaint was filed on March 18, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The initial dispute between the parties concern whether or not the lot of strawberries was rejected by respondent. Respondent has the burden of proof on such matters. It contends that complainant agreed after the rejection to allow International AG to handle the strawberries for complainant's account. Gerrard Co. v. Eveloff, 12 Agric. Dec. 1048 (1953). The only substantive evidence regarding this matter are the sworn statements of each party's representative. The statements are in direct conflict with one another. Also, the evidence submitted by respondent does not indicate that either it or International AG sent complainant an account of sales for this shipment. In view of this, we cannot hold that the respondent has satisfied its burden of proof on this matter. Estrella Frt. Shipping Corp. v. Springer, 12 Agric. Dec. 1077 (1953). We therefore conclude that the respondent accepted the lot of strawberries.

Since respondent accepted the lot of strawberries, it is responsible for the contract price less any damages caused by a breach of contract committed by the complainant. Jason v. Tavilla, 30 Agric. Dec. 1360 (1971). The evidence indicates that the subject strawberries were placed on board the truck in unsuitable shipping conditions. This evidence consists of the evidence of the arrival condition of the strawberries based on the three federal inspections taken by the respondent's customer during the six days between the arrival of the strawberries and the dumping of 671 flats of them. Even more supportive of the fact that the subject strawberries were in unsuitable shipping condition is the fact that there was a second lot of strawberries on board the same truck as the lot in question which second lot of strawberries arrived in excellent condition. Had the in transit temperatures caused the deterioration of the subject load of strawberries, it should also have caused this second lot of strawberries to deteriorate but this load arrived in excellent condition. Since the Ryan recording thermometer tape indicates that the temperature on board the truck was in the 35°F. range throughout the transportation of the strawberries, and because the other lot of strawberries arrived in excellent condition at its destination, we hold that the strawberries shipped by complainant were shipped in unsuitable shipping condition, and that complainant, therefore, breached its contractual obligation to respondent. Respondent also must prove it was damaged by this breach. Respondent has shown that 671 out of the 768 flats shipped by the complainant were dumped. It has, however, failed to submit any substantive evidence as to the disposition of the remaining 97 flats of strawberries. Attached to its answering statement was a document allegedly detailing the disposition of the 97 lugs. However this document does not satisfy the Department's requirements as to the contents of an account of sales (see 7 CFR § 46.29), and, in any event, is untimely since accounts of sales must be sent to a shipper within ten days after the last sales date (see 7 CFR § 46.2(2)). Respondent has, therefore, failed to prove the disposition of the remaining 97 lugs of strawberries. In view of this, we hold that it remains responsible for the contract price for these 97 flats of strawberries, or $681.20. Respondent's failure to pay complainant the $681.20 is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

In its answer, respondent "states" that it is owed $626.75 by complainant for freight charges related to this shipment. Such a statement does not constitute a properly pleaded counterclaim. In any event, respondent has offered no proof supporting such a claim. Therefore, had we considered the statement as a counterclaim, it would have been denied.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $681.20 plus interest at the rate of 13 percent per annum from September 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U S.C 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $21,526.50 in connection with a shipment of grapes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon each of the parties. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000.00, the parties have waived oral hearing. Therefore, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed a verified opening statement. It also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Granada Marketing, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 3006, Visalia, California 93278.

2. Respondent, National Fresh Fruit & Vegetable Co., Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 70132, 3000 Hicks Street, Houston, Texas 77007. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about June 26, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant, by oral contract, sold to respondent 1,600 lugs of Thompson brand seedless grapes, a perishable agricultural commodity, at an agreed price of $14.00 per lug plus 75 cents per lug for pre-cooling, and $22.50 for a recording thermometer, for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $23,622.50. The grapes were shipped to respondent on that date on board a truck bearing Texas license plate 43R386. The recording thermometer placed on the truck was Ryan Instrument No. 389490 with chart No. 84166.

4. The grapes arrived at respondent's location on June 28, 1984. At 8 a.m. of that date, they were the subject of a federal inspection, after which certificate No. G 118757 was issued. On that certificate, the inspector noted that the temperature control unit on the truck was not operating, and that the rear doors were open. It also was noted that the truck was "well filled." The temperature of the grapes was reported as follows: "Near rear doorway: Top 38°F., Bottom 40°F. Center of pallet 45°F. Various locations remainder of load. Top layer 40 to 40°F. Bottom 42 to 45°F. Center of pallets 50 to 65°F." The condition of the grapes was noted as follows: "Mostly firm and firmly attached to capstems. Stems fresh and green. From 2 to 7% average 5% shattered berries. From less than ½ of 1% to 27% average 8% serious damage by split and/or wet and sticky berries. From less than ½ of 1% to 23% average 6% decay. Gray Mold Rot in various stages mostly advanced."

5. Ryan Recording thermometer chart No. 84166 reflects that the temperature of the grapes when first loaded on board the truck was approximately 80°, that the temperature was rapidly lowered to about 35°, and remained there throughout the trip. During the last few hours the Ryan instrument operated, presumably when the doors of the truck were opened upon arrival, the chart reflects a sharp increase from 35° to 60° for a short period of time, a drop to under 40°, and then a sharp rise again until the recording of the temperature ceased.

6. Upon testing the recording thermometer, Ryan Instrument, Inc., P.O. Box 599, Kirkland, Washington 98033, reported that the "instrument was tested and found to be accurate both in time and temperature within our 2% published tolerance." The company also indicated that it believed that the unit accurately recorded temperatures throughout the trip.

7. On July 2, 1984, the broker which handled this transaction, Cal-West Enterprises, P.O. Box 1276, Salinas, California 93902, sent each of the parties a memorandum in which it stated the following:

> Cal West Produce Enterprises is writing both the receiver and the shipper to notify them of Cal West's understanding of the aforementioned mentioned subject.

> On June 26, 1984, at 11:15 a.m., the order was shipped. It consisted of 1,600 22# lugs of Thompson seedless grapes under the label of 'Country Boy.' The order was shipped via a Brenham Express Truck, license 43R358 Texas, with Ryan Recorder #389349 aboard.
>
> Upon arrival at National Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Co., Inc., Houston Texas, at 5:00 a.m., June 28, 1984, a problem was found in the product. A federal inspection was requested by the receiver. The receiver notified Cal West of the problem and federal inspection at 7:30 a.m., PST, June 28 2984 [sic], at which time shipper (Granada Marketing) was notified by Cal West.

* * * * * * *

At the time inspection was relayed from receiver to shipper, receiver stated that he was electing to reject grapes for failing to make good arrival.

It should be noted that the Ryan recording device and tape was removed from the truck June 28, 1984 by the Brenham Express driver. The Ryan recorder and tape were not returned to National until the morning of June 29, 1984.

Granada Marketing elected to refuse National's rejection. Granada Marketing is taking the position that the high pulp temperatures were caused by truck, causing the problems reflected upon inspection.

On June 29, 1984, National Fresh & Vegetable, to minimize losses placed the product at Sunsprouts of Texas to handle for the 'account of whom it may concern.'

8. On June 29, 1984, respondent sent complainant the following letter:

Because of a dispute regarding my P.O. ÷10272 for 1,600 lugs of Thompson Seedless grapes from C.I.D. Granada Marketing I find it necessary to withhold payment until a settlement can be reached.

As you know the product showed some very high pulp temperature [sic] and failed to pass a U.S.D.A. inspection upon arrival. The trucking company claims no responsibility because the recording thermometer tape showed temperature in the trailer was from 35°F to 36°F for the entire trip and timely arrival was made. Your contention is that the trucker caused the load to become hot.

In order to minimize the loss of the product I am compelled to handle the product for your account.

Because the evidence on the thermometer tape shows the trailer to be cold for the entire trip I feel that Granada Marketing is accountable for any loss sustained. When all moneys [sic] are collected, and loss is determined, I will let you know what can be remmited [sic] to you. Enclosed find copy of Ryan Tape #84166 from Ryan #389490. I will also send you a copy of the U.S.D.A. inspection as soon as I receive it.

9. By telegram dated July 9, 1984, the complainant send to respondent the following message:

RE: YOUR LETTER DATED 6-29 RECEIVED 7-5 RE: NATIONAL FRESH FRUIT & VEGETABLE P.O. #10272 GRANADA MARKETING INVOICE NO. 10569 1600 LUGS 22 POUND THOMPSON SEEDLESS GRAPES SHIPPED 6-26 ARRIVED 6-28 WE CANNOT ACCEPT YOU HANDLING THE PRODUCT FOR OUR ACCOUNT WE FEEL TEMPERATURES DURING TRANSIT CAUSED THE DETERIORATION EXPECTING FULL PAYMENT FOR THIS FILE WHICH WAS SOLD TO YOU ON AN FOB BASIS NATIONAL FRESH FRUIT AND VEGETABLE SHOULD CLAIM AGAINST ITS TRUCKER.

10. By letter dated August 1, 1984, the respondent remitted $2,096.50 to the complainant as payment for the subject shipment of grapes. Along with the remittance was an accounting for the grapes as follows:

	Number Lugs	Sales Price Per Lug	Total
	75	$8.00	$600.00
	160	5.50	880.00
	340	4.00	1,360.00
	560	3.00	1,680.00
	305	2.00	160.00
	160	1.00	160.00
Total	1,600		5,290.00
Less 15 percent handling			793.50
			4,496.50
Less Freight			2,400.00
			2,096.50

Complainant refused to accept respondent's check in this amount in settlement for its total invoice. Subsequent to respondent's releasing it as an undisputed amount, however, the complainant negotiated payment of the check.

11. A formal complaint was filed on February 12, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The dispute between the parties concerns the cause of the poor condition of the grapes upon arrival at the respondent's location. The respondent claims that the grapes were in unsuitable shipping condition. The complainant, on the other hand, alleges that the damage to the grapes was caused by high in transit temperatures. All of the evidence in the file seems to support the respondent's position. That evidence consists of the inspection certificate showing the deteriorated condition of the grapes upon arrival, the fact that there was no in transit delays, the apparent high temperatures of the grapes recorded when they were first loaded on board the truck, and the fact that the temperature on the truck was properly maintained. Complainant has, however, pointed out one inconsistency in the evidence, i.e. the trucker apparently took the Ryan device and chart with him for approximately one day after the time when the grapes were delivered to respondent. We do not pretend to know or understand why the trucker did that, nor has either party provided us with information so that we might even hypothesize as to his motives in doing so. Complainant does imply that the trucker might have falsified the temperature chart. However, we are satisfied that the chart which is in evidence is the chart which began and ended the trip with the subject shipment of grapes. We are also satisfied that the trucker could not have in any way, shape, or form, falsified this document. We, therefore, accept it as evidence of the temperature on board the truck during the time when the grapes were in transit. The recording thermometer indicates that the temperature on board the truck was within the range called for by the complainant. The 35° temperature on board the truck should not have caused the grapes to deteriorate over the two days the grapes were in transit. From the high temperatures that were recorded when the grapes were first loaded on board the truck, and from the temperatures reported on the federal inspection taken upon the trucks arrival in Houston, Texas (in particular the extremely high temperature of the grapes in the center of the pallets), we conclude that the grapes were either improperly pre-cooled or were improperly loaded on board the truck, and that this improper pre-cooling or improper loading caused the high temperatures to occur. In view of that, it is clear that the complainant breached its contract with respondent. Respondent was well within its rights, therefore, to reject the load of grapes.

Of course, although respondent rejected the load, since it maintained possession of them, it has an obligation to properly handle them for complainant's account. It treated the grapes as a consignment transaction and remitted to the complainant the amount due it for the grapes, or $2,096.00. Since this amount has been received by the complainant, the complaint should be dismissed.

ORDER

This complaint is dismissed.

Copies of the order should be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $5,556.00 in connection with two trucklots of potatoes sold and shipped to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement, respondent submitted an answering statement, and complainant submitted a statement in reply. Respondent also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Walters Produce Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 36, Newdale, Idaho.

2. Respondent, Emanuella L. Peraino d/b/a The Tomato Outlet, is an individual whose address is 1800 9th Street, Kenner, Louisiana. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately October 15, 1984, and November 19, 1984, complainant sold to respondent two trucklots of potatoes, delivered. The October 15 load was to consist of 238 cartons at $12.00 per carton, or $2,856.00, and the November 19 load was to consist of 200 cartons at $13.50 per carton, or $2,700.00, for a total of $5,556.00. The contract negotiations were made through a broker, Progressive Brokerage Co., Inc., Metarie, Louisiana. During the contract negotiations, the broker was represented by Jim Kinberger, complainant by W. Jeffrey Walters, and respondent by Robert Gomez.

4. Mr. Kinberger prepared a confirmation of sale reflecting the agreed upon contract terms and mailed a copy to each party. Respondent never made any objection upon receipt of the confirmation of sale.

5. On approximately October 15, 1984, and November 19, 1984, the two trucklots of potatoes were inspected at the point of origin, Newdale, Idaho, and shipped in interstate commerce to respondent's place of business. When the October 15 load arrived, the bill of lading was signed by a D. Dean, apparently on behalf of respondent. Mr. Dean signed under the heading "CONSIGNEE'S RECEIPT: Received above perishable property in good order, except as noted:" Upon arrival of the November 19 load, the bill of lading was signed and dated by a Jesse J. Hawkins on November 23, 1984, in the "CONSIGNEE'S RECEIPT" section. Neither Mr. Dean or Mr. Hawkins indicated any objection to the load on the bill of lading.

6. Complainant sent invoices to respondent for each load reflecting the agreed upon contract prices. Respondent received both invoices and made no objection to them.

7. On February 12, 1985, respondent sent complainant the following letter, under the letterhead "The Tomato Outlet, Inc., 1800 9th Street, Kenner, Louisiana 70062:"

> Regrettably, I have to advise you that because of extreme financial difficulties, the company is no longer in operation. There is no prospect that the company will reopen.
>
> We are attempting to determine the full amount of indebtedness including trade and bank debts. As soon as we have a complete financial picture we will be contacting you in order to attempt to arrange a mutually acceptable schedule of payment without having to file proceedings under the bankruptcy laws.
>
> We apologize for any difficulties our problems have caused.

8. Respondent has not paid complainant any part of the contract price.

9. A formal complaint was filed on March 1, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In her answer and answering statement, respondent denies purchasing or receiving the potatoes. Respondent also denies doing business as the Tomato Outlet during October and November 1984, the period of the alleged sales. In her brief, respondent admits that Robert Gomez was employed by the Tomato Outlet, but claims he had no authority to act on behalf of respondent. Respondent contends that under Louisiana Law, the principal/agent relationship must be clearly established, and claims that it has not been so established in this case.

The first issue is whether respondent was doing business as the Tomato Outlet during October and November 1984. The Department's report of investigation states that on August 15, 1984, respondent was issued a license as Emanuella L. Peraino d/b/a The Tomato Outlet. Further, respondent's February 12, 1985, letter to complainant relating her financial problems, bears the letterhead "The Tomato Outlet, Inc." with respondent's address as noted on her license (Finding of Fact 7). It is, therefore, clear that respondent was doing business as The Tomato Outlet from at least August 15, 1984, through February 12, 1985.

Whether or not Mr. Gomez was specifically given authority to purchase the two loads of potatoes for respondent, it is clear that respondent ratified the purchases by not repudiating them. Fruit Basket Packing Company v. Joe Phillips, Inc. and/or Walter B. Adam, 31 Agric. Dec. 1200 (1972). The broker's representative, Jim Kinberger, has submitted a sworn statement in which he states that on about October 15, 1984, and November 19, 1984, he spoke to Mr. Gomez, who indicated he was manager of The Tomato Outlet. Mr. Kinberger states that Mr. Gomez ordered the two loads of potatoes at issue. Mr. Kinberger then prepared a confirmation of sale setting forth the agreed upon contract terms and sent a copy of the confirmation to both complainant and respondent. Respondent does not deny receiving the confirmation, and does not claim to have made any objection upon receipt thereof. Respondent also admits, in her answering statement, that she received complainant's invoice containing the alleged contract terms, but does not claim to have made any objection to the invoice. Further, respondent admits that she sent complainant a letter dated February.12, 1985, which describes her financial problems and indicates that she will soon "be contacting you in order to attempt to arrange a mutually acceptable schedule of payment." (Finding of Fact 7). Respondent claims that this letter was not an acknowledgement of any contractual arrangement but was merely a form letter sent to all those from whom respondent had received invoices. However, we do not find this explanation credible, as we believe it highly unlikely that respondent would offer to arrange a mutually acceptable schedule of payment with someone whom it did not consider a creditor. It is our view that respondent's failure to object to the broker's confirmation of sale and complainant's invoice, and the February 12, 1985, letter which she sent to complainant, all lead to the ineluctable conclusion that respondent ratified the contract negotiated by Mr. Gomez.

Respondent's only other defense to liability is her claim that she never received the potatoes. However, the record contains bills of lading which show that persons purporting to act for respondent, Mr. Dean and Mr. Hawkins, signed these documents when the potatoes were delivered to respondent's place of business. Respondent has not denied that Mr. Dean or Mr. Hawkins were in her employ when they signed for the potatoes. The only reasonable assumption arising from their presence at respondent's warehouse and their acts of signing the bills of lading is that they were employed by respondent and authorized at the time to receive produce.

As respondent never gave any notice of rejection, we assume that the potatoes were received and accepted by her. Respondent is thus liable for the contract price of the potatoes, less damages resulting from any breach of warranty, which respondent has not claimed. Farm Market Service Inc. v. Albertson's Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 429 (1983). Respondent's failure to pay the contract price of $5,556.00 to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $5,556.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from December 1, 1984, until paid.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $7,279.20 in connection with two truckloads of cantaloupes and lettuce sold and shipped to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement, respondent submitted an answering statement, and complainant submitted a statement in reply. Complainant also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Martori Bros. Distributors, is a partnership whose address is 6560 North Scottsdale Road, Suite G-208, Scottsdale, Arizona.

2. Respondent, Anthony Gagliano & Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 301-315 North Broadway, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

At the time of the transactions involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately October 31, 1984, complainant sold to respondent two truckloads of cantaloupes and lettuce, f.o.b. One truckload (truckload A) contained 450 cartons of lettuce at an agreed upon price of $6.00 per carton, or $2,700.00, plus $315.00 for cooling, and 546 cartons of cantaloupes at $8.00 per carton or $4,368.00, plus $382.20 for cooling, for a total, including $22.50 for a Ryan recorder, of $7,787.70. The other truckload (truckload B) contained 420 cartons of lettuce at $6.00 per carton or $2,520.00, plus $294.00 for cooling, and 546 cartons of cantaloupes at $8.00 per carton or $4,368.00, plus $436.80 for cooling, for a total, including $22.50 for a Ryan recorder, of $7,641.30. Contract negotiations took place between complainant's employee, Joseph Colace, and respondent's president, Anthony Gagliano. Complainant prepared invoices reflecting the agreed upon contract terms and sent them to respondent, who received them without objection.

4. The two truckloads were sent in interstate commerce to respondent, who accepted them upon arrival. Respondent never secured federal inspections on either truckload.

5. Respondent has paid complainant $2,860.50 for truckload A and $5,289.30 for truckload B, which complainant has accepted as partial payment for the two truckloads.

6. A formal complaint was filed on April 26, 1985, which was within nine months when the cause of action involved herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent does not deny purchasing, receiving or accepting the two truckloads of lettuce and cantaloupes sold by complainant, and, therefore, is liable for the agreed upon contract price, less damages resulting from any breach of warranty. Respondent bears the burden of proving the breach and resulting damages by a preponderance of the evidence. Farm Market Service Inc. v. Albertson's Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 429 (1983).

Respondent disputes the contract price as alleged by complainant, claiming that it bought the produce on a price after sale basis, with no agreement at the time of contracting as to any specific prices. Complainant's claim that f.o.b. prices were agreed to when the sales were made is bolstered by the fact that its invoices, which contain such prices, were sent to respondent and received without objection. Respondent's president, Anthony Gagliano, admits in respondent's answering statement that the employee of complainant with whom he dealt, Joseph Colace, did mention specific f.o.b.

prices and put them in complainant's invoices. However Mr. Gagliano claims that Mr. Colace "prefaced his remarks with the words that I am putting these prices on your ticket—work with them and if they don't work do what you have to baby—just move the merchandise.'" Respondent argues that this language constituted price after sale terms. Although the term "price after sale" is not included in the regulations, we have held that "open billing basis, to be priced after sale" is essentially the same as price arrival, which is defined in the Department's regulations as that "the price is to be subject to agreement between the customer and the consignor upon the arrival of the produce at the customer's destination, with sufficient time being permitted for inspection." 7 CFR 46.43(cc); Northwest Fruit Sales, Inc. v. The Noringsberg Corporation, 39 Agric. Dec. 1556 (1980). Under the definition of price arrival, the price is to be assigned after delivery, whereas, according to respondent, Mr. Colace indicated only that respondent should "work with" the f.o.b. prices set at the time of contracting. It is obvious that Mr. Colace did not agree that no specific prices would be in effect until after delivery. At most, Mr. Colace gave respondent only a vague assurance that complainant might adjust the contract prices if respondent had problems reselling the produce. We, therefore, agree with complainant that there were specific f.o.b. prices assigned to the commodities at issue as of the date of sale.

Respondent also claims that complainant committed a breach of warranty, as the cantaloupes and lettuce were not in good condition upon delivery. Respondent's claim is based solely on the representations made by Mr. Gagliano, as respondent has not submitted any federal inspections showing damage upon arrival. Mr. Gagliano alleges that Mr. Colace stated that inspections were not necessary. However, this is disputed by Mr. Colace in complainant's statement in reply. Respondent has presented no evidence such as memoranda or letters memorializing the alleged agreement with Mr. Colace that inspections would not be necessary for respondent to establish damages. Based on the evidence submitted, we must conclude that respondent has failed to sustain its burden of proving that any breach of warranty was committed by complainant.

Respondent is thus liable for the contract price of $15,429.00 less the $8,149.00 already paid, for a balance due of $7,279.20. Respondent's failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $7,279.20, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from December 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter "PACA." A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $4,052.40, in connection with the sale to respondent of a truckload of fresh vegetables consisting of 570 boxes of cucumbers and 420 boxes of eggplants. Respondent had previously issued a check for $2,513.60 to complainant in payment for these commodities. However, complainant did not accept its check.

A copy of the Department's report of investigation was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon the respondent and respondent filed an answer denying liability to complainant. The amount claimed as damages in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence, as is the Department's report of investigation. The parties were given an opportunity to file additional evidence in the form of sworn statements. Neither party filed additional evidence and neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Growers Marketing Service, Inc., is a licensed corporation under the PACA whose business mailing address is P.O. Box 2595, Lakeland, Florida 33806.

2. Respondent, Central Growers Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose business mailing address is P.O. Box VV, Plant City, Florida 33566. At the time of the transactions involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about October 26, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant contracted to sell and respondent contracted to buy one truckload of fresh "Holloway" cucumbers and "U.S. Fancy" eggplants, being perishable agricultural commodities at an agreed "delivered" sale price of $4.60 per box for the cucumbers and $3.50 per box for the eggplants. On the instructions of complainant, 570 boxes of cucumbers and 425 boxes of eggplants were then shipped from Andersonville and Moultrie, Georgia, to respondent's facility at Plant City, Florida, on October 26, 1984.

4. The truckload arrived at respondent's facility on Saturday, October 27, 1984. Complainant's agent was present at respondent's facility at the commencement of unloading and removed five boxes of eggplant to show as a sample to another prospective customer.

5. Respondent's agent signed receipts for the produce.

6. On Tuesday, October 30, 1984, respondent complained about the condition of the produce received and, on Wednesday, October 31, 1984, the produce was federally inspected.

7. On October 31, 1984, complainant billed respondent for the produce at a cost of $4,092.00 less $39.60 for unloading, for a total amount due of $4,052.40.

8. On December 15, 1984, respondent mailed an accounting to complainant on which it deducted $1,660.90 from the agreed selling price for "reworking" the produce. Respondent enclosed a $2,513.60 check made payable to complainant. Upon receipt of this accounting, complainant advised respondent that it expected to be paid the full amount billed and requested an additional check for $1,538.60 in payment of the balance. Complainant has not cashed the $2,513.60 check pending the resolution of this matter.

9. The formal complaint was filed on March 8, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant seeks to recover the full amount of the purchase price of 990 cartons of mixed fresh vegetables which were sold on a "delivered sale" basis to respondent. It is undisputed that the truckload in question arrived at respondent's place of business on Saturday morning, October 27, 1984, and that complainant's agent was present during part of the unloading. The parties differ concerning whether any complaints were made by respondent's agent at that time. However, there can be no doubt that respondent accepted the produce shipped since it is well-settled that a rejection must be in clear and unmistakable terms and a mere complaint will not suffice as a notice of rejection. Davison Grape Co. v. Mercurio, 18 Agric. Dec. 1434 (1959); Hunt v. Humboldt Foods, Inc., 20 Agric. Dec. 236 (1961).

Having accepted the produce, it becomes respondent's burden to prove a breach of contract and damages resulting from that breach. D.L. Piazza Co. v. Stacy Distributing Co., 18 Agric. Dec. 307 (1959). The federal inspection which was conducted at respondent's request is insufficient to carry this burden since it was conducted four days after the arrival of the produce. Respondent claims that the delay was initially due to its belief that Mr. James Ogelsby, complainant's agent, would be returning to respondent's facility or telephoning respondent later on Saturday, October 27, 1984, or Monday, October 29, 1984. When no communication was received by Monday, respondent contends that the distraction of other business and respondent's inability to learn which firm Ogelsby worked for accounted for further delay. The record reflects, however, that the receipt for the eggplant which respondent received upon its arrival identifies complainant as a party to the transaction. Moreover, if respondent believed there was a breach of contract, it was respondent's responsibility to arrange for an inspection as soon as practicable. Under the circumstances of this case, there is no assurance that the produce was maintained under the proper conditions for the entire pre-inspection period while it was in respondent's custody. Complainant is entitled to the full purchase price of $4,052.40 as originally agreed to by the parties. Respondent's failure to pay this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $4,052.40 with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum, from December 1, 1984, until paid.

A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $32,640.00 in connection with two shipments of tomatoes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon the respondent which filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000.00, the parties have waived oral hearing and therefore the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Earl J. Roy, is an individual doing business as Avoyelles Sweet Potato Auction and also trading as Earl J. Roy Produce whose mailing address is P.O. Box 134, Hessmer, Louisiana 71341.

2. Respondent, Mott and Simmons Brokerage & Sales Corp., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 1105, LaBelle, Florida 33935. At all material times respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 26, 1985, complainant sold to respondent two truckloads of U.S. Combination grade, 25 pound lugs of tomatoes, consisting of 320 lugs 5x6 tomatoes at $13.00 per lug ($4,160.00); 1280 lugs 6x6 tomatoes at $11.00 per lug ($14,080.00), and 1600 6x7 tomatoes at $9.00 per lug ($14,400.00) for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $32,640.00. Each truckload was subjected to a shipping point inspection and each was graded as U S. Combination grade. The tomatoes were shipped on January 26, 1985, to respondent's customers Tomatoes Inc., Bronx, New York, and Larry Trover Produce, Tunnel Hill, Illinois.

4. The tomatoes were received and accepted. However, respondent has not paid complainant for them. One of respondent's customers, Tomatoes Inc., did, on or about May 13, 1985, attempt to pay complainant $4,000.00 with respect to one of these loads. By letter dated May 17, 1985, the complainant returned this check to Tomatoes, Inc., with the following cover letter: "Enclosed please find the above-mentioned check, which I am returning to you. I have no record of ever having any business transaction with your company, or shipping any commodities to you. I feel the check was sent to me in error."

5. The complaint was filed on August 7, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The dispositive issue in this case is whether or not the complainant sold the two subject loads of tomatoes to respondent, or whether the respondent merely acted as a broker as to them. The complainant has submitted documentation which supports its position that, on January 26, 1985, it sold the two subject loads to the respondent. These documents consist of inspection certificates of that date, shipping documents of that date, and invoices of that date. Complainant's sworn statements are entirely consistent with these documents. In support of its claim that it acted as a broker, and that these two loads of tomatoes were shipped on consignment, the respondent offers its billings to its customers, Larry Trover Produce and Tomatoes, Inc., for brokerage for these two transactions, which are dated February 1, 1985, and copies of its Broker's Memorandum of Purchase and Sale indicating that these transactions were consignment transactions between its customers Trover Produce and Tomatoes, Inc., and the complainant, which are dated January 22, 1985. These documents are not consistent with respondent's sworn answer in which it is attested that, although it viewed the tomatoes on January 22, 1985, at complainant's location in Immokalee, Florida, that nevertheless the negotiations with its customers were not completed until January 25, 1985, and that the tomatoes were not shipped until January 26, 1985. We do not understand nor is it explained by the respondent as to why, if these transactions did not take place until January 25, 1985, at the earliest, its broker's memorandum of sale were dated January 22 and why it listed the alleged date for these transactions on its bills to its customers as being January 22, 1985.

As the moving party, the complainant has the burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, the terms of the contract, respondent's breach of such contract, and the resulting damages, if any, sustained by it. New York v. Sandler 32 Agric. Dec. 702 (1973). We find that the complainant has satisfied this burden. The sworn statements submitted by the complainant, and the documents offered by it, are clearly consistent with one another and clearly satisfy its burden of proof. The respondent, on the other hand, has offered evidence in the form of a sworn answer which is not consistent with the documents it has attached thereto. Although given the opportunity to counter the complainant's evidentiary submissions, it failed to do so. In view of the above, we hold that the respondent purchased the two loads of tomatoes from the complainant, that it was obligated to pay the complainant the sales prices thereof, or $32,640.00, and its failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, the respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $32,640.00 with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

CAL/MEX DISTRIBUTORS INC. v. FAVCO, INC. a/t/a MINNESOTA PRODUCE. PACA Docket No. 2-6937. Decided on August 11, 1986.

Misrepresentation, voids settlement agreement—Good delivery, cucumbers—Temperature recorder, absence of—Transportation services and conditions—Accounting, inadaquate—Damages, assessed on basis of percentage of decay.

Following arrival and two inspections of portions of a load of cucumbers respondent unintentionally misrepresented the extent of the second inspection to complainant. This was found to void a settlement agreement reached between the parties. It was determined that even though the inspection was restricted and made two days following arrival, condition defects were so extensive as to show failure to make good delivery and the suitable shipping warranty applicable to f.o.b. sales. The inability of respondent to supply the temperature recorder and tape was deemed insignificant because temperatures at which cucumbers were stored prior to shipment, temperatures specified by complainant on bill of lading, and temperatures shown by Federal inspection of small portion of cucumbers shortly after arrival, were all lower than proper for cucumbers, and may have contributed to poor condition of product. Quantity figures on respondent's accounting were inconsistent with figures previously disclosed by respondent, and the accounting was consequently not used in assessing damages. Damages were computed on basis of percentage of decay disclosed by Federal inspection.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $2,642.35 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of cucumbers. A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements.

Complainant filed an opening statement. Respondent did not file an answering statement. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Cal-Mex Distributors, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 1717, Chula Vista, California.

2. Respondent, Favco, Inc., is a corporation, also trading as Minnesota Produce, whose address is 2801 Wayzata Boulevard, Minneapolis, Minnesota. At the time of the transaction involved in this proceeding respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 9, 1985, complainant sold to respondent on an f.o.b. basis, and shipped from loading point in Chula Vista, California to respondent in Minneapolis, Minnesota, one truckload containing 684 wirebound crates of super select cucumbers at $7.00, and 72 wirebound crates of select cucumbers at $6.00, plus palletizing and cooling charges of 65 cents per carton, and $22.50 for a Ryan temperature recorder, or a total of $5,733.90.

4. Respondent scheduled the truck to make drops at the places of business of various customers of respondent in the Minneapolis area. The truck arrived in the Minneapolis area on January 12, 1985, and made its first drop at the place of business of Northwest Produce Company, Inc., 760 Kasota Avenue, Minneapolis, Minnesota, where 108 cartons of super select cucumbers and 72 cartons of select cucumbers were unloaded. At 3:30 p.m. on January 12, 1985, the 72 crates of select cucumbers were federally inspected while stacked in the warehouse of Northwest Produce. Temperatures were noted in various locations as 42° and 43° F. Condition was stated to be as follows: "Generally fresh and firm. Average 1% damage by soft ends. Decay from 4 to 14%, average 10% Bacterial Soft Rot and Black Rot in various stages."

5. On January 14, 1985, at 9:10 a.m., cucumbers shipped by complainant tc respondent were federally inspected while still on the truck with the following results in relevant part:

Condition of Equipment: Temperature controls running; Doors closed.

Products Inspected: CUCUMBERS in wirebound crates labeled "Carrillo Brand, Rene Distributors, Inc., Nogales, Arizona, 1⅑ Bushel, Grown In Mexico." Applicant States 468 crates.

Condition of Load: Partly unloaded; remainder load palletized 2 pallets wide, 2 to 3 rows, 6 layers per pallet. Load extends approximately 10 feet from rear doors.

Temperature of Product: Approximately 10 feet from rear doors bottom layer 47°, top layer 48°; approximately 15 feet from rear doors 3rd layer 47°F.

Quality: Clean; mostly fairly well, some well formed; mostly well, some fairly well colored. Grade defects from 6 to 14%, average 10%, mostly misshapen and scars.

Condition: Mostly fresh and firm. Average 2% damage by soft ends. Average 2% damage by yellowing. Decay from 4 to 28%, average 12% Bacterial Soft Rot and Cottony Leak Rot in various stages.

Grade: Meets quality requirements but fails to grade U.S. No. 1 account condition.

Remarks: Inspection and certificate restricted to product and lading in all layers of 5 pallets nearest rear doors.

6. Following the inspection quoted above respondent informed complainant of the condition of the cucumbers as shown by the inspection and stated to complainant that the inspection was a "full inspection". Complainant granted respondent an allowance on the cucumbers, and in conformity with such allowance respondent has paid complainant $3,091.55 of the original purchase price.

7. The formal complaint was filed on May 30, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent admits that it informed complainant following the federal inspection of January 14, 1985, that such inspection was a "full inspection". Respondent's vice-president, Richard L. Piazza, explained that by "full inspection" he meant an "on the truck inspection". We do not agree that this is a reasonable interpretation, nor the normal interpretation which would be given in the industry, to the term "full inspection". While, as will later be explained, we conclude that these cucumbers did not make good delivery, in breach of complainant's warranty of suitable shipping condition, the fact that the relevant inspection was a restricted inspection is a material fact which complainant was entitled to know, and which would be very relevant data in determining the amount which complainant would be willing to give respondent as an allowance on the cucumbers. We deem respondent's statement that the inspection was a full inspection to be an unintentional misrepresentation which necessitates the voiding of the settlement agreement between the parties. See The Garin Co. v. New England Farms, 41 Agric. Dec. 337 (1982) and Sahara Packing Co. v. Rozak's Produce Co., Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 314 (1980).

Complainant has pointed out that the inspection made on January 14, 1985, was made two days following arrival of the truck in the Minneapolis area. Complainant consequently deems this to be a "late" inspection. In this connection complainant claims that respondent also misrepresented the availability of inspection by informing complainant that January 14 (a Monday) was the earliest that federal inspection was available. Complainant points out that 72 cartons of the cucumbers were inspected on January 12, at the place of business of Northwest Produce Co., Inc., and also states that complainant telephoned the inspection service in Minneapolis and was informed that inspection was available seven days per week. Respondent replied to these allegations by alleging that Northwest Produce Co., Inc., where the 72 cartons were inspected on January 12, employs a full time inspector on Saturdays and that such inspector was not normally available to inspect produce belonging to firms other than Northwest Produce Co. Respondent also alleges that while federal inspection may be available seven days a week there are various factors which make such inspection difficult to obtain. It is not necessary for us to determine whether respondent misrepresented the availability of an inspection since we have already determined that respondent misrepresented the extent of the inspection made on January 14.

Complainant urges that the inspection of January 14, 1985, must be further discounted in that it is stated to cover only 468 crates of cucumbers. Respondent alleges that the inspection in fact covered 576 crates of cucumbers, and that the wording therein "applicant states 468 crates" is misleading. Respondent explains that when it deducted the 108 crates of super select cucumbers unloaded at Northwest Produce Co. from the total of 684 super select cucumbers on the truck, it accidentally touched the calculator subtraction button twice thus yielding the 468 crate figure. Again it is not necessary for us to decide this issue since the inspection, even though restricted, and even though made two days following arrival of the cucumbers, shows condition defects extensive enough to nevertheless indicate that the cucumbers did not make good delivery.

In arguing that the cucumbers did make good delivery complainant urges that the temperatures disclosed by the federal inspection were abnormal, and also complains that respondent did not supply the tape from the Ryan temperature recorder. Respondent replied that the recorder was not on the truck when it first gained access to such truck, and that inquiry of the truckdriver and at the prior unloading point, was unfruitful in disclosing the whereabouts of the temperature recorder. Complainant points out that it specified on the bill of lading that temperatures were to be maintained between 38° and 40°F while the truck was in route. Complainant also submitted the sworn affidavit of its dock foreman stating that he was responsible for taking the cucumbers from complainant's cooler for loading into the truck, and that the cucumbers "had been maintained in complainant's cooler at approximately 40°." The publication Protecting Perishable Foods During Transport By Motor Truck, Agriculture Handbook, No. 105, states that the desired transit temperature of cucumbers is 45° to 50°F. Such publication also states "cucumbers are subject to chilling injury if held or transported for longer than two days at temperatures below 45°F., even though their highest freezing point is 31.1°F." The publication Market Diseases of Cabbage, Cauliflower, Turnips, Cucumbers, Melons, and Related Crops, Agricultural Handbook No. 184, states in regard to "Low Temperature Breakdown" in cucumbers that:

> Cucumbers held for one week or longer at temperatures of 32° to 40°F. are subject to low-temperature breakdown soon after they are removed from storage. This injury is recognized by the presence of numerous sunken spots over the surface of the fruits . . ., the total area of which may cover half to three-quarters of the cucumber surface. Frequently the tissues immediately at the base of the spines are first affected; likewise those about the lenticels appear to be involved in most cases. The sunken areas soon become spotted with molds and affected with shallow decays caused by species of Fusarium and other fungi.

It is certainly possible in this case that the decay in the cucumbers was a secondary infection resulting at least in part from low temperature breakdown. In any event there is no indication in this record that temperatures in the trucks were too high, and if indeed the temperatures to which these cucumbers were exposed were too low, such low temperatures are a direct result of the storage in complainant's warehouse prior to shipment, and the temperatures specified by complainant for shipment. The amount of decay and other damage indicated by the restricted inspection at destination is such that we are warranted in concluding that a preponderance of the evidence shows a breach of contract on the part of complainant.

This brings us to the difficult question of damages. Respondent states in its answer that 576 crates of the cucumbers were repacked, and that a total of 138 crates were lost in repacking, leaving 438 crates to be sold. These figures of course do not include the 72 select cucumbers, and 108 super select cucumbers, which were first unloaded at the place of business of Northwest Produce Co. on January 12, 1985. During the informal stages of this proceeding respondent stated in a letter to the Department that:

> After all was said and done, we had 468 cartons that were rejected back to us. Of the 468 cartons 216 were sent to > one repacking house and 252 cartons to another to be repacked for resale. After they were repacked I had them picked up by another truck and delivered again. The remaining 108 were accepted off of the original truck with the condition of sale being with a credit for labor and shrinkage.

While these two statements seem inconsistent they are not necessarily so. However, there is a serious inconsistency in respondent's documentation. Respondent submitted invoices covering the cucumbers which form the basis of an "account of sales" which it rendered in connection with its answer. These invoices are to the various firms that received cucumbers from respondent and show the following:

Firm	Quantity	Price	Total
Twin City Produce	122	$11.55	$1,409.10
Northwest Produce	252	3.45	869.40
S. Baglis Fruit	36	11.55	415.80
Continental Minn.	72	11.55	831.60
Zuccaros Produce	10	13.55	135.50
Double E. Produce	36	12.30	442.80
Northwest Produce	108	11.55	1,247.40
Northwest Produce	72	9.55	687.60

The last two entries for Northwest Produce, $1,247.40 and $687.60, total $1,935.00. On the relevant invoice respondent had substituted for this total, a total of $517.05. Thus the total of all the invoices amounted to $4,621.25. Respondent's expenses included $3,091.55, being the payment made to complainant; transportation costs of $1,900.00; federal inspections in the amount of $47.96, and repacking charges of $356.40, for a total of $5,395.91. Thus respondent claimed a loss of $744.66. The inexplicable part of this accounting concerns the quantity of packages shown on all the invoices. The invoices show a total of 708 crates of cucumbers sold to the various firms at the various prices. However, this would indicate that only 48 crates of cucumbers could have been lost in repacking, whereas respondent claims that 138 were lost. We are bound to conclude that this accounting cannot be used as a basis for assessing damages.

Although it will result in the assessment of minimal damages, we feel that in this case it is proper to use the percentage of decay reflected in the federal inspections as the basis for damages. See Elggren & Sons Co. v. Wood Co., 11 Agric. Dec. 1032 (1952). Since 2% decay could be present and the cucumbers still make good delivery, such percentage should be subtracted. In reference to the 72 cartons of select cucumbers covered by the inspection made on January 12, such inspection shows an average of 10% Bacterial Soft Rot. Accordingly we will allow 8% of the delivered cost as respondent's damages relative to such cucumbers. The contract price of these cucumbers was $6.00 per crate, plus 65 cents for palletizing and cooling. To this should be added freight in the amount of $2.51 per carton, or a total of $9.16. The delivered cost of the 72 cartons was thus $659.52. Computing damages on the basis of an 8% loss for these cucumbers results in damages of $52.76. For the purpose of computing damages we deem the federal inspection made on January 14, to be representative of all of the super select cucumbers. These cucumbers were sold at a contract price of $7.00 per carton, plus 65 cents per carton for palletizing and cooling. Adding freight to this amount results in a delivered cost of $10.16, or a total of $6,949.44. The federal inspection showed total average condition defects of 16% of which 12% was decay. Calculating on the basis of a 14% loss results in damages of $972.92. We conclude that respondent's total damages on the load should be computed at $1,025.68. This amount deducted from the contract price of $5,733.90 leaves $4,708.22 as the total amount due from respondent to complainant. Of this amount respondent has already paid complainant $3,091.55 leaving a net amount due of $1,616.67. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

We note that respondent has asserted that the actual contract price was 15 cents per carton less than that claimed by complainant, and stated on complainant's invoice. We have concluded from all of the evidence herein that the amount stated on complainant's invoice is the correct amount.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $1,616.67, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from February 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

VAN SOLKEMA FARMS, INC. v. ATLANTIC PRODUCE. PACA Docket No. 2-6923. Decided on August 13, 1986.

Failure to reply to allegation of payment in answer deemed admission—Rejection justified by failure of produce to make good delivery.

Respondent alleged in its answer that full payment had been made for a truck lot of mixed perishable produce. Complainant failed to reply to this allegation after having it pointed out by Presiding Officer, and was deemed to have admitted that payment had been made. Amount of decay in several lots of produce in a mixed load showed that such produce would not have made good delivery even had there been no delay in transit and if temperatures had been lower. Respondent's rejection was justified and complaint was dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $3,336.05 in connection with the shipment to respondent of two trucklots of mixed perishable produce in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complainant was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.2D) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Van Solkema Farms, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 8513 Harlow S. W., P.O. Box 308, Byron Center, Michigan.

2. Respondent is a partnership composed of Barrie Kellner and Karl Kellner, doing business as Atlantic Produce, whose address is 9500 NW. 82nd Street, Tamarac, Florida. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about July 31, 1984, complainant sold to respondent one truck lot of mixed perishable produce having a total value of $1,525.30. Complainant shipped this produce on July 31, 1984, from its place of business iu Byron Center, Michigan to respondent in Pompano Beach, Florida. Respondent accepted the produce on arrival, and has paid complainant the entire purchase price therefor.

4. On or about August 31, 1984, complainant sold to respondent one truck lot of mixed perishable produce having a total value of $1,810.75 on a f.o.b. basis. Delivery was scheduled for September 4, at 6:00 a.m. However, the driver was delayed at a prior destination, and did not make the produce available at respondent's place of business until September 5, at 11:00 a.m. Respondent visually inspected the produce, and rejected after determining that it was in poor condition. Complainant caused the produce to be resold in Miami, Florida.

5. On September 6, 1984, the produce referred to in paragraph 4, above, was federally inspected at Miami, Florida. The inspection showed temperatures to range from 50 to 55F in various containers, and showed condition to be as follows: "Carrots: Firm. Average 5% broken. Average 3% fresh cracks or (illegible); Lettuce: Heads or portions of heads not affected by condition defects are fresh and crisp. Wrapper Leaves: No decay. Head Leaves: Average 2% damage by discoloration following bruising. Ranges 1 to 3 decayed heads per carton average 8% Bacterial Soft Rot affecting 1 to 2 outer head leaves. Cucumbers: Mostly firm. Decay ranges 20 to 70% average 45% Cottony Leak Rot in all stages, mostly collapsed and leaking. Chicory: 100% Bacterial Soft Rot affecting 1 to 5 leaves. Parsley: Mostly fresh and green. Decay ranges 42 to 45% average 44% Bacterial Soft Rot. Celery: Mostly Fresh and crisp. Tops are mostly light green, some slightly yellow. Decay ranges 13 to 54% average 34% Bacterial Soft Rot generally affecting tops."

6. The formal complaint was filed on January 18, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent in its answer has specifically alleged that complainant has been paid in full for the load of mixed perishable produce shipped on July 31, 1984. In giving complainant an opportunity to file an opening statement the Presiding Officer pointed out to complainant that respondent claimed to have made such payment, and instructed complainant that it should make clear whether or not it received the payment from respondent. Complainant did not file an opening statement, nor any other evidentiary submission in this proceeding. We conclude that the payment was made as alleged by respondent.

As to the second load of mixed perishable produce respondent complains that the truck arrived one day late. However, since the sale was f.o.b. any delay in delivery would be chargeable to respondent and not to complainant. Respondent also asserts that the produce did not make good delivery on arrival, and that consequently respondent's rejection of such produce was justified. In this contention we concur. Although the inspection was made one day following arrival, and two days following the scheduled arrival, and also revealed temperatures that were somewhat high, the amount of decay in the cucumbers, chicory, parsley, and celery shows that such produce would not have made good delivery at the scheduled time for arrival. Consequently, respondent's rejection was justified, and the complaint should be dismissed. See Heggeblade-Marguleas-Tenneco v. Fisher Foods, 33 Agric. Dec. 1443 (1974); Bud Antle v. Bohack Corp., 32 Agric. Dec. 1961 (1973); and Anonymous, 8 Agric. Dec. 967 (1949).

ORDER

The complaint is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Change in contract terms, seller failed to prove—Rejection not established, improper notice—Burden on buyer to prove breach of warranty—Warranty of merchantability not breached—Damages limited to amount claimed.

Complainant sold "off-grade" potatoes to respondent, with no specific percentage of hollow heart contemplated. Complainant failed to prove that the contract terms were changed so as to reduce the contract price to a specific figure. Respondent did not give proper notice of rejection and thus found to have accepted the potatoes. As respondent failed to prove a breach of the warranty of merchantability, it is liable for the entire contract price. However, reparation award limited to damages claimed in the complaint.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,142.50 in connection with the sale of a truckload of potatoes to respondent in contemplation of interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement, respondent submitted an answering statement, and complainant submitted a statement in reply. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Anthony Farms, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 4, Scandinavia, Wisconsin.

2. Respondent, Bushman's, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 8, Rosholt, Wisconsin. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately August 29, 1984, complainant sold to respondent, in contemplation of interstate commerce, a truckload of potatoes consisting of 860 fifty pound bags of ten ounce minimum Russet Bakers at $4.375 per bag, for $3,762.50, f.o.b. It was agreed that the potatoes were "off-grade" because of the presence of hollow heart. There was never a firm agreement as to the percentage of hollow heart to be contained by the potatoes.

4. On August 29, 1984, respondent prepared a "Confirmation of Purchase" which reflected the contract terms set forth in Finding of Fact 3. The confirmation also stated the grade as being "off-grade russets."

5. The potatoes were shipped to respondent's customer, who refused to accept them. Respondent than contacted a brokerage company who found a receiver, Wood Bros. Produce, Columbia, South Carolina. The potatoes were accepted by respondent.

6. Wood Bros. Produce had the potatoes inspected on September 5, 1984, which revealed the following, in relevant part:

Products Inspected: . . . Applicant's agent states 860 bags.

Condition: Each lot: Firm. No soft rot.

Grade: Each lot: Fails to grade U.S. No. 2 account grade defects.

Remarks: Inspection made on basis of U.S. No. 2 at applicant's request.

7. Wood Bros. Produce bought the potatoes from respondent for $2,150.00, from which respondent deducted $1,397.50 for freight, $100.00 for extra freight for diversion to the second receiver, $107.50 for brokerage for Wood Bros. Produce, and $107.00 for respondent's brokerage. Respondent paid complainant the balance of $437.50.

8. Respondent has failed to pay complainant the difference between the contract price of $3,762.50 and the $437.50 remitted, or $3,325.00.

CONCLUSIONS

It is undisputed that respondent purchased from complainant, on approximately August 29, 1984, 860 fifty pound bags of russet potatoes at $4.375 per bag, for a total of $3,762.50. The parties agree that it was understood at the time of sale that the potatoes were off-grade because of the presence of hollow heart. This is indicated in respondent's Confirmation of Purchase (Finding of Fact 4). However, the employees of each firm who took part in the contract negotiations, complainant's Victor Anthony and respondent's Darrell Koehler, have made contradictory sworn statements concerning the percentage of hollow heart which they agreed the potatoes would contain; Anthony claiming 20 to 25% and Koehler 5 to 10%. Other than these sworn statements, there is no evidence supporting the position of either party regarding the issue of the percentage of hollow heart contemplated by the contract. Therefore, we find that the only contract term relating to the quality of the potatoes was that they were to be off-grade.

Complainant contends that when the potatoes arrived, it was informed that they contained an average of 40% hollow heart. Based on this representation, complainant asserts, it agreed to a change in the contract price to $3.00 per bag. Respondent denies that such a change was ever agreed to. Complainant has submitted an invoice which shows a new price of $3.00 per bag, but respondent claims it never received it. Further, complainant does not allege that such invoice was ever sent. The burden of proving a change in the contract terms is upon the party asserting it. Joe Phillips, Inc. v. G & T Terminal Packaging Co., Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 1199 (1983). We conclude that complainant has failed to meet its burden, and consequently that the original price terms were never changed.

Although respondent claims that it informed complainant of the problem with the potatoes when they arrived at its receiver's warehouse, respondent has not alleged that it specifically informed complainant that it was rejecting the potatoes. A rejection must be in clear unmistakable terms (Farm Market Service, Inc. v. Altertson's Inc. a/t/a Southco Division, 42 Agric. Dec. 429 (1983)), and there is no evidence in the record that such a rejection was made by respondent. Therefore, respondent accepted the potatoes, and became liable for the contract price, less damages resulting from any breach of warranty. It is respondent's burden to prove the breach and damages by a preponderance of the evidence. Stonoca Farms Corporation v. S & S Produce Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 937 (1983).

Respondent is claiming that there was a breach of warranty because the potatoes were affected by a percentage of hollow heart greater than that called for by the contract. A federal inspection of the potatoes upon arrival at the place of business of respondent's customer, Wood Bros. Produce, shows an average of 22% hollow heart (Finding of Fact 6). We have determined that the parties agreed only that the potatoes were to be off-grade, without contemplating any specific percentage of hollow heart. The condition of the potatoes upon arrival was certainly off-grade and thus in compliance with this contract term. However, in all contracts for the sale of produce there is also an implied warranty of merchantability, which means that the goods must be of merchantable quality. LaMantia-Cullum-Collier Enterprises, Inc. v. Syndex Corp. a/t/a Schoenmann Produce Company, 42 Agric. Dec. 651 (1983); U.C.C. § 2-314. It is our conclusion that potatoes shipped as off-grade with 22% average hollow heart at destination are merchantable. There was thus no breach of the implied warranty of merchantability by complainant.

Since there was no breach of warranty by complainant, respondent became liable for the entire contract price of $3,762.50. Respondent has remitted $437.50, reducing its liability to $3,325.00. However, as complainant has only claimed $2,142.50 in its formal complaint, the reparation awarded herein will be limited to this amount.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,142.50, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from October 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

MISCELLANEOUS REPARATION DECISIONS

LESTER DISTRIBUTING COMPANY v. BRUNO DISPOTO COMPANY. PACA Docket No. 2-6924. Decided on July 9, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in the amount of $1,192.86 in connection with a transaction involving the shipment of nectarines in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint was served on respondent. By letter dated June 12, 1986, complainant notified the Department that an amicable settlement had been reached. Complainant, in its letter of June 12, 1986, authorized dismissal of its complaint filed herein.

Accordingly, the complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

FOUR STAR TOMATO, INC. v. TOMATOES, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6834. Decided on July 16, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), an order was issued on May 16, 1986, requiring respondent to pay complainant $2,124.00, with 13% interest from June 1, 1984, until paid. By letter dated June 2, 1986, and received on June 5, 1986, respondent has asked us to reconsider the order of May 16, 1986. We have reviewed the May 16, 1986, Decision and Order and the record in the light of respondent's June 2, 1986, letter. Upon review, we are of the opinion that respondent's claims are without merit, and we conclude that our order of May 16, 1986, is amply supported by the evidence and by the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, respondent's petition for reconsideration is dismissed without prior service upon complainant.

The order of May 16, 1986, is reinstated, except that the reparation awarded therein shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this order.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

FRUIT MARKETING, INC. v. LOFCHIE, INC., a/t/a BRUCE CO. PACA Docket No. 2-6857. Decided on July 16, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

RULING ON RECONSIDERATION

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.) in which a Decision and Order was issued on May 1, 1986, awarding reparation against the respondent in the amount of $3,486.90 plus interest. Respondent has filed a timely petition for reconsideration, which automatically operated to stay the May 1, 1986, order.

In its petition, respondent claims that the Decision and Order did not reflect its payment to complainant of $1,810.00. While such payment was noted in Finding of Fact 8, it was not reflected in the order. Therefore, the amount awarded complainant should be reduced by $1,810.00 to $1,676.90.

Respondent argues that the Decision and Order should have utilized the Market News quotations supplied by respondent in determining the value of the peaches at issue if they had been as warranted, instead of relying on the contract price plus freight. Respondent acknowledges that there were no prices quoted for the date of acceptance, September 14, 1984, but claims that the average prices for September 12, and 19, 1984, should have been used. However, the Market News figures put forward by respondent are not a sufficiently accurate reflection of the value the peaches should have had if they had been as warranted to justify their use. The peaches shipped were 660 lugs, 48/50 count, of California origin. The September 12 quotation, two days before respondent accepted the peaches at issue, shows California peaches, 48/50 count, in fair condition, at $7.00 to $10.00 per carton. The September 19 quotation shows only one lot of 48/50 count peaches in fair condition, at $7.00 to $8.00 per carton, which is obviously based on too few sales to have any legitimacy. The September 12 quotation, standing alone, is not an adequate indication of the market price on the date of acceptance. Therefore, the Decision and Order properly applied the contract price Plus freight.

ORDER

The Decision and Order issued on May 1, 1986, is hereby amended to reduce the award of reparation from respondent to complainant by $1,810.00, to $1,676.90, plus interest. This amount shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this order.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

FRESH WESTERN MARKETING, INC. v. BERRYMAN PRODUCE, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-7171. Decided on July 16, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in the amount of $1,272.20 in connection with transactions involving the shipment of mixed vegetables in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint was served on respondent. By letter dated June 17, 1986, complainant notified the Department that respondent tendered to complainant a check in full settlement of complainant's claim. Complainant, in its letter of June 17, 1986, authorized dismissal of its complaint filed herein.

Accordingly, the complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

THOMAS G. VALENZUELA, d/b/a T.G. VALENZUELA PRODUCE v TEDDY BERTUCA, d/b/a TEDDY BERTUCA COMPANY. PACA Docket No. 2-6710. Decided on August 7, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

RULING ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on June 23, 1986, awarding complainant $5,735.36 plus interest. Respondent has filed a petition for reconsideration on July 2, 1986, which automatically stayed the Decision and Order.

In its petition, respondent claims that the Decision and Order erroneously found that a border inspection of transaction 4 did not take place. Respondent contends that the inspection did occur, as indicated by the inspection report in evidence. However, as stated in the Decision and Order, such report "on close examination, is merely a photocopy of respondent's exhibit 22, the inspection pertaining to transaction 3." Conclusive proof of this is that both reports have the same certificate number, 106931. Therefore, there is no merit to the petition for reconsideration and it is hereby dismissed.

The automatic stay of the Decision and Order is hereby vacated and the Decision and Order is reinstated. The amount awarded therein, plus interest, shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this order.

PRODUCE SPECIALITIES, INC., d/b/a FRIEDA'S FINEST v. ORGANIC FARMS, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-7137. Decided on August 7, 1986.

ORDER (CONTINUANCE)

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in connection with transactions in interstate commerce involving shipments of produce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, and respondent has filed an answer thereto.

Complainant, Tony D. Love and Patrick H. Rosales d/b/a L&R Orchards, is a partnership whose address is P.O. Box 971, Moultrie, Georgia. Respondent, Imperial Brands Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box Drawer 312, Lake Wales, Florida. Respondent was licensed under the Act at the time of the transactions involved herein.

Prior to the issuance of a Decision and Order in this proceeding, the Department was advised that respondent had filed in the United States Bankruptcy Court, Middle District of Florida, a voluntary petition for liquidation pursuant to Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. §§ 701-766).

11 U.S.C. § 362 provides for an automatic stay against continuing an action involving a debt once a party has filed a petition under the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 362, this reparation proceeding is hereby continued until the Department receives proper notification that the Chapter 7 proceeding now pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court has been closed or dismissed.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

MISCELLANEOUS REPARATION DEFAULT DECISIONS

NIKADEMOS DISTRIBUTING COMPANY, INC. v. BOLIVAR G. GAMEZ d/b/a ROBIL INTERNATIONAL. PACA Docket No. RD-86-295. Decided on July 30, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

STAY ORDER

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499 et seq.), a Default Order was issued on June 18, 1986, awarding reparation to the complainant in the amount of $12,327.75. By telegram received July 8, 1986, respondent has moved that this matter be reopened.

Accordingly, the order of June 18, 1986 is hereby stayed. Complainant may have ten (10) days from receipt of this order to file an answer to the petition to reopen.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties. A copy of respondent's petition shall be served upon the complainant, along with the order.

VAL-MEX FRUIT COMPANY, INC. v. LA PREFERIDA OF TEXAS, INC. PACA Docket No. RD-86-294. Decided on August 12, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER REOPENING AFTER DEFAULT

In this proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the respondent failed to file a timely answer. However, prior to the issuance of a Default Order, respondent filed a motion to reopen the proceeding after default and allow the filing of an answer pursuant to section 47.25 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.25(e)).

The record has been carefully considered and it is concluded that the motion to reopen was filed with a reasonable time, and that good reason has been shown why the relief requested in the motion should be granted. Mendelson-Zeller Co. v. United Fruit Distributors, 16 A.D. 790 (1957). Accordingly, respondent's default in the filing of an answer is set aside and respondent will have 15 days from the receipt of this order to submit an answer.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

HORACE T. HOLMES AND SONS v. IMPERIAL BRANDS, INC. PACA Docket No. RD-86-364. Decided on August 14, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER (CONTINUANCE)

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation of $280,000.00 against respondent in connection with transactions in interstate commerce involving shipments of peaches. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, and respondent has not filed an answer thereto.

Complainant, Horace T. Holmes and Son, is a partnership whose address is Route 2, Box 111-B, Trenton, South Carolina. Respondent, Imperial Brands Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Drawer 312, Lake Wales, Florida. Respondent was licensed under the Act at the time of the transactions involved herein.

Prior to the issuance of a Default Order in this proceeding, the Department was advised that respondent had filed in the United States Bankruptcy Court, Middle District of Florida, a voluntary petition for liquidation pursuant to Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. §§ 701-766).

11 U.S.C. § 362 provides for an automatic stay against continuing an action involving a debt once a party has filed a petition under the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 362, this reparation proceeding is hereby continued until the Department receives proper notification that the Chapter 7 proceeding now pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court has been closed or dismissed.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

THE TOBI COMPANY, INC. v. UNITED PACKING CO. PACA Docket No. RD-86-306. Decided on August 15, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

STAY ORDER

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499 et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on July 1, 1986, awarding reparation to the complainant in the amount of $3,305.27. By motion received July 30, 1986, respondent has moved that this matter be reopened after default.

Accordingly, the order of July 1, 1986 is hereby stayed. Complainant may have fifteen (15) days from receipt of this order to file an answer to the petition to reopen after default.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties. A copy of respondent's petition shall be served upon the complainant, along with this order.

DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: PENINSULA SHIPPING INC., and GLENN L. GIRO. P.Q. Docket No. 215. Decided on July 7, 1986.

Movement of pork, originating in Spain, into Louisiana—Violation of Animal and Plant Health Inspection Act—Civil penalty—Consent.

Kris Ikejiri, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AS TO PENINSULA SHIPPING INC. AND GLENN. L. GIRO

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Peninsula Shipping, Inc. and Glenn L Giro, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 C.F R. Part 94). Peninsula Shipping Inc., Glenn L. Giro, and the complainant agree that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and agree to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, Peninsula Shipping Inc. and Glenn L. Giro, admit specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegation in the complaint, sdmit to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waive:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Peninsula Shipping Inc and Glenn L. Giro, also waive any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by them in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Peninsula Shipping Inc., respondent, is a company whose address is 4612 Magazine Street., New Orleans, Louisiana 70115.

2. Glenn L Giro, respondent is an individual whose address is 307 West Street, Jean Baptist' Charlmette, Louisiana 70043.

3. On or about March 15, 1985, the respondents entered into Baton Rouge, Louisiana, pork products, that is, ham, which originated from Spain.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Peninsula Shipping Inc. is assessed a civil penalty of seven hundred fifty dollars ($750) and respondent Glenn L. Giro is assessed a civil penalty of one hundred twenty five dollars ($125). The civil penalties shall be paid by certified checks or money orders payable, to "The Treasurer of the United States," and shall be sent to Kris H. Ikejiri, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, on or before June 30, 1986.

This Order shall become effective on the day it is filed by the administrative law judge with the Hearing Clerk.

In re: MIDAS NAVIGATION, LTD. P.Q. Docket No. 170. Decided on July 9, 1986.

British ship—Delinquent in foreign garbage containment—Violation of Plant Quarantine Act—Civil penalty—Answer to complaint not filed.

Andrea Bateman, for complainant.
Angelakos, Ltd. Barbican, London, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a proceeding under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 111, 120), the Plant Quarantine Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.), and the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 150aa et seq.), in which Administration Law Judge Edward H. McGrail (ALJ) filed an initial Decision and Order on April 23, 1986, assessing a civil penalty of $500 against respondent after respondent failed to file a timely answer.

On May 10, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR

§ 2.35).[1] On July 2, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, except that the effective date of the order is changed in view of the appeal. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow Judge McGrail's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 150aa et seq.), and the Act of August 20, 1912 (Plant Quarantine Act), as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151–164a and 167) (Acts) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint was filed with the Hearing Clerk on December 27, 1985. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated sections 330.400(b)(1) and 94.5(b)(1) of the regulations (7 CFR § 330.400(b)(1) and 9 CFR § 94.5(b)(1)).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Acts were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent on January 7, 1986. On February 3, 1986, respondent was sent, by regular mail, a notice that its answer had not been received by the Hearing Clerk in the allotted time.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations in the complaint and request an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since respondent was served with the complaint in question. Respondent has not filed an answer to date. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Midas Navigation, Ltd., herein referred to as the respondent, is a company whose address is City Bank House, 3rd Floor, 16122 Baltic Street, London, EC1 Y-OXA, England, and who is the owner of the ship CY M/V Guardian.

2. Midas Navigation, Ltd.'s agent for the purpose of service of process of this decision and order is Barber Steamship Lines, Inc., whose address is 307 Tchoupitoulas Street, New Orleans, Louisiana 70130.

3. On or about October 8, 1985, the respondent, on its ship the CY M/V Guardian, which arrived in New Orleans, Louisiana after being in Alexandria, Egypt, violated section 330.400(b)(1) of the regulations (7 CFR § 330.400(b)(1)) and section 94.5(b)(1) of the regulations (9 CFR § 94.5(b)(1)), because the ship had foreign origin garbage on board which was not contained in tight, leakproof covered receptacles, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts in the finding of fact set forth above, respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days after service of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139):

§ 1.136 Answer.

(a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .

(b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or

(2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or

(3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical in all material respects to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that complainant was seeking a $500 civil penalty. The complaint advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days, as follows (Complaint at 2):

> WHEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that for the purpose of determining whether or not respondent has, in fact, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder, this complaint shall be served upon the respondent. The respondent shall have twenty (20) days after receipt of this complaint in which to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, in accordance with the applicable Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 380.1, 7 CFR § 1.136, and 9 CFR § 70.1). Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Failure to file an answer within the time allowed therefor shall constitute an admission of the allegations in this complaint and a waiver of hearing.

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days. The letter states:

> In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.
> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

The return receipt card shows that respondent was served with a copy of the complaint on January 7, 1986. Respondent's answer was, therefore, required to be filed with the Hearing Clerk by January 27, 1986. However, respondent's letter which it sought to have considered as an answer was not received by the Hearing Clerk until March 14, 1986, well beyond the allotted time. Since respondent failed to file an answer within the specified time period, the default Decision and Order was properly issued in this case. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[2] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[3]

In addition, respondent's (untimely) answer does not deny the allegations of the complaint, but, rather, "accept[s] the allegations of the Complaint" (Answer at 2). Hence the answer, even if timely filed, would have warranted the issuance of the default decision, under the rules quoted above.

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 421 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer (who does not have a law clerk) disposed of 45 cases (including one on remand from the Seventh Circuit that required a 529-page decision to justify an 8-month suspension order and a $10,000 civil penalty for 14 separate livestock violations based on circumstantial evidence). In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk. The Department does not have the time or resources to hold a hearing at this late date for this respondent, who did not file a timely answer and did not contest the allegations of the complaint in its untimely answer.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.'" [4] If respondent were permitted to present alleged mitigating circumstances at this late date, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present these matters at this time. But even if respondent were permitted to present the alleged mitigating circumstances at this late date, the same order would be issued.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $500, which shall be paid within 30 days from the date of service of this order. This civil penalty shall be made payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Sherrie Kopka Kennedy, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. § 111 and § 120), the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 150aa et seq.) and the Plant Quarantine Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) (Acts) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Allied Aviation Services International Corp. violated the Acts and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR Part 330) and 9 CFR Part 94). Respondent Allied Aviation Services International Corp. and the complainant agree that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and agree to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent Allied Aviation Services International Corp. admits specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegation in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure:

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent Allied Aviation Services International Corp. waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by it in connection with this proceeding.

3. Complainant agrees that the terms and facts in this consent decision shall not be considered a violation or a breach of the consent decision filed on April 11, 1986 in P.Q. Docket No. 162, In re Allied Aviation Services International Corp.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Allied Aviation Services International Corp., respondent, is a corporation whose address for purposes of service of process is 25th Floor, 2 Penn. Plaza, New York, New York 10121.

2. On or about April 7, 1986, at John F. Kennedy International Airport, Jamaica, New York the respondent unloaded foreign origin garbage from a Tower Airlines flight.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent Allied Aviation Services International Corp. having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order will be issued.

ORDER

Allied Aviation Services International Corp., Inc., is assessed a civil penalty of eight hundred dollars ($800.00) which shall payable to, "The Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250-1400, on or before August 8, 1986.

This Order shall become effective on the day this Order is served upon the respondent.

In re: MARIANA CEVALLOS. P.Q. Docket No. 180. Decided on May 16, 1986.

Importation of potatoes and passion fruit—Violation of permit regulations—Civil penalty.

Respondent imported potatoes and passion fruit pulp into the United States from Ecuador. This is prohibited unless imported under permits as required by regulations. Civil penalty of $250.00 assessed.

Jaru Ruley, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the importation into the United States of fruits and vegetables from foreign countries and localities (7 C.F.R. §§ 319.56 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of practice in 7 C.F.R. §§ 1.130 et seq. and 380.1 et seq.

This proceeding was instituted by a Complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The Complaint alleged that on or about August 12, 1985, the respondent imported potatoes and passion fruit pulps into the United States at Miami, Florida, from Ecuador, in violation of section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 C.F.R. § 319.56(c)), because the potatoes and passion fruit pulps were not imported under permit as required by section 319.56-2(e) of the regulations (7 C.F.R. § 319.56-2(e)).

On March 6, 1986, the respondent filed an Answer responding to and admitting the allegations contained in the Complaint. This admission of the allegations contained in the Complaint constitutes a waiver of hearing (7 C.F.R. § 1.139).

Accordingly, the material allegations alleged in the Complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 C.F.R. § 1.139)

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Mariana Cevallos, is an individual whose address is 840-55th Street, Brooklyn, New York 11220.

2. On or about August 12, 1985, the respondent imported potatoes and passion fruit pulps into the United States at Miami, Florida, from Ecuador, in violation of section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 C.F.R. § 319.56(c)), because the potatoes and passion fruit pulps were not imported under permit as required by section 319.56-2(e) of the regulations (7 C.F.R. § 319.56-2(e)).

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated scction 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 C.F.R. § 319.56(c)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ORDER

The respondent, Mariana Cevallos, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00) which shall be paid at the rate of fifty dollars ($50.00) per month, with the first payment due no later than thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order, and the remaining payments due on the same date of each of the following four months. This penalty shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified checks or money orders, and shall be forwarded to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400. This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after a full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon the respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 C.F.R. § 1.145).

Importation of fruit from Trinidad—Importation permit required—Civil penalty. Respondent imported eight (8) mangoes into the United States from Trinidad, in violation of regulations which require accompanying permit. Civil penalty of $500.00 assessed.

Fronda C. Woods, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (Act) (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a and 167), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated section 319.56-2(e) of the regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.56-2(e)).

The Office of the Hearing Clerk mailed to respondent, by certified mail, copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act. The Postal Service returned the documents marked "Unclaimed." The Hearing Clerk then remailed the documents by regular mail. This constitutes service under section 1.147(b)(3) of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.147(b)(3)).

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed within twenty days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer would constitute an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under 7 CFR § 1.136(c). The respondent was also informed that failure to file an answer would constitute a waiver of hearing, as provided in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

The respondent filed no answer during the twenty-day period allowed. Respondent's failure to file an answer within the time provided constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Respondent's failure to file an answer also constitutes a waiver of hearing under section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Since respondent is deemed to have admitted the material allegations of fact in the complaint, they are adopted and set forth as the Findings of Fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Madeline Ramjewansingh, respondent, is an individual whose address is 111-58 43rd Avenue, Corona, New York 11368.

2. On or about March 22, 1985, at John F. Kennedy International Airport, respondent imported eight mangoes from Trinidad into the United States in violation of 7 CFR § 319.56-2(e), because the fruit was not accompanied by a permit, as required.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file any answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By her silence respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following order is therefore issued.

ORDER

Respondent Madeline Ramjewansingh is hereby assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

Shipment of fruit from Hawaii to the United States—Violation of Plant Quarantine Act—Civil penalty—Consent.

Joe Pembroke, for complainant.
Terrance Yoshizumi, Hilo, Hawaii, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION AS TO ROBERT T. YOSHIZUMI

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (Act) (7 U.S.C. §§ 151aa et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondents violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 318.13-12 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Robert T. Yoshizumi, herein referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is 227 Ainada Drive, Hilo, Hawaii 96720.

2. On or about October 11, 1984, the respondent offered for shipment to a common carrier from Hilo, Hawaii, to San Francisco, California, two cardboard boxes containing 20 pounds of avocados and 13 pounds of star fruit.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding with respect to respondent Robert T. Yoshizumi, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one hundred dollars ($100.00). The respondent shall send a certified check or money order for $100.00 payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (Act) (7 U.S.C. § 161 et seq.) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 318.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulation:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek the judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Victoria Muir, respondent, is an individual whose address is 1316 Ardmore, Manhattan Beach, California 90266.

2. On or about February 14, 1985, respondent was in possession of several pieces of luggage at Honolulu International Airport.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of the proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one hundred and twenty five dollars ($125.00). The respondent shall send, payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," a certified check or money

DEFAULT DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act, as amended, (PQA) (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged, inter alia, that respondent Antonio Martinez violated the PQA and section 319.27 of the regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.27).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the PQA were served by the Hearing Clerk upon the Antonio Martinez according to section 1.147 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.147).

Antonio Martinez was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer either denying, admitting, or explaining the allegation in the complaint and requesting an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegation and waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since Antonio Martinez was served with the complaint. Mr. Martinez has not filed an answer or any other document to date. This Default Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by Mr. Martinez's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Antonio Martinez, respondent herein, is an individual whose mailing address is 692 Holt, El Centro, California 92243.

2. On or about September 22, 1985, the respondent imported from Mexico into Calexico, California, approximately one (1) Mexican lime, in violation of section 319.27 of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.27) because the importation of Mexican limes is prohibited.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file any answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By his silence, respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the PQA and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following Order is, therefore, issued.

ORDER

Respondent Antonio Martinez is hereby assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, Washington, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

This Order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Default Decision and Order upon the respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended, and the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a and 167, and 150aa et seq.) (Acts) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Aero Mayflower Transit Co., Inc., respondent, violated the Acts and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 301.45 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Aero Mayflower Transit Co., Inc., respondent, is a corporation doing business at P.O. Box 107, Indianapolis, Indiana 46206-0107.

2. On or about September 7, 1985, the respondent moved interstate outdoor household articles from Huntington, New York, a gypsy moth high risk area, to Downers Grove, Illinois, a gypsy moth non-regulated area.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order and which shall be forwarded to Kevin B. Thiemann, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, 12th and Independence Ave., S.W. In re: DARRELL MCDONALD d/b/a BOX CANYON FARMS. PRPA Docket No. D-3. Decided on July 18, 1986.

Producer—Handler of seed—Failure to pay assessments—Violation of PRP Act—Civil penalty—Default.

Respondent as producer of seed potatoes failed to file reports and pay required assessments to National Potato Promotion Board based on volume of potatoes handled. Respondent ordered to pay $3,072.09 in assessments for years 1980-1984 and is assessed a civil penalty of $4,000.00. Respondent did not file an answer to the complaint.

John D. Griffith, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Potato Research and Promotion Act, as amended, 7 U.S C. §§ 2611-2627, herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent willfully violated the Act, the Potato Research and Promotion Plan, 7 CFR §§ 1207.301-.366 and the Rules and Regulations issued pursuant to the Act, 7 CFR §§ 1207.500-.550.

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act, 7 CFR §§ 1.130-1.151, were served upon respondent by the Hearing Clerk by certified mail. Respondent was informed in the letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as Findings of Fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice. 7 CFR § 1.139.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Darrell McDonald, hereafter referred to as respondent, is an individual doing business as Box Canyon Farms at P.O. Box 102, Arco, Idaho 83212.

2. At all material times, respondent was engaged in business as a producer-handler handling seed potatoes of his own production and was subject to the Act, Plan, and Regulations.

3. Respondent is a designated handler as defined in the Plan, 7 CFR § 1207.308, and the Regulations, 7 CFR § 1207.512. As such, respondent was and is required to submit reports and pay assessments to the National Potato Promotion Board based on the volume of potatoes handled for ultimate consumption as human food and seed. 7 CFR §§ 1207.510 and .513.

4. Since January 1, 1980, respondent has violated the Act, Plan and Regulations by failing to:

(a) submit handler reports as required by 7 U.S.C. § 2619 and 7 CFR §§ 1207.350 and .513; and

(b) pay assessments as required by 7 U.S.C. § 2619 and 7 CFR §§ 1207.342 and .513 in the amount of $3,072.09.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts set forth in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has willfully violated section 2619 of the Act, 7 U.S.C. § 2619, sections 1207.342 and 1207.350 of the plan, 7 CFR §§ 1207.342, 1207.350 and section 1207.513 of the rules and regulations.

ORDER

Respondent Darrell McDonald, his agent and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

(1) violating the Act, Plan and Regulations by failing to file handler reports and pay assessments in the sum of $3,072.09 for the years 1980 through 1984;

(2) violating the Act, Plan and Regulations by failing to file all future handler reports and pay all future assessments as they become due.

The respondent Darrell McDonald is assessed a civil penalty of $4,000.00 which shall be paid by a certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. The check or money order shall be mailed to John D. Griffith, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Room 2014-South, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after this decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice, this decision becomes final without further proceedings 35 days after service as provided in section 1.142 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice, 7 CFR §§ 1.130-1.151, unless appealed within 30 days after service.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

[This Decision and Order became final on August 28, 1986-ED.]

PREFATORY NOTE

It is the purpose of this official publication to make available to the public, in an orderly and accessible form, decisions issued under regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The decisions published herein may be described generally as decisions which are made in proceedings of a quasi-judicial character, and which, under the applicable statutes, can be made by the Secretary of Agriculture, or an officer authorized by law to act in his stead, only after notice and hearing or opportunity for a hearing. These decisions do not include rules and regulations of general applicability which are required to be published in the Federal Register.

The principal statutes concerned are the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.), the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Animal Quarantine and Related Laws (21 U.S.C. 111 et seq.), the Animal Welfare Act (7 U.S.C. 2131 et seq.), the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Grain Standards Act (7 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Horse Protection Act (15 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921 (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.), the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930 (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the Plant Quarantine Act (7 U.S.C. 151 et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 451 et seq.), and the Virus-Serum-Toxin Act of 1913 (21 U.S.C. 151–158).

The decisions published herein are arranged alphabetically by statute and within the statute section by date of issue or date the decision became final after expiration of the appeal period. They may be cited by giving the volume and page, for illustration, 1 A.D. 472 (1942). It is unnecessary to cite the docket or decision number. Prior to 1942 the Secretary's decisions were identified by docket and decision numbers, for example, D–578; S. 1150. Such citation of a case in these volumes generally indicates that the decision is not published in Agriculture Decisions.

Current court decisions involving the regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture are published herein.

In re: FLOYD UMPHLETT and REBBA UMPHLETT, respondents. I&G Docket No. 82. Decided September 17, 1986.

Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.
Robert Frisby, Mktg. Div., for complainant.
Pro se, for respondents.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, 7 U.S.C. §§ 1621–1627, and the regulations, 7 CFR §§ 51.1–51.6005, promulgated thereunder by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondents knowingly and willfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated under the Act by making fraudulent or unauthorized alterations on inspection notesheets and certificates prepared pursuant to the regulations promulgated under the Act. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice Governing Withdrawal of Inspection and Grading Services, 7 CFR § 50.21.

The respondents admit the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and specifically admit that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations, waive oral hearing and further procedure, and consent and agree, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Floyd Umphlett and Rebecca Umphlett, hereinafter referred to as the respondents, are individuals and their mailing address is 1428 Greenway Road, Suffolk, Virginia 23438.

2. Respondents, at all times material herein, were Virginia peanut buyers who applied for and received inspection and grading services pursuant to the regulations promulgated under the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

All grading and inspection services provided pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 and the regulations promulgated thereunder are denied to respondents Floyd Umphlett and Rebecca Umphlett, their agents and employees, to any firm, establishment or facility operated or managed by respondents, and to any firm, establishment or facility in which either of them serves as an owner, officer, or director, for a period of two (2) years from the effective date of this decision. During this two-year period, respondents shall not participate, directly or indirectly, in the operation or management of any firm, establishment or facility which receives grading and inspection services provided pursuant to the Act and the regulations.

The provisions of this order shall be effective from June 1, 1987, to May 31, 1989.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

In re: PACKERLAND PACKING COMPANY and STEVEN C. DEMARAY.
A.Q. Docket No. 283. Decided September 8, 1986.

Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.
Jaru Ruley, Reg. Div., for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

CONSENT DECISION AS TO PACKERLAND PACKING CO.

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondents violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent Packerland Packing Company specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Packerland Packing Company, herein referred to as the respondent, is a corporation having a place of business at North 7th Street, P.O. Box 768, Gering, Nebraska 69341.

2. On or about the time period between June 1 and June 28, 1985, the respondent moved interstate various shipments of cattle from South Dakota, Montana, and Colorado, to Scottsbluff, Nebraska.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding with respect to respondent Packerland Packing Comany, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of five thousand five hundred dollars ($5,500.00). The respondent shall send a certified check or money order for $5,500.00 payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

In re: WAYNE J. BLASER. A.Q. Docket No. 246. Decided September 9, 1986.

Interstate cattle movement without certificate. Brucellosis prevention.

The Judicial Officer affirmed Judge Weber's order assessing civil penalties totalling $2,000 against respondent for moving cattle interstate on four occasions that were not accompanied by a certificate, as required, in violation of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle to prevent the spread of brucellosis (9 CFR § 78.9(a)). Respondent's answer, which failed to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations of the complaint as to the violations, constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Accordingly, the default decision was properly issued. Importance of Brucellosis Eradication Program explained.

Pro se, for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of civil penalties for violations of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle to prevent the spread of brucellosis (9 CFR §§ 71.18 and 78.1 se seq.). An initial Decision and Order was issued on June 24, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge William J. Weber (ALJ) assessing civil penalties totalling $2,000.

On August 1, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR

§ 2.35).[1] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on August 28, 1986.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle because of brucellosis (9 CFR §§ 71.18 and 78.1 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 9 CFR §§ 70.1 et seq. and 7 CFR §§ 1.130 et seq.

This proceeding was initiated by a complaint filed on March 12, 1986, by the Acting Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that on four separate occasions the respondent moved cattle interstate from West Concord and Leroy, Minnesota, to Lake Mills, Iowa, in violation of section 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(a)).

On or about the dates of May 17, 1985, July 1, 1985, and on two occasions during May and June of 1985, the respondent moved a total of 22 cattle interstate which were not accompanied by a certificate containing the prescribed information. In his answer to the complaint, the respondent admitted moving cattle from Leroy, Minnesota to Lake Mills, Iowa. The respondent also failed to respond to the alleged movement from West Concord, Minnesota to Lake Mills, Iowa.

The respondent's failure to deny or otherwise respond to the material allegations contained in the complaint is deemed an admission of such allegations and a waiver of hearing under the regulations (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact, and this Decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding. (See 7 CFR § 1.139).

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Wayne J. Blaser, herein referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose address is 806 N. 3rd Avenue East, Lake Mills, Iowa 50450.

2. On or about May, 1985, respondent moved interstate 10 cows from Leroy, Minnesota to Lake Mills, Iowa in violation of section 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(a)), because the cows were not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

3. On or about May 17, 1985, respondent moved interstate 4 cows from West Concord, Minnesota to Lake Mills, Iowa in violation of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(a)), because the cows were not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

4. On or about June, 1985, respondent moved interstate one cow from Leroy, Minnesota to Lake Mills, Iowa in violation of section 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(a)), because the cows were not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

5. On or about July 1, 1985, respondent moved interstate 7 cows from Leroy, Minnesota to Lake Mills, Iowa in violation of section 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(a)), because the cows were not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated section 78.9(a) of the regulations (9 CFR 78.9(a)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139, .141(a)):

> § 1.136 Answer.
> (a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .

(b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or

(2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or

(3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.141 Procedure for Hearing.

> (a) Request for Hearing. Any party may request a hearing on the facts by including such request in the complaint or answer, or by a separate request, in writing, filed with the Hearing Clerk within the time in which an answer may be filed. Failure to request a hearing within the time allowed for the filing of the answer shall constitute a waiver of such hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical in all material respects to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that complainant was seeking a $2,000 civil penalty. The complaint advised respondent that failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation shall constitute an admission of such allegation, as follows (Complaint at 2):

> WHEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that for the purpose of determining whether or not respondent has, in fact, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder, this complaint shall be served upon the respondent. The respondent shall have twenty (20) days after receipt of this complaint in which to file answers with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, in accordance with the applicable Rules of Practice (9 CFR § 70.1 and 7 CFR § 1.136). Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Failure to file an answer within the time allowed therefor shall constitute an admission of the allegations in this complaint and a waiver of hearing.

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint. The letter states:

> In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.

> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

Respondent's answer fails to request a hearing, does not deny the material allegations of fact relating to the movement from Le Roy, Minnesota, and ignores the allegations relating to the movement from West Concord, Minnesota. The answer states in its entirety:

> I did move some cattle from my farm in LeRoy, MN. to Lake Mills, IA. I have lived on the state line all my life and did not give it a thought when I moved the cattle. We went from one half mile inside the Minnesota border to six miles across the Iowa border.
>
> I have already paid a fine in the state of Iowa on one count. The others were thrown out because there were no dates. I was turned in a month after-the-fact. I had the cattle tested after they had been moved and they all tested OK.
>
> I do not feel that there is sufficient reason to fine or charge me with this again.

Accordingly, under the plain provisions of the rules of practice, the default decision was properly issued.[2]

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 421 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer (who does not have a law clerk) disposed of 45 cases (including one on remand from the Seventh Circuit that required a 529-page decision to justify an 8-month suspension order and a $10,000 civil penalty for 14 separate livestock violations based on circumstantial evidence). In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk. The Department does not have the time or resources to hold a hearing at this late date for this respondent, who did not contest the allegations of the complaint in his answer.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' " [3] If respondent were permitted to contest some of the allegations of fact at this late date, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present matters by way of defense at this time.

The civil penalties assessed here are modest considering the importance of the Brucellosis Eradication Program. As stated in In re Grady, 45 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 67 (Jan. 31, 1986):

> The brucellosis eradication program is important to the national welfare. To date, the program has cost in excess of $1 billion. It costs about $150 million a year (Tr. 440).

The Brucellosis Eradication Program is described in In re Petty, 43 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 4-5 (Oct. 31, 1984), aff'd, No. 3-84-2200-R (N.D. Tex. June 5, 1986), as follows:

> 4. Brucellosis (also known as Bangs disease or undulant fever) is a contagious, infectious and communicable disease affecting livestock. It is transmittable to humans.[4] (Tr. 32, 95-96, 1056-59, 1160-64, 1177-80). The incubation period of the disease varies from about 10 days to a year, but does not generally exceed several months (Tr. 95, 1180).

[4] Brucellosis is "a disease of man of sudden or insidious onset and long duration characterized by great weakness, extreme exhaustion on slight effort, night sweats, chilliness, remittent fever, and generalized aches and pains and acquired through direct contact with infected animals or animal products or from the consumption of milk, dairy products, or meat from infected animals" (Webster's Third New International Dictionary, Unabridged (1981), at 285).

For many years the Federal Government has maintained a vigorous and costly program directed to the control and eradication of this disease (Tr. 32–33, 1059–63). For example, in 1980, the Federal Government spent $73,715,667 for brucellosis eradication (1982 Budget Explanatory Notes, USDA, vol. 2, at 8). To control the disease, some entire herds of cattle are destroyed, with some indemnification from the Federal Government (9 CFR § 51.3(a)(2) (1980); Tr. 239–41). Because of the large economic impact of the cattle industry on the nation, the success of the Brucellosis Eradication Program is of national importance.

In carrying out the Brucellosis Eradication Program, the Federal Government, through regulations issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, regulates the interstate movement of cattle. 9 CFR Part 78 (1980).

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

ORDER

Respondent, Wayne J. Blaser, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $2,000, which shall be paid within 30 days after service of this order. This civil penalty shall be made payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Clement J. CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondents violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (CFR § 78.1 et seq.).

The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulation:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondents admit specifically that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations in the complaint, admit to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waive:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondents waive any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondents in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Bob Huntington, herein referred to as a respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 1 Box 22, Chatfield, Minnesota 55923.

2. Don Huntington, herein referred to as a respondent, is an individual whose address is Riceville Sale Pavilion, Riceville, Iowa 50466.

3. On or about May 25, 1985, respondent Bob Huntington moved interstate 13 cattle from Ettrick, Wisconsin to Chatfield, Minnesota.

4. On or about May 25, 1985, respondent Don Huntington moved interstate 6 cattle from Chatfield, Minnesota to Riceville, Iowa.

5. On or about July 7, 1985, respondent Bob Huntington moved interstate 6 cattle from Chatfield, Minnesota to Riceville, Iowa.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondents having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of the proceeding, such Order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Bob Huntington, is assessed a civil penalty of five hundred ($500.00), and Respondent Don Huntington is assessed a civil penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Clement J. McGovern, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. CONSENT DECISION AS TO JOE H. PEOPLES

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 71.1 et seq. and § 78.1 et seq.). The complainant and the respondent, Joe H. Peoples, have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated with respect to Joe H. Peoples by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Mr. Joe H. Peoples, respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 1, Box 196, Greenwood, Arkansas 72936.

2. On or about January 1, 1985, the respondent moved interstate approximately 24 cattle from Rock Island, Oklahoma to Greenwood, Arkansas.

3. On or about March 29, 1985, the respondent moved interstate approximately 24 cattle from Greenwood, Arkansas to Rock Island, Oklahoma.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order to be mailed to USDA, APHIS Field Servicing Office, Accounting Section, Butler Square West, 5th Floor, 100 North 6th Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55403, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order. DECISION AND ORDER

Respondent is charged with moving nine (9) brucellosis reactor cattle and fourteen (14) brucellosis-exposed cattle in interstate commerce without required documentation in violation of certain statutory and regulatory requirements.[1]

The evidence establishes these violations occurred as charged.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

1. Randall J. Moore, respondent herein, is an individual whose address is Route 2, Box 714, Eunice, Louisiana 70535.

2.(a) Respondent Moore directed that nine (9) brucellosis reactor cattle be moved interstate from Lake Charles, Louisiana, to Lufkin, Texas on or about September 27, 1984.

(b) The interstate movement of these nine (9) brucellosis reactor cattle was in violation of § 78.7 of the regulations (9 CFR 78.7) because the cattle were not accompanied by the required permit.

3.(a) Respondent Moore also directed that thirteen (13) brucellosis-exposed cattle be moved interstate from Lake Charles, Louisiana to Lufkin, Texas about September 27, 1984.

(b) The interstate movement of these thirteen (13) brucellosis-exposed cattle was in violation of § 78.8 of the regulations because the cattle were not accompanied by the VS form 1-27 permit or "S" brand permit.

4.(a) The cattle in this shipment were not "steers and spayed heifers" which could be moved interstate without documentation. (9 CFR § 78.6)

(b) The cattle in this shipment were all brucellosis reactor or brucellosis-exposed cattle subject to the regulatory restrictions under § 78.7 and § 78.8. (9 CFR § 78.7 and § 78.8)

DISCUSSION

The evidence substantiates the charges in the complaint that the respondent violated the regulations. The respondent is an experienced cattle dealer and aware of the requirements for the interstate movement of cattle.

---

[1] Act of February 2, 1903 as amended (Act), 21 U.S.C. 111 and 120, and implementing regulations 9 CFR 78.1, et. seq., in particular § 78.7 and § 78.8.

The evidence establishes that the cattle were diseased with (or exposed to) brucellosis, which is highly communicable and contagious, not only to cattle, but also to people, causing undulant fever. Brucellosis is not only a problem for the cattle industry, it is a public health problem.

The Department is involved in a brucellosis eradication program. The program is based, in part, on the ability to monitor and trace the interstate movement of cattle. The respondent's movement of the cattle without proper documentation thwarted that program. A "paper trail" is vital.

The cattle here were all handled as brucellosis reactor or exposed cattle, and tagged or branded accordingly. In fact, respondent admits in his answer that the "cattle were either brucellosis reactor or were brucellosis-exposed cattle, and as such, appropriate instructions" were given by respondent for their shipment. (Paragraph 5 of respondent's Answer)

Respondent contended that errors occurred in the preparation and handling of the permits, and that they were neither his fault nor his responsibility.

To the contrary, the picture is clear that respondent is indifferent to his obligations in handling diseased (or potentially diseased) cattle. Further, respondent's testimony is not persuasive and is of doubtful credibility in his description of "stack[s]" of permits (VS 1-27) lying weeks without concern at the sales barn. (TR p. 131)

On brief, respondent argues that there was no proof that the subject cattle were not "steers and spayed heifers" exempted by § 78.6 (9 CFR § 78.6) from the shipment restrictions applied here.

Neither the pleadings nor the evidence offer any support for respondent's argument. No questions existed concerning the status of the cattle as subject to § 78.7 and § 78.8 until the post-trial brief.

Complainant has sustained the burden of proof on that and all other points. Testimony and documentation provided by complainant is persuasive. The respondent's alternative and contradictory defenses are each without merit. Finally, respondent's credibility was not worthy of much weight.

The sanction sought by complainant is warranted and appropriate. Complainant gave appropriate consideration to the fact that the cattle were promptly slaughtered and therefore, the risk of spreading the disease was minimized.

ORDER

Randall J. Moore, respondent, is assessed a civil penalty of one thousand dollars ($1,000). The civil penalty shall be payable to, "The Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order and shall be forwarded to the Assistant General Counsel, Regulatory Division, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422-South Building, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400. This civil penalty shall be paid not later than six (6) months from the date this Decision and Order become final.

This Decision and Order shall be final and effective 35 days after service hereof, unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days of service (7 CFR § 1.142(c) and § 1.145(a)).

[The Decision and Order became final on October 20, 1986.—Ed.]

In re: J.W. GUFFY A.Q. Docket No. 234. Decided October 20, 1986.

Interstate cattle movement without certificate. Brucellosis prevention.

The Judicial Officer affirmed Chief Judge Campbell's order assessing civil penalties totalling $2,000 against respondent for moving seven cattle interstate without a certificate or a permit for entry, as required under the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle because of brucellosis. Respondent's answer was filed after the 20-day time limit, did not deny the allegations of the complaint and did not request a hearing. Accordingly, a default decision was properly issued. Importance of Brucellosis Eradication Program explained. Even if respondent's answer had been timely filed, respondent argues only that he signed a statement admitting that he was in technical violation of the regulations after he was assured that the matter would end at that point. However, even if equitable estoppel would be applicable to those facts if private litigants were involved, it does not apply to the exercise of the Secretary's disciplinary authority under regulatory statutes.

Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.
Clement McGovern, for complainant.
Jim Short, Salem, Arkansas, for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of civil penalties for violations of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle to prevent the spread of brucellosis (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). An initial Decision and Order was issued on July 7, 1986, by Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. Campbell (ALJ) assessing civil penalties totalling $2,000.

On August 11, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[1] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on September 19, 1986.

---

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c-450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg.

Continued

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, with trivial changes. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle because of brucellosis (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 9 CFR § 70.1 et seq. and 7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.

This proceeding was initiated by a complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Acting Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that the respondent transported cattle interstate from Salem, Arkansas, to Memphis, Tennessee, in violation of section 78.9(d)(3)(iii) and 78.9(d)(3)(iv) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)(3)(iii) and 78.9(d)(3)(iv)). On or about June 11, 1985, the respondent moved seven (7) cattle interstate without a certificate or a permit for entry which contained the prescribed information. The respondent filed a late response to the complaint, and failed to deny or otherwise respond to any of the material allegations contained in the complaint. Therefore, for the purposes of this proceeding, the allegations in the complaint are deemed to have been admitted and the right to a hearing is deemed waived. (See 7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the Findings of Fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding. (See 7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

I

J. W. Cuffy, herein referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose address is Route 2, Box 141, Viola, Arkansas 72583.

3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

II

On or about June 11, 1985, the respondent moved interstate six cattle from Salem, Arkansas, to Memphis, Tennessee, in violation of section 78.9(d)(3)(iii) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)(3)(iii)), in that the six cattle were not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

III

On or about June 11, 1985, the respondent moved interstate six cattle, from Salem, Arkansas, to Memphis, Tennessee, in violation of section 78.9(d)(3)(iii) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)(3)(iii)), in that the six cattle were not accompanied by a permit for entry, as required.

IV

On or about June 11, 1985, the respondent moved one cow, which was two years of age or older, from Salem, Arkansas, to Memphis, Tennessee, in violation of section 78.9(d)(3)(iv) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)(3)(iv)), in that the cow was not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

V

On or about June 11, 1985, the respondent moved a cow, which was two years of age or older, from Salem, Arkansas, to Memphis, Tennessee, in violation of section 78.9(d)(3)(iv) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)(3)(iv)), in that the cow was not accompanied by a permit for entry, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated section 78.9(d)(3)(iii) and (iv) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)(3)(iii) and (iv)).

Therefore, the following order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days after service of the complaint, or a respondent's failure to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations of the complaint, constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139, .141(a)):

§ 1.136 Answer.

(a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .

(b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or

(2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or

(3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.141 Procedure for Hearing.

(a) Request for Hearing. Any party may request a hearing on the facts by including such request in the complaint or answer, or by a separate request, in writing, filed with the Hearing Clerk within the time in which an answer may be filed. Failure to request a hearing within the time allowed for the filing of the answer shall constitute a waiver of such hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical in all material respects to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that complainant was seeking a $2,000 civil penalty. The complaint advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days, and that failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation shall constitute an admission of such allegation, as follows (Complaint at 2):

WHEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that for the purpose of determining whether or not respondent has, in fact, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder, this complaint shall be served upon the respondent. The respondent shall have twenty (20) days after receipt of this complaint in which to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, in accordance with the applicable Rules of Practice (9 CFR § 70.1 and 7 CFR § 1.136). Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Failure to file an answer within the time allowed therefor shall constitute an admission of the allegations in this complaint and a waiver of hearing.

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days, or failure to plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint. The letter states:

In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which > to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.

> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

Respondent's answer was filed 10 days after the 20-day period permitted by the rules of practice, fails to request a hearing, and does not deny the allegations of the complaint. Accordingly, under the plain provisions of the rules of practice, the default decision was properly issued.[2]

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 421 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer (who does not have a law clerk) disposed of 45 cases (including one on remand from the Seventh Circuit that required a 529-page decision to justify an 8-month suspension order and a $10,000 civil penalty for 14 separate livestock violations based on circumstantial evidence). In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk. The Department does not have the time or resources to hold a hearing at this late date for this respondent, who did not contest the allegations of the complaint in his answer.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' " [3] If respondent were permitted to contest some of the allegations of fact at this late date, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present matters by way of defense at this time.

The civil penalties assessed here are modest considering the importance of the Brucellosis Eradication Program. As stated in In re Grady, 45 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 67 (Jan. 31, 1986):

> The brucellosis eradication program is important to the national welfare. To date, the program has cost in excess of $1 billion. It costs about $150 million a year (Tr. 440).

The Brucellosis Eradication Program is described in In re Petty, 43 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 4-5 (Oct. 31, 1984), aff'd, No. 3-84-2200-R (N.D. Tex. June 5, 1986), as follows:

> 4. Brucellosis (also known as Bangs disease or undulant fever) is a contagious, infectious and communicable disease affecting livestock. It is transmittable to humans.[4] (Tr. 32, 95-96, 1056-59, 1160-64, 1177-80). The incubation period of the disease varies from about 10 days to a year, but does not generally exceed several months (Tr. 95, 1180).
> [4] Brucellosis is "a disease of man of sudden or insidious onset and long duration characterized by great weakness, extreme exhaustion on slight effort, night sweats, chilliness, remittent fever, and generalized aches and pains and acquired through direct contact with infected animals or animal products or from the consumption of milk, dairy products, or meat from infected animals" (Webster's Third New International Dictionary, Unabridged (1981), at 285).

For many years the Federal Government has maintained a vigorous and costly program directed to the control and eradication of this disease (Tr. 32-33, 1059-63). For example, in 1980, the Federal Government spent $73,715,667 for brucellosis eradication (1982 Budget Explanatory Notes, USDA, vol. 2, at 8). To control the disease, some entire herds of cattle are destroyed, with some indemnification from the Federal Government (9 CFR § 51.3(a)(2) (1980); Tr. 239-41). Because of the large economic impact of the cattle industry on the nation, the success of the Brucellosis Eradication Program is of national importance.

In carrying out the Brucellosis Eradication Program, the Federal Government, through regulations issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, regulates the interstate movement of cattle. 9 CFR Part 78 (1980).

In addition, even in respondent's appeal, respondent does not challenge the allegations of fact contained in the findings of fact herein, which are virtually identical to those alleged in the complaint. Instead, respondent contends that he signed a statement admitting that he was in technical violation of the regulations because he was assured that the matter would end at that point if he signed the statement. However, the statement referred to by respondent is not part of the record in this proceeding and is totally irrelevant to the issues involved on this appeal. In addition, even if the matter had proceeded to a hearing, there is no way of knowing whether the statement would have been offered in evidence by complainant. Furthermore, it has consistently been held that even if the facts would make equitable estoppel applicable if private litigants were involved, it does not apply to the exercise of the Secretary's disciplinary authority under the Department's regulatory statutes. E.g., In re Carlton F. Stowe, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1116, 1144-46 (1982), appeal dismissed, No. 82-4144 (2d Cir. Oct. 13, 1982); In re Ruster, 41 Agric. Even if we were to assume that the facts in this case presented a case for equitable estoppel, I adhere to the traditional view that equitable estoppel does not apply to the Government acting in its sovereign capacity.

As stated in United States v. Georgia-Pacific Company, 421 F.2d 92, 100–101 (C.A. 9):[25]

[25] See also Federal Crop Ins. Corp. v. Merrill, 332 U.S. 380, 383–386; Davis, Administrative Law Treatise (1958 ed. and 1970 supp.), §§ 17.01–17.04.

> Numerous cases reflect the position that equitable estoppels may be found against the Government in certain situations. Thus the courts have held that an equitable estoppel may be found against the Government (1) if the Government is acting in its proprietary rather than sovereign capacity; and (2) if its representative has been acting within the scope of his authority.
> (1) While it is said that the Government can be estopped in its proprietary role, but not in its sovereign role, the authorities are not clear about just what activities are encompassed by each. In its proprietary role, the Government is acting as a private concern would; in its sovereign role, the Government is carrying out its unique governmental functions for the benefit of the whole public.

Similarly, in United States v. State of Florida, 482 F.2d 205, 209 (C.A. 5), the Court stated:

> Whether the defense of estoppel may be asserted against the United States in actions instituted by it depends upon whether such actions arise out of transactions entered into in its proprietary capacity or contract relationships, or whether the actions arise out of the exercise of its powers of government. The United States is not subject to an estoppel which impedes the exercise of the powers of government, and is not estopped to deny the validity of a transaction or agreement which the law does not sanction. Sanitary Dist. v. United States, 266 U.S. 405, 45 S. Ct. 176, 69 L. Ed. 352 (1925); Utah Power & L. Co. v. United States, 243 U.S. 389, 37 S. Ct. 387, 61 L. Ed. 791 (1916). Nor does an estoppel arise through an act or representation made by an officer or agent without authority to act for the government in the premises. Wilber Nat. Bank. v. United States, 294 U.S. 120, 55 S. Ct. 362, 79 L. Ed. 798 (1935); Jeems Bayou Fishing & Hunting Club v. United States, 260 U.S. 561, 43 S. Ct. 205, 67 L. Ed. 402 (1922).

There is, however, some support for the view that in recent years, "the doctrine of sovereign immunity has begun to crumble, and so have the rules insulating the government from estoppel." Gestuvo v. District Dir. of U.S. Immigration & Nat. Serv., 337 F. Supp. 1093, 1098 (C.D. Cal. 1971). It has been said that estoppel now "hinges on only two considerations: estoppel is available if the government's wrongful conduct threatens to work a serious injustice and if the public's interest would not be unduly damaged by the imposition of estoppel" (id., at 1099). See, also, United States v. Lazy FC Ranch, 481 F.2d 985, 989 (C.A. 9), in which the Court said that—> estoppel is available as a defense against the government if the government's wrongful conduct threatens to work a serious injustice and if the public's interest would not be unduly damaged by the imposition of estoppel. Gestuvo v. District Dir. of I.N.S., 337 F. Supp. 1093 (C.D. Cal. 1971). This proposition is true even if the government is acting in a capacity that has traditionally been described as sovereign (as distinguished from proprietary) although we may be more reluctant to estop the government when it is acting in this capacity. See Georgia-Pacific, supra.

I believe that the older, traditional view best protects the public interest and should be adhered to. I would deal with wrongful conduct by Government employees through disciplinary actions, if their conduct warrants punishment, rather than by damaging the public interest to any degree.

But even if we were to apply the test set forth in the Gestuvo and Lazy FC Ranch cases, supra, the public interest would be "unduly damaged" by the imposition of estoppel here.

Here as in the M. & H. case, just quoted, even if equitable estoppel could be applicable to this proceeding in which the Government is acting in its sovereign role rather than its proprietary role, (i) respondent's appeal fails to show any serious injustice, and (ii) the public interest would be "unduly damaged" if the Secretary were estopped from issuing an appropriate disciplinary order here, which is needed to serve as an effective deterrent to future violations by respondent and other potential violators.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

ORDER

Respondent, J. W. Guffy, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $2,000, which shall be paid within 30 days after service of this order. This civil penalty shall be made payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Clement J. McGovern, Esq., U.S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, Washington, D.C., 20250-1400.

In re: LADNER FARMS. A.Q. Docket No. 273. Decided October 28, 1986.

Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.
Kevin Thiemann, for complainant.
Richard Fitzpatrick, Poplarville, Miss., for respondent.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that Ladner Farms, respondent, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Ladner Farms, respondent, is a business whose address is Route 4, Box 271, Poplarville, Mississippi 39470.

2. On or about September 19, 1984, the respondent moved three (3) cows interstate from Linden, Alabama, a Class B state, to Poplarville, Mississippi.

3. On or about October 3, 1984, the respondent moved five (5) cows interstate from Frisco City, Alabama, a Class B state, to Lucedale, Mississippi.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order and which shall be sent to "USDA, APHIS Field Servicing Office, Accounting Section, Butler Square West, 5th Floor, 100 North 6th Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55403" within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this Order. Respondent shall indicate on the certified check or money order that payment is in reference to A.Q. Docket No. 273.

This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

In re: BERT SMITH, A.Q. Docket No. 270. Decided October 31, 1986.

Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.
Kevin Thiemann, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.). The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Bert Smith, respondent, is an individual whose address is Box 725, Church Hill, Tennessee 37642.

2. On or about May 24, 1984, the respondent moved approximately fifty-eight (58) cows interstate from Abingdon, Virginia, a Class A state, to Church Hill, Tennessee.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Order and Decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00) which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order and which shall be sent to "USDA, APHIS Field Servicing Office, Accounting Section, Butler Square West, 5th Floor, 100 North 6th Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55403," within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this Order. Respondent shall indicate on the certified check or money order that payment is in reference to A.Q. Docket No. 270.

This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order if made upon the respondent.

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER

On June 18, 1986, an order was issued in the above-captioned matter, which, inter alia, suspended respondent as a dealer under the Act ". . . for thirty days and thereafter until he demonstrates to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) that he is in full compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder."

The respondent has demonstrated to APHIS that he is in full compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder. Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the suspension provision of the order issued June 18, 1986, is terminated. The order shall remain in effect in all other respects.

In re: DEAN LEWIS, AWA Docket No. 390. Decided September 5, 1986.

Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.
Howard Haas, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

DECISION (CONSENT)

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 2131 et seq.), by a complaint and order to show cause filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the respondent willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act (9 CFR § 1.1 et seq.). This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.138).

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and order to show cause and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The respondent Dean Lewis is an individual with address at 4063 71st Street, S.E., Salem, Oregon 97301. The respondent, at all times material herein, was a dealer within the meaning of the Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

The respondent, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

(1) Operating in any capacity for which a license is required under the Animal Welfare Act and the regulations issued thereunder without having applied for and obtained a license in accordance with the Act and the regulations.

(2) Operating as a licensee under the Act without submitting an annual license fee in accordance with 9 CFR § 2.6.

(3) Operating as a licensee under the Act without submitting an annual report in accordance with 9 CFR § 2.7.

(4) Operating as a licensee under the Act without promptly notifying the Veterinarian in Charge of any change in the name, address, management or substantial control or ownership of his business or operation within ten days after making such change, in accordance with 9 CFR § 2.8.

(5) Operating as a licensee under the Act without allowing access to and inspection by Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service Officials of his animal holding containers, animal transport, animal facilities, and records as required under the Act and regulations section 2.126 of the regulations (9 CFR § 2.126).

The respondent agrees that if he is issued a license under the Act, then for the three (3) years from the date of the issuance of a license he will file a quarterly report (a report every three months) with the Veterinarian in Charge in addition to the annual filing required by 9 CFR § 2.7(a).

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of $5,000.00 of which $2,000.00 shall be paid by a certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. The remaining $3,000.00 is hereby suspended and shall be held in abeyance, provided the respondent does not violate any of the provisions of this order within three (3) years from the date this order becomes effective.

The respondent's application for a license under the Animal and Welfare Act and the regulations issued thereunder is hereby denied until the respondent demonstrates to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service that he is in full compliance with the Act and the regulations issued thereunder. When the respondent demonstrates to the Animal and Welfare Inspection Service that the respondent is in strict compliance with the Act and the regulations issued thereunder, a license will be issued in accordance with the Act and the regulations issued thereunder.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.
John Griffith, for complainant.
Joseph D. Woodcock, Auror, Missouri, for respondent.

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER

On July 31, 1986, an order was issued in the above-captioned matter, which, inter alia, suspended respondent's license (43-A047) starting on August 1, 1986, for thirty days and thereafter until respondent complied with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder.

The respondent has demonstrated to APHIS that he is in full compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards issued thereunder. Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the suspension provision of the order issued July 31, 1986, is terminated. The order shall remain in effect in all other respects.

In re: MAIMONIDES MEDICAL CENTER, AWA Docket No. 403. Decided September 18, 1986.

John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.
Robert Frisby, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

DECISION (CONSENT)

This proceeding was instituted under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. §§ 2131-2156, by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that respondent willfully violated the regulations and standards issued pursuant to the Act, 9 CFR §§ 1.1-3.142. This decision is entered pursuant to the consent decision provisions of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding, 7 CFR § 1.138.

The respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations in paragraph I of the complaint and specifically admits that the Secretary has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations, waives oral hearing and further procedure, and consents and agrees, for the purpose of settling this proceeding and for such purpose only, to the entry of this decision.

The complainant agrees to the entry of this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Maimonides Medical Center, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is a New York corporation and its mailing address is 4802 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn, New York 11219.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and the parties having agreed to the entry of this decision, such decision will be entered.

ORDER

Respondent Maimonides Medical Center shall comply with each and every provision of the Animal Welfare Act, 7 U.S.C. §§ 2131-2156, and the regulations and standards issued thereunder, 9 CFR §§ 1.1-3.142, and shall cease and desist from any violation thereof. In particular, respondent, its agents and employees, shall ensure that:

1) The walls of its facility are in good repair as required by 9 CFR §§ 3.1(a) and 3.50(a);

2) Pests are controlled adequately as required by 9 CFR §§ 3.7(d) and 3.56(d);

3) Resting boards for dogs are substantially impervious to moisture as required by 9 CFR § 3.2(d);

4) Resting boards for dogs are sanitized properly as required by 9 CFR § 3.7(b);

5) Dog cage doors and dog runs are in good repair as required by 9 CFR § 3.4(a);

6) Cages for rabbits are rust-free as required by 9 CFR § 3.53(a);

7) Rabbit cages are properly sanitized as required by 9 CFR § 3.56(b);

8) Leaking battery acid is removed from the floor of its facility as required by 9 CFR §§ 3.7(c) and 3.56(c); and

9) Adequate post-operative veterinary care is provided for dogs as required by 9 CFR § 3.10.

Respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $500 to be paid by certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

The provisions of this order shall become effective on the first day after service of this decision on the respondent.

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties.

In re: GREAT AMERICAN VEAL COMPANY, INC. FMIA Docket No. 71. Decided September 9, 1986.

Bribery of certified meat inspectors—Fraud in food transactions

The Judicial Officer reversed Judge Baker's order withdrawing meat inspection service from respondent under the Federal Meat Inspection Act for 36 months, but suspending such withdrawal, except for 30 days, under certain conditions of compliance for 3 years. The Judicial Officer withdrew inspection indefinitely from respondent, but suspended the withdrawal if Mr. Burke, respondent's president and chief operating officer, becomes disassociated from respondent within 90 days and sells his stock within 1 year, and respondent is in compliance for 5 years. The order was issued under 21 U.S.C. § 671 as a result of Mr. Burke's conviction of 23 counts of contributing and supplementing the salary of the veterinarian medical officer of USDA assigned to respondent's plant, in connection with his official duties as the certified inspector. Convictions under 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) of supplementing the salary of the meat inspector assigned to a packing plant are necessarily based upon "fraud in connection with transactions in food," thereby affording a jurisdictional basis under 21 U.S.C. § 671 for a finding that the plant is "unfit" to receive meat inspection. Such convictions strike at the heart of the meat inspection program and per se render the plant "unfit" to receive meat inspection, regardless of any mitigating circumstances, unless the convicted individual is disassociated from the plant. USDA's per se approach is similar to the per se approach followed by the courts under the Sherman Act, under which price fixing and other antitrust violations are illegal per se. Prior cases involving the withdrawal of inspection or grading services summarized. Although the Judicial Officer believes that he correctly decided In re Utica Packing Co., 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Nov. 18, 1982) (decision on remand), in view of the subsequent Utica court decisions, he will construe the court of appeals' first Utica decision as requiring a consideration of the mitigating circumstances merely because the court was not sure whether the USDA proposition underlying its per se approach is correct or not. Assuming that the facts must be considered, the facts here show "fraud in connection with transactions in food" which render the plant "unfit" to receive meat inspection. Even if an inspector or grader used language that led the convicted individual to believe that a bribe was being solicited, that would not be significant in determining whether the packing plant is unfit to receive inspection.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

Harold Reuben, for complainant.
Harriet B. Rosen, Segal & Hundley, New York, N.Y., for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative action under the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.), in which an initial Decision and Order was filed on December 19, 1985, by Administrative Law Judge Dorothea A. Baker (ALJ) withdrawing inspection service from respondent for 36 months, but suspending such withdrawal, except for a period of 30 days, under certain conditions of compliance for 3 years.

On February 28, 1986, complainant appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[1] Complainant seeks the indefinite withdrawal of inspection service from respondent, with the withdrawal suspended if Thomas J. Burke, respondent's president and chief operating officer, is disassociated from respondent, and respondent is in compliance for 5 years.

On March 3, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, seeking the dismissal of the complaint.

Oral argument before the Judicial Officer, which is discretionary (7 CFR § 1.145(d)), was requested by respondent, but is denied inasmuch as the issues are not complex, prior cases (while not directly in point) are persuasive as to the result here, the case has been thoroughly briefed, and oral argument would seem to serve no useful purpose.

Based upon a careful consideration of the entire record, I am issuing the order proposed by complainant, except that Mr. Burke is given 90 days within which to become disassociated from respondent and one year within which to sell his stock, and the provision activating the withdrawal of inspection if any of respondent's personnel commit "any felony" within 5 years is deleted. The first three findings of fact set forth below are taken verbatim from complainant's proposed findings filed before the ALJ on October 9, 1984 (Complainant's Corrected Proposed Findings, etc., at 2–3). These were the only findings of fact proposed by complainant, and they were stipulated to in respondent's proposed findings filed before the ALJ on December 5, 1984 (Respondent's Proposed Findings, etc., at 4). The fourth finding is an ultimate finding derived from Findings 1, 2 and 3.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent is now, and at all times material was, a corporation which operates a cattle slaughtering and meat processing establishment in Newark, New Jersey, and is a recipient of Federal inspection services under Title I of the Act. Respondent's mailing address is 50 Avenue L, Newark, New Jersey 07105.

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

2. Thomas J. Burke is now, and at all times material was, the president of, chief operating officer of, and responsibly connected with, the respondent.

3. On or about May 19, 1983, in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey, Thomas J. Burke was convicted of twenty-three (23) counts of contributing and supplementing, in various sums, the salary of Dr. Michael Gabriel, a veterinary medical officer of the United States Department of Agriculture, in connection with his official duties as the certified inspector assigned to the respondent, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, sections 209(a) and 2.

4. By reason of the facts set forth in Findings 1 through 3, supra, respondent is unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection under subchapter I of the Federal Meat Inspection Act.

CONCLUSIONS

I. Mr. Burke's 23 Misdemeanor Convictions Under 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) Are Based on "Fraud in Connection with Transactions in Food," and Render Respondent "Unfit" to Receive Meat Inspection Unless Mr. Burke Is Disassociated from the Plant.

The statutory provisions now designated as the Federal Meat Inspection Act were originally enacted in 1907 as part of the Department's Appropriation Act. The 1907 Act made it a felony for any person to give money or other thing of value to a meat inspector with intent to influence the inspector in the discharge of his duties. 21 U.S.C. § 622. The 1907 Act also authorized the Secretary to withdraw meat inspection services from establishments failing to maintain sanitary conditions or to destroy condemned carcasses, parts, meat or meat food products. 7 U.S.C. §§ 604, 606, 608.

The provisions of the Federal Meat Inspection Act were substantially strengthened in 1967 by the inclusion of the provisions under which the present proceeding was brought. In the 1967 amendatory legislation, the Congress set forth the following Congressional statement of findings (21 U.S.C. § 602; emphasis added):

> § 602. Congressional statement of findings
> Meat and meat food products are an important source of the Nation's total supply of food. They are consumed throughout the Nation and the major portion thereof moves in interstate or foreign commerce. It is essential in the public interest that the health and welfare of consumers be protected by assuring that meat and meat food products distributed to them are wholesome, not adulterated, and properly marked, labeled, and packaged. Unwholesome, adulterated, or misbranded meat or meat food products impair the effective regulation of meat and meat food products in interstate or foreign commerce, are injurious to the public welfare, destroy markets for wholesome, not adulterated, and properly labeled and packaged meat and meat food products, and result in sundry losses to livestock producers and processors of meat and meat food products, as well as injury to consumers. The unwholesome, adulterated, mislabeled, or deceptively packaged articles can be sold at lower prices and compete unfairly with the wholesome, not adulterated, and properly labeled and packaged articles, to the detriment of consumers and the public generally. It is hereby found that all articles and animals which are regulated under this chapter are either in interstate or foreign commerce or substantially affect such commerce, and that regulation by the Secretary and cooperation by the States and other jurisdictions as contemplated by this chapter are appropriate to prevent and eliminate burdens upon such commerce, to effectively regulate such commerce, and to protect the health and welfare of consumers.

In order to further protect the "health and welfare of consumers" (7 U.S.C. § 602), Congress added the provisions under which this proceeding was brought, which state (21 U.S.C. § 671; emphasis added):

> The Secretary may (for such period, or indefinitely, as he deems necessary to effectuate the purposes of this chapter) refuse to provide, or withdraw, inspection service under subchapter I of this chapter with respect to any establishment if he determines, after opportunity for a hearing is accorded to the applicant for, or recipient of, such service, that such applicant or recipient is unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection under subchapter I of this chapter because the applicant or recipient, or anyone responsibly connected with the applicant or recipient, has been convicted, in any Federal or State court, of (1) any felony, or (2) more than one violation of any law, other than a felony, based upon the acquiring, handling, or distributing of unwholesome, mislabeled, or deceptively packaged food or upon fraud in connection with transactions in food. This section shall not affect in any way other provisions of this chapter for withdrawal of inspection services under subchapter I of this chapter from establishments failing to maintain sanitary conditions or to destroy condemned carcasses, parts, meat or meat food products.

The conviction of Thomas J. Burke, respondent's president and chief operating officer, of 23 misdemeanors involving contributing to and supplementing the salary of Dr. Gabriel, the Department's veterinary medical officer assigned to perform the Department's inspection service at respondent's plant, in connection with his official duties as the certified inspector assigned to respondent, inherently and necessarily (i) involves "fraud in connection with transactions in food," and (ii) renders respondent "unfit" to engage in business requiring the Department's meat inspection services (21 U.S.C. § 671).

The criminal statute under which respondent was convicted provides (18 U.S.C. § 209(a)):

> § 209. Salary of Government officials and employees payable only by United States
> (a) Whoever receives any salary, or any contribution to or supplementation of salary, as compensation for his services as an officer or employee of the executive branch of the United States Government, of any independent agency of the United States, or of the District of Columbia, from any source other than the Government of the United States, except as may be contributed out of the treasury of any State, county, or municipality; or
>
> Whoever, whether an individual, partnership, association, corporation, or other organization pays, or makes any contribution to, or in any way supplements the salary of, any such officer or employee under circumstances which would make its receipt a violation of this subsection—
> Shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

The provisions of 18 U.S.C. § 2, also involved in Mr. Burke's criminal convictions, merely make it clear that he was punishable as a principal.[2]

---

[2] § 2. Principals

(a) Whoever commits an offense against the United States or aids, abets, counsels, commands, induces or procures its commission, is punishable as a principal.

(b) Whoever willfully causes an act to be done which if directly performed by him or another would be an offense against the United States, is punishable as a principal.

A. Convictions of Supplementing the Salary of the Meat Inspector Assigned to a Packing Plant in Connection with His Official Meat Inspection Duties Are Necessarily Based Upon "Fraud in Connection with Transactions in Food."

All of the work of a meat inspector at a packing plant relates to "transactions in food," and, therefore, when Mr. Burke, the president and chief operating officer of respondent's packing plant, was convicted of 23 counts of supplementing the salary of the Federal inspector assigned to inspect at the plant, in connection with his official duties as the certified inspector at the plant, the convictions are necessarily based upon "transactions in food." In addition, since Mr. Burke was convicted of violating a Federal conflict-of-interest statute, his convictions are necessarily based upon "fraud."

The provisions in 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) were added in 1962 to replace similar conflict-of-interest provisions previously in 18 U.S.C. § 1914 (62 Stat. 683, 793 (1948)), which, in turn, were derived from the Act of March 3, 1917 (39 Stat. 1070, 1106 (1917)). The Senate Report relating to the 1962 amendatory legislation expressly refers to the replaced provisions of 18 U.S.C. § 1914 as "relating to conflicts of interest" (S. Rep. No. 2213, 87th Cong., 2d Sess., reprinted in 1962 U.S. Code Cong. & Ad. News 3852, 3856). The Senate Report explains the provisions of 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) as follows (id. at 3863):

> Section 209. Salary of Government officials and employees payable only by United States
> Section 209 is similar to title 18, United States Code, section 1914. The latter prohibits a Government employee from receiving any salary in connection with his Government services from a private source. Subsection (a) of section 209 would reenact this prohibition in substance and, in addition, would make it an offense for anyone to make a payment to a Government employee the receipt of which would violate the section.
>
> The present statute's ban on the receipt of private payments "in connection with" an employee's Government services is replaced in section 209(a) with a ban on the receipt of such payments "as compensation for" such services. The new language is more precise in expressing what is clearly intended by the present broad phrase.
>
> * * * * * * *
> The maximum penalties authorized by section 209 are a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for 1 year, or both.

The Senate Report as to the amendatory legislation concludes with the following language (id. at 3864):

> The committee is of the opinion that this legislation, as amended by the committee, is a long step forward in strengthening and revising the existing conflict-of-interest laws.

The House Report with respect to the 1962 amendatory legislation emphasizes that the criminal prohibition in 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) is against private payment made to a government employee expressly for services rendered to the Government. The report states (H.R. Rep. No. 748, 87th Cong., 1st Sess. 24-25 (1961)):

> Salary of Government officials and employees payable only by United States (sec. 209)
> Section 209 varies only to a minor extent in its substantive prohibitions from the section which it would replace, 18 U.S.C. 1914, which prohibits a Government employee from receiving compensation for his Government service from private sources and also prohibits any nongovernmental person or organization from paying or supplementing the employee's Government salary for such service.
>
> Section 1914 prohibits the receipt of private "salary" in connection with an employee's Government services. Section 209 prohibits the receipt of salary, "or any contribution to or supplementation of salary," to conform with the equivalent prohibition imposed upon the payor by section 209.
>
> Whereas the prohibition of section 1914 applies to private salary paid "in connection with" the Government services of the employee, section 209 substitutes the phrase "as compensation for" his services as an officer or employee in order to emphasize the intent that the prohibition is against private payment made expressly for services rendered to the Government. The phrase "in connection with" is vague and capable of an indefinitely broad interpretation.
> The enumeration of persons forbidden to pay a Government employee for his Government services is extended by section 209 to include a "partnership" and "other organization," and "an individual" is substituted for "a person." The modified enumeration is more comprehensive than in section 1914 and makes clear the intent that any kind of organization, whether profit or nonprofit, should be subject to the prohibition of the section.

* * * * * * *

The inclusion of the specified exceptions is not to be construed as limiting the right of an employee to receive compensation from private sources except as payment for his services as a Government official. The section does not bar private employment or other activities not connected with the Government position of the official and not proscribed by other statutory prohibitions.

The penalty provision of section 1914 is increased in section 209 from a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than 6 months, or both, to a maximum fine of $5,000 or maximum imprisonment of 1 year or both.

In United States v. Pezzello, 474 F. Supp. 462, 463 (N.D. Tex. 1979), the court concluded that where an employee of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES), an instrumentality of the United States, received $13,000 as an illegal supplement to his Federal salary from individuals and corporations contracting with AAFES, the receipt of the payments constituted a breach of the employee's fiduciary duties and agency relationship. The court held (474 F. Supp. at 463):

2. The receipt of $13,000 by AAFES employee Anthony Pezzello from individuals and corporations doing business with AAFES constitued a breach of Pezzello's fiduciary duties and agency relationship with his employer, AAFES, and Defendant Pezzello is liable in this amount to AAFES.

3. Defendant Pezzello would be equally liable to return the sum of $13,000 he improperly received while in the employ of AAFES under the theory of unjust enrichment since he has received something of value at the expense of AAFES under circumstances which impose a legal duty of restitution.

In Exchange National Bank of Chicago v. Abramson, 295 F. Supp. 87, 89–90 (D. Minn. 1969), the court explained that 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) "is designed to prohibit outsiders from supplementing a government employee's salary," and that "[t]he evils of such, were it permitted, are obvious."

In United States v. Raborn, 575 F.2d 688, 691-92 (9th Cir. 1978), the court held that both 18 U.S.C. § 209 and 18 U.S.C. § 201(c) [3] seek to prevent the divided loyalty of public employees, but that the section 209 offense is not a lesser included offense because the section 201(c) offense could be committed without committing the section 209 offense. The court held (ibid.):

> Appellant also claims that the misdemeanor offense defined under 18 U.S.C. § 209 is a lesser included offense of § 201(c) and that the court erred in refusing to give an instruction to this effect. A crime is a lesser included offense of another crime if the lesser offense is necessarily presented as part of the showing of the greater offense, and both crimes relate to the protection of the same interests. United States v. Stolarz, supra, 550 F.2d at 491. "Stated differently, the [lesser] offense must not require some additional element not needed to constitute the greater offense." Olais-Castro v. United States, 416 F.2d 1155, 1157 (9th Cir. 1969). Under Fed.R.Crime.P. 31(c), when some of the elements of the crime charged constitute a lesser crime, the defendant is entitled to an instruction on the lesser included offense if the evidence will support such a charge. Sansone v. United States, 380 U.S. 343, 349, 85 S.Ct. 1004, 13 L.Ed.2d 882 (1965); Olais-Castro v. United States, supra.
> Comparing the essential elements of section 201(c) and section 209, we find that the latter is not a lesser included offense of the former. Section 209 prohibits (1) an officer or employee of the executive branch or an independent

[3] (c) Whoever, being a public official or person selected to be a public official, directly or indirectly, corruptly asks, demands, exacts, solicits, seeks, accepts, receives, or agrees to receive anything of value for himself or for any other person or entity, in return for:

(1) being influenced in his performance of any official act; or

(2) being influenced to commit or aid in committing, or to collude in, or allow, any fraud, or make opportunity for the commission of any fraud on the United States; or

(3) being induced to do or omit to do any act in violation of his official duty . . .

. . . .

Shall be fined not more than $20,000 or three times the monetary equivalent of the thing of value, whichever is greater, or imprisoned for not more than fifteen years, or both, and may be disqualified from holding any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States.

agency of the United States government from (2) receiving salary or any contribution to or supplementation of salary from (3) any source other than the United States (4) as compensation for services as an employee of the United States. 18 U.S.C. § 209. Section 201(c) requires proof that a (1) public official [1] (2) corruptly (3) asked, demanded, received, or agreed to receive an item of value (4) in return for being influenced in the performance of any official act or being influenced to commit or aid in committing a fraud on the United States, or being induced to act in violation of an official duty. 18 U.S.C. § 201(c). While both sections seek to prevent the divided loyalty of public employees, the section 201(c) offense could be committed without committing the section 209 offense. Both crimes require proof that a public employee received something of value from an outside source, but section 209 requires proof of an additional element that section 201(c) does not, namely that the public employee received salary or a supplement to salary "as compensation for services as an employee of the United States." Under section 201(c), the public official need not receive the item of value as compensation for services as a government employee, but only as a quid pro quo in return for influence or the commission of a wrongful act. We conclude that the court properly denied appellant's request for a lesser included offense instruction.

[1] Public official is defined in relevant part as "an officer or employee or person acting for or on behalf of the United States, or any department, agency or branch of Government thereof . . . in any official function, under or by authority of any such department, agency, or branch of Government. . . ." 18 U.S.C. § 201(a).

The conviction of Mr. Burke of 23 misdemeanor counts of supplementing the salary of the Department's veterinary medical officer in connection with the veterinarian's official duties as the certified inspector assigned to respondent's plant necessarily and inherently involves fraud.

In the world of Alice in Wonderland, it might be inferred that Mr. Burke supplemented the salary of the government veterinarian assigned to his plant in connection with the veterinarian's official duties as the inspector assigned to respondent's plant merely because Mr. Burke felt that all government employees are underpaid, and he wanted to do his part to correct that injustice. But in the real world in which we operate, I infer that Mr. Burke supplemented the inspector's salary in connection with his official duties as the certified inspector assigned to respondent's plant (at least) in order to gain favor with the inspector, thereby obstructing or subverting (at least to some degree) the relationship between the inspector and the Government. Any such interference with the employment status of the Federal inspector vis-a-vis the Government is fraudulent.

The term "fraud" is not defined in the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 671). It is defined in Webster's Third New International Dictionary, Unabridged 904 (1981), as follows:

> fraud . . . 1a: an instance or an act of trickery or deceit esp. when involving misrepresentation: an act of deluding: . . . (2) or fraud in equity: an act, omission to act, or concealment by which one person obtains an advantage against conscience over another or which equity or public policy forbids as being prejudicial to another (as an act in violation of a relationship of trust and confidence)—called also equitable fraud, legal fraud; . . . b: a means used in trickery: a dishonest stratagem or a spurious thing passed off as genuine: . . . 2: the quality of being deceitful: the disposition to deceive. . . .

By way of analogy, the phrase "to defraud the United States" in a criminal conspiracy statute (now 18 U.S.C. § 371) was defined by the Court as follows:

> To conspire to defraud the United States means primarily to cheat the Government out of property or money, but it also means to interfere with or obstruct one of its lawful governmental functions by deceit, craft or trickery, or at least by means that are dishonest.

Hammerschmidt v. United States, 265 U.S. 182, 188 (1924); accord United States v. Richter, 610 F. Supp. 480, 485–86 (N.D. Ill. 1985).

Mr. Burke's criminal convictions clearly involve fraud, as that term is ordinarily understood.

Respondent contends that there was no fraud because the loyalty of the government inspector was not subverted but, rather, he went to the Department's Inspector General, and with the concurrence of the Department of Justice, he was wired with a tape recorder, resulting in respondent's convictions. Although in a civil action under common law based upon fraud it might be necessary to prove that the plaintiff relied upon the fraud to his detriment, the term fraud in its ordinary usage is not restricted in that manner. It would be absurd to construe the word "fraud" in 21 U.S.C. § 671 to apply only to misdemeanor convictions where the inspector was dishonest and accepted the supplement to his income without advising the Department of the criminal activity.

Under respondent's argument, the presidents of two meat packing plants could engage in the exact same conduct, and be convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) of the exact number of misdemeanors, but the misdemeanors in one case would be regarded as involving "fraud," so that the plant could be found "unfit" to receive inspection, whereas the misdemeanors in the other case would not be regarded as involving "fraud," so that the plant could not be found "unfit" to receive inspection, depending on whether the inspector at the plant happened to be honest or dishonest with respect to the income supplementation. Such a narrow and debilitating construction would completely thwart the congressional purpose of this remedial legislation.

For the foregoing reasons, I conclude that Mr. Burke's convictions involve "fraud in connection with transactions in food," which affords a statutory basis for a finding that respondent is "unfit" to continue to receive inspection service under the Federal Meat Inspection Act.

To summarize, the Department is following a per se approach in this case, which will be followed in all future cases involving convictions under 18 U.S.C. § 209(a). That is, since convictions of a packing plant official under 18 U.S.C. § 209(a) involving payments to the Federal meat inspector assigned to his plant require proof that the payments were made "as compensation for his services as an officer or employee of the executive branch of the United States Government," it will be inferred in every case, irrespective of the particular facts revealed by the record of the criminal proceeding, that the convictions are based upon "fraud in connection with transactions in food," which affords a jurisdictional basis for finding that the packing plant is "unfit" to receive inspection service.[4] [4] This jurisdictional issue does not arise where there has been a felony conviction for corrupt bribery under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) or for an unlawful gratuity "for or because of any official act performed or to be performed" by an inspector under 18 U.S.C. § 201(f) since the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. § 671) does not require that a felony involve fraud or food. In re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380, 393-94 (1979), aff'd, No. H-79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981), appeal dismissed, No. 81-6080 (2d Cir. Jan. 22, 1982).

---

B. Convictions of Supplementing the Salary of the Meat Inspector Assigned to a Packing Plant in Connection with His Official Meat Inspection Duties Strike at the Heart of the Meat Inspection Program and Per Se Render the Plant "Unfit" to Receive Meat Inspection, Regardless of any Mitigating Circumstances, Unless the Convicted Individual Is Disassociated from the Plant.

The authority given to the Secretary of Agriculture by Congress to withdraw inspection service from a plant if he determines that, because of certain criminal convictions, the plant is unfit to receive inspection is not to provide additional punishment for the offenses involved in the convictions. Congress was well aware of the fact that when a person is convicted of a criminal offense in a state or federal court, the criminal sentence provides the punishment for the offense. In determining the punishment for the offense, no matter how serious the offense, mitigating circumstances are, of course, highly relevant.

But the withdrawal of inspection service because of criminal convictions is not to punish, but, rather, to protect the health and welfare of consumers by assuring that meat and meat food products distributed to them are wholesome, not adulterated, and properly marked, labeled and packaged (21 U.S.C. § 602). Accordingly, in determining whether a plant is "unfit" to receive inspection because of criminal convictions, since punishment is not involved, we should not look to criminal standards.

The only reason why any type of criminal conviction might make a plant "unfit" to receive inspection is that, because of the conviction, the inspection service could no longer depend on the reliability and integrity of the plant's management. As stated in many previous cases discussed below in this section, since meat inspectors cannot observe every activity at a plant by every employee which affects the wholesomeness of the product, the inspection service must be able to depend on the reliability and integrity of the plant's management to be assured that the health and welfare of consumers will be protected. See, e.g., In re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380, 394-96 (1979), aff'd, No. H-79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981), appeal dismissed, No. 81-6080 (2d Cir. Jan. 22, 1982).

Specifically, the inspection service must be able to depend on the integrity of the plant's management not to attempt to subvert the loyalty of the inspector (through bribes or related offenses) or to thwart the inspection process, e.g., by sneaking prohibited chemicals or substances into meat or meat products behind the inspector's back, or surreptitiously using condemned products.

The official mark "U.S. INSP'D & P'S'D" is a symbol accepted throughout the United States as assurance that the meat is wholesome and not adulterated or misbranded. Similarly, official Federal grade marks, such as "USDA Choice," are accepted throughout the United States as assurance that the meat is of a certain quality. Those marks will continue to be accepted as assurance of wholesomeness and quality only if government inspectors and graders continue to have competence and integrity, and packing plant operators continue to cooperate with, rather than attempt to subvert, the inspection and grading process.

The great majority of packing plant operators and inspectors and graders are competent and honest and, therefore, the public has good reason for accepting inspection and grading marks at face value. Unfortunately, however, there are a number of circumstances relating to the inspection and grading process that lend themselves to bribery and related offenses, and, therefore, the administrative officials charged with the responsibility for assuring the wholesomeness and proper quality designation of our Nation's meat supply maintain an ongoing program to prevent and eliminate such offenses. A number of the more obvious circumstances that lend themselves to bribery and related offenses are discussed immediately below.

First, the vast majority of government employees work in a government office surrounded by other government employees, with their supervisors nearby. However, meat inspectors and graders work in a meat plant, which is the property of the packing plant owners, surrounded by employees and officials of the packing plant. In many packing plants, such as respondent's plant, the inspector's supervisor is not located in the plant.

Second, meat inspectors, including some supervisors, are relatively low-paid employees, and packing plant officials have, at times, paid weekly (tax free) bribes to meat inspectors or graders equal to or more than their Federal take-home pay (see, e.g., In re National Meat Packers, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 169, 171–72 (1978)).

Third, inspectors and graders make decisions that have a large financial impact on the packing plant. Many decisions are borderline, involving close judgment calls. Some decisions affect far more than an individual animal or carcass. For example, the meat inspector has the power (which was exercised at respondent's plant) to stop the entire production line, which means that all, or many, of the packer's employees (respondent had about 25 employees (PX 9, p. 95)) [5] are standing around idly, drawing full pay until the inspector permits the line to start again. Accordingly, "buying" the goodwill of the inspector or grader, or "buying" particular favors, is economically attractive, except for the penalties resulting from detection.

[5] Numerous record references are included in this decision, but no attempt has been made to be exhaustive in the record citations. "Tr." references relate to the administrative proceeding and "PX" or "RX" references relate to the criminal record which was received in evidence (as exhibits) in the administrative proceeding.

Bribery and related offenses are cancerous in nature which, unless stopped, can become the routine course of business among the inspectors and graders at a particular plant, or even in an entire area. See In re National Meat Packers, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 169, 172-73 (1978), in which it is explained (footnote omitted):

> In southern California between 1974 and 1976, 17 meatpacking houses and 35 employees of meatpackers were indicted and convicted of either bribery or illegally giving gratuity to meat graders. The involved plants constituted "a major part of the slaughtering companies or those using Federal grading service" in southern California (Tr. 19).
> Sixteen Federal meat graders were indicted and convicted of receiving money.

All of these circumstances are relevant in judging the reasonableness of USDA's policy, which calls for the withdrawal or denial of Federal inspection or grading services where there have been convictions for bribery or related offenses involving meat inspectors or graders, regardless of mitigating circumstances, unless the convicted individual is disassociated from the plant.

Another relevant circumstance is reflected in the congressional statement of findings with respect to the Federal Meat Inspection Act, viz. (21 U.S.C. § 602; emphasis added):

> It is essential in the public interest that the health and welfare of consumers be protected by assuring that meat and meat food products distributed to them are wholesome, not adulterated, and properly marked, labeled, and packaged.

In addition, it should be noted that the Department of Agriculture has no crystal ball to enable it to determine which persons convicted of bribery or related offenses involving the inspection or grading staff will repeat such offenses in the future. The record of judges and parole boards in determining which criminals can safely be placed on probation or released on parole is far from perfect. We could not expect to have a better record at USDA. Where the health of the public is at stake, the only responsible course of action is for USDA to pursue a hard-nosed, per se approach, under which any plant is determined to be unfit to receive inspection so long as a person who has been convicted of bribery or a related offense involving the inspection or grading staff remains associated with the plant.

Adopting such a per se approach, or approving such a per se approach, involves making a choice between the economic interest of the criminal and the health and welfare of the United States public. I believe that the decision should be made in favor of fully protecting the public interest.

If the determination were to be made case by case as to whether convictions for bribery or related offenses involving the inspection or grading staff make a packing plant "unfit" to receive meat inspection (so long as the convicted individual remains associated with the plant), packing plant officials contemplating bribery or related offenses would know, first, that it is very difficult for the government to detect such offenses, and second, that even if detected, they might be able to continue to remain with the plant and receive inspection or grading services if they can make a showing that mitigating circumstances outweigh their convictions.

Such a case-by-case approach would encourage bribery and related offenses. In addition, as stated above, no one has the ability to predict, with the assurance required to protect the Nation's health, which persons convicted of bribery or a related offense involving the inspection or grading staff are going to repeat the offense. Where the Nation's health is at stake, I believe that it would be irresponsible to follow a case-by-case approach in determining unfitness in cases where the criminal convictions strike at the heart of the meat inspection program. In all cases where the criminal convictions strike at the heart of the meat inspection program, it is impossible to protect the national health unless all the plants involved (regardless of the mitigating circumstances) are determined to be "unfit" to receive inspection unless the convicted individual disassociates himself from the plant.

A reviewing court determining whether this per se approach is arbitrary or capricious should recognize that, in addition to the distinction between the purpose of criminal proceedings (to punish) and the purpose of this proceeding (to protect the national health), discussed above, there is another important distinction. An important goal of the criminal justice system is to rehabilitate offenders. It is not feasible or desirable to lock up all serious offenders forever. Hence the rehabilitation of offenders is an important consideration in criminal proceedings.

Here, however, the concept of rehabilitation has no applicability. Where, as here, the sole purpose of the proceeding is to protect the national health, we are not concerned with rehabilitating a criminal in the meat packing business. There is no shortage of meat packers in this country! There is no shortage of persons willing to assume responsible roles in meat packing companies! (A particular packing plant may be dependent upon one individual, but if that individual is no longer available, and there is an economic need for the packing plant in the area, which is not always the case, someone can be found to take over the interest and duties of that individual, if necessary.) Accordingly, there is no need in this proceeding to be concerned with rehabilitating in the meat industry a criminal who has been convicted of crimes that strike at the heart of the meat inspection system.

The only proper concern here is whether the inspection service can be assured of the reliability and integrity of the plant's management if the convicted individual remains associated with the plant. Where an individual responsibly connected with a meat plant is convicted of a felony, or more than one misdemeanor, that strikes at the heart of the meat inspection program, it is irresponsible to take any approach other than to withdraw inspection service from the plant indefinitely unless the criminal becomes disassociated from the plant. (For a vivid account of how deplorable meatpacking conditions can be in the absence of an effective inspection system, see Upton Sinclair's The Jungle (1906)).

The Department's per se approach in the case of bribery and related offenses is just as reasonable as the per se approach followed by the courts under the Sherman Act (15 U.S.C. § 1).[6] As stated in Northern Pacific Railway Co. v. United States, 356 U.S. 1, 4–5 (1958):

> The Sherman Act was designed to be a comprehensive charter of economic liberty aimed at preserving free and unfettered competition as the rule of trade. It rests on the premise that the unrestrained interaction of competitive forces will yield the best allocation of our economic resources, the lowest prices, the highest quality and the greatest material progress, while at the same time providing an environment conducive to the preservation of our democratic political and social institutions. But even were [6] See Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. United States, 356 U.S. 1, 5 (1958); United States v. McKesson & Robbins, Inc., 351 U.S. 305, 308–16 (1956); Schwegmann Bros. v. Calvert Distillers Corp., 341 U.S. 384, 386 (1951); Kiefer-Stewart Co. v. *Joseph E. that premise open to question, the policy unequivocally laid down by the Act is competition. And to this end it prohibits "Every contract, combination . . . or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States." Although this prohibition is literally all-encompassing, the courts have construed it as precluding only those contracts or combinations which "unreasonably" restrain competition. Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey v. United States, 221 U.S. 1; Chicago Board of Trade v. United States, 246 U.S. 231.

However, there are certain agreements or practices which because of their pernicious effect on competition and lack of any redeeming virtue are conclusively presumed to be unreasonable and therefore illegal without elaborate inquiry as to the precise harm they have caused or the business excuse for their use. This principle of per se unreasonableness not only makes the type of restraints which are proscribed by the Sherman Act more certain to the benefit of everyone concerned, but it also avoids the necessity for an incredibly complicated and prolonged economic investigation into the entire history of the industry involved, as well as related industries, in an effort to determine at large whether a particular restraint has been unreasonable—an inquiry so often wholly fruitless when undertaken. Among the practices which the courts have heretofore deemed to be unlawful in and of themselves are price fixing, United States v. Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., 310 U.S. 150, 210; division of markets, United States v. Addyston Pipe & Steel Co., 85 F. 271, aff'd, 175 U.S. 211; group boycotts, Fashion Originators' Guild v. Federal Trade Comm'n, 312 U.S. 457; and tying arrangements, International Salt Co. v. United States, 332 U.S. 392.

The industry was advised of USDA's per se approach involving convictions for bribery and related offenses on June 26, 1979 (see subsection 1 immediately following). The per se approach is followed only where the convictions strike at the heart of the meat inspection or grading programs (see subsections 2–10, infra). The per se approach involving convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program has been approved by two district judges, but rejected by another district judge and a court of appeals.

1. USDA's Per Se Policy Statement Involving Convictions for Bribery and Related Offenses.

On June 26, 1979, Donald L. Houston, Acting Administrator (now Administrator), Food Safety and Quality Service, USDA, published the following Policy Statement effective on publication (44 Fed. Reg. 37,322, 37, 322-24 (1979); emphasis added), which received widespread publicity in the meat packing industry:

> Policy on Withdrawal or Denial of Federal Inspection or Grading and Acceptance Services Based Upon Convictions for Bribery and Related Offenses.
> Agency: Food Safety and Quality Service, USDA.
>
> Action: Notice.
> Summary: This notice informs the public of the policy of the Food Safety and Quality Service relating to withdrawal or denial of Federal inspection or grading and acceptance service based upon convictions for bribery and related offenses.

> SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: In recent years, the Department has instituted a number of administrative actions seeking the withdrawal or denial of Federal Meat Inspection Services pursuant to section 401 of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (FMIA) (21 U.S.C. 671), withdrawal or denial of Poultry Products Inspection Services pursuant to section 18(a) of the Poultry Products Inspection Act (PPIA) (21 U.S.C. 467(a)), withdrawal or denial of Egg Products Inspection Services pursuant to section 18 of the Egg Products Inspection Act (EPIA) (21 U.S.C. 1047), and withdrawal or denial of Federal Meat, Poultry, Egg, Dairy, Fruit, or Vegetable Grading and Acceptance Services pursuant to regulations promulgated in order to effectuate the purposes of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (AMA) (7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.; 7 CFR 2853.11; 7 CFR 2870.44; 7 CFR 2855.200; 7 CFR 2856.31; 7 CFR 2858.58; 7 CFR 2851.46; 7 CFR 2852.54). Such proceedings have been instituted in order to determine whether certain persons and establishments are unfit to engage in a business requiring egg, meat, or poultry products inspection services or have violated the law or regulations regarding the various grading and acceptance services of the Department.

These administrative proceedings have been instituted in order to effectuate the purposes of these statutes, the protection of the health and welfare of consumers, and the preservation of a sound and efficient system for distributing and marketing agricultural products. The Department's efforts in proceeding against such persons or establishments are based upon a recognition of the importance of maintaining public confidence in the integrity of the inspection and grading systems, and a recognition of the fact that the public interest in the safety of its food supply warrants the imposition of the strictest standard of care.

Recently, many of the Department's actions in this regard have been based upon criminal convictions obtained against federally inspected establishments and/or against individuals responsibly connected with such establishments for bribery and related offenses such as the giving of unlawful gratuities to public officials. In addition to evidencing a lack of basic integrity, such convictions must be considered especially serious in the specific context of the meat and poultry industries. While the FMIA, PPIA, and EPIA require the mandatory inspection of the slaughtering of certain livestock and poultry and processing of products thereof, and of the processing of egg products, it is physically impossible for Federal inspection personnel to oversee all actions taken by operators and employees of federally inspected establishments. Great reliance must, therefore, be placed upon the integrity of these individuals. Similar reliance must be placed upon the integrity of those involved in the grading process operated under the AMA in order to insure that grading decisions are as accurate as possible and that consumers are accurately informed of the proper grades of products. When such criminal convictions are based upon the giving or offering of bribes or gratuities to Federal inspection or grading personnel, such actions also pose a direct and tangible threat to the integrity of the inspection and grading systems. The Department has recognized the seriousness of such offenses in dealing with its own personnel, who have been subjected to immediate suspension without pay upon being charged with such offenses, and have been dismissed based upon the conviction for such offenses.

After considering these issues in a number of administrative proceedings, the Food Safety and Quality Service (FSQS) now considers it appropriate and in the public interest to publish a statement of general policy with regard to administrative actions for the withdrawal or denial of Federal inspection and/or grading and acceptance services, based upon convictions for bribery and related offenses. For the purposes of this statement, convictions for bribery and related offenses shall include, but not be limited to, convictions for violations of 18 U.S.C. 201, 18 U.S.C. 209, 7 U.S.C. 1622(h), 21 U.S.C. 622, and Federal, State, and municipal statutes of a similar nature.

The policy of FSQS in administrative actions brought for the withdrawal or denial of Federal inspection and/or grading and acceptance services, based upon convictions for bribery and related offenses, shall be as follows: FSQS shall institute an administrative proceeding seeking the indefinite withdrawal or denial of Federal inspection and/or grading and acceptance services from any recipient of or applicant for such services when the Department's action is based upon a criminal conviction or convictions for bribery or related offenses. FSQS will also exercise its authority, whenever it is deemed appropriate, to institute action to withdraw the benefits of such grading and acceptance services from individuals, as well as business entities, convicted of such crimes. Such proceedings shall be conducted in conformity with the applicable Rules of Practice, which afford the respondent the opportunity for a hearing before an Administrative Law Judge. Decisions rendered in such proceedings may then be appealed to the Judicial Officer of the Department, whose decisions may, in turn, be appealed to the Federal courts.

In the past, the Department has reached settlements in some proceedings of this nature which have included a provision for either the divestiture, by the convicted individual, of all interest in the respondent establishment, or the isolation by the convicted individual from all contact and communication with Federal grading and inspection personnel. Isolation provisions will not be included in future settlements of such cases, but the Department may, under appropriate circumstances, reach settlements which include a provision which assures a complete divestiture, by all convicted individuals, of their entire ownership interest in and operational control or direction of the establishment in question, and the termination of all associations between the convicted individual or individuals and the establishment in question. FSQS will not enter into any specific settlements which does not have this effect. These settlements may also include a provision for actual withdrawal of services for a specified period of time. In addition, such settlement may contain such other terms and conditions as are determined to be appropriate on a case-by-case basis. For example, inspection or grading and acceptance services may be withdrawn immediately if the establishment in question or any of its officers, employees, or agents subsequently violates section 22 of the FMIA, or section 201 or 209 of Title 18 of the United States Code, or commits certain specified violations involving the preparation, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded products. Such subsequent violations may be established either through conviction or final decision as to the facts in a formal adjudicatory proceeding before the Secretary. Further, nothing in this policy is intended to imply that a compromise settlement will be considered in all cases. Accordingly, the determination to consider such settlements will be made on a case-by-case basis.

Proceedings of this nature will be instituted by FSQS whenever the Secretary has jurisdiction to determine whether inspection or grading and acceptance services shall be withdrawn or denied based upon convictions for bribery and related offenses. FSQS will also continue to exercise its authority to institute proceedings for the withdrawal or denial of inspection or grading and acceptance services based upon other acts or offenses.

In instituting this policy, FSQS is aware that its application may have substantial impact upon affected individuals and establishments. However, after a full consideration of this issue, it has been determined that the institution of such a policy on a uniform basis is essential in order to protect the integrity of Federal Meat Inspection, Poultry Products Inspection, and Egg Products Inspection Programs, and the Federal Meat, Poultry, Egg, Dairy, Fruit, and Vegetable Grading and Acceptance Services. The Agency is, therefore, publishing this statement in order to notify all interested members of the public of its intention of pursuing the strongest possible sanction policy in this area. The intended effect of the adoption of such a policy will be the enhancement of the integrity of the industry and the Federal programs, and the deterrence of bribery and related offenses in the future.

It should be noted that this Policy Statement expresses the Administrator's viewpoint that criminal convictions for bribery and related offenses involving the inspection staff establish per se that a plant is unfit to receive inspection, unless the convicted person is disassociated from the plant, regardless of any mitigating circumstances.[7]

This Policy Statement was issued only after the administrative officials had 11½ years' experience under the particular statutory provision at issue here, and many more years' experience relating to the general subject matter of bribery and related offenses. The Department had previously followed a number of approaches, including isolation provisions, which were found to be unworkable.

The administrative officials recognized the "substantial impact" of this per se policy upon affected individuals and establishments, but, "after a full consideration of this issue," the administrative officials "determined that the institution of such a policy on a uniform basis is essential in order to protect the integrity of Federal Meat Inspection" and other programs (44 Fed. Reg. at 37,324).

As I have indicated in prior decisions, I believe that the administrative, per se approach with respect to bribery and related offenses involving the meat inspection and grading staff is reasonable. In fact, I believe that it is the only policy that will achieve the congressional purpose of assuring the wholesomeness of the Nation's meat supply.

The packing industry has been on notice since June 26, 1979, that the administrative officials will seek the withdrawal of Federal inspection from any plant where there have been convictions for bribery or related offenses, including, specifically, convictions under 18 U.S.C. § 209(a), regardless of any mitigating circumstances, and the Department's Judicial Officer has consistently approved that policy. The relevant administrative and judicial cases as discussed below. (Since no case involves a conviction under 18

[7] The Policy Statement does no more than set forth the Administrator's policy that will be followed in the case of convictions for bribery and related offenses under statutory provisions that were not, and could not be, altered by the Administrator. It is not a regulation and, therefore, it is not subject to the requirements relating to regulations. It is also not a "significant" regulation, action or decision since it does not alter any "enforcement or compliance requirements," and was not "likely to raise significant controversy due to conflict over questions of fact or impact." Accordingly, there is no basis for respondent's argument based on Executive Order 12044 (Mar. 23, 1978) or Secretary's Memorandum No. 1955 (Aug. 25, 1978).

U.S.C. § 209(a), no case is squarely in point, but most of the cases discussed below are closely analogous to the case at hand.)

2. Norwich Beef Company.

In In re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380 (1979), aff'd, No. H-79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981), appeal dismissed, No. 81-6080 (2d Cir. Jan. 22, 1982), order modified, 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Nov. 15, 1984), the Judicial Officer withdrew inspection indefinitely from a packing plant, but suspended the sanction on condition that Alan Roessler was disassociated from the plant in 90 days and sold his stock within one year, and the plant did not commit designated offenses within 5 years.

Alan Roessler, respondent's president, treasurer and principal stockholder, had been convicted of the felony of receiving a truckload of hijacked beef and processing it through a packing plant which he managed (respondent's predecessor), with knowledge that it was stolen. Mr. Roessler was subsequently convicted of a misdemeanor because when he applied for Federal inspection for the newly established Norwich Beef Company, he answered "none" to questions with respect to whether he had previously been convicted of any crimes.

Since the felony relating to hijacked beef did not strike at the heart of the meat inspection program, the Judicial Officer considered all of the circumstances presented in the case, including mitigating circumstances, before concluding that respondent was unfit to receive inspection because of the felony conviction, so long as Alan Roessler was associated with the firm. (A similar, recent case is In re Apex Meat Co., 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (September 5, 1985), appeal docketed, No. 85-3189 (D.D.C. Oct. 4, 1985)). When considering the other circumstances, he held that other unfavorable circumstances must be considered, as well as respondent's mitigating circumstances, including the fact that respondent had committed a single misdemeanor, which would not, by itself, afford a jurisdictional basis for withdrawing inspection. The Judicial Officer stated (38 Agric. Dec. at 394-96):

> However, inspection services are not to be withdrawn automatically because of the conviction of a felony. The felony must be of such nature as to support a finding that the recipient is "unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection" as a result of that felony (21 U.S.C. 671).
> Dr. Hatter explained that meat inspectors cannot continuously observe all of the processing activities at a plant and, therefore, the inspection service must be able to depend upon the reliability and integrity of the plant management to be assured that the health and welfare of consumers will be protected. Such reliability and integrity are lacking here. Specifically, he testified (Tr. 23, 39–43):

> Q. Is there anything specifically about the way the meat inspection system works and the way the business works that creates a need for this type of integrity that you are talking about?
>
> A. Yes, because in this role we do not have and cannot have enough inspectors observing every operation that is going on, on a daily basis. We have inspectors that cover the sausage formulation, for example, where you have in one section the receiving cooler of fresh meats, then you have the formulation, you have the spice room, which is all taking place, and then emulsion and stuffers. These are all taking place simultaneously so, therefore, we have to have the reliability, the integrity of the plant management to be assured that when the inspector is not there to observe the actual procedure, that it will be carried out according to the rules and regulations.
>
> Q. Dr. Hatter, the evaluation of these applications which come into our office, would an indication in response to these Blocks 19 and 20, that an individual associated with the organization was—would an indication that such an individual have been convicted of a crime of larceny who was associated with the orgainzation cause any particular concern on your part concerning the integrity of that facility and that operator?
>
> A. Yes, because the integrity, honesty and dependability of the applicants, including the operation of the plant itself, is solely dependent upon the individuals within that plant to abide by the rules and regulations of when and when not the inspector might be on the premises, so that the matter of records, the formulation, the restricted ingredients going [into] each product would be carried out depending upon the integrity of plant management.

* * * * * * *

Q. If, on the same application, you were informed that an individual connected with the applicant had been convicted of the crime of selling and transporting meat under grant of inspection obtained through false representations, would this cause you any particular concern?

A. Yes, it would because of what I had mentioned previously, the dependability that we rely on plant management to carry out all the rules and regulations as far as their operations, both in sanitation and in their preparation of meat and meat food products, and unless we have this, we cannot depend on it, and this certainly would indicate that it was in doubt as far as the larceny type of situation.

* * * * * * *

Q. Now, Doctor Hatter, based on your familiarity with these documents, your understanding of the purpose of Section 401 of the Meat Inspection Act and your own experience and responsibilities within the Meat and Poultry Inspection Programs, have you formed an opinion as to whether the Respondent in this action should be allowed to continue to obtain the benefit of meat inspection services?

A. Yes, I do.

* * * * * * *

Q. And what is that opinion, Doctor?

A. That based on the evidence that we have before us, that the Norwich Beef Company as an operator under Federal inspection, puts the total program into jeopardy in that the consumer, who we service or protect as far as the final product reaching their table, loses confidence in the reliability when we permit the type of operation to be operated by the individuals who have been so convicted of a felony and a misdemeanor in this case.

Q. When you talk about integrity, do you feel that because of these convictions, sir, that your program can place any reliability on Norwich Beef Company?

A. No, especially since the application was falsely made out, without giving us proper documentation. Certainly, we don't have the reliability or the integrity needed as far as the plant's operation.

Q. Doctor Hatter, is there any action which the Respondent in this action might take which, in your opinion, would allow them to continue to receive Federal inspection services?

* * * * * * *

A. Yes. Norwich Beef could continue if Mr. Alan Roessler, who was convicted of the felony and the misdemeanor, would remove himself from the stockholders plus any contact with the operation of Norwich Beef Company, and that Norwich Beef would be on probation for a period of time.

The Federal inspector who inspects meat products at respondent's plant is at the plant only about 80% of the time since he inspects at two other plants besides respondent (Tr. 45). Also, even when he is at respondent's plant, he cannot watch all operations at the same time. Hence unless the inspection service can depend upon the reliability and integrity of respondent's management, it cannot protect the "public interest * * * by assuring that meat and meat food products distributed to them [from respondent's plant] are wholesome, not adulterated, and properly marked, labeled, and packaged" (21 U.S.C. 602).

The convictions of Alan Roessler provide a reasonable basis for the view of the administrative officials that they cannot depend upon the reliability or integrity of respondent so long as Alan Roessler is associated with the firm.

Alan Roessler has been convicted of two crimes relating to the profitability of meatpacking companies. I infer that the first crime was committed with the expectation of profit, and that restitution was later made to lessen the criminal penalty. The second crime obviously involved the profitability of respondent's meatpacking business since it was committed to obtain inspection, which is indispensable to the operation of respondent's plant.

Although only the felony conviction affords a jurisdictional basis for withdrawing inspection services from respondent, once the jurisdictional basis is met consideration can be given to any other relevant circumstances, favorable and unfavorable. Accordingly, it is appropriate to consider the evidence offered by respondent that aside from the two convictions, Alan Roessler's reputation in the community is good, and he has conducted himself and his business affairs in a responsible and exemplary manner. On the other hand, it is appropriate to consider that Alan Roessler was willing to commit a second crime to obtain inspection services for his plant.

Considering all of the circumstances, there is a reasonable basis for the belief of the administrative officials that respondent is unfit to receive inspection services because of Alan Roessler's felony conviction so long as Alan Roessler is associated with the firm.

On appeal, Chief Judge Clarie upheld the Decision and Order of the Judicial Officer (Norwich Beef Co. v. Bergland, No. H-79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981), appeal dismissed, No. 81-6080 (2d Cir. Jan. 22, 1982). The Chief Judge agreed with the Department's "logic, which equates lack of integrity and dependability with unfitness to engage in a business requiring inspection" (slip op. at 7). In upholding the Judicial Officer's Decision and Order, the court stated (slip op. at 6-8):

> Section 671 does not automatically disenfranchise all convicted felons from engaging in the meat processing business. It clearly defers to the discretion of the Secretary, who may withdraw inspection services if, after a hearing, he determines that the recipient of such services is unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection. The plaintiffs contend that the Secretary's decision in this case, as rendered by the Judicial Officer, was arbitrary, capricious, and an abuse of discretion. In support of this contention, the plaintiffs argue that a conviction, alone, will not justify a finding of "unfitness." The Court notes, first, that although this inquiry is to be "searching and careful, the ultimate standard of review is a narrow one. The court is not empowered to substitute its judgment for that of the agency." Citizens to Preserve Overton Park, Inc. v. Volpe, 401 U.S. 402, 416 (1971). See also Bowman Transportation, Inc. v. Arkansas-Best Freight System, Inc., 419 U.S. 281, 285–86 (1974). Second, the Judicial Officer's decision did not simply equate a felony conviction with "unfitness." There was testimony at the hearing by the Regional Director of the USDA, to the effect that there is an insufficient number of inspectors to observe all of the processing activities at a given plant and, therefore, the inspection service relies heavily "upon the reliability and integrity of the plant management to be assured that the health and welfare of consumers will be protected." In re Norwich Beef Company, Inc., FMIA Docket No. 29, at 23–24 (Mar. 7, 1979). The Court can find no fault with that logic, which equates lack of integrity and dependability with unfitness to engage in a business requiring inspection. The plaintiffs argue, in reply, "Hypothetically, a person may lack integrity and dependability and still sell an excellent and outstanding food product which poses no threat to the consuming public." While this proposition may well be true, the Secretary is not required to run the risk that it may, instead, be false. Nor is it an abuse of discretion for him to conclude that, at least, in this case, it is false; and that the consuming public will be safer if the plaintiff, Roessler, is not permitted to operate a meat processing business. The Court is cognizant of the public's great interest in the purity of food. Smith v. California, 361 U.S. 147, 152 (1959).

Next, the plaintiffs claim that the sanction imposed was unduly harsh, in view of previous sanctions. This same claim was made, unsuccessfully, in the case of Butz v. Glover Livestock Commission Co., Inc., 411 U.S. 182 (1973). "The employment of a sanction within the authority of an administrative agency is . . . not rendered invalid in a particular case because it is more severe than sanctions imposed in other cases." Id. at 187. See also Wright v. Securities & Exchange Commission, 112 F.2d 89, 95 (2d Cir. 1940). The Secretary's decision, as rendered by the Judicial Officer, may seem overly harsh in that it may bar plaintiff Alan Roessler from employment with plaintiff Norwich Beef Company. However it is consistent with a principle expressed by the United States Supreme Court in the case of United States v. Park,

> "The requirements of foresight and vigilance imposed on responsible corporate agents are beyond question demanding, and perhaps onerous, but they are not more stringent than the public has a right to expect of those who voluntarily assume positions of authority in business enterprises whose services and products affect the health and well-being of the public that supports them." United States v. Park, 421 U.S. 658, 672 (1975).

3. Wyszynski Provision Company.

In In re Wyszynski Provision Co., 40 Agric. Dec. 17 (1981), aff'd, 538 F. Supp. 361 (E.D. Pa. 1982), the Judicial Officer withdrew meat inspection service indefinitely from respondent, but suspended the withdrawal on the condition that Walter J. Wyszynski became disassociated from respondent within 90 days and sold his stock within one year, and respondent did not violate the Meat Inspection Act within 3 years.

The withdrawal of inspection service was based on the fact that Walter J. Wyszynski was convicted of three felony counts, and respondent of eight felony counts, all involving the sale of adulterated meat. Sodium sulfite, a prohibited substance, had been surreptitiously added to sausage to make it appear fresher than it was. In Wyszynski, the Judicial Officer followed the per se approach set forth in Utica and Toscony, discussed in subsections 4 and 5, infra, and held that the felony convictions required a determination that respondent is unfit to receive inspection service, irrespective of mitigating circumstances, so long as Walter J. Wyszynski is associated with respondent. The Judicial Officer stated (40 Agric. Dec. at 22–24):

> In the Utica Packing Company case referred to above, it was held that where the respondent's president and half-owner was convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of bribing the supervisor of the meat inspectors at respondent's plant on four separate occasions, a determination must be made that the respondent is unfit to receive inspection service. Specifically, it was held (39 Agric. Dec. at 602):
> * * * * * * *
> Although the felony convictions involved in the present case are not quite as serious as those involved in Utica, the felony convictions here strike at the heart of the meat inspection program and similarly require a determination that the respondent is unfit to receive inspection service.

In the present case, sodium sulfite, a prohibited substance, must have been surreptitiously added by Mr. Walter J. Wyszynski when the inspector was not present. The inspector at respondent's plant inspects meat at two or three plants and therefore he is not at respondent's plant all day. Although there is no contention that the meat involved in the violations in this case was putrid or decomposed (the meat was not tested in this respect), the addition of sodium sulfite makes meat look fresh even after it is too old to be eaten safely. The retailer or ultimate consumer could mishandle a meat product containing sodium sulfite and be unaware that the product was no longer safe to eat because it would still look fresh (Tr. 37, 107).

. . . Because of the nature of the felonies involved in this case, I have no alternative but to conclude that respondent is unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection under the Federal Meat Inspection Act.

Here, as in the Utica case, in view of the nature of the felony convictions involved in this proceeding, it is not appropriate to consider other facts and circumstances as to respondent's reputation in the community or as to present conditions at their plant. As stated in Utica (39 Agric. Dec. at 602–03):

* * * * * * *

The same reasoning applies to the present felonies which occurred when Mr. Wyszynski surreptitiously added a prohibited substance to meat products when the inspector was not present.[4]

In addition, it is not appropriate to consider whether it is likely that respondent will again commit a similar felony. As stated in Utica (39 Agric. Dec. at 603–04):

[4] Perhaps the only felonies that would compel a finding that a plant is unfit to receive inspection under the Act without regard to any other circumstances are those involving bribery and related offenses or the surreptitious thwarting of the work of the Federal personnel. But I would not foreclose the possibility of other cases demonstrating that other felonies belong in the same category.

As shown in the quotation above, note 4, the Judicial Officer indicated that the per se approach was being followed at present only in cases "involving bribery and related offenses or the surreptitious thwarting of the work of the Federal personnel." Although the Judicial Officer applied the per se approach in Wyszynski without regard to respondent's mitigating circumstances, he stated in dicta that "even if the [mitigating] circumstances relied on by respondent were relevant, they would not lead me to change the order in this case" (40 Agric. Dec. at 25). The mitigating circumstances relied on by respondent included the fact that "neither the corporation nor its principals had previously or subsequently been arrested, convicted of any crime or involved in difficulty with the Department of Agriculture" (40 Agric. Dec. at 25); respondent had been "punished enough by its criminal fines and the adverse publicity resulting from the criminal convictions" (40 Agric. Dec. at 26); and the "meat in question was not contaminated or putrid" (40 Agric. Dec. at 26).

On appeal to the district court, the court referred to the fact that the Judicial Officer's per se approach had been upheld by the district court on appeal in the Utica case (discussed in subsection 5(b), infra), but the court disagreed with the district court's holding in Utica that mitigating circumstances were irrelevant and immaterial. Wyszynski Provision Co. v. Sec. of Ag., 538 F. Supp. 361, 364 (E.D. Pa. 1982). The court, however, significantly undercut the importance of mitigating circumstances where the conviction strikes at the heart of the meat inspection program by holding (ibid.T1):

> However, whether or not a conviction is in and of itself "substantial evidence" varies with the nature of the predicate felony or the repeated violations of law. The more closely the conduct strikes at the policies of the Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of mitigating facts.

The following excerpt summarizes the district court's views (538 F. Supp. at 362-65):

> The Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") [who is the same ALJ involved in the present case] held the required hearing on complaint of the United States Department of Agriculture ("USDA") and found Wyszynski and the Company unfit within the meaning of the Act because of their felony convictions. . . . She granted the request of the USDA that inspection services be indefinitely withdrawn and denied to the Company provided that such withdrawal and denial would cease for so long as Wyszynski is not associated with the Company, its successors or assigns, directly or indirectly, as partner, officer, director, shareholder or employee and does not control it in any way, and the Company does not violate any provision of the Act within three years. However, the decision and order made clear that the ALJ, citing In Re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380 (1979), deemed she had no discretion upon establishing the felony convictions for violating the Act other than to find respondent unfit, notwithstanding the discretionary authority invested in the Secretary by the Act. However, in the event on appeal it were decided that discretion did lie with the ALJ, she found various mitigating factors [2] on account of which she stated she would have otherwise recommended suspension of the indefinite withdrawal and denial of services so long as the Company and Wyszynski did not violate the Act individually or collectively.

[2] The ALJ deemed mitigating the following circumstances: adequate punishment in the criminal proceedings; the guilty pleas involved one isolated event of addition of sulfites to make meat appear fresher; the meat was not contaminated or putrid; the adverse publicity caused loss of business to the Company and humiliation to Wyszynski; none of the principals had been previously convicted of crime; this long established business had never been in difficulty with governmental authorities nor had licensing problems with the USDA; there are 25 employees, 12 of whom are non-family members, all employees of long standing; Wyszynski has resigned as officer, director and shareholder and is working in a non-executive menial capacity having no relation to meat preparation; the severance of Wyszynski from the Company is based only on the felony convictions and there is no evidence of record that this would further the purposes of the Act or serve as any further deterrent.

The Company appealed the ALJ's decision to the Judicial Officer ("JO") of the USDA. He affirmed the ALJ and held that in view of the felony convictions, mitigating circumstances could not be considered in a determination of fitness. He concluded in the alternative that even if the mitigating circumstances were relevant, they would not change his final determination on the facts of this case; FMIA Docket No. 41, Paper 19.

. . . The following errors of law are cited: (1) deeming a felony conviction to automatically compel a finding of unfitness within the meaning of the Act; (2) failing to consider mitigating circumstances; and (3) substituting findings of fact by the JO for those by the ALJ.

Upon review of the whole record and separate consideration of each of these standards, see, Bowman Transportation, Inc. v. Arkansas-Best Freight System, Inc., 419 U.S. 281, 95 S.Ct. 438, 42 L.Ed.2d 447 (1974), we find that the Secretary's decision was neither arbitrary or capricious nor unsupported by substantial evidence. In light of plaintiff and Wyszynski's convictions for adulterating meat and the explicit provisions of § 671 regarding felony convictions as a basis for withdrawing meat inspection services, it is difficult to hold otherwise.

Congress has declared that conviction of either: "1) any felony, or 2) more than one violation of any law . . . based upon the acquiring, handling or distributing of unwholesome, mislabeled, or deceptively packaged food or upon fraud in connection with transactions in food" may provide the basis for a withdrawal of inspection services if the Secretary determines after opportunity for hearing that the recipient is unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection. 21 U.S.C. § 671. The JO found that plaintiff had been convicted of multiple felonies that "strike at the heart of the meat inspection program." These felonies were based upon distributing mislabeled food or fraud in connection with transactions in food. He found that Wyszynski added sodium sulfite to meat surreptitiously when inspectors were absent and considered that Wyszynski had been convicted of felonies with "intent to defraud." Plaintiff's actions of record provided adequate evidence to support a finding of unfitness under the standards set out in § 671.

Plaintiff argues that the action of the JO was arbitrary and capricious in failing to consider relevant mitigating circumstances, and illegal in determining that a finding of unfitness was mandated by plaintiff's convictions of felonies. But the JO made no automatic finding. He recognized that "not every felony conviction renders the recipient unfit to receive inspection service," but certain felony convictions in and of themselves justify a finding of unfitness as they did in this case. He relied on In Re Utica Packing

Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 590 (1980), an administrative decision ordering suspension of a meat packing company unless it dissociated with its President who had been convicted of bribing a federal inspection supervisor. The district court in Utica, affirming the decision of the Secretary, held that present compliance and good character were irrelevant, but that all plaintiff's evidence, even if relevant, was insufficient to render insubstantial the evidence on which the Secretary based his decision to suspend; Utica Packing Co. v. Bergland, 511 F.Supp. 655 (E.D.Mich.1981). We respectfully differ with the district court in Utica only to this extent: mitigating facts are not immaterial or irrelevant and may [8] be considered. However, whether or not a conviction is in and of itself "substantial evidence" varies with the nature of the predicate felony or the repeated violations of law. The more closely the conduct strikes at the policies of the Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of mitigating facts.

In this case the JO considered the mitigating facts listed by the ALJ [4] although he accorded little or no weight to them. He decided to accord little weight to these mitigating facts because the felonies here involved wilful adulteration. He considered that sodium sulfite added to the meat makes it look fresh when it is not and this creates a danger that a retailer may sell or a consumer may eat a product no longer wholesome. In his view such action, even on one occasion (affecting more than one sale) was of such a nature and scale to warrant the administrative action sought by the Secretary. Therefore, the court cannot find that the final determination of the agency was arbitrary or capricious. While we might reach a different decision on these facts were we to consider the matter ab initio, where there is no clear error, we cannot substitute our judgment for that of the agency given discretionary authority. Overton Park, supra. The determination of the USDA, charged as it is with enforcement of the Act and [8] The use of "may" was obviously euphemistic. Since the court differed with the Judicial Officer and the Utica district court's view that mitigating circumstances were irrelevant and did not have to be considered, the court obviously meant that mitigating circumstances "must" be considered. The court, however, gave no reasons for, in effect, holding that it is arbitrary and capricious to refuse to consider mitigating circumstances in those cases where the convictions strike at the heart of the meat inspection program.

the protection of the public health, is entitled to considerable deference. See, Philadelphia Citizens in Action v. Schweiker, supra at 886.

[4] Thus, the plaintiff's third argument, that the JO substituted his findings of fact for those of the ALJ, is without basis; he determined that on these facts the felony convictions alone warranted a finding of unfitness, but if there were agency discretion, he would exercise that discretion differently than would the ALJ on the facts found by the ALJ.

Accordingly, although the district court in Wyszynski disagreed with the Department's per se approach, it significantly undercut the effect of its disagreement by holding that the "more closely the conduct strikes at the policies of the Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of mitigating facts" (538 F. Supp. at 364). In addition, as shown in the next subsection, the district court reviewing the Toscony decision expressly agreed with the Judicial Officer's per se approach in Wyszynski, and upheld the use of the per se approach in Toscony based upon the Judicial Officer's Wyszynski decision.

4. Toscony Provision Company.

In In re Toscony Provision Co., 40 Agric. Dec. 533 (1981), aff'd, 538 F. Supp. 318 (D.N.J. 1982), remanded by consent, No. 82-5354 (3d Cir. Dec. 27, 1982), decision on remand, 43 Agric. Dec. ____ (May 18, 1984), order denying late appeal, 43 Agric. Dec. ____ (July 12, 1984), aff'd, No. 81-1729 (D.N.J. Mar. 11, 1985) (court reviewed merits notwithstanding late administrative appeal), aff'd, 782 F.2d 1031 (3d Cir. 1986) (unpublished), the Judicial Officer withdrew meat inspection service indefinitely from respondent, but suspended the withdrawal on condition that Henry Dei became disassociated from respondent within 90 days and sold his stock within one year, and respondent did not violate the Meat Inspection Act within 2 years.

The withdrawal of inspection service was based on the fact that respondent and Henry Dei, its president and principal stockholder, were each convicted of a single felony, knowingly distributing adulterated meat food products, viz., sausage to which an industrial chemical, imidazole, had been added. The chemical masks the aging or spoilage of the product, and, therefore, could cause harm if a retailer or consumer held the product too long because of its fresh appearance. The chemical was added without the knowledge of the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

In Toscony, the Judicial Officer adopted the decision of the ALJ, which followed the per se approach previously set forth by the Judicial Officer in In re Wyszynski Provision Co., 40 Agric. Dec. 17 (1981), aff'd on other grounds, 538 F. Supp. 361 (E.D. Pa. 1982), discussed immediately above. Based on Wyszynski (and other cases), the ALJ held that the felony convictions, which strike at the heart of the meat inspection program, required a determination that respondent was unfit, irrespective of mitigating circumstances, so long as Henry Dei was associated with respondent. No consideration was given to Toscony's mitigating circumstances, even by way of dicta. The ALJ's decision, adopted by the Judicial Officer, states (40 Agric. Dec. at 535, 537-38):

> This case is controlled by recent decisions by the Judicial Officer: In re Utica Packing Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 590 (1980); appeal docketed, No. CA-80-7242 (E.D. Mich., July 25, 1980); In re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380 (1979), affirmed, H79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981); and In re Wyszynski Provision Company, [40] Agric. Dec. [17] (Feb. 13, 1981). [Footnote omitted.] Wyszynski is on all fours and requires the finding that respondent is unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection under the Federal Meat Inspection Act.
